A Snowy Week on the Mountain

Schools Close and Roads Dangerous

A huge snowstorm that swept across the South dropped as much as 10" of snow on the Mountain on Sunday night and Monday morning. Freezing temperatures and continued snow showers throughout the week shut down much of our community. Area public schools closed on Monday and never reopened, but plan to be in session again on Tuesday after the MLK holiday. Safety officials encouraged people to stay off the roads, especially after the Franklin County road department ran out of salt to clear passageways.

Event organizers canceled lectures and meetings. Among them, the Academy for Lifelong Learning canceled this week's lecture and lunch, and the Paula Ford opening reception at the Artisan Depot has been postponed. Look to next week's Messenger for announcements of new times and dates for many events.

Through it all, everyone had fun sledding, making snow ice cream (with a recipe courtesy of the Sewanee Police Department) and building snow people. See more snow photos on pages 3, 5, 8 and 10, and (barring technical difficulties) watch a slideshow of winter pictures on our website <sewaneemessenger.com>.

Author and Journalist Meacham Speaks at SAS

Pulitzer-prize winning author Jon Meacham will be the speaker for the 18th annual Bishop Reynolds Forum at 3 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 23, at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School. The presentation and reception will be held in McCrory Hall and are free and open to the public. The Bishop Reynolds Forum is brought to the school through an endowment established in memory of The Rt. Rev. George Reynolds, the late Bishop of Tennessee.

Meacham, one of America's most distinguished journalists, is the former editor of Newsweek magazine, author of "American Lion" and "Franklin and Winston," and co-anchors the PBS program "Need to Know." Known as an eloquent speaker with a depth of knowledge about history, politics and religion, Meacham offers an understanding of complex issues and events and how they impact our lives.

In May 2010, Meacham began co-anchoring PBS's "Need To Know," a weekly primetime news and public affairs program covering the economy, politics, the environment and energy, health, national security and culture. As executive vice president and executive editor at the Random House Publishing Group, Meacham focuses on acquiring works of history, religion and biography and advising on a broad array of publishing opportunities, including digital initiatives.

After serving as managing editor of Newsweek for eight years, Meacham was responsible for all day-to-day editorial operations of the magazine as editor from October 2006 until September 2010. The New York Times called him "one of the most influential editors in the news magazine business." The New York Observer described him

MLK Celebration Features Music, Dance and Song

The annual Martin Luther King Jr. Birthday Celebration will be at 6 p.m., Monday, Jan. 17, in the Bishop's Common Hearth Room. The multicultural, multi-generational fête begins with a potluck buffet, followed by music, song, dance and recitations honoring the life of King.

Scott Bates will talk about Highlander Folk School's role in shaping civil rights leaders in the 1950s. Rosa Parks and Martin Luther King Jr. were among the civil rights leaders who attended Highlander, then located in Monteagle. Founded in 1932 to educate union workers who showed promise as labor leaders, Highlander Folk School ultimately shifted its emphasis to aiding southern rural people, especially African-Americans in their struggle for racial equality. A retired University of the South professor, Bates has been a longtime Highlander advocate and met King during one of King's early visits to Highlander.

Student talent will highlight the performance segment of the program, featuring interpretive dancers and the gospel choir Sewanee Praise. La'Toyia Slay, president of the African-American Alliance, will emcee the festivities. The evening will culminate in a group sing-along.

For 26 years, the Sewanee community has held an inspirational commemoration of Martin Luther King Jr. This year's event is jointly sponsored by the African-American Alliance, the University's outreach office and the office of multi-cultural affairs, the CCJP and the Franklin County NAACP. For more information, contact CCJP director Leslie Lytle at 598-9979 or <sllytle@bloomand.net>.

First-grade students in Barbara King's classroom at Sewanee Elementary School work at one of the new computer micro-labs set up in every classroom across Franklin County with funds from the federal "Race to the Top" program.

"Race to the Top" Money Reaches Classrooms Across the County

A laptop for every teacher, a digital projector in every room and a five-computer micro-lab in every classroom. At Sewanee Elementary School, these are the new, direct results from Franklin County's focus on technology in its first year of the Race to the Top federal grant.

In March 2010, the Department of Education selected two states, Tennessee and Delaware, to receive funds for comprehensive school reform over the next four years. As a part of this grant, each system received money based on its student population. Franklin County received a total of $954,500 to be spent over the next four years. During the first year, the main focus has been on technology.

