Selections are often people from history, sports and popular culture. The students dress as the subject of their report and at the museum, become statues of wax. Each character comes to life when an imaginary button is activated and the figure describes his/her life.

Guests are welcome. Please check in at the SES office.

College Students Make Unusual Pledge to Support Blue Monarch

The staff and residents of Blue Monarch were surprised by an unexpected act of generosity from the Gamma Sigma Phi fraternity at Sewanee. The members worked together in February to raise money for the local nonprofit in a very unique way, by abstaining from any kind of alcohol or drug for the entire month.

After helping with the annual Turkey Trot that benefits Blue Monarch last fall, fraternity member Ike Holmes said that the Gammas, "simply fell in love with Blue Monarch and what it stood for. Since then we had to try to come up with a way to contribute more to the powerful organization."

During the month of February, Holmes, along with his fraternity brothers, pledged to abstain from any sort of alcohol or drug for the entire month, and reached out to the entire student body to join their efforts. The Gammas set up a system where an individual pledged a determined amount of days to be sober and donate a certain dollar amount each day.

When Holmes informed Blue Monarch of their efforts, it took the staff completely by surprise. Holmes presented more than $600 to Blue Monarch in March.

"I am so incredibly impressed that Gamma Sigma Phi took this very bold step to demonstrate their support for Blue Monarch. It's very moving," said Susan Binkley, founder and director of the program.

Blue Monarch, a long-term recovery program for women and children struggling with abuse and addiction, offer women an opportunity to break their destructive cycles and start a new way of life.

SUD Considers Amending Cross-Connection Policy

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

At the March 25 meeting, the Board of Commissioners of the Sewanee Utility District of Franklin and Marion Counties discussed amending the cross connection policy to address customers' failure to have their backflow prevention devices tested annually. The board also responded to questions about SUD's rate structure and late payment penalty.

SUD manager Ben Beavers expressed concern about customers' failure to report their backflow prevention device test results. In keeping with requirements of the Tennessee Department of Environment and Conservation (TDEC), SUD's cross-connection policy requires customers to install a backflow prevention device anytime there is a possibility water from other sources could enter SUD's distribution lines. Beavers will research the fee charged by other utilities for testing backflow prevention devices.

University Superintendent of Leases Barbara Schlichting contacted Beavers on behalf of the University's Board of Trustees Community Relations Committee. A resident had posed a question to the committee about why SUD's rates were "so high." Schlichting asked if Beavers or a SUD representative would address the topic at the April 3 town meeting hosted by this committee.

In discussing the rate question, Beavers pointed out that SUD's rates were based on the annual review and recommendations of the consulting firm Raftelis Financial Inc., taking into account SUD's present and projected expenses.

The board instructed Beavers to decline the invitation to address the town meeting and to encourage customers with questions about rates to contact Beavers directly or to raise the question at a SUD board meeting.

Commissioner Ken Smith was contacted on behalf of an elderly customer and asked why SUD's late-fee penalty was so high. SUD's late-fee penalty, 10 percent, is the same as that charged by the city of Decherd. Monteagle and Tracy City charge 10 percent plus $2. Winchester charges a 5 percent penalty.

Beavers said, "There must be a penalty" for failure to pay by a set date to encourage customers to pay in a timely fashion. To assist low-income customers, SUD annually contributes Project Help funds to the Community Action Committee (CAC) in Sewanee. CAC decides who receives assistance and how much. Beavers said in hardship cases or extenuating circumstances, arrangements could be made for late payment with a penalty adjustment by contacting SUD before the bill due date had passed.

Reporting on the meter replacement program and automated meter reading (AMR) technology being installed by SUD, Beavers said about one-third of the customer meters have been replaced and are AMR-equipped. Recent accuracy testing revealed that Badger brand meters would not need to be replaced when fewer than 250,000 gallons had passed through the meter. This will reduce the number of meter replacements by 300, Beavers said. As a result, he anticipates the AMR project coming in under budget.

The next meeting of the SUD board is scheduled for April 22.

Critically acclaimed contemporary artist Laurel Nakadate will be on campus to discuss her work at 4:30 p.m., today (Friday), in Convocation Hall with a reception afterward. "Strangers and Relations" is an exhibition of large-scale color portrait photographs including Kalispell, Montana #1, 2013 (above.) The photographs offer records of first-time encounters, taken at night in isolated locations, lit by moonlight and a single handheld flashlight. The exhibition at the University Art Gallery closes Sunday, April 6.

VOLUNTEER TEAMWORK

To the Editor:

On March 27, we started smelling smoke in the living room. Looking outside we discovered our wooden chimney casing was ablaze and rapidly getting a good start on the rest of the house. I immediately called 911, reported the fire and went outside to do what I could with a garden hose.

