The Lemon Fair Angels

An Enduring Tradition

By K.G. Beavers, Messenger Staff Writer

One of Sewanee's enduring traditions is to get a guardian angel. When you enter the gates, tap the car roof to let your angel rest. When you leave the gates, tap your car roof to take your angel with you for protection.

Gay Alvarez thought that was such a charming notion that she began to provide fun and unusual angels at her store, the Lemon Fair. In the 1980s, Gay asked Christi Teasley, who was working for her at the time, to come up with some artwork for the Sewanee angel legend. Teasley also asked Rob Keele, a local songwriter, to write about the Sewanee angel legend. "I do not know what would have happened to this store without the angel story," said Alvarez.

A Sewanee resident since 1964, Gay Alvarez is no stranger to the Village. Alvarez has been in business since 1972, and is the longest running proprietor of a business in Sewanee. Ken Taylor at Taylor's Mercantile is second.

In 1972, Alvarez and Marilyn Powell opened up a needlework shop on Georgia Avenue, the first site of the Lemon Fair.

"The dean of women at the time, Mary Sue Cushman, said what Sewanee really needed was a needlework shop," said Alvarez. "Marilyn and I opened up the business with about $500 each. The first Lemon Fair was in a four-room shotgun style house. The needlework supplies filled up one room."

Trying to decide what to do with the remainder of the rooms, Alvarez filled another room with her own handmade pottery. "With the needlework, pottery and some kitchen supplies, we had a small business. Then we started noticing that people mostly bought the pottery. Whatever the people buy is the direction in which you should go."

A gift shop with local art began. The Lemon Fair transformed into a gallery and gift shop featuring handmade, unusual and magical gifts, including angels.

In 1975, Alvarez bought the Arthur Long grocery store on University Avenue. Long's was still a functioning general merchandise store, one of two such stores in Sewanee at that time. "We bought it 'as is,' with the inventory still in place on the shelves."

Throughout the years, Alvarez has incorporated other local artists' works into her store. A customer can buy locally made pottery from John Ray, Claire Reishman and Merissa Tobler. Sarah Vance sells her angel-shaped goat soaps. Former resident Ben Potter offers tin angels. Long time residents will remember Shipp and Judith Webb's distinct and popular jewelry being available. While Alvarez no longer makes her own pottery, she is concentrating on making jewelry. Of course, some of the Lemon Fair shelves are still lined with Teasley's angel artwork adorned on mugs.

McConnachie to Give Founders' Day Address

Jenny McConnachie, one of the longest-serving Episcopal missionaries in the church's history, will deliver the Founders' Day address and receive an honorary Doctor of Canon Law during the Oct. 9 Convocation at the University. The ceremony, held at 12:30 p.m. in All Saints' Chapel, will include the conferral of two additional honorary degrees, the installation of the provost of the university and the induction of new members into the Order of Gownsmen.

McConnachie, a nurse, met her husband, Chris, when they both worked at hospitals in London. Their careers took them from London to Canada, to South Africa and to North Carolina, where they settled and began raising a family. In 1981, the McConnachie family—including five children—returned to South Africa for what became a lasting commitment. They found an overwhelming demand for healthcare and other services, and in response started the African Medical Mission with support from U.S. churches. McConnachie launched a medical clinic for people living on the local garbage dump. That program, the Itipini Community Project, now includes a preschool, after-school and nutrition programs and other services, providing care to 3,000 people.

Honorary degrees awarded during this Convocation have a theme of service to the broad Episcopal Church. The University will confer upon Christopher Bryan, C.K. Benedict Professor of New Testament at Sewanee's School of Theology, an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree, and upon W. Brown Patterson, C'52, Francis S. Houghtling Professor of History emeritus, an honorary Doctor of Letters.

Anative of London, Bryan attended Wadham College, Oxford, graduating in the Honour Schools of both Theology and English Language and Literature, and coming under the influence of C. S. Lewis and J. R. R. Tolkien. Before moving to Sewanee in 1983, he taught New Testament at Virginia Theological Seminary, and was associate director of the Center for Continuing Education. Here, Bryan has held the positions of professor of New Testament, interim chaplain, priest associate, and editor of the Sewanee Theological Review. His scholarly books cover topics including the Gospel of Mark, St. Paul's letter to the

School Board Meets in Work Session

Discussion of SES Renovations Tops the Agenda

by K.G. Beavers, Sewanee Messenger Staff Writer

The Franklin County school board met in a work session on Oct. 1 at Sewanee Elementary School to discuss SES renovation bids, update on the honors distinction for graduating and the credit recovery program.

Steve Morris, representing the firm of Kaatz, Binkley, Jones & Morris Architects, Inc., spoke with school board members and guests about some of the renovations that needed to be done to the school. School Board Chairman Kevin Caroland "wanted the school board to physically see some of the work that we need to do up here."

"We're grateful to Principal Maxon for letting us hold our meeting at SES. It was very useful to have the on-site tour of the repairs that need to be done to the school," said Chris McDonough, school board member.

Sealed bids for the renovation were accepted until Sept. 25 at the school board office. Six contractors bid on the project, which is expected to take 180 days to complete. One bid was more than the proposed $750,000.

Morris explained the changes to the windows, replacing the roof on the oldest part of the building, and the biggest concern of draining the water away from the building. School board members raised concern over the water harvesting system. Morris said that without this alternative, the downspout would just be replaced and the school would still have a water issue. "The real purpose of this water system is to relieve some of the water drainage coming into the building," said Morris.

"I am in favor of fixing Sewanee, and there are some things we were not aware of," said school board member Betty Jo Drummond. "But we need to take our time and do our homework before we approve a bid. What do we really need to have fixed?" she asked.

"The repairs are going to cost a lot, but they're necessary as maintenance. Given the expense, the rain harvesting tank might have to be put on hold," said McDonough.

The school board wants to see a price differential between a metal roof and a shingle roof. Discussion will continue at the Oct. 8 school board meeting before a bid is accepted. Once a bid is accepted, work will begin immediately, taking into consideration the planning process between Maxon and the contractor.

"Some of the work will no doubt be disruptive, especially in the playground and on that side of the school. But I know SES faculty and staff will be able to handle it," said McDonough.

Students graduating in 2013 will be the first class to graduate under the Tennessee Diploma Project.

FUND RAISER A SUCCESS

To the Editor:

The fund raiser for Darlene Amacher was a huge success. I want to thank the whole community for all of their support. She will be able to heal and finish her radiation treatments without having to worry about money for a while.

I especially want to thank Slandered Banshee for the great music. I also want to thank all the restaurants and friends who donated all the great food, including St. Mary's Sewanee, Julia's, The Blue Chair, The Bread Peddler, Colleen Kay, Lynn Cimino-Hurt, Connie Kelly and Mary Phillips.

I could not have done this without the following people: Mary Phillips for helping with anything I needed done; Heath Stevens for help with parking, taking pictures and other odds and ends; Kathleen O'Donohue for staying at the donation table during the whole event; Chris Amacher for building the fire and leading the drum circle; Colleen Kay and Joan Thomas for helping me put the fliers together; and to the University Press for printing them off at the last minute.

Great gratitude goes out to Joan Thomas and Michael Lee for the use of the great facilities at Mooney's and to God for holding off on rain until the event was over. This is the most wonderful community to live in, for when one of us needs help, we all pitch in.

