Aiken Taylor Award to be Presented to Carl Phillips

by Bailey Basham Messenger Staff Writer

The Sewanee Review's Aiken Taylor Award in Modern American Poetry, which has honored a distinguished poet in the maturity of their career since its creation in 1987, will honor poet Carl Phillips on Feb. 26 and 27. Phillips is the first African-American man to receive the Aiken Taylor Award.

Phillips is the author of 14 books of poetry and has received numerous honors, including the Kingsley Tufts Poetry Award and the Los Angeles Times Book Prize. He was also a finalist for the National Book Award. Currently, Phillips works as an English professor at Washington University in St. Louis.

"My plan was to be a veterinarian, even all the way into college," Phillips said. "I guess everyone always says this, but you really never know how things will turn out."

"One of the most important poets to me is Louise Glick and I think of her as someone I'm always learning from. It doesn't make sense to me I have won an award she has also won. It's a great honor and a little overwhelming. There is a part of me that feels a little fraudulent, a part of me that says, 'Oh I just write these things and it's just little old me.' It always is good to remember where you came from and have humility. I just feel such gratitude."

Askew started college as an art major, born out of a life long love of art. He soon switched majors and graduated from the University of Alabama-Huntsville with a bachelors degree in Business Finance. Askew's love of art ensured he took art classes throughout college.

"I rely on my sketchbook and practice everyday," Askew said while thumbing through his many sketchbooks. It is clear from the breadth and scope of his work tucked away in those sketchbooks that practice does make perfect, or very nearly there.

Recovering Sewanee's Black History: What Is Needed

by Leslie Lytle Messenger Staff Writer

"Sewanee was founded by white southern men, but there were black people here from the beginning and nobody can find anything about their history," said Shirley Taylor. Taylor serves on the newly formed Sewanee Black History Community Advisory Board and the Sewanee Black History Days working group. An African-American born and raised in Sewanee who's lived here for 65 years, Taylor is well suited for the dual roles. The two entities share overlapping missions and roots in the Sewanee Project on Slavery, Race, and Reconciliation.

The Sewanee Project on Slavery, Race, and Reconciliation originated as a University initiative driven by faculty, staff and students.

"We wanted to involve local people in the project and give them a voice at the table to diversify perspectives," said project coordinator Woody Register, a University history professor. "You can't reach out to the community unless you're willing to listen to them."

Visiting professor Jody Allen "It's a story about a church in the South," said Wilder. "And, there's a advisory board. Director of the reconciliation project at the College of William and Mary, Allen spent last year in Sewanee teaching and into question. Basically, the church advising the Sewanee reconciliation project. For the advisory board, with the issue and how much of Allen and Register reached out to people outside the University who believed in the work they were doing, notably several African-

'Mine 21': Future Plans

This past fall, the short documentary "Mine 21" about the fatal coal mine explosion in Marion County was screened several times in Monteagle, Sewanee and Whitwell. It was estimated more than 1,300 people came to the screenings.

The film follows Kelsey Arbuckle and Alexa Fults, both from Grundy County and current students at Sewanee, as they find out more about this event. The disaster took place in Whitwell, Tenn., on Dec. 8, 1981, and 13 miners died. The effect in Marion and Grundy counties was tragic.

Arbuckle's grandfather, Charles Myers was one of the miners killed in the explosion. Her grandmother, Barbara Myers, testified before Congress in the 1987 federal lawsuit.

Fults' fifth great-uncle, Thomas Wooten, discovered coal on the Plateau in 1852. She was writing a research paper exploring the effects of the collapse of the coal mining industry on the local economy when Arbuckle asked her to be part of this project.

"We were overwhelmed by the response at the screenings," said Chris own art gallery in the old SUD and taking responsibility for our shop behind Woody's Bicycles in past," Willer said.

Americans like Taylor and Jimmy McDonough, a professor at the University of the South and the film's Staten who were born and raised executive producer. "Many people came up to me or to Kelsey and Wilder, who is originally from in Sewanee, and Sewanee business Alexa to ask what would be happening next with the documentary. A Askew has been a professional Mobile, Ala., said the idea for the owner Bruce Manuel, C'80, who few people have contacted me about other screenings or buying a copy of the documentary."