By December, every classroom in the county was supplied with a laptop, projector, document camera and cart.

Through the efforts of the PTO at Sewanee Elementary School, many of the classrooms already had these items, but now all teachers have the laptop-projector-camera-cart technology. At SES, the county also had funds to ensure that each classroom has a computer area with five monitors, headsets and printers.

SES principal Mike Maxon said that the county has done a terrific job of outfitting every classroom to be as technologically advanced as possible. "All our 13 core teachers, as well as the instructors in art, music and PE, have the technology they need to teach in the 21st century," Maxon said. "The next step is for the county to bring in professionals to do training and help us use these tools to their fullest."

MLK Closings

The birthday of Martin Luther King Jr. is celebrated on the third Monday of January, which this year is Jan. 17. All federal, state and county offices, including the post office, will be closed, as will schools, banks and other financial institutions. Franklin County public schools will be closed.

The offices of the University of the South and St. Andrew's-Sewanee will be open, and classes will be held.

The Fowler Center will be open 6 a.m.-11 p.m.; duPont Library will be open 8 a.m.-11 p.m., with regular hours (7:45 a.m.-1 a.m.) resuming on Jan. 18.

MLK Tribute at Seminary

The School of Theology will pay special tribute to the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. on Monday, Jan. 17, with a daylong reading of King's writings and speeches. The readings will take place at the Chapel of the Apostles on the seminary grounds at 9-11 a.m. and then again from 2-5 p.m. Seminarians and faculty will read in 30-minute rotations.

There will also be a noon Eucharist that day. The Very Rev. Rob Wright, rector of St. Paul's in the Diocese of Atlanta, will be the preacher.

GOOD TRAFFIC CHANGE To The Editor:

Just got very good news from the Sewanee Community e-mail about changing the traffic light at University and Georgia to flashing. That is a very good first step and I hope the community supports this to make it and similar changes permanent.

COUNTY ISSUES 2010-11 To the Editor:

Probably the issues that most concern Franklin County voters are finance, schools and proposed rock quarries. In regard to finance, the current county budget (2010) of $68.5 million earmarks $45 million for schools and $10 million to pay off the existing debt. The fiscal future does not look all that bright. As noted, we made some unwise tax deductions previously, and we are now drawing upon the fund balance (tax balance funds not as yet dedicated) to meet current expenses, a practice which cannot continue indefinitely.

Under the "maintenance of effort" program mandated by the state, the county cannot or should not reduce its previous commitment to education. Unfortunately the county has not been achieving this required level of support, with the result that we are currently $568,000 in arrears. What this means is that the Board of Education could someday say to the County Commission: "Please meet your fiscal obligation." The board has been very cooperative thus far.

Fortunately Tennessee landed in the Top Ten national subsidy competition, and funds available for this county are now being used to buy equipment for the schools. In the future, we will have to look for additional funding sources. Also, in 2012 property tax reappraisals will arrive. Another big issue is the rock quarry. In the past, Tinsley Paving has sought to open a limestone quarry off of the Greenhaw Road. In pursuit of this, the company has even asked other municipalities to annex land for the quarry. These efforts have been totally rejected, in particular by the Franklin County Commission.

If you have questions or comments please do get in contact with us. Also, excellent financial information is available from Andrea Smith, Franklin County financial director.

AN APPRECIATION OF MS. JAN To the Editor:

During Jan Drake-Lowther's last visit to Sewanee, we sat in my living room and talked at length about sustainability, leadership, Costa Rica, friendship and family. After she left, my nine-year-old daughter, Sophia, declared, "She is an enthusiastic woman! Everything she talked about was 'Fantastic!'" My response was, "Ms. Jan is fantastic, and that is only one of the reasons that we love her. She is, also, so easy to love."

I recently spoke to her son on the phone. He reported that Jan spent the winter solstice with him and her grandchildren and then traveled to Florida to be with her daughter, Hannah, and her other grandchildren for Christmas and New Year's. On New Year's Day, Jan was having some physical distress and eventually went to the hospital. Rehydration at the hospital soothed her markedly and she chatted cheerfully with Hannah and Michi about the festivities of the night before and Michi's upcoming travel plans. After a medical evaluation and a CT scan, the doctor came to her room and solemnly said, "Jan, this is very serious." In that moment and without hesitation, Jan closed her eyes and passed away. Hannah was with her, as was Michi. She was with family, and she had spent the last two weeks doing what she loved. She was never one to postpone what needed to be done today.