The volunteer fire departments from both Sewanee and Monteagle arrived rapidly. Their teamwork in rolling out 500 feet of hose from the nearest hydrant will be forever impressive. They worked as a very efficient team and immediately entered the smoke-filled living room and removed the furniture so it would not be damaged. This included a mounted bison head directly over the fireplace, which thanks to them is undamaged. Even my grand piano survived because they immediately threw a plastic cover over it when they entered the room.

After about a half-hour they had the fire completely out and had checked with special equipment for any hidden heat sources. I thought their response, considering that I live three miles inside Clifftops, was amazing. No full-time fire department could have done any better. Their teamwork reminded me of a Navy fire-fighting unit on a carrier deck.

The next morning, one hour after I called, Serve Pro arrived with their team and again, their performance was amazing. They had the place all cleaned up, the dehumidifiers going and wiped down every object subject to any smoke or water, even in the other rooms. There was not a detail overlooked. I cannot say enough about their work, as well. Many thanks to all.

Two Sewanee Students Named Watson Fellows

Sewanee seniors Rob Goeller and Kelsey Koontz have been awarded prestigious year-long Watson Fellowships for 2014–15. They each will be awarded $28,000 for a year of travel and exploration. Sewanee had four finalists nominated this year, out of the several hundred candidates who compete for the fellowship. Tarver Shimek was named an alternate. Forty-three Fellows were named nationwide this year.

A soccer referee since middle school, Goeller is an economics major who hopes to pair that experience with his study of the controversial Bangladeshi ship-breaking industry and micro-finance institutions to dissect the intricacies of soccer refereeing. His Watson year studying soccer refereeing will take him to three World Cup venues, FIFAs headquarters and the birthplace of the modern game (Brazil, South Africa, Qatar, Switzerland and the United Kingdom). Goeller will study bigotry, high-stress situations and the evolution of soccer to determine how refereeing differs by country. At Sewanee, he plays rugby and is active in the business club.

Koontz, a politics major with a minor in women's and gender studies, plans to spend her Watson year exploring organizations in Belize, Ireland, Kyrgyzstan and the Philippines that provide care and advocacy for women who have been silenced by violence, stigma or discrimination. Koontz is particularly interested in groups that balance the tension between respecting women's personal boundaries and shattering societal barriers. At Sewanee she is co-director of the Women's Center and a member of Omicron Delta Kappa.

"This is a wonderful showing by our nominees and reflects both their accomplishment and promise," said music professor Stephen Miller, Sewanee's liaison to the Watson Foundation. "Congratulations to Rob and Kelsey, and to the Watson committee as well, who invests considerable time on behalf of Sewanee students."

In addition to Miller, the Watson committee is composed of faculty members John Gatta, Martin Knoll, Pradip Malde, Deborah McGrath, Stephen Raulston, Lauryl Tucker and Mae Wallace.

Since 1985, the University has produced 45 fellowship recipients.

The Thomas J. Watson Fellowship offers college graduates of "unusual promise" a year of independent, purposeful exploration and travel—in international settings new to them—to enhance their capacity for resourcefulness, imagination, openness, and leadership and to foster their humane and effective participation in the world community. Watson Fellows must create, execute and evaluate their own projects.

Registration Due for Community Yard Sale

The 2014 Sewanee Community-Wide Yard Sale will be 8 a.m. to 2 p.m., Saturday, April 26. Registration is required; the deadline is Wednesday, April 16.

This annual event, sponsored by the Sewanee Community Center, brings together people who are having sales to share publicity and advertising. Participants can either have a sale at their home or join with others at the Community Center. All participants will be listed on the official map and will be in the advertising that appears in area newspapers. There is a $15 fee to be part of the event, which covers advertising, maps and yard signs.

For folks who don't have many items for sale or would rather be in a larger group, they can reserve space inside the center. And if weather permits, additional space will be available outside on the basketball court.

To participate, contact Rachel Petropoulos by email at <rpetropo@sewanee.edu>.

2014 Ebay Lecture

Paul Zorn, a professor of mathematics at St. Olaf College, will offer the 2014 Ebay Lecture that honors Sewanee mathematics professor emeritus Sherwood Ebay. It will be at 7:30 p.m., Monday, April 7. Zorn will talk about "Extreme Calculus," a mystery for some and a valuable set of tools for others. Zorn will enlighten both groups with interesting general—and sometimes surprising—mathematical ideas and techniques.

He will also give a talk at 4 p.m., Tuesday, April 8, in Woods Lab 121 on "Revisiting Familiar Places: What I Learned at Mathematics Magazine."

Zorn's professional interests include complex analysis, mathematical exposition and the role of mathematics among the liberal arts. He is also interested in using computer graphics and algebra systems to help students learn mathematical ideas.