"I want to let people know we haven't forgotten these requests, and I appreciate everybody's patience," said McDonough. "Right now, the film is only 15 minutes long. That's entirely due to budget constraints. Since the fall, we've been able to secure more funds and are looking to expand the film. I've been in touch with the PBS stations in Chattanooga and Nashville, and they are very interested in broadcasting the documentary once it is at least a half-hour long."

McDonough and his crew have plans for additional filming this spring, and hope to be able to get something onto television in the months to follow.

"This is such an important story," McDonough said. "Not only for people in this area, but for anybody interested in coal mining. We will certainly be screening the longer version locally, once it is completed."

TRAIL MAINTENANCE THANK-YOU

To the Editor:

As a hiker and mountain biker, I am grateful to have many wellmaintained trails right outside my door in Sewanee and appreciate the many folks who work on them. In particular, I want to thank Nate Wilson for being quick to respond to calls about trail problems and Sandy Gilliam for picking up limbs, working on water drainage, and using his chainsaw to clear downed trees so we can all enjoy getting out for our walks, trail runs, and bike rides. Many thanks for all the hard work!

THANKFUL FOR COMPASIONATE HOME

To the Editor:

I was pleased to see that Compassionate Home Care has opened an office in Sewanee. Last April, when my dear wife Barbara came home from the hospital under Hospice, I wanted far better care for her than I knew I could provide alone. After hearing about several organizations and reports of the care they provided, I felt led to choose this organization.

For almost two months until the

Obituary

Martha McCrory

Martha McCrory, age 98, of Quincy, Ill., died on Saturday, Feb. 16, 2019 in St. Vincent's Home

Martha was born Aug. 15, 1920, the daughter of Florence Bastert and Joseph Willis McCrory. She graduated from Quincy Senior High School in 1937 and the University of Michigan in 1941, where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi social sorority, Sigma Alpha Lota and Pi Kappa Lambda.

In 1957, she was tagged by the University of the South in Sewanee, Tennessee to develop a summer music program. She taught at the University and directed the Sewanee Summer Music Center. Her worldwide contacts and numerous experiences were invaluable in building a world class music program. She was praised for her talent, commitment, and drive which enabled her to influence thousands of young musicians. Miss Mac retired in 1998 and was presented with an honorary doctorate from the University of the South in appreciation for 42 years of outstanding service.

In 2006, she was the lead donor in the building of the Martha Mc-Crory Hall for the Performing Arts on the campus of St. Andrew's-Sewanee School.

She was honored with numerous citations over the years. She received the Governor of Tennessee's Award for Outstanding Achievement and was named a Governor's Outstanding Tennessean. She was appointed to the advisory panel for music by the Tennessee Arts Commission and was honored with the Lorin Hollander Award for outstanding music leadership. She also received an award from the University of Cordoba in Argentina.

Surviving family include her beloved nieces, Martha Didriksen, Mary Hutmacher, and Cheryl Hulsen (Mike); many great-nieces and greatnephews, and a special caregiver, Victoria Nokes.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her sister, Mary Mc-Crory; her brother-in-law, Charles Heidbreder; her nephew, Dr. Richard Heidbreder; her husband and daughter, John Didriksen and Cory Didriksen-Lovelace; and her husband and son, Matthew Hutmacher Sr. and Matthew Hutmacher Jr.

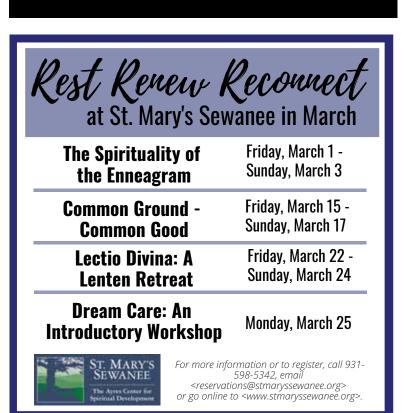

Memorials may be made to the Quincy Senior High Music Department, Quincy Public School Foundation, The Martha McCrory Circle for Music, Sewanee Summer Music Festival, Blessing Hospital Hospice and Palliative Care, or St. Vincent's Home.