Per her wishes, her body will be cremated. Half of her ashes will be buried next to her husband, David, in West Virginia; the remaining ashes will be buried on the family farm in Monteverde. Jan wanted all memorial gifts to go to the Cloud Forest School Foundation at P.O. Box 3223, Sewanee, TN 37375. (In fact, she would want you to send a check today.) There will also be a service at All Saints' Chapel after the semester begins.

Jan started her work at Sewanee in August of 1992, and she retired at the end of the academic term in 2008. She was a lively blend of Mary Poppins and Jacques Cousteau. She lived in Courts and Tuckaway Halls and served as a hostess to anyone new—faculty, staff or student. She helped inspire the outreach office to partner with the Cloud Forest School, and she was an avid environmentalist long before the movement was popular. She balanced youthfulness, sincerity and grace through an intense, loving presence. She was, as my daughter would say, "Fantastic." She will be missed dearly.

Community Center Potluck

Please come to the Fourth Annual Sewanee Community Center Membership Potluck from 6 to 8 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 22. Main dishes, including vegetarian options, and beverages will be provided. Please bring your favorite side dish or dessert. We can't wait to see you!

Lease Committee Reminders

The next meeting of the Lease Committee will be on Wednesday, Jan. 19.

The University recommends that leaseholders hire contractors who comply with the state of Tennessee's laws for licensing and insurance. It is the leaseholder's responsibility to confirm that a contractor meets the state of Tennessee's requirements. The University assumes no responsibility or liability for the work performed on leasehold property.

A county building permit is required for structures with roofs. Please contact the Franklin County Planning and Zoning Office at 967-0981 for information.

The University must consent to deeds of trust that secure mortgages against leasehold property. If you are interested in obtaining a loan against your leasehold, it is important to get the lease office involved early on in the process. Failure to do so can result in a delay in the loan process. Loans also include equity loans, lines of credit and refinances.

Current policies, meeting dates and other leasehold information are available online at <www.sewanee.edu/leases> or by calling 598-1998.

Traffic Signal Change

The traffic signal at the corner of University and Georgia avenues will now operate as a flashing signal for at least the next few weeks, for both safety and environmental reasons. Please take note of the change as you drive on campus in the coming days.

The most pressing reason for the change was to prevent cars from stopping quickly on streets that might be slick following recent snowstorms. The change will be discussed at the February meeting of the Community Council. Other factors in making the signal modification include reduced traffic and improved lines of sight along University Avenue since the light was installed and reduced fuel consumption and improved air quality with a flashing signal.

The signal will flash yellow (caution) on University Avenue and flash red (stop) on Georgia Avenue. All other traffic rules still apply.

Convocation Events to Focus on Rural Poverty

Opening convocation for the Easter semester at the University of the South will begin at 12:30 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 25, in All Saints' Chapel on the University campus. Honorary degrees will be presented to Geoffrey Canada, president and CEO of the Harlem Children's Zone, and Marguerite W. Kondracke, president and CEO of America's Promise Alliance. Canada will deliver the convocation address.

In conjunction with recognizing the remarkable accomplishments of these individuals, the University plans to use this occasion to explore with regional education, health and social services leaders those methods and programs that might be transferable to issues of rural poverty in southern middle Tennessee. Area students, educators and administrators are invited to join the Sewanee community for a showing and discussion of the documentary "Waiting for Superman" Thursday, Jan. 20, as well as a panel discussion following the convocation on Jan. 25.

The purpose of these conversations and related activities will be to engage both the university and the wider community in envisioning new models of support for the families and young people of the area.

Students in the education program at Sewanee worked last semester in 13 different school systems. In spring 2010, college students were serving 5,000 area schoolchildren in a semester as teaching assistants, tutors, mentors and in after-school programs. Community engagement classes and work-study put even more students into the community.

Geoffrey Canada is a social activist and educator who has dedicated his life to helping at-risk children and families secure educational and economic opportunities. Since 1990, he has been CEO and president of Harlem Children's Zone in Harlem, New York, which the New York Times called "one of the most ambitious social experiments of our time." In 1997, the agency launched the Harlem Children's Zone Project, which targets a specific geographic area in central Harlem with a comprehensive range of educational, social and medical services. Canada is prominently featured in "Waiting for Superman," and has received numerous awards during his career. In 2005 U.S. News and World Report magazine named him one of "America's Best Leaders."