REMINDER FOR OUTDOOR ACTIVITIES

To the Editor:

This is a reminder of some important considerations for outdoor activities. Hike leaders, guide books and Google Earth are not infallible. More than one person should preview and check out landmarks from the broad perspective of the river or trail. The pre-event safety talk should remind participants of the need for teamwork and their involvement. A TSRA river access is not always a paved boat ramp and could actually be an obscure path hardly visible from the river. Trip leaders need to control the number of paddlers with less experience to assure enough time to help all who need more attention.

On a recent paddle trip, eight paddlers missed the takeout point and the eight-mile trip was extended by seven miles. Hindsight is always a learning experience, since a complete walk down from the parking lot to river's edge to tie orange tape to trees would have made recognition of the spot easy from the river.

The last seven miles were beautiful and enjoyable, and another takeout was reached just before dark. Just up the bank at the takeout, someone from the VFW Post took drivers to their cars, so the boats and paddlers could be picked up.

This trip ended in a surprise since help was there. Extreme care to details should always be considered.

Shenanigans Closing This Sunday

Shenanigans is closing on Sunday, Oct. 7, after it serves lunch for the last time under the ownership and management of Shelley and Ward Cammack.

Cammack said the restaurant is for sale.

"We have a number of employees who want to go to work at other places," Cammack said on Oct. 2. "This is a good opportunity for them to move on, and we didn't want to hinder that."

He said they would not have the staff to keep the restaurant open after Sunday.

"We've accomplished what we set out to do," he said. "When we bought Shenanigans, we had a set of objectives to turn the business around and have accomplished those: structural improvements, information systems, reduce overhead and variable costs such as food and payroll. Having completed the tasks, it's time for us to step back."

Cammack said that he and Shelley and their family are not leaving Sewanee. "We'll be taking some time off," he said. "These last two years have been very hectic."

A number of people have contacted the Cammacks about purchasing the restaurant.

"We hope it will reopen soon, but that will depend on the next owner," he said.

The Cammacks bought Shenanigans in December 2010 and opened it in January 2011 with a revised menu.

Samuel Hoge built the building in 1872, to be used as a general store. In its long and varied past, the building has been a roller skating rink, a laundry facility for the ROTC during WWII, a shoe shop, a tin shop, and a wagon repair shop. Most people remember Winn's General Store as the last business before Shenanigans opened.

Shenanigans began as a deli, cheese and coffee shop in September 1974 with the original owners, Richard Riddell and Merissa Tobler. Tom Brown was the next owner, who added the grill to the restaurant, and offered such items as hand-tossed pizzas and hand-patted burgers. The third owners, Todd and Katherine Kaderabek, added sandwiches such as the Cool Cucumber, the Skinny Bob's Meat Melt and the Vegi Muffaletta. They also began the cooperative Shenanigans Gallery. Britt and Teresa Brantley were the fourth owners of the restaurant, and opened Café Arcadia Coffeehouse in the back of the restaurant. The fifth owners, Kiki and Ben Beavers, added new sandwiches, soups and salads to the menu. They also began the process of straightening the building, tearing out three walls and adding supports and a new foundation to stabilize the building.

Romans, and the resurrection of Jesus.

A prolific scholar, Patterson's books include a definitive history of teaching at the University, the liberal arts at Sewanee and a history of the reign of King James VI and I of Scotland and England. Patterson was the ninth Sewanee student to be awarded a Rhodes scholarship. He was ordained an Episcopal priest in 1959. Patterson taught history and humanities at Davidson College before returning to Sewanee as dean and professor of history in 1980 to oversee a comprehensive curriculum review that resulted in strengthened academic programs. He is currently at work on a book to be published by Oxford University Press about the Elizabethan Calvinist theologian William Perkins.

Also during the Convocation, John Swallow, C'89, will be installed as provost of the University. After majoring in mathematics and English at Sewanee, Swallow earned his Ph.D. from Yale University. He has served on both Sewanee's board of trustees and board of regents. Before returning to the Mountain, Swallow was the Kimbrough Professor of Mathematics and Humanities at Davidson College (Davidson, N.C.). At Davidson, he held the highest elected faculty office and was honored with the 2010 Omicron Delta Kappa Teaching Award. As Sewanee's provost, Swallow has led a campus-wide strategic planning effort.

Honoring Claiborne Hall

All community members are invited to join Otey Parish members Sunday, Oct. 7, for the secularization of Claiborne Hall.

The day will begin at 9 a.m. with Sunday school classes. Godly Play classes I, II and III and the Lectorian class will meet in Brooks Hall. The "Prison Ministry" series meets in the church and welcomes Christine Hopkins, who will speak about the Franklin County Jail Re-Entry Program.

The morning will continue with a special celebration of the Holy Eucharist at 10 a.m. in Claiborne Hall, the Otey parish hall. At this service we will secularize this hallowed building in anticipation of building a new parish house. Lunch will be served. After lunch, those who wish may help with the day's work. Come dressed casually for hauling trash, moving boxes and furniture, playing on the playground and having fun. There will be supervised activities for the children.

There will also be an opportunity for people to purchase doors, cabinets, shelves, doorknobs, sinks and countless other items from the old parish hall. There will be a silent auction, with bidding open from 12:30 to 2 p.m. The highest bidder will be asked to pay for their item that day and remove the item from the parish house by Oct. 21.

Claiborne Hall has served Otey Parish and the wider community for more than 110 years. Built originally in 1903, Claiborne Hall has seen renovations in 1929 to add a stage and in 1979 to add the Quintard Room and parish offices.

During the last 110 years, Claiborne Hall has been the site for countless organizational meetings and activities: lectures and public hearings, civic club meetings, wedding receptions, large funerals, 12-Step Recovery meetings, Weight Watchers, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, Sewanee Military Academy basketball games, Sewanee Elementary School plays, the Annual Pinewood Derby, the first Mardi Gras celebrations, and even the Miss Franklin County Beauty Pageant! And, that doesn't include the countless parish meetings, workshops and Diocesan gatherings held in the hallowed hall. Claiborne Hall has been filled each day in recent years with life as the home for the Sewanee Children's Center, Thurmond Memorial Library and the Community Action Committee.

Please join us for this special day in recognizing Claiborne Hall and its 110 years of service to the Sewanee community. For more information, contact Otey Parish at 598-5926.

St. Francis Celebrated At Christ Church Monteagle

Even though his day is Oct. 4, St. Francis will be remembered at Christ Church Monteagle this Sunday, Oct. 7.

Bishop Millsaps will be the preacher and tell about some of the adventures he has had in dialogue with those who "drop off" dogs and cats at Christ Church and at his home. One in particular stands out most, as a Nashville weekend visitor and lawyer caught in the act of a "drop off" said, "Well, I think of you as being a little like St. Francis." The bishop's reply was, "You really know how to win a case. I'll take the dog and find a home for her."

Lunch follows the service each week.

Buddhist Sitting Group

The Buddhist Sitting Group meets at 5:15 p.m., every Thursday in St. Augustine's Chapel.

The Former Arthur Long Grocery Store, now the site of the Lemon Fair. The building was built in 1900.

The store got its name from the Lemon Fair River in Bridport, Vt. While visiting her sister in Vermont, Alvarez read about the river in the local paper, and thought that would be a great name for a store.