Lectures & Talks

Finding Common Humanity

Chris Stedman, assistant humanist chaplain at Harvard University and author of "Faithiest: How an Atheist Found Common Ground with the Religious," will speak at 4 p.m., today (Friday), April 4, in St. Luke's Chapel. His talk, "Finding Our Common Humanity: Building Bridges between Atheists and Believers," will be followed by light refreshments. The community is invited to attend.

Stedman's visit to Sewanee is hosted by Sewanee Interfaith, All Saints' Chapel, the School of Theology, the department of religion and Spectrum.

Sewanee Medieval Colloquium

The 40th annual Sewanee Medieval Colloquium will meet at the University April 4–5. The theme of this year's colloquium is "Medieval Emotions," and the meeting will include papers and roundtables discussing medieval literature, music, art, history, philosophy and religion. All events are in Gailor Auditorium.

The colloquium will feature plenary lectures by William M. Reddy and Miri Rubin. Reddy will lecture at 4:30 p.m., Saturday, April 5. Rubin's lecture is at 9:30 a.m., Friday, April 4. There will be a roundtable on "Scholastic Emotion" at 10:30 a.m., Saturday, April 5. It will be led by Mark D. Jordan. All events (except meals) are free and open to the Sewanee community. More information, including the complete schedule, is available at <http://medievalcolloquium.sewanee.edu>.

"Breaking the Silence" Sexuality & Gender

"Breaking the Silence 2014" is a week-long series of events, Sunday–Friday, April 6–11, at Sewanee that will include presentations and discussions to address issues faced by LGBTQ (lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, questioning) people—including bullying, harassment and homophobia—as well as opportunities for education, empowerment and community-building.

The week features a screening of the documentary "God Loves Uganda," which looks at the evangelical influence in Uganda on the persecution of LGBTQ people. A panel discussion will follow the film, which will be shown at 7:30 p.m., Monday, April 7, at the Sewanee Union Theatre.

Other events include a presentation by Paul Holloway, professor of New Testament, at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, April 6, in the Mary Sue Cushman Room at the Women's Center. His talk will be about "Homosexuality in the Bible."

There will be three panel discussions during the week:

"Untitled: Demystifying Gender and Sexual Identities," at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 8, in the Cushman Room;

"Crossing Lines: Issues of Intersectionality in the LGBTQ Community," at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 9, in Gailor Auditorium; and

"Positive Thinking: A Discussion of HIV," at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, April 10, in Gailor Auditorium.

The week will culminate in the National Day of Silence on Friday, April 11, a day of action in which students across the country take a vow of silence to call attention to the silencing effect of anti-LGBT bullying and harassment in schools.

An interfaith healing service for those who have been bullied, harassed or have suffered the effects of homophobia will follow the Day of Silence. All are welcome to attend the service at 5:45 p.m. in the Chapel of the Apostles, followed by a community dinner in the refectory at Hamilton Hall. All events are open to the public. The events are sponsored by the Cornerstone Foundation, the Gender and Sexual Diversity House, the School of Theology, Spectrum and the Women's Center.

Rebuilding in Haiti

The Haiti Institute in Sewanee and All Saints' Chapel are sponsoring a talk about "The Rebuilding of the Episcopal Cathedral in Port-Au-Prince, Haiti after the 2010 Earthquake," at 4:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 8, in Gailor Auditorium. The Rev. John Ander Runkle, executive director at St. Mary's Sewanee, will discuss his time working in Haiti as both a priest and an architect. The event is free and open to the public.

Theology as a Guide for the Emotions

Ellen T. Charry, the Margaret W. Harmon Professor of Theology at Princeton Theological Seminary, will give a lecture titled "Theology as a Guide for the Emotions" at 7 p.m., Tuesday, April 8, in Convocation Hall.

Charry will argue that Western theology has generally proceeded as though the mind operates quite apart from the emotions and more specifically that emotions upset the calm deliberations of the intellect in matters of religious belief. Such a position can no longer be maintained.

Episcopal Bishops and the Civil War

T. Felder Dorn will speak on one aspect of the Episcopal Church's history in a lecture, "Episcopal Bishops of the Antebellum and Civil War Years Respond to Slavery," at 1 p.m., Thursday, April 10, in Hargrove Auditorium in Hamilton Hall. Dorn's most recent book is "Challenges on the Emmaus Road: Episcopal Bishops Confront Slavery, Civil War, and Emancipation."

This lecture is part of the Dean's Forum lecture series.

OUTSIDEIN

by Patrick Dean

To state the thunderingly obvious, it's warming up outside. We're in that sweet spot before the gnats appear and before it's too hot or too humid.

Jackson the dog and I head out to our favorite spots on these glorious afternoons and occasionally find a car parked at the trailhead or gate. Part of me — the ridiculous part — gets indignant.

"Wait, what?," I say to the unoccupied car. "What are you doing here? Where were you in early January when it was 32 degrees and foggy? Jackson and I have put in our time over the winter, out here every day, and now that it's nice, you're just going to show up and take our trail?!"