Marguerite Kondracke has served as CEO and president of America's Promise Alliance since 2004. America's Promise was founded in 1997 by Colin Powell to make children and youth a national priority, mobilizing Americans to fulfill five promises for young people: caring adults, safe places, a healthy start, an effective education and opportunities to help others. America's Promise is focused on addressing the nation's high school dropout crisis. Prior to joining the Alliance, Kondracke served as special assistant to U.S. Sen. Lamar Alexander as well as staff director for the Senate subcommittee on children and families. Previously, she was co-founder and CEO of Bright Horizons Family Solutions, the nation's largest provider of employer-sponsored childcare.

For more information about these events, go to <www.sewanee.edu>.

Race to the Top from page 1

Third-grade teacher Alicia Wall was selected as the “exemplar teacher” at SES, a designation made by the county for each school. She and her classroom received more equipment, and Wall is being trained on best practices in implementing technology into the schools. She is also being observed by other teachers and acting as a mentor in technology.

“We’re using technology to enhance the way teachers teach. We use it in a variety of ways, but it is still our job to be the teachers,” Wall said. Next week, she is planning for students to use Skype to have “multiplication wars” with their counterparts at Rock Creek Elementary.

In her 19 years at SES, Gail Sherrill said she’s seen the school shift from chalk and blackboards to these new digital devices. “It is more interesting now and it is better for the kids,” she said of the new technology. “As a teacher, I have to make time for the students to reflect and process what they’ve learned.”

Maxon commended the Sewanee community for its commitment to elementary education. “This entire effort is a result of the collaboration we have by all parts of our community: parents, the PTO, the University, the Community Chest, members of the Sewanee community and friends of the school have all worked together to make this a great place for teaching and learning.”

Tennessee’s statewide focus of the federal grant includes: adopting standards and assessments that prepare students to succeed in college and the workplace; building data systems that measure student growth and success and inform teachers and principals how to improve instruction; recruiting, developing, rewarding and retaining effective teachers and principals, especially where they are needed most; and turning around the lowest-performing schools.

Rebecca Sharber, director of schools for Franklin County, said that the technology will have positive change for teachers and teaching.

“The technology should open up the resources the teachers have to engage children in their learning,” Sharber said recently. “Engaged children learn at a deeper level than non-engaged children. Ultimately we believe that children will be more academically successful.

“In addition, the new mandates of the state will involve easy access to the technology for teachers. Beginning next year, student test scores will be a part of all teachers’ evaluations. Teachers need access to this information to know how to organize their teaching to better meet the needs of students. This information is only available via the Internet and teachers need to be able to access the information easily and quickly,” Sharber said.

as “the embodiment of ... integrity in a journalism industry looking for heroes.”

A native of Chattanooga, Meacham is a 1991 graduate of the University of the South.

His bestseller, “American Lion: Andrew Jackson in the White House,” won the Pulitzer Prize for biography in 2009 and was cited as an “unlikely portrait of a not always admirable democrat, but a pivotal president, written with an agile prose that brings the Jackson saga to life.”

“Franklin and Winston: An Intimate Portrait of an Epic Friendship,” explored the fascinating relationship between the two leaders who piloted the free world to victory in World War II. Time magazine declared it “masterful,” and the Washington Post proclaimed it “a memorable achievement.”

Meacham runs a popular blog about religious life in America with writer Sally Quinn. He has written for the New York Times, BusinessWeek, the Washington Post, Slate and the Los Angeles Times. A member of the Council on Foreign Relations, Meacham is a regular guest on MSNBC’s “Morning Joe” and has appeared on such programs as “Meet The Press,” “The O’Reilly Factor” and “The Colbert Report.”

This spring, professional trainers have been hired to go into each school in the county to help teachers learn about this technology and how to best use it. During the second, third and fourth years of the grant, there will be an emphasis on math, science and the new evaluation methods.