A memorial service will be held Saturday, April 6, 2019 at First Union Congregational Church with Rev. Josh Vahle officiating.

Register pulled together the Sewanee Black History Days working group to help coordinate two upcoming events designed to recover and preserve Sewanee's African-American history, a project funded by a $12,000 National Endowment for the Humanities Common Heritage

Scheduled for May 27, Memorial Day, and July 5, at St. Mark's Community Center, the events will offer African-Americans with Sewanee roots an opportunity to record oral histories, to locate Sewanee sites of importance to African-Americans on a large map, and to have personal historical material photographed or scanned. They'll receive a digital copy and be invited to share a digital copy with the University archives.

The traditional archiving method is to take possession of the material, Register emphasized—"We're going against that model, changing the politics of archiving." People will return home with their treasured photographs, scrapbooks, bibles and other memorabilia safely in tow.

The map initiative will invite people to locate family homes and sites meaningful to them such as favorite childhood places to play by marking the map with Post-It notes inscribed with memories and details.

Key in organizing the events is working group member Carl Hill, an African-American born and raised in Sewanee who coordinates the black community's annual Memorial Day homecoming at St. Marks.

"People off the mountain titled us Sewaneeseans," said Hill who now lives in McMinnville. "Sewanee is still my home. I'm just living abroad," he joked.

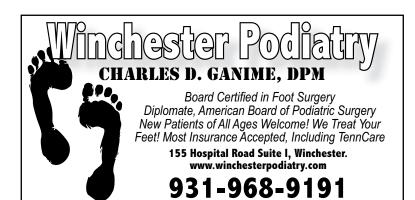

Hill stressed how drastically the African-American community had "thinned out" since the 1970s. "A much larger black community lived and worked on the Mountain then." He estimates there were as many as 50 black families in the 1970s and today, maybe a dozen.

Hill sees his role as reaching out to older people who grew up in Sewanee like Sandra Turner Davis whose Sewanee childhood story spans the time frame of the mid fifties and sixties and Atlanta resident Charlie Bright who lived in Sewanee from the late 1930s to the late 1950s.

"Carl knows everyone," Register said. In forming the working group, Register sought out people with Sewanee roots who could be ambas-

In addition to the summer digitization days, other events are planned for this spring including genealogy and oral history workshops.

'We hope these kinds of endeavors strengthen community bonds and connections to the community, in light of the history of race, in a way that's constructive and positive," said Register.

HEARING HEALTH NEWS

by Debbie Gamache, M.S. CCC-A Audiologist

LIVING WITH SEVERE HEARING LOSS

Persons with severe hearing loss may be able to hear loud voices at about 1 foot from the ear but otherwise are unable to communicate. In addition, speech is usually perceived as distorted, garbled and unclear. For many persons, because they cannot hear or monitor their own spoken words, their own speech is likely to deteriorate and the quality will become more monotone. Many begin to feel emotionally isolated. Helen Keller stated, "Blindness separates people from things; deafness separates people from people." In order to be connected with the world including your family and friends, hearing is extremely important.

At Debbie Gamache's The Hearing Center, our mission is to improve your communication abilities. If you are concerned about yourself or a loved one, please contact us today at Debbie Gamache's The Hearing Center. We are located at 705 NW Atlantic St. Suite B, Tullahoma. You can call us at 931-393-2051. You can also visit our website at www.thehearingcenterllc.com.

Adam Ross, editor of the Sewanee Review, and University Vice-Chancellor John McCardell will present Phillips with the award at 4:30 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 27, in Convocation Hall. The presentation of the award will be followed by a reading from Phillips.

On Tuesday, Feb. 26 at 4:30 p.m., Garth Greenwell, a poet, critic and current John & Renee Grisham Writer in Residence at the University of Mississippi, will lecture on Phillips' poetry in the McGriff Alumni House.