I told you it was ridiculous.

But I still feel that way.

Then I think of a recent dispute in Montana over a rails-to-trails project. A landowner sued to stop the project, saying the property had reverted to his family when the railroad cleared out.

"They want to bring a train through here, that's fine," the landowner said. "We never expected and we never agreed to a bicycle trail."

Try as I might, I can't imagine preferring that a train run through one's property rather than a mountain bike. But that's sort of the point: There will always be contentiousness over land—especially land that is relatively undeveloped, able to be enjoyed as something like nature. We treasure those places, even though we sometimes have funny ways of showing it. The phrase "loving it to death" comes to mind when I think about our national parks and other "natural" areas that have been made barren by well-intended but damaging human impact.

Probably the only answer is to think less "mine" and think more "ours." Using a trail or meadow or stream and thinking of it as "mine"—even, or especially, if it happens to be one's legal property—can make us jealous of it, hoarding it away from others and feeling personal injury when anyone else has the nerve to enjoy it.

It's not our best feature as human beings. We are taught to share as little children but unfortunately, the lesson doesn't always stick.

Whoever parked at "my" gate doesn't know that Jackson and I have been there through snow, sleet and this winter's polar vortex. And if they did, they could ask, so what? That doesn't make the trail yours. And they'd be right.

Perhaps there's a sweet spot in this situation similar to the one we're experiencing weather-wise. Maybe we need to care some, but not too much. Be prepared to work to keep these special places special, and worthy of visiting, while understanding that other people, some of them with different ideas than ours, also value and want to visit them. All while remembering this simple truth: the greater the number of people who love and appreciate a place, the better the odds it can survive and thrive.

And if someone is parked at your gate, wish them a wonderful experience and try a different spot. That's what Jackson and I will do.

Film and Talk About Testing in Schools

The documentary "Standardized—Lies, Money and Civil Rights: How Testing is Ruining Public Education," will be screened at 5:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 8, at the Sewanee Union Theater (on the corner of South Carolina and University avenues).

A question-and-answer time and discussion will follow the film with panelists Jennifer Croslin Smith, parent advocate with Tennesseans Reclaiming Educational Excellence; Denise Wilburn, author of "Mismeasure of Education"; and Wes Winton, parent advocate with Concerned Parents of Franklin County.

Because the 74-minute documentary is being shown during the dinner hour, a light supper will be served free of charge. The event is being jointly sponsored by the University of the South Education Program, the Cumberland Center for Justice and Peace and the Franklin County Education Association. Sewanee Physics Student Wins State Award

At the recent meeting of the Tennessee Academy of Science at Motlow State Community College in Tullahoma, the poster by physics major Taylor Morris, C'16, won the award for best physics poster.

Morris successfully observed and modeled the transit of several exoplanets in front of their host stars to produce "Exoplanet Science with OSCAR." One of these transits was the first ever published for the exoplanet WASP-59b apart from its initial discovery. The work stems from research Morris conducted at the Cordell-Lorenz Observatory in Sewanee as a 2013 summer research intern.

SAS Director of College Counseling Christine Asmussen nominated Diana.

The five-week program includes current event debates, discussions, classes and decision-making activities culminating with a one-week trip to Washington, D.C.

Diana is the daughter of Steve and Claudia Rinck of Sewanee. She regularly receives academic distinction on the Honors List. Diana also serves as an SAS Ambassador, one of the highest SAS leadership positions. She takes French classes at the University, and is a member of the varsity track and field and volleyball teams.

McNair Collects Supplies for Nicaraguan Children

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School senior Eliza McNair recently collected school supplies for the children of Gigante, Nicaragua. After three weeks of collection at SAS, a variety of supplies including paper, notebooks, markers and crayons will travel to Nicaragua with team-members of Project Waves of Optimism (Project WOO), a nonprofit organization to promote sustainable community development in the surfing regions of Latin America.

Last spring semester, Eliza traveled in Guatemala, Mexico, and Nicaragua with the Traveling School. In early May, her class spent a week with Project WOO working in a small fishing town called Gigante. The class learned about fishing, baking bread and cooking lunch from different Gigante residents, as well as visiting the local school.

Each Traveling School class collaborates to create a Zenith Project, a project designed to give back to one of the communities or groups it encountered while traveling. Eliza's class decided to work with WOO to design a project that would benefit Gigante. This spring, they are working with WOO to collect school supplies for the children of Gigante for their return to school.

To donate supplies contact Eliza at <emcnair@sasweb.org>.

 Rated PG-13 • 146 minutes

Katniss Everdeen (Jennifer Lawrence) is back, and she is not happy about being manipulated by President Snow (Donald Sutherland) in the latest installment of this popular series. I'm not sure this movie will make sense if you haven't seen the first "Hunger Games," but it is full of adventure, excitement and the most interesting costuming on film in 2013. There are outstanding performances by Elizabeth Banks, Lenny Kravitz, Stanley Tucci and Philip Seymour Hoffman. Rated PG-13 for intense sequences of violence and action, some frightening images, thematic elements, a suggestive situation and language.