The Town
 125 minutes • R • Admission $3

A tough movie about a tough town. Ben Affleck directed and stars in “The Town,” an intense look at the seamy side of his hometown of Boston. Based on the award-winning book, “Prince of Thieves” (which Affleck also helped adapt for the screen), “The Town” tells the story of career bank robber Doug (Affleck) and his partner, Jim (Jeremy Renner), whose lives are changed when Doug falls in love with the bank manager they kidnap during a robbery. Family, honor and love mix for what has been called “a gritty, well-made heist flick.” The terrific cast includes Jon Hamm, Rebecca Hall, and the late Pete Postlethwaite. Rated R for strong violence, pervasive language, and some sexuality and drug use. —LW

Getty to Teach Textile Art Classes

Textile artist Diane Getty of Sewanee will offer two workshops this month at the John C. Campbell Folk School in western North Carolina.

Fabric collage will be taught Jan. 28–30. This workshop includes how to create fabric collages with both hand-painted and ready-made fabrics. A number of assemblage and adhesive techniques will be taught to benefit both beginners and more advanced quilters. Hand-stitched surface embellishments will include new interpretations of traditional embroidery, as well as the use of beads, buttons and “bezels” for attaching assorted items. Free-motion machine stitching will be covered, and finishing and display strategies will be demonstrated.

The memory quilts workshop, Jan. 30–Feb. 5, will include traditional and nontraditional techniques to create a textile piece that commemorates a person, place, time or event. Favorite fabrics, small objects and symbols will enable each participant to make a personal treasure. From thoughtful designing to finished details, a wide range of skills will be covered. Courage is more important than specific skills, so anyone who can safely handle a needle is welcome. People who want to use a sewing machine should have working knowledge.

The John C. Campbell Folk School is located in Brasstown, N.C. Information and registration is at <www.FolkSchool.org> or by calling (828) 837-2775.

Blues Guitarist Jack Pearson to Play McCrory Hall on Jan. 21

Guitarist, singer and songwriter Jack Pearson (pictured below) brings his talents to St. Andrew’s-Sewanee School’s McCrory Hall for the Performing Arts for a concert at 7 p.m., Friday, Jan. 21.

The distinct soulful voice of Pearson’s playing and his versatility and musicianship combine for impressive live performances.

“Anyone who’s caught Pearson live knows he can flat burn,” said Music Row magazine. Rolling Stone magazine described Pearson as having a “light touch and fluid, jazzy style...and dynamic slide playing.” Real Blues magazine hails him as “one of the best blues/rock guitarists on the scene today.”

A native of Nashville, Pearson started playing professionally when he was 14 years old and recording at 15. Over the years, he has worked with musicians such as the Allman Brothers Band, Jimmy Buffett, Jimmy Raney, Earl Scruggs, Lee Ann Womack, Ronnie Milsap and Faith Hill.

Pearson is probably best known for his blues/rock lead and slide guitar playing as a member of the Allman Brothers Band from 1997 to 1999. Often singled out solely as an electric blues slide player, Jack is adept in many other musical genres. In December 2001, Jack began playing the mandolin and spent many hours every day learning the instrument. He studied the playing styles of such artists as Jethro Burns, Yank Rachell and Bill Monroe. Within a year, he began including mandolin in his performances.

The concert is sponsored in part with a grant from the Tennessee Arts Commission.

Friday School is a much-anticipated event at SES. This year, the program will be held Feb. 11, 18, 25 and March 4. Volunteers from all over the county, including parents, business owners and University of the South coaches, professors and students, lead class and teach special courses on fun topics.

More volunteers are needed to help teach mini-courses. If you are interested in continuing this tradition, please contact the Friday School co-chairs Joan Hurst at <joanhurst@charter.net> or Sarah Butler at <sabutler@sewanee.edu> by Jan. 30.

FAFSA Workshop for Parents

A workshop on Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) will be held at 2 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 16, at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School. The workshop is free and open to the public.

Beth Cragar, associate dean of admission for financial aid at the University of the South and Christine Asmussen, director of college counseling at SAS, will conduct the workshop. Parents of high school seniors should bring their current tax information, pencils and any questions they have about the process and the FAFSA form, which is required by all colleges nationwide for financial aid.

For more information, contact Asmussen at 598-5651 ext. 3136 or <casmussen@sasweb.org>.

SAS Wrestling and Mountain Top Tournament

The St. Andrews-Sewanee Lions wrestling team pulled off a double at Coffee County High School on Jan. 6, defeating Whitwell, 45-12, and then Coffee County, 39-36. Captain Allan Duggar added the icing at the 152-weight class, breaking a 36-36 tie to nail down the win. Pins by Robert Post, Myles Kincaid, Cody Seals, Storm Hill and Trevor Laymance, along with a decision win by Jimmy Kuo, helped carry the day. On Jan. 7-8, the team saw action at the 28-team Father Ryan Invitational. Trevor Laymance came away with a coveted medal at eighth place.