Opinions on the origins of the river's name differ. Some say the name originated with local Native Americans. Others say it is an English corruption of two French phrases "Limon faire," to make mud, and "Lemon faire," let the people be. Another interpretation is the "Lemon Fare," where the Lemon family fare (traveled) forth. Alvarez just thought it was a great, cutesy name for a store.

After 40 years in business, Alvarez thinks it is time for her to retire and has the business up for sale. She wants to spend more time with her six grandchildren.

"I also do not want my children to have to figure out what to do with this business in the future," she said.

"My favorite part of owning a business in Sewanee is the people. What I will miss most is meeting the students and their parents. People love coming back to this store. They seem happy that I am still here, and I am happy to see them."

Part of the Sewanee angel legend in her store says, "Every man, woman and child living now and forever in Sewanee was assigned an angel. It is this angel's duty to preserve the spirit of Sewanee in one's mind."

"I like the idea of angels," Alvarez said.

Register for the Future Hopes Auction

Plan to attend the St. Andrew's-Sewanee Parents' Council's biggest event of the year. The evening of Saturday, Nov. 3, includes food, fun, and fund raising. Last year the auction raised approximately $14,000 for school projects and professional faculty development. Items for bidding include Antigua vacations, Sewanee accommodations, homebaked goodies for students and more. For more information, go to <<http://www.sasweb.org/about-sas/parents/auction>>.

The purpose of the project is to better prepare students to be successful after graduation from high school. One area of improvement determines how a student graduates with honors. The new system of recognition exceeds the earlier system of a student reaching a specific grade point average in order to graduate with honors. The state also mandates that the schools recognize those graduating with distinction.

To graduate with honors under the new system, a student who scores at or above all the subject area readiness benchmarks on the ACT or the equivalent SAT scores will graduate with honors. The ACT benchmark scores are English, 18; math, 22; reading, 21; and science reasoning, 24.

To graduate with distinction, a student must have a B average (3.0) and do one of the following: earn a nationally recognized industry certification; participate in at least one of the Governor's Schools; participate in one of the state's All State musical organizations; be selected as a National Merit finalist or semi-finalist; attain a composite score of 31 or higher on the ACT; attain a score of 3 or higher on at least two advanced placement exams; or earn 12 or more semester hours of transcribed postsecondary credit.

Another topic of discussion was credit recovery, where a student can "recover" credit for a course previously taken but not passed. The student must have previously taken the course and made a grade of at least 50. Then, if the student shows "mastery of information" through a computerized learning program, they will in turn receive credit for that class. This credit recovery option can happen before, during or after school hours.

The principal of the high school has to implement the credit recovery program. It is not a school board policy.

In 2011–12, 24 high school seniors decided to take part in the program. Fifteen of those completed the credit recovery process. In 2012–13, 35 students have been targeted as needing credit recovery in order to graduate. Since the graduation rate is an accountability measure mandated by the state, Franklin County High School will continue to offer this program to keep up the graduation rate.

"Our goal is to not need credit recovery in the future," said FCHS principal Greg Mantooth.

The Injustice of Justice

University alumnus and legal scholar Ed Miller will talk about the pending execution of Abu Ali Abdur' Rahman, a Tennessee death-row inmate with a strong claim to innocence, at 7 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 9, in the living room of Bairnwick Women's Center.

Abdur' Rahman was convicted of murder in 1987. Many circumstances suggest Abdur' Rahman never received a fair and impartial trial and may not have committed the crime. The U.S. Supreme Court has refused to review his case. He will be executed in the coming year, unless Governor Haslam grants him clemency.

South Pittsburg native Ed Miller is a retired Navy Captain. He has a BA from the University of the South and a JD from Vanderbilt University.

Miller's talk is being jointly sponsored by the Cumberland Center for Justice and Peace and the Sewanee Peace Coalition. For information, contact Leslie Lytle at <sllytle@blomand.net> or 598-9979.

Some Volunteer Services

Back in the day, you may have been awakened during the night by the sound of the civil defense siren calling the volunteer fire department to service. In the 1970s and 1980s, the EMT squad answered the calls, as well, to act as first responders and help where needed. Ten long blares of "the siren" were enough to wake the whole town. Those of us in our beds worried who it might be and hoped it was nothing serious. Nowadays you might be in Julia's when you notice a couple of people leap up and dash out the door, heading to staff an ambulance or fire engine.

The Sewanee Volunteer Fire Department and the Sewanee Emergency Medical Services are our community's highly qualified and highly motivated responders to fire and medical emergencies. We depend on them for response to anything from major fires or extricating someone from a car using the Jaws of Life to overly sensitive smoke detectors, high angle rescues with complex fractures and injuries to intoxicated students. Some of those "other duties as assigned" might include taking an ambulance to the public school for show-and-tell, raising the flags for the Fourth of July and stopping traffic for the LifeFlight helicopters.

These departments have been evolving during the life of the University. The fire department began as bucket brigades. The whole town came running when flames erupted. Those who weren't passing buckets ran into the burning structure and dragged things out. In 1916 the first student-faculty fire department formed. They battled fires with the aid of hose houses placed strategically around town. The first fire truck was a donated limousine that would not turn right. Engine Number 1, which is still around somewhere, arrived in the 1940s. In 1950, after a spate of arson fires, the vice-chancellor appointed Ben Cameron to form a student-community squad. Today that squad consists of about 25 community members and 18 students certified in fire and rescue. Chief One, David Green, has been on the job more than 40 years.

The ambulance squad was started in the 1970s as a first responder team with some interested students and a station wagon. Now they are an intermediate EMT team with the ability to start IV lines and transport patients to the hospital. They pick up those in need on the Domain, while a contracted service answers calls off the Domain. Members of the team are dedicated enough, however, that they often respond to calls if they can get there before an ambulance to begin assessment.

The men and women serving on these teams live in dormitories and across the community. They vigorously and regularly train for the worst-case scenarios. Once a year they cooperate with other departments in a large-scale disaster scenario. Last year it was a shooter on campus. Tryouts for the selective student squads are grueling.

The student and community volunteer groups have not always been one big happy family, but they work exceedingly well together now. They are all certified professionals who continue their education and training for our sake. We all enjoy the lowest possible insurance rates for volunteer communities as a result. Next time you run in to someone with a fire or EMS T-shirt or uniform on, say hi and thanks.

Former Teacher Pleads Guilty

Former Franklin County teacher Patricia Rollins entered a guilty plea for domestic assault, and in a separate case, entered a guilty plea for aggravated criminal trespassing on Sept. 27.

Steve Blount, an Assistant District Attorney for the 12th judicial district, said Rollins received two 11 month and 29 day sentences, to run consecutively. Rollins is to perform 100 hours of public service work and is on active (supervised) probation for one year. With this plea order, at the end of two years of probation, her record could be expunged.

On Sept. 14, Rollins resigned her facilitating teacher position in the central office at the Franklin County Board of Education.

“Tom Sawyer” Play to Raise Funds for Edinburgh Fringe

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee School theatre program, under the direction of Performing Arts teachers Robie Jackson, John Holleman and Katherine Anderson, has been selected to perform in the world's largest and most prestigious arts festival in the world, the 2013 Edinburgh Fringe Festival.