Jackass Presents: Bad Grandpa
 Rated R • 92 minutes

If you don't know the Jackass series or its star, Johnny Knoxville, you probably don't want to see this movie. The target audience for this is far younger than me (and perhaps you). I would be remiss if I didn't note that this film was nominated for an Academy Award for best makeup. Otherwise, consider yourself warned by the MPAA rating. Rated R for strong crude and sexual content throughout, language, some graphic nudity and brief drug use. —LW

Jeremy Denk

Pianist Jeremy Denk in Concert April 15

Jeremy Denk, considered one of America's most thought-provoking, multi-faceted and compelling pianists, will perform at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 15, in Guerry Auditorium as part of the University's Performing Arts Series.

He is also known for his original and insightful writing about music, which has appeared in the New Yorker, New Republic and New York Times Book Review.

He was named a 2013 MacArthur Fellow, one of 24 recipients of the year's "genius grants" awarded for extraordinary originality, dedication in creative pursuits and marked capacity for self-direction.

Denk's pairing of Beethoven's final piano sonata and selected György Ligeti études was named one of the best discs of 2012 by the New Yorker, NPR and the Washington Post.

Sewanee Senior Art Majors Show: Transparency and Impressions

The University Art Gallery will close the 2013–14 exhibition season with "Senior Art Majors: Transparency and Impressions," on view Friday, April 11, through Saturday, May 10. The opening remarks and reception will be at 4:30 p.m., Friday, April 11, in the gallery. The artists will give formal talks about their work 1:30–4:30 p.m., Saturday, April 12, in Convocation Hall. On May 10, the University Art Gallery will close the season and celebrate the senior art majors with a reception.

"Transparency and Impressions" explores the quality of transparency, and what it means to make or receive an impression. Many of the senior art majors use transparent materials in their work, like plastic, glass or light projections. Some depict transparent forms such as ghostly figures, unfurling smoke or still water. Transparency for these artists also refers to honesty, whether about one's past experiences, personal meditations or background. While something transparent might seem easily accessible, lending itself to a quick first impression, sometimes a closer look is necessary, and a second impression vital.

Tess Erlenborn's fairytale-inspired paper installations and drawings of imagined creatures represent the overcoming of personal fears. Courtney Moseley's photographs, paper collages and quilted works expose her own vulnerabilities related to home and family. In his drawings and paintings, Curtis Johnson confronts his own identity by dissecting the stereotypes and social issues associated with his racial and cultural heritage. Caleb Schaubroeck uses semi-raw and unfinished materials like wood and electrical wires to evoke origins, guilt and personal freedom. Cole York's black and white photography explores relationships between people of different cultures and socioeconomic backgrounds, as they move through their first and second impressions of one another. John Adams' drawings, three-dimensional prints and animations put color, geometry and forms of infinitely increasing structural complexity to transcendent effect. Channing Title-Fiske's digitally manipulated, abstract photographs of circular forms examine the power of light. Emmy Faison's paintings, drawings, etchings and sculptural installations use transparency to explore time, dissolution and self-preservation. Caroline Minchew's large-format photographs of lakes and vernal pools convey stillness, peacefulness and otherness through layering and light. Andrew Lyman, in his oil paintings, repeats the image of an enigmatic, ghostly king in vast atmospheres to evoke the struggle against becoming insignificant in death. Through video and installation, Jesse Bruen explores the ability of film to distort time and motion, and to reveal irrational habits.

The gallery is located on Georgia Avenue. The gallery is free, accessible and open to the public. Hours are 10 a.m.–5 p.m., Tuesday through Friday and 12–4 p.m., Saturday and Sunday. For more information call 598-1223.

ANGEL WITH AN ATTITUDE

by Virginia Craighill

Dear Angel,

I hear there's been a big barbecue competition at McClurg. Have I missed it completely? Is it for just students, faculty and staff, or are community members allowed to partake as well?

High on the Hog

Dear High Hog,

Although the two barbecue semifinals have already happened, you have not missed the ultimate event, which will occur on April 5 in McClurg Dining Hall. It is most definitely billed as a community-wide event, and its goal is to build cooperation and unity among all of the above. Professors were coaches, students and cooks, and each team was paired with a restaurant in the Sewanee-Montecagle area.

Having participated in it for the second year, I can attest to the fact that nothing builds a sense of kinship like pulling piping hot strands of pork from a pig's butt (or shoulder, if you are more delicate) with your fellow man and woman. Preparing 300 pounds of meat is a great equalizer; no one is exempt from getting his or her latex gloves greasy. This year's expanded competition had students and faculty alike devote many precious hours that they might have spent studying, writing papers or grading them in order to achieve the accolade of Best BBQ 2014. The one paradox to this community-building exercise, however, is that the competitive nature of both students and faculty can create some divisiveness.