SAS will host the annual Mountain Top Invitational Wrestling Tournament on Saturday, Jan. 15. Teams from across the middle Tennessee area will compete in an action-packed day of high school wrestling that starts at 10 a.m.

SES Girls' Downed by Rock Creek

The Sewanee Elementary School's Lady Tigers took on Rock Creek in elementary basketball action on Thursday, Jan. 6. The lead seesawed back and forth in the first half, with Rock Creek going ahead at the half 9-7. SES went ahead in the game at the free throw line, 12-11, during the first part of the second half. The Lady Tigers then made a lot of errors and Rock Creek went on to win 18-12.

Outstanding defensive play by starters Lucy Lancaster, Kate Butler, Emilie LaVoie-Ingram, Callie Cantrell and Blake Collins kept this game close. While the Lady Tigers could not capitalize on each steal, blocked shot or rebound, they still gave it their all. Blake Collins scored five points and Kate Butler scored seven points.

SAS Boys' B-Ball Beaten by Zion

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee varsity basketball team lost to Zion Christian Academy on Friday, Jan. 7, in a regional match-up, 51-48. The Mountain Lions led most of the game, but Dakota Underwood hit a 3-point shot to send the game into overtime. SAS fell to 4-7 and 2-2 on the season.

Alex Tinsley and Tilghman Myers led SAS with 11 points each and two 3-point shots in the game. John Fisher added 10 points; Justin Thomas had six points; Jonathan Jones added four points; Josh Owens, Sam Howick and Kendall Kinslow each had two points.

NAMED TO ALL-REGION: St. Andrew's-Sewanee senior Storm Hill of Hillsboro was recently named to the 2010 Division II-A Middle East All-Region Football Team. Hill, a five-year letterman who played offensive guard and defensive tackle, recorded 14 tackles for loss over the course of the season to lead the team. Voted "most valuable player" by his teammates, Hill is an honor student, a proctor and also participates in wrestling and baseball at SAS.

Overtime with Coach Shack

By John Shackelford

Sunday 6:01 am: Time to open up the laptop and crank out another masterpiece for the Overtime Column. What shall I write about this week? The NFL playoffs, college bowl games, last second half-court shot for the Sewanee men's basketball team? This new publisher down at the Messenger is a tough old bird. The pressure from her is just too much. Maybe some breakfast first.

Sunday 6:15 am: Why didn't I just eat some oatmeal? Do I really need country ham, biscuits, three eggs and some orange juice? Hopefully, Koella won't check my cholesterol next time I am in his office.

Sunday 6:18 am: This article is going nowhere fast. I need to say something meaningful. My audience is counting on me. Perhaps I should focus on some of the world's problems. Offer some recommendations on how I could fix them. That will be easy. What do we have to work with: hunger, health care, taxes, the Vols defense, the Sewanee student body? Hmmm. Maybe I need a cinnamon roll to get focused here.

Sunday 6:32 am: Obesity—that is a problem that comes to mind. I think I need to get a run in to clear my head. Then, I will really have something to write about.

Sunday 7:01 am: My runs used to be so much longer. Maybe I am just getting faster over the same distance. I think my fitness level is like a fine wine. Better with age. A shower, then I can really concentrate.

Sunday 7:15 am: All right. Breakfast, run, shower, laptop, ready to write. Here it comes.

Sunday 10:00 am: Maybe it would be better to wait until tomorrow. That hard-nose Willis will have to crack her whip after the deadline. If she wants poetry on these pages of the Messenger she'll have to wait for it to percolate.

Monday 6:01 am: WWHYD. That is the motto for all of us ink-stained aspiring columnists on the Messenger staff. (What Would Harry Yeatman Do?) He never seems to come up short on a column. "Nature Notes" just keeps coming, but then again, he has an advantage. Mother Nature never lets you down. There is only so much meaning a guy like me can derive from a scoreboard, a couple of whistles and some sweaty uniforms.

Monday 7:30 am: Need to leave for the real job pretty soon. I should have an idea by now. What if I wrote a column about what I would do if I were the Vice-Chancellor? I'll bet I could really fix this place. Rearrange the furniture, change some wallpaper, give everybody a few days off at Christmas. I would probably give them paid time off. What a good idea! I bet I could handle that job. You get to live in that big house, and I think someone mows your grass. Not sure why they forgot to interview me last time around.