Each August, performing artists from all over the world come to Scotland to take part in the Edinburgh Fringe Festival. The whole city becomes a stage, and visitors can view performances everywhere from playgrounds to conference rooms to city parks to churches. The Fringe Festival includes more than 1,800 performances of theatre, dance and comedy during its three-week run. St. Andrew's-Sewanee's performance will be showcased at the American High School Theatre Festival (AHSTF) venue in Edinburgh.

This was the second year SAS's theatre program had been nominated for the AHSTF honor and the first time that the school made application. Top high school programs are identified based on their most recent bodies of work, awards, community involvement, philosophies and recommendations.

Part two of the hard work is to raise the money necessary to get an ensemble across the Atlantic Ocean. While each participant will be responsible for a portion of their trip expenses, the theatre program will be actively raising money throughout the year to help with the cost. The first opportunity to help is just around the corner with the opening of “The Adventures of Tom Sawyer” at 7 p.m., Friday, Oct. 12, in McCrory Hall on the St. Andrew's-Sewanee Campus. There will be a 7 p.m. performance on Saturday, Oct. 13. The SAS Players will close with a 4 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 14, performance.

SAS Players Productions will raise their ticket prices this year to $20/adult and $10/child to help with fund raising. However, if the price is outside a family budget, the SAS Players will accept what a family can donate. Robie Jackson promises, “We never want to turn anyone away—ever.”

Other fund-raising events will be scheduled throughout the school year. If you are interested in helping the theatre program get to Scotland, please contact Robie Jackson at <rjackson@sasweb.org> or (615) 554-2860.

Forum on the Presidential Election

The African American Alliance will sponsor a forum addressing issues related to the upcoming 2012 Presidential election from 4 to 5 p.m., Monday, Oct. 8, in Gailor Auditorium.

Melody Crowder-Meyer, a member of the political science department, will moderate the panel discussion of four students representing the views of the electorate. Questions and comments from the audience will be welcomed.

The panel will address questions including “Is Obama Care good for America?” “How will Republican opposition to the Dream Act affect Latino Voters?” and “Why did Obama not keep all of his promises from the 2008 Presidential campaign?”

Come out and join the discussion. Coffee and cookies are free. For more information contact Natalie Fowler at <nfowler0@sewanee.edu>.

As part of their study of genetics, fifth-graders at SES use Indian corn to chart dominant and recessive traits. Gabriel Pongdee and Taylor Hensley work together.

Pre-K students at Sewanee Elementary invited their fifth-grade buddies to join them in their study of the letter "F." A special treat was a visit from the Sewanee Volunteer Fire Department. Students got an up-close look at the fire trucks and the equipment the departments uses in their work.

GREENLIVIN'

by Daniel Church

When most people reflect on college, thoughts of dormitory life quickly come to mind. Swarms of rowdy teenagers are corralled into drab concrete rooms, complete with the appropriate amount of risqué posters and beer cans. While this image is easily applied to many of the residence halls at Sewanee, there has been a conscious effort to provide alternative housing for students passionate about various topics. Two of the most communally active of these "theme houses" are the Community Engagement House and the GreenHouse.

The GreenHouse, originally started as the Eco-House in 2003, was created by a group of students interested in environmental stewardship and sustainability. The house has 11 residents, including co-leaders Michael Grantz, a senior environmental policy major from Louisville, and Tarver Shimek, a junior ecology and biodiversity major from Baltimore. Michael described the students who choose to live in the GreenHouse as "a diverse group of majors with interests from philosophy and classical literature to music," yet they are all "people who want to lead by example in creating a more sustainable society."

The House has indeed led by example, including being the first student residence in Sewanee to have small livestock; they now have a flock of nine chickens. The only requirements for living in the house are completing chores and partaking in garden hours three times a month. The house has also hosted events open to the whole community. They plan to continue established events this year, such as the Arm and Trout Coffeehouse in the fall, an open-mic night that harkens back to the ghosts of beatniks, and its sister event, the Leg and Salmon Coffeehouse in the spring. Other events include weekly garden hours at the University Farm on Sundays from 10 a.m. to noon, occasional craft nights on Fridays, a haunted house for Halloween and two garden parties in the fall and spring.

When asked why she wanted to get involved with the GreenHouse, Tarver cited the atmosphere, describing it as "a place with generally interesting people with creative energy." Sophomore Don Mooradian's reason for living in the house was the potential "missed opportunity" of sharing "a space with a common goal and intention" that might come from spending four years in a dormitory.

The Community Engagement House has also made an indelible impact upon the school and the surrounding community. The house initially started in 2009 with a group of students who were generally focused on community action. In 2010, the house became an official "theme house" with a sole requirement: extensive involvement with community engagement outside of the inner-Domain of campus life. The house, which is affectionately known as the CoHo, is led by junior Caitlin-Jean Juricic of Michigan City, Ind. Caitlin-Jean is a Bonner Scholar through the outreach office, serving as a volunteer coordinator at the St. Luke's Free Clinic. The other seven residents serve the community in a wide array of ways, including the student-mentoring group, Well-Directed Curiosity, Blue Monarch, Fire on the Mountain youth group at Otey Parish, and End Slavery Tennessee, a group aimed at ending human trafficking in our state. Senior Eileen Schaeffer of Nashville, who serves as a Canale Intern working with the Center for Religion and the Environment, described her reason for living in the CoHo as a desire to "not just be a student her senior year." She noted that the "most enriching experiences of [her] whole Sewanee career [have occurred] this year as a direct result of living in this house with these confident and enthusiastic housemates."

The CoHo, like the GreenHouse, hosts a large number of community-directed events, including Coffee and Conversations, a monthly gathering with a community member speaking, a Halloween festival in conjunction with the GreenHouse, and a Fall Festival in November. While the GreenHouse and CoHo might not be traditional collegiate residence halls, it is obvious they are having a significant impact on the surrounding community. Let's just hope that more such student initiatives continue to come about organically and help improve life on the Mountain.

“Spaces” Exhibition

The Carlos Gallery in the Nabit Art Building at the University presents “Spaces,” an exhibition of photographs by Boston-based artist and Sewanee alumna Edie Shimel (C’04). An opening reception and artist talk will be held at 4:30 p.m., today, Oct. 5.

In this new series, Shimel uses various definitions of space to challenge the representational notions of photography and ideas of the ephemeral.

As the child of two blind parents who lost their sight in adolescence, Shimel is interested in the instances between seeing and remembering. She describes these instances as not quite clear and not quite ambiguous, but as a breadth of understanding before the definition.

The photographs in “Spaces” are gelatin silver prints, made by projecting slides onto objects or “sets” which Shimel creates, suggesting landscapes or other types of tangible spaces. She describes her process as being about building a new image and then reducing the already present image to experiences that fluctuate between clarity and ambiguity. “By merging art, science and personal slides over my handmade sets,” Shimel explains, “I am able to mix historical and personal memory to make work that is both about blindness and seeing.”

Shimel’s work has been exhibited at national venues including the Arsenal Center for the Arts in Watertown, Mass.; the Durham Arts Guild in Durham, N.C.; Peace College in Raleigh, N.C.; Emily Harvey Gallery in New York; Ackland Museum of Art in Chapel Hill, N.C.; and at Georgia State University in Atlanta. She was awarded a grant through the Vermont Studio Center where she had a residency, spent three years as a mixed-media instructor at the Arts Center of Carrboro, N.C., and has taught photography at Peace College.