Last year my team won the coveted Golden Pig, and it is a thing of beauty and a central point of pride in my trophy case, outshining even my Olympic gold medals in figure skating and curling. My obsession with winning might well have led my team into some dark places of the soul, had I not practiced self-restraint. I considered having a member of my team don a black bodysuit and break into Dr. Berner's secret recipe files (which I suspect she hides in her newt freezer) to change her recipe from 1 teaspoon of black pepper per pound to 100 teaspoons of hot chili pepper per pound. I also thought about replacing Dr. Bachman's pig with one carved of tofu and dyed with pink food coloring, but my better nature won out; I did not want to corrupt the innocent students.

One other thing I learned about my community during the semifinals is how hard the Sewanee Dining staff works. Hefting large pans of steaming hot meat and fitting them carefully into the proper position above boiling water is not a task for weaklings or sissies. As the students gleefully shoveled pork and hot wings onto their plates, I burned my hands and cursed under my breath while trying to keep my station clean and constantly renewing the food source. In contrast, the Sewanee Dining staff worked with smiles and consummate grace. They deserve their very own Golden Pig.

Dear Angel,

I was not an undergrad at Sewanee and I have always wondered when I see the students who have just taken their comprehensive exams celebrating, do they feel knowledgeable?

Knowledge is Power

Dear Powerful,

I believe the students' experience of knowledge in their field of study after taking the comps probably runs somewhere along this spectrum:

- 1.) I am completely empowered by my knowledge and will rule the world.
- 2.) I know more about this subject right now than I will ever know again in my whole life.
- 3.) I feel completely competent to partake in witty cocktail party banter.
- 4.) I know enough to fool my professors, I hope.
- 5.) I know nothing. I poured all my accumulated knowledge into five Blue Books, and now my brain is a blank slate.
- 6.) Comps? Were they today?

Angel

Beans Creek Wines Earns Medals at Tasting

Beans Creek Winery earned medals at the 14th Annual Finger Lakes International Wine Competition. Beans Creek received a gold medal for Traminette and silver medals for Midnight Sun and Apropos. This is the world's largest charitable wine competition. The event was March 29-30, in Rochester, N.Y.

More than 3,700 wines were entered in the competition. Wineries from 20 countries and all 50 states entered wines. The 75 judges did not see the brand of the wine or where it came from. All the proceeds of the Finger Lakes Wine Competition and Camp Good Days Wine Auction Dinner go towards programs to benefit children and their families who are battling cancer.

Riedel Glass Company will offer two wine tasting classes at the winery on April 19. The tasting will consist of five different wines using glasses specifically tailored for each wine. Winemakers Tom and Josh Brown will explain how the characteristics of the glasses improve the flavors of the wine. Tickets are $50 dollars per person and include five Riedel glasses. Reservations are necessary, and seating is limited. For more information call (931) 723-2294.

St. Andrew's-Sewanee Varsity Soccer Update

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee varsity boys' soccer team played Ensworth in its first home game of the season on March 26. SAS was looking to get its second win and started the contest with high intensity. It didn't take long for the Mountain Lions to put one away.

Andrew Heitzenrater played a lofted long ball into the box, which was pounced on by Tommy Oliver, who buried it into the back of the net. The second goal came from a free kick sent in by Mpilo Ngoname. The ball bounced over an Ensworth defender to the feet of Heitzenrater, who poked it over the keeper. Heitzenrater was once again involved in the third goal. After some confusion in the Ensworth penalty area, the ball squirted out to Heitzenrater, who slotted it home.

Ensworth pulled one back at the end of the first half after a great save from Ethan Brand, rebounded right to the feet of an Ensworth player. SAS created many chances the second half, but could not find the finishing touch. Ensworth came storming back scoring two late goals. The game ended in a 3-3 draw.

The SAS boys' soccer team made the long trip to play rivals King's Academy on March 31 in its first district match of the season. SAS controlled most of the possession at the start, but were beat by King's speedy counterattack and went down 1-0. However, the Mountain Lions fought back and leveled the match before the half.

Walker Ross made a great run down the right flank before sending in a ball to Sam Smith, who finished off the attack. King's came out of the half fast and once again caught SAS on the counter with their physical play, making it 2-1. King's added another goal late in the half to end the game 3-1.

On April 1 the team traveled to Fayetteville to play non-conference opponent Fayetteville High School. Both teams created chances quickly after kickoff, in a very physical match-up. SAS was the first to capitalize when Takumi Morozumi played the ball into the box, where Sam Smith took a touch around a defender and then buried the ball into the back of the net. The whole contest was back-and-forth, with SAS having to absorb a lot in defense. In the end, the Mountain Lions were able to hold the lead and come out 1-0 winners.