Monday 8:30 pm: Fixed a few slice backhands today, signed six recruits that applied early decision, gave my team an inspirational talk that will in all likelihood alter the course of their young lives. What's next? Ahh, this column that still remains unwritten. Maybe a glimpse behind the curtain, a behind-the-scenes look at the creative process of the Overtime Column. There are at least nine people who read this regularly, not counting my mom. They are just dying to know what makes this finely tuned brain tick, and how the words just flow from the keyboard each week. My good friend, Whitt Taber, describes the process as the hamster running around on his wheel up there in the vacuum between my ears. You are never sure where it is going, but pretty sure what is going to come out the other end.

Tuesday 6:01 am: Willis needs to give me some paid time off...this is Overtime.

Nature Notes

Snow Birds

Harry and Jean Yeatman called in this weeks report: The heavy snowfalls this December and January have enabled birdwatchers opportunities to view varieties of birds eating sunflower seed, millet seed, cracked corn and wheat. Try spreading some on the ground below the feeders suspended on poles and wires. A cake of suet brings out the woodpeckers—pileated, red-bellied, red-headed, sapsuckers, hairy and downy. These spend the cold nights in tree holes and bird houses. Carolina Chickadees, White-bellied Nuthatches, Tufted Titmice, Eastern Bluebirds, Carolina Wrens and Screech Owls also use these shelters. The Yeatmans had a variety of sparrows and finches take shelter in Chinese Holly, Boxwood shrub, Virginia Creeper vines that have their leaves, and so forth. Two Fox Sparrows, which have red tails and large size, scratched in the leaves for grain, and several Savannah Sparrows, with their black-streaked breasts, notched tails, a white line over the eyes and a pair of black markings on the throat, were present. The body is streaked brown as are the wings. A flock of male and female Cowbirds came to the feeders on the poles. Many Purple Finches, a few House Finches and White-throated Sparrows were feeding on the ground with Juncos and Goldfinches. In the winter, Goldfinches look like olive-brown sparrows, but have black wings and tails streaked with white. The males molt to yellow bodies in the spring but the females keep winter-type plumage. A pair of Crows joined the other birds. Many Cardinals are there. A Piebald Cardinal appeared at the Yeatmans' birdfeeder on Jan. 9 and 10. It appears to be a different individual than the one described in the Dec. 16 Messenger, because the light spots were on different parts of the bird.

Horned Owl

Jeanne Jansenius was out hiking in the snow on Monday and discovered this owl (right) in a cave below the bluff near her house on Sherwood Road. She thinks it is a Horned Owl. (The Yeatmans will be consulted when the roads allow.)

Pets of the Week: Meet Cyrus and Babette

The Franklin County Humane Society's Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption.

Cyrus is a handsome blue heeler mix who is very smart. He already knows the sit, lie down and shake commands. Cyrus is a bit shy around new people, but he will be a devoted companion for a family who takes the time to get to know him. He is up-to-date on shots and neutered.

Lovely Babette is an elegant brown tabby with big green eyes. She is full of playful energy and she loves to explore. Babette would make a perfect best friend for someone looking for a fun-loving kitty. She is negative for FeLV and FIV, house-trained, up-to-date on shots and spayed.

Call Animal Harbor at 962-4472 for information and check out their other pets at <www.animalharbor.com>. Please help the Humane Society continue to save abandoned pets by sending donations the Franklin County Humane Society, P.O. Box 187, Winchester, TN 37398.

From Bard to Verse

by Scott and Phoebe Bates

To make the people happy, flood them with guns.
The great words are empty, the high-sounding ones,
Fraternity, Justice, the Mission of France,
Liberty, Progress, Human Rights, Tolerance ...
Man's ultimate aim is to learn how to kill.
The gun is the way to keep the people still.
Man's greatest achievement: the bullet. His star,
The light of a Lancaster bomb from afar.
His highest admirations under the sun,
The Armstrong mortar and the Cavalli gun.
God was mistaken: King Caesar transcends:
In the beginning the Word; with Caesar it ends.
To think is sedition; to speak—worst of all!
The voice is for silence, the mind is—to crawl;
The world's on its belly and man's greatness of yore,
Turns flabby and trembles; and—Peace! says War.

—Translated from the French of Victor Hugo (1867)