Shimel was chosen as a greater Boston “30 under 30” Artist through the Arsenal Center for the Arts. Most recently, she worked with area teens and filmmaker Aaron Rose and staff at the Institute of Contemporary Art/Boston’s Artist Encounters program to create photographs of his Punk Rock Film School. She currently resides in Boston, where she teaches digital photography at the Institute of Contemporary Art.

The exhibit will be available through Nov. 4. Gallery hours are 8 a.m.–5 p.m., Monday–Friday and 1–5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday.

“Walking To Guantánamo”

Sewanee’s University Art Gallery presents “Richard Fleming: Walking to Guantánamo,” an exhibition of photographs and stories drawn from the author’s journey by foot, horse cart, bus, truck, train repair vehicle, bicycle and tractor across Cuba, all the way from Pinar del Rio to Guantánamo. The exhibition will open to the public on Thursday, Oct. 11. Fleming will speak in Guerry Auditorium at 3 p.m., Friday, Oct. 26, to be followed by a reception in the University Art Gallery at 4 p.m.

The striking photographs of “Walking to Guantánamo” were produced as part of a larger project, the writing of the book with the same title. In the book, Fleming gives a self-deprecating account of his trip, vividly describing the people he met along the way and his experiences, not just with the challenges of transportation, but with food, music, poetry, religion and birds. Taking a photograph during the journey was itself a kind of event—a moment to commemorate a new friendship, a reason for people to dress up and on occasion, a way to defuse a difficult situation with the familiar ritual of posing for the camera. Fleming’s photographs include memorable portraits and views of the completely ordinary and completely unusual spots he stumbled across, such as a typewriter repair shop in Ciego de Ávila.

Sewanee’s University Art Gallery is located on Georgia Avenue on the University campus. Hours are 10 a.m.–5 p.m., Tuesday through Friday, and noon–4 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Call 598-1223 for more information, or visit <http://www.sewanee.edu/gallery>.

THE VILLAGE IDIOT

by Peter Trenchi

Develop-mentor

Recently I got word of the death of a person I had known since about 1972. This caused me to contemplate all the threads that connect one to another. I say threads instead of paths because, since our meeting 40 years ago, our paths have only directly crossed a few times. The most recent crossing was at a county planning and zoning board meeting, where she was proposing to subdivide a small tract of land into simple building lots.

Before the meeting, she mentioned to me that there were a lot of familiar faces, and she hoped they were not in opposition to her humble proposal. I assured her that, even though they resided near her tract, they were there to comment on a less humble project in the vicinity that had already created a visual and ecological disturbance. Some new developments are disturbing; others, not.

Circa 1979, I rode with some friends to a house on the edge of Cowan. We were welcomed into a kitchen, where she was tending to her frail infant who had developed leukemia. I was humbled by the calm and tender and accepting manner in which she ministered to this child. If she was afraid or intimidated, I couldn’t tell; that child wouldn’t know it. All one saw was gracious confidence. The lesson on how to envelop disturbing developments that I learned that evening got me through the premature births of my children and their subsequent time in neonatal units. Unplanned disturbing developments, while new, may be embraced in such a way as to diminish the stress.

So, there’s this new and disturbing death by cancer development. It replaces my vision of her recent involvement in a resort development project in Central America. The rapid and aggressive unnatural development called cancer is neither desired nor embraceable as it strips what is known and fills one with a new nothingness. Her life is now subdivided and we are the lots, the streets connecting us are threads joining us through our knowing of this one influential person. The threads I know are the threads of the friends I rode with and the threads of my children and many other children, all built through a few humble moments in this oddly patterned tapestry of community.

Less humble developments also soldier on, whether they are offering scalped understory vegetation with bluff views, or federally acceptable sewage or conveniently located student housing—their price alone is astounding. When the cost per customer of a nearby sewer plant is 20 percent of the median home value, when the cost of a dorm room exceeds the median home value, when a lot is priced at several times the median value of a complete home, one may be astounded. When cancer overtakes someone like a pack of hungry wolves, one is merely saddened and wishes that person were still basking under a tropical sun.

Even these not-so-humble astounding developments are threads in our lives. They still serve to join us in community and become part of our patterned warp and woof. They can humble us as they learn how to manage (or not) a six-inch deluge. They may draw many threads through the eye of our community in a pattern we call home. They may even, by inducing our visceral dismay, bind us together with our humble friend at an obscure zoning meeting.

Is cancer just another development? Is development just another cancer? If you have a very tiny infant who can fit in the palm of your hand, you burp them by seating them on your knee; resting their chest on your palm and their belly on the heel of your hand while supporting their armpits with your thumb and forefinger; tilt them at a 30 to 45 degree angle and gently finger thump and massage their back. Patiently await the tiny tremulous warble that somehow assures that their resilience is intact and repeat, all the time maintaining an aura of somber graciousness in frozen anticipation.

Snow White and the Huntsman
 Rated PG-13 • 94 minutes • $3

This dark interpretation of the Snow White fairy tale tells a much more interesting story, this time with a truly evil queen, a huntsman charged to kill Snow White and a heroine who is more than a girl waiting for a kiss. Kristen Stewart, Chris Hemsworth and Charlize Theron star in this adventure-action movie. As one favorite reviewer wrote, “Snow White and the Huntsman” reinvents the legendary story in a film of astonishing beauty and imagination.” Rated PG-13 for intense sequences of violence and action and brief sensuality.

PG-13 • 1011 minutes • Free

Okay, I am not that old that I remember the silent age of Hollywood. But I do appreciate the subtlety of a smile, a glance, an uplifting of an eyebrow. It is 1927, the time of the silent films in Hollywood. George Valentin (Jean Dujardin) is a silent movie superstar. During a premiere, he chances to meet Peppy Miller (Bérénice Bejo), a fan and future star. The “talkies” arrive, and the superstar falls from favor. Can he find himself? This black-and-white film was the winner of five Academy Awards, including best director and best actor. Rated PG-13 for a disturbing image and a crude gesture.

Theatre/ Sewanee Presents ...

Theatre/Sewanee will present the long-running Off-Broadway comedy by Steve Martin, “Picasso At The Lapin Agile,” at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 26-27 and Nov. 1-3, with a matinee at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 28, in the Tennessee Williams Center.

The comedy by “the wild and crazy” Martin places Albert Einstein and Pablo Picasso in a Parisian café in 1904, just before the renowned scientist transformed physics with his theory of relativity, and the celebrated painter set the art world afire with cubism. In his first comedy for the stage, the popular actor and screenwriter plays fast and loose with fact, fame and fortune as these two geniuses muse on the century’s achievements and prospects, as well as other fanciful topics with infectious dizziness. Bystanders, including Picasso’s agent, the bartender and his mistress, Picasso’s date, an elderly “philosopher,” and an idiot inventor introduce additional flourishes of humor.

“Picasso At The Lapin Agile” features Michael Caskey as Picasso and Dana Huffer as Einstein. Other cast members include Megan Quick, Cody Snead, Willem Peglau, Pagie Wilson, Oliver Crawford, Haley Poole, Huntre Woolwine, Elise Anderson, and Hyatt Pyle. The play is directed by Peter Smith, assisted by Beckett Scott. Scenery is designed by Andy Philpo, lighting by Dan Backlund, costumes by Carter Stough, with stage management by Mary Morrison.

Admission is free, and reservations are accepted at 598-3260 or <mcook@sewanee.edu>.