SAS Baseball Notches a Win

Behind a strong pitching performance from Casey Willis, St. Andrew's-Sewanee baseball team defeated Lighthouse Christian by a score of 13-3 on April 1. Willis pitched a complete game, allowing only two singles and issuing six walks, while striking out eight.

SAS opened the scoring in the first inning as Levi Higgins and Christian Hanger walked. A double steal was followed by an RBI by Jake Berman. Riley Rhoton followed with an RBI single. A stolen base by Rhoton was followed by an RBI single by Sam Thomas for a 3-0 lead. SAS added two runs in the second inning, as Pablo Ramos and Christian Hanger scored on a double by Berman.

The host team scored a single run in their half of the second inning to cut the lead to 5-1. The visiting SAS team countered with a single run in the third inning, as JR Clay walked with one out and stole second. Blaise Zeitler followed with a walk and stolen base before Clay scored on an error. Lighthouse countered with two runs in the third, as a walk and a couple of errors were followed by a two-out, two-run single by the host team.

SAS followed by scoring four runs in the fourth as Willis, Berman and Rhoton singled. Clay and Zeitler walked before Ramos singled. SAS closed out the scoring in the fifth inning, as Willis and Berman led off with walks. Rhoton followed with his third hit of the game, a two-run single. Rhoton scored on a single by Thomas.

Rhoton, Thomas and Berman led the team in hitting. Defensively, the infield of Berman, Thomas, Zeitler and Clay played error-free baseball, and Rhoton was solid at the catching position.

SAS Baseball Opens Season

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee baseball team opened the season on March 27 with a 13-0 loss against defending state champions Friendship Christian Academy. Riley Rhoton took the loss as the starting pitcher.

In the second game of the double-header against FCA, the Mountain Lions were defeated by a score of 14-0. Sam Thomas took the defeat as the starting pitcher, with relief pitching from Higgins and Christian Hanger.

Sewanee Women's Lacrosse Wins

Three goals from Brita Brudvig and Sally Anne Greenwood helped the Sewanee women's lacrosse team to an impressive 17-8 win over conference rival Berry on March 30.

The Tigers scored 12 goals in the first half and another five in the final 30 minutes of play.

The Sewanee men's lacrosse team stayed unbeaten in conference play with a 22-4 win against Millsaps on March 30. The Tigers now sit with a 6-3 overall record and a perfect 3-0 mark in league play.

Tigers Improve at Emory Classic

Led by Willow Smith and Amy Nelson, the Sewanee track and field teams continued to move up the Southern Athletic Association (SAA) top performers list after a number of great finishes at the Emory Classic on March 29.

In the women's competition, the Tigers finished fifth out of 12 teams, while the men's squad closed out the two-day meet with an 11th-place finish.

In the women's 1000-meter run, Smith finished fourth with a time of 39:46.05. Her time was the best finish among all NCAA Division III runners.

In the relays, Caroline Brooks, Amy Lee, Parker Goss and Amy Buice finished third in the 4x800 relay with a time of 11:11.17.

In the field events, Nelson placed second among 16 athletes in the women's hammer throw. Nelson's best toss of 39.33m finished ahead of athletes from Oglethorpe, Emory, Oberlin, Cumberlands, University of Alabama-Huntsville, Columbus State and Tuskegee.

Nelson also had a sixth-place finish in the women's discus with a mark of 33.63m.

In the men's 110-hurdles Josh Hirakawa finished fourth after winning the prelims. Hirakawa's finals time of 16.37 was a season-best time.

In the men's pole vault, Thomas Walters finished fifth with a height of 3.82m.

OVERTIME

by John Shackelford

My lovely wife gets her news online each day. Along the way she usually gets some sort of magazine feed with a countless array of recipes. She likes to forward to me those she finds interesting, those she wants me to consider. Usually it is a tofu salad with cranberry and almonds seasoned with light vinaigrette.

I pretend to be interested (although I never actually read them) and then say that we should have that for dinner real soon. I acknowledge I should be eating more heart-friendly options and insist that almonds are every bit as tasty and filled with protein as a juicy rib eye. But as I mix her a salad, I'm planning to sneak off for a quarter-pounder with cheese on my way back to the office.

Last week I saw her message in my inbox with another recipe suggestion. We have been married for more than 30 years so I understand that I need to look at the name of the recipe to feign my complete attention to the process. BAM! She sends me a recipe for country-fried steak with sawmill gravy. She still loves me. Understands my life's desires. There is really nothing to compare to a piece of chopped and pounded beef, dredged in eggs, buttermilk, flour and pepper and then fried in hot oil until the steak has a beautiful brown crust and juicy center. Top that off with some creamy white gravy and a side of mashed potatoes and sweet corn, and you have gone to heaven.