“Acting in Shakespeare’s Company”

Everyone is invited to join the department of English and the program in Shakespeare studies at 4:30 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 9, in the Gailor auditorium for a hands-on hour of “Acting in Shakespeare’s Company.”

With the help of willing volunteers, actor-director Nick Hutchison will demonstrate how Shakespeare’s language creates action and gesture, smile and frown, humor and pathos.

Hutchison, who often commands the stage at the summer program British Studies at Oxford, typically works with English actors from the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts and Shakespeare’s Globe.

He has directed “The Taming of the Shrew at Wilton’s Music Hall” (London), “Much Ado About Nothing” at the Folger Theatre in Washington, D.C., and “Love’s Labour’s Lost” for the Shenandoah Shakespeare Company in Virginia. His acting work covers television, film, theatre and radio. Hutchison’s visit to Sewanee is sponsored by British Studies at Oxford.

I LIKE TO WATCH

by Kiki Beavers

There was a time when TV went off the air at the end of the day. When I was younger, we had four network TV channels to watch: NBC, CBS, ABC and PBS. The younger generation may think I am telling them a whopper along the lines of "I had to walk to and from school in the snow, barefoot and uphill." But the older generation was not without a way to be entertained and to get the news.

The day usually started with early local news, the "Today Show," then regularly scheduled programming. Local news aired during lunchtime. The local news aired again promptly at 5 p.m., followed by the national network news. Prime time shows were next, followed by one more local news broadcast and then a talk show such as "The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson." That usually ended a regular broadcast day.

Depending on where you lived, you also got a newspaper in the morning, followed by the evening paper. Sometimes you were lucky enough to get a local weekly paper delivered. Radio stations also had news broadcasts. Getting the news was not as fast as it is today, but in my opinion the news people tried to be accurate. News stories were about "who, what, where, when, why and how."

At our house, we always read the newspaper and watched the news. Special, important events such as the moon landing interrupted regular programming. I knew something important happened when the message "We interrupt your regularly scheduled programming" came on, followed by Walter Cronkite. "ABC Wide World of Sports" gave me all the information I could possibly want about my favorite sports, games and athletes. In-depth news coverage was offered by such shows as "60 Minutes" on Sunday.

We now live in an age with television broadcasting airing 24 hours a day. With my satellite TV system, I have at least 130 channels from which to choose. Did I miss the morning news broadcast? No problem, CNN is always on. Or, I can choose from MSNBC, ESPN, E! News and CSPAN, just to name a few. I can also go online and read any newspaper or magazine. I can Google search a broadcast or a story any time on the Internet. Twenty-four hours is a long time to fill up the airwaves, and sometimes it has a less-than-desirable effect: a constant barrage of what some consider news. There is too much information and too many opinions for so few important stories. News has become entertainment. Exaggerated statements and sensationalism drive the news.

Some of my favorite movies and television shows are about journalism. These shows try to depict how we get information. One of my new favorites to watch is "The Newsroom" on HBO. This is how news stories should be told. For an example, go to YouTube and type in Newsroom for "the most honest three-and-a-half minutes of television, ever..." Be warned, there is some foul language.

"Frost/Nixon" (2008) is a movie about an interview with former President Nixon, who was mostly concerned with leaving a positive legacy from his presidency. David Frost and his investigative team dig to find the facts, and actually get an admission and an apology from Nixon. The national TV networks and major newspapers did not do that. It was a British talk show host.

"Good Night and Good Luck" (2005) is a film about broadcast journalism legend Edward R. Murrow, host of the talk show "Person to Person" and the investigative series "See It Now." Murrow goes head-to-head with Joseph McCarthy, a master of the rumor mill. Murrow also cautions on the responsibility of the media "not to squander the potential of television to inform and educate the public."

"All the Presidents' Men" (1976) is a movie about investigative journalism at its best. The Woodward/Bernstein story about the break-in at the Democratic National Headquarters at the Watergate complex was not good enough at first to be reported in the Washington Post. The two journalists continued to investigate until the Watergate scandal was uncovered.

"Network" (1976) shows the lengths a fictional television network would go to just for ratings and money. In the movie, the entertainment department is running the news department. The anchorman has gone more than a little crazy and urges viewers to scream from the rooftops, "I am as mad as hell and I am not going to take it anymore."

Maybe we have always had sensationalized news. There just seems to be more of it these days. I just want to watch the news.

Hastings and Ende Art Show in Nashville

"The Essence of Our Ticking," a joint exhibition of the works of Sewanee artists Jack Hastings and Arlyn Ende will open on Saturday, Oct. 6, at the Tinney Contemporary Gallery in Nashville. It runs until Nov. 11.

An opening reception will be held at the gallery 6–9 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 6. The artists will also be available for conversation in the gallery at 6 p.m., today, Oct. 5.

The exhibition captures and crystallizes the range, depth and diversity of two artists whose creative partnership spans five decades. The title, from one of Hastings's poems, alludes to the nature and heart of their journey.

"I began my career prepared to paint frescoes, with training in Mexico where I was privileged to observe Diego Rivera at work," Hastings said. "The influences of that ancient culture impressed me with the relationship between art and architecture, which became the aesthetic that remained the basis and focus of my life's work as a sculptor. My materials range from clay to stone to metal, and I invent the tools and methods to shape and bring them to life."

About her influences, Ende said, "I spent a dreamy Southern childhood as an incessant scribbler and stitcher whose imagination matured under the influence of Matisse, Klee and contemporary Scandinavian designers. I build my two-dimensional designs from myriad individual pieces of colored materials, fitting them together as a slowly revealed puzzle. My abstract imagery arcs toward metaphor and is often inspired by Jack's writings."

Together or separately, the couple has lived on dredge boats, tow boats, in converted warehouses, in an old pottery factory, on Manhattan's Bleecker Street and Upper East Side, on two islands, in a handmade Arizona adobe, and on a hillside farm. Deepwoods Studios is now their home and workplace, situated on a wooded hill overlooking a lake in Sewanee.

"Inside this serene ecosystem," Ende said, "we 'elders of the tribe' continue to experience life and create our artworks with the daily reminders that beauty and possibility are found in every place and in every phase of being."

Tinney Contemporary Gallery is located at 237 5th Avenue North, Nashville, (615) 255-7816, <www.tinneycontemporary.com>.

Sewanee United Wins

Sewanee United (U-12 soccer) improved its record to 6-2 with a weekend doubleheader sweep against teams from Crossroads and Kimball. In the first game, Kase Johnson, Isaac Smith, Tessa Shackelford, Delana Pierce, Larson Heitzenrater, and Kenneth Dykes scored for the Sewanee side in a 6-2 victory. Aden Rung, Madeleine Wiedemann, Sylvan Huber-Feely and Lucy Carroll played almost the entire game on defense and helped keep Crossroads from scoring until late in the game. In the second match, Cate Bachman, Aidan Smith, and Heitzenrater all scored in the first half, and Sewanee hung on after enduring a barrage of Kimball shots to finish with a 3-1 win. Alexander Milford, Seth Walker, Tyanna Klekotta and John Beavers logged long minutes at mid-field and on defense to hold Kimball to a single score.

Field Hockey Drops Two

Despite fairly even offensive statistics, the Sewanee field hockey team dropped a 3-1 decision at Southern Athletic Association (SAA) foe Hendrix, on Sept. 29.