I enjoy cooking. It is all about process. Attention to detail and making art from butter and flour. Everything you need to know about life you can discover in a country-fried steak. Working the first coat of flour into the cubed steak with the heel of your hand to ensure a strong marriage between the beef and the delicate coating. Adding some pepper to ensure a spicy feast. Soaking your creation in an egg and buttermilk mixture to add strong glue that cements the relationship of what we see on the outside and what is hidden inside. The key is a proper temperature. Cook it too fast and you burn the crust; too slow and you end up with an oily coating that falls off the steak. This recipe advised me to wait patiently until the hot oil was ready and then cook one steak at a time before tucking each one into a warm oven. Finally you take just a bit of the remaining oil and blend in a few tablespoons of flour in the skillet to create a paste ready to absorb all of the creamy milk, salt and pepper you need for a delicious white gravy. What things in life are not made better by gravy? Tofu? Cranberries and almonds? I think not.

Here is what I learned in front of the stove that night blending my gravy in a cast iron skillet with a well-worn whisk. After 30-plus years of marriage, four children, and thousands of breakfasts, lunches and dinners together, my wife still loves me. She cares about my cholesterol and recommends the salad six days a week, but she knows I need some warm gravy to satisfy my soul after a trying week. She knows how to create a coating of comfort food around the daily grind through the ups and downs of an athletic season. She knows I like pepper and lord knows that being married to a Cuban woman provides enough spice for one man's life. And there is an understanding that you have to keep the oil at the right temperature or you risk burning dinner. Forrest Gump might have said that life is like a bowl of mashed potatoes. But I would contend that for those of us who get to go to work in the sun wearing tennis shoes, watching their children grow up in this caring mountaintop village and eating dinner with family who love one another, are enjoying the best gravy that someone blended for us with an artful whisk. Bon appétit.

NATURENOTES

By Jean Yeatman

Mink

Mystery Solved!

"Who is the elusive hunter of a frosty night?" Jean Yeatman asks. "All winter I have been wondering what predatory animal was keeping the rats out of my barn. Now I think I have the answer. Earlier in the winter I reported seeing mink tracks in the snow; recently I found its den on my dam under the roots of a fallen tree. The mink is dark brown to black in color, and has a chunky build. The male can be 13-17 inches in length with a slightly bushy tail 7-9 inches long. The female is smaller. They both have a white spot under the chin. Minks are rather nocturnal in habit. They prefer to live near streams or lakes. They swim and dive gracefully, and spend much time in the water, but a great deal of traveling is done over land. Minks pursue and catch muskrats, birds, frogs, small mammals, aquatic invertebrates, and swift fish. They are solitary animals except in the summer, when the male may stay in the family group to help feed the young.

"We were lucky to see such a group at Long's Mill one summer day," she continued. "They were playing and frolicking in the water together. Two other summers we have seen some at Fiery Gizzard. At the end of summer the family will disband to seek their own territories.

"Mink are widely distributed in this area," she concluded, "and can give off a skunk-like odor when disturbed."

Hummingbird Sightings

On March 31, Jane Yates called to report that she had just spotted a hummingbird on her tulip tree, and Freddy Tucker called on April 3 to report seeing one on his front porch.

Toto

Celie

Pets of the Week

Meet Toto and Celie

The Franklin County Humane Society's Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption.

Toto is a large, handsome adult kitty. He had been declawed in front when he was rescued, so he will need to be an inside cat. Toto is negative for FeLV and FIV, house-trained, up-to-date on shots and neutered.

Celie is a young, medium-sized yellow Lab/Beagle mix. She loves children and wants a family to love and play with her. Celie is up-to-date on shots and spayed.

Every Friday is Black Friday at Animal Harbor. On Fridays, adoption fees will be reduced 50 percent for black or mostly black pets more than 4 months old who have been at Animal Harbor for more than a month. Pets adopted from Animal Harbor qualify for a free post-adoption wellness exam by local veterinarians.

Call Animal Harbor at 962-4472 for information and check out the other pets at <www.animalharbor.com>. Please help the Humane Society continue to save abandoned pets by sending donations to the Franklin County Humane Society, P. O. Box 187, Winchester, TN 37398.

SPRING!

The flowers that bloom in the spring
Tra la
Breathe promise of merry sunshine
As we merrily dance and we sing
Tra la
We welcome the hope that they bring
Tra la
Of a summer of roses and wine
Of a summer of roses and wine
And that's what we mean
When we say that a thing
Is welcome as flowers
That bloom in the spring
Tra la la

The flowers that bloom in the spring
Tra la
Have nothing to do with the case.
I've got to take under my wing
Tra la
A most unattractive old thing
Tra la
With a caricature of a face,
With a caricature of a face.
And that's what I mean when I say or I sing
Oh, bother the flowers that bloom in the spring
Tra la
Oh, bother the flowers that bloom in the spring.