After Hendrix got on the board first, Sewanee tied the match, when Molly Kennedy scored off an assist by Tilden Davis.

Unfortunately, the Warriors answered back with two goals. Overall, Hendrix held a small 11-10 advantage in shots, while the Lady Tigers had an 11-8 edge in penalty corners.

Kennedy led all players with six shot attempts. Goalkeeper Anna Morrow finished with a game-high six saves.

The Sewanee field hockey team dropped a 2-1 match at SAA rival Rhodes on Sept. 30.

The Lynx got on the board early, scoring off a penalty corner.

After the intermission, Sewanee rebounded as forward Anne Booke evened the score with a goal with 25 minutes left.

Rhodes stayed aggressive, scoring the game-winner with 15 minutes remaining.

The Lynx led Sewanee in shots 13-4. Individually, Booke and Kennedy led the Lady Tiger attack with two attempts each.

Sewanee Crew to Begin Season

This season, Sewanee's six crews will compete at three very demanding regattas across the Southeast.

Sewanee will participate in the Tennessee Head Race regatta in Chattanooga on Oct. 13, rowing against Alabama, Georgia, Vanderbilt and UTC.

On Oct. 20, the team will travel to Alabama, competing with Georgia Tech, Alabama and Vandy.

The most grueling challenge will be Nov. 3-4 at the Head of the Hooch in Chattanooga. The Head of the Hooch boasts that it is the largest and most competitive regatta in North America, hosting more than 7,000 rowers from across the nation.

Participating in this regatta will be many Division I schools—Texas, Auburn, Wake Forest, South Carolina, Virginia and Vanderbilt, to name a few.

Volleyball Sweeps Rhodes and Lyon, Drops to Hendrix

The Sewanee volleyball team earned a pair of victories on Sept. 29, as the Lady Tigers defeated Southern Athletic Association (SAA) rival Rhodes, and Lyon College.

Sewanee opened the day with a 3-1 (15-25, 25-18, 25-12, 25-22) win over Rhodes. In that match, Sewanee had its second-best hitting percentage this season. Jamie Sue Wilson led the Tigers with 12 kills, 19 digs and a block. Rebecca Hannigan (seven) and Caroline Montgomery (nine) dominated the middle, with a combined 16 kills and three total blocks.

Sewanee continued to roll with a 3-2 (15-25, 18-25, 25-22, 29-27, 15-4) victory over Lyon. In a match that featured a number of long points and sets, Sewanee showed its character in the comeback.

After Sewanee won a long fourth set with a kill by Maggie Stanford, the Lady Tigers dominated the final set. The Lady Tigers finished with a season-high 26 assisted blocks. Wilson led Sewanee with 11 kills. Kayla Sewell had a team-high 18 digs, while Jamie Kosman stopped 12 attacks.

Behind a strong attack, Southern Athletic Association (SAA) foe Hendrix earned a 3-0 (25-20, 25-17, 25-19) win over the Sewanee volleyball team on Sept. 30.

With the loss, the Lady Tigers dropped to 8-7 overall and 2-5 in conference action.

Early on Hendrix opened a huge first-set lead, before Sewanee roared back with six straight points to make the score 19-20. The Warriors had four straight kills, which capped off a 5-0 run to close the first set.

After Hendrix dominated the second set with a .247 attack percentage, the Warriors' offense stayed strong in the third. Sewanee briefly held a 17-14 advantage, before Hendrix again closed the set on an 11-2 run.

Sewanee finished with a .127 attack percentage. Sewell and Hannigan led the Lady Tigers with seven kills.

Kosman pitched in 16 digs, while Rachel Schuman finished with 10 digs and 11 assists.

Tiger of the Week

Clay Bond led the Tigers cross country team at the Rhodes Invitational with a season-best time of 26:55. Bond finished the 8k course in 12th place and helped Sewanee finish tied for sixth in the 18-team field.

Jamie Sue Wilson, the outside volleyball hitter, finished with 43 kills (8.6 average), 67 digs (13.4 average) and six blocks (.20 average) last week.

Goodman Earns SAA Player of the Week

Sewanee women's soccer player Bess Goodman has been named the Southern Athletic Association (SAA) Player of the Week, the SAA announced Oct. 2.

Goodman proved to be the difference-maker in Sunday's win at Agnes Scott.

In the 2-1 victory, Goodman netted both goals, including the game-winner in the second overtime period.

Lady Mountain Lion Soccer Update

Chattanooga Central High School fell to St. Andrew's-Sewanee on Sept. 28 with a final score of 2-0. Defender Marissa Wilson scored the first goal of her high school career off a corner kick from Helen Wilson. In the last minute of the first half, Alex Berner-Coe scored off of another corner kick from H. Wilson with a powerful header.

In the second half, the Lady Mountain Lions picked up the level of play a notch, but were unable to finish again. H. Wilson played exceptionally well by anchoring the team from the middle of the field, and Sam Wiegand put her all into the game and tied together some very nice plays.

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee women's soccer team played a hard-fought game against The Webb School on Oct. 2. The game was evenly matched throughout, but toward the end of the second half, Webb was able to slip one past the SAS defense.

The Lady Mountain Lion back line held strong throughout the game. Eva Miller, M. Wilson and Mira Dedes had an exceptional game.

The Lady Mountain Lions have their final home game of the season today, Oct. 5, at 5 p.m. against Chattanooga School for the Arts and Sciences. Seniors Katie Craighill, Alex Berner-Coe and Helen Wilson will be honored at half time.

Willamette Outlasts Sewanee

A late touchdown lifted Willamette to a 28-24 victory over the Sewanee football team on Sept. 29.

The game opened with a strong defensive stand by Sewanee. After Willamette marched down to the Sewanee one-yard line, the Tigers stopped the Bearcats on three consecutive plays. After a failed rushing attempt and an incomplete pass by Willamette quarterback Josh Dean, Dean was then sacked by Sewanee linebacker J.P. Boudreaux for a nine-yard loss.

On the ensuing 18-yard field goal attempt, Willamette placekicker Kyle Derby missed his attempt wide left.

Two drives later Sewanee would score first, when Curtis Johnson rushed through the Willamette defense for a 22-yard touchdown run.

After Dean tied the score with a 14-yard pass to Jake Knecht, quarterback Cody Daniel put the Tigers back in front with a one-yard touchdown run with 10:25 left until halftime.

Willamette continued to throw the ball. Two possessions later, Dean found Knecht again, this time on a 38-yard touchdown pass with 1:22 left.

With the score tied 14-14, Sewanee stayed aggressive. The Tigers marched 37 yards in 1:05, which set up a 46-yard field goal from Garrett Schlosser, the second longest field goal in program history.

Early in the second half, Sewanee's offense continued to play well. Led by Daniel, the Tigers capped off their opening possession with a 17-play, 78-yard touchdown drive that took 8:24 off the clock.

Unfortunately, that was when the tide started to turn in favor of Willamette. On a fourth-and-one play Willamette scored from 59-yards out, when Dean tossed an easy pass over the Tiger defense to Benny Weischadel.

Later in the half, Dean threw his fourth touchdown.

Overall, the battle of two different offensive styles was on display. Willamette, who led the nation in passing coming into this game, finished with 356 yards through the air. Sewanee, ranked fifth nationally in rushing, finished with 297 yards on the ground.

Sewanee fullback Sergio Acosta led a balanced rushing attack with 69 yards on 14 carries. Safety J.D. Crabtree had a game-high 10 tackles, while fellow defensive back De'Nard Ford had eight stops, one pass break-up and one interception.

Lady Tigers Win Two

The Sewanee women's soccer team opened Southern Athletic Association play with a 1-0 victory at Oglethorpe on Sept. 29.

The lone goal of the match came quickly as Jamie Samociuk scored off a pass from Bobbe Chaffin in the fifth minute.

Overall, the Tigers took a season-high 19 shots and nine corner kicks.

Bess Goodman led the attack with four attempts. Caroline Burkholder, Chaffin, Izzy Correa, Ellie Quinn and Samociuk all finished with at least two shots.

On Sept. 30, two goals by Goodman lifted the Sewanee women's soccer team to a 2-1 victory over Agnes Scott.

With the win, Sewanee improved to 5-5 overall.

Goodman broke through with her first goal when Samociuk found the midfielder off a broken corner kick in the 13th minute.

After Agnes Scott tied the match late in the second half, the teams headed into overtime.

Neither team could find the back of the net after the first 10-minute extra period. In the second overtime, Sewanee stayed on the attack. After two shot attempts by Sam Hutton, Goodman netted the game-winner in the 103rd minute.

Overall, Sewanee dominated the shot count by a 27-11 margin.

Chaffin led all players with a game-high eight shot attempts. Samociuk also played well with a season-high six shots.

Defensively, goalkeeper Olivia Glascoe and the Lady Tiger defense limited Agnes Scott to one shot the last 14 minutes of play.

Cross Country

Competing against a field of both NCAA Division I and Division III programs, the Sewanee men's and women's cross country teams finished strong at the Rhodes Invitational on Sept. 29.

As a team, the men finished sixth, while the women's squad placed fifth.

In the men's race, Clay Bond (26:55) finished 12th, followed closely by Hudson Robb (26:58 for 13th). Amiel Emerson (50th), Jason Grimes (54th), and Tyler Wilcox (71st) each had a personal-best time to round out Sewanee's top-five finishers.

On the women's side, the top-five runners for Sewanee all crossed the finish line within one minute of each other. Led by Amy Lee (19:50 for 14th) and Ansley McDurmon (20th), no Sewanee runner placed outside the top 50.

Willow Smith (29th), Cate Hargrove (44th) and Zoe Dubin (45th) rounded out the Tigers' best finishes.

Elizabeth Corey was tied for High Point Rider on Saturday in last weekend's IHSA Zone 5 Region 1 Hunter Seat Horse Show. Sewanee took 1st place on Saturday and 2nd on Sunday. Photo by Lyn Hutchinson

Tigers Earn Reserve Champion on Final Day

The Sewanee equestrian team wrapped up its second IHSA show of the season as Reserve Champion on Sept. 30.

The Tigers finished second behind local rival Vanderbilt. Currently, Vandy has a seven-point lead over Sewanee in the regional team competition.

Allan Palmer is currently in second place for the Regional High Point Rider competition. Ann Marie Walker is in third, as four points separate the top-four riders.

On Sunday, Walker earned a first-place finish in the Open Over Fences, while Margaret McClain took the top honor in the Novice Over Fences Section B class. Jaina Gandhi earned a first-place finish in the Walk-Trot-Canter Section A event.

Along with the three wins, Blain Lewis finished in second place in the Intermediate Over Fences. Palmer (Open Flat), Elizabeth Corey (Novice Flat Section A), Jaclyn Valadka (Walk-Trot-Canter Section A) and Sara Parks (Novice Over Fences) finished as runners-up.

Holly Higgins (Intermediate Over Fences) and Alexandra Abell (Walk-Trot) rounded out the Tigers inside the top three.

Sewanee Loses Two Matches

The Sewanee men's soccer team dropped a 3-0 decision against regional rival Emory on Sept. 26.

The Eagles jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the 11th minute. In the second half, Emory stayed on the attack and added the final two scores.

The Eagles strong offense outshot Sewanee 24-6, and held a 10-2 advantage in corner kicks.

Nate Owens, who finished with two shots, led the Tiger offense. Goalkeeper Jacob Zalewski made a career-high eight saves.

On Sept. 29, the Sewanee men's soccer team dropped a 2-0 decision at Oglethorpe. The Stormy Petrels scored both goals off corner kicks, tallying one in the 11th minute and one in the 53rd minute. Sewanee took 11 shots and three corners. Ford Rushton and Ford Emerson led the Tigers with two shot attempts.

Javadi Shatters School Record

Emily Javadi continued her record-setting season, as she led the Sewanee women's golf team to a second-place finish at the Transylvania Fall Invitational on Sept. 26.

Javadi fired a new 18-hole school record 68 at the University Course in Lexington, Ky. She has now broken at least one school scoring record in every tournament this fall.

As a team, the Tigers finished with a 351 total.

Campbellsville finished just ahead of Sewanee with a 347. Host Transylvania was third with a 368.

Jenna King finished in second with a career-low 77. That 18-hole total was three shots lower than her previous best score of 80.

Helen Kennedy (104), Makayla Cardwell (103), and Ellen Ruppet (103) rounded out the scores for Sewanee.

SAS Football Now 5-2

The Mountain Lions allowed a quick touchdown to McClain Christian, then slammed across 46 straight points in a 46-20 Sept. 29 victory.

Alex Tinsley started the scoring with a 16-yard catch from Kendall Kinslow. Josh Owens then nabbed a 21-yard scoring strike from Kinslow. Kinslow followed with rushing scores of 15 and six yards as the Mountain Lions took a 30-6 halftime lead.

Owens struck quickly to start the second half with a 40-yard interception return on the first play. Tinsley then closed the scoring with a 69-yard run.

Kinslow, Levi Higgins and Edwin Keeble all scored extra point conversions. Defensively, Robert Post intercepted a pass and added a 43-yard return. Michael Minton had five tackles.

NATURENOTES

By Harry and Jean Yeatman

Squirrel Treefrogs

Jean Yeatman reports that one day last week she was cutting Swiss chard for lunch at the home of Larry Millsaps in Midway. As she drew her arm up with a leaf, she spied a small greenish tree frog on it. She tried to put the frog back into the garden, when another appeared. So she cupped her hand over the one on her arm and took it to show Harry, who identified it as a Squirrel Treefrog. The Millsaps gathered around, and they all admired it. Then it took a mighty leap back onto a leaf.

This little tree frog was about 7/8 of an inch long. It is like a chameleon, in that it can have a variation of coloration and pattern. The same frog may be green one time and brown another, and can be plain or spotted. It is called a "rainfrog" in many parts of the South. It may appear suddenly in and around houses, even "dropping from the sky" as it falls from a tree during acrobatics while in pursuit of insects. It is found in gardens, on shrubs or almost anywhere close to moisture, food and a hiding place.

Friday, Oct. 5—International Peace Day

Peace Pole Ceremony at 8 this morning at Sewanee Elementary School

("May Peace Prevail on Earth" plaque in the Danish language will be mounted on the pole)

God speed the day when human blood
Shall cease to flow!
In every clime be understood
The claims of human brotherhood
And each return for evil, good—
Not blow for blow.
That day will come, all feud to end,
And change into a faithful friend
Each foe....