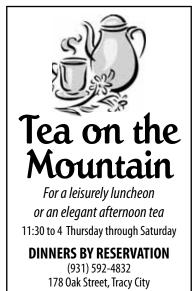

"Carl Phillips is this remarkable poet who in these profound ways captures how movement is the resting state of human beings," Ross said. "His poetry constantly captures how we are constantly longing for an arrival, whether in intimacy or sexuality and how we invariably discover that there is no state of arrival where we can feel completely satisfied with where we are. I think one of the underlying questions in his work is, 'Is there a happy balance to be struck with a human being's sort of insatiable desire for the next thing?' He's our first African-American male poet awarded, and he is a poet who writes profoundly about his sexuality. In that way, I think he embodies the Review's commitment to paying attention to perhaps unheard voices in our history."

Ross said the lecture given by Greenwell on Feb. 26 will be an incredible tool for those who are looking to read Phillips' work.

"Here you have a writer giving a talk who has himself proved able to be at the highest level of excellence in multiple disciplines—short stories, novels, criticism—who is going to give those who come hear him a chance to have the best possible guide through Phillips' work," Ross said. "Phillips isn't an easy poet, and for the people who come hear him and read his essay, it's going to be an incredible introduction to how to read Phillips's work."

Phillips said that to be the first African-American man to win the award is meaningful to him, but above all else, he is interested in poetry that speaks to his humanity.

"At the end of the day, I'm interested in poetry that speaks to me as a human being when I look to what I want to read. I do sometimes wish that people would just look at the poetry and not feel they have to categorize. I think it's political just to write at all. It's resistance to silence. That's a political act. It doesn't have to be writing about race or gender or sex or anything like that" Phillips said. "We're in a period of poetry where there is so much more attention being given to diverse voices. That increased emphasis on being more awake to differences has made people be more aware of other experiences."

Learn About Raising Fruit

Do you ever think about raising watermelons and cantaloupes, or maybe apples, or blueberries, blackberries, and strawberries? Now's your chance to learn more. South Cumberland Farmers Market (SCFM) will host a fruit-growers panel discussion at 7 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 28, at the Sewanee Community Center where local farmers will share their experience and tricks of the trade.

Brad and Dana Bleasdale of Fall Creek Farms in Spencer will share tips on raising watermelon and cantaloupes. An all natural family farm, Fall Creek Farms raises more than 40 varieties of fruits and vegetables as well as dairy goats and cows.

Carolyn Hoagland is a soil microbiologist who manages the farm at the University of the South. Carolyn will talk about raising strawberries, a practice that earned her the email moniker "Berry Picker."

Jane Mauldin of Wheeler's Orchard has a lifetime of experience raising sustainably grown apples and grapes. The Wheeler family moved to the Dunlap area from Chattanooga in 1974 and a few years later planted their first apple trees, an undertaking that grew into a family business.

Tricia and John Ricketts of Grown By Grace farm based in Gruetli Laager produce organically grown blueberries, blackberries, and raspberries and will soon be able to provide boysenberry and elderberry.

South Cumberland Farmers Market is a community-run online market providing local products from family farms in Grundy, Franklin, and Marion Counties. Each Friday, SCFM sends an email reminding customers to order by 10 a.m., Monday. Pickup is Tuesday afternoons Tickets can be purchased at the at the Sewanee Community Center. Check out the market at <sewanee.

St. Mary's Sewanee Offers Full Complement of Spring Retreats

St. Mary's Sewanee: The Ayres Center for Spiritual Development announces its upcoming spring retreats including workshops on Centering Prayer, and the Spirituality of the Enneagram, Lectio Divina, Dream Care, and Aging with Courage and Grace.

Feb. 23 — One-Day Introduction to Centering Prayer. During this day-long introductory workshop, the Rev. Tom Ward will guide participants in the method and principles of this form of Christian silent meditation. During the day, they will have the opportunity to experience this ancient method of prayer in a quiet, contemplative atmosphere. Saturday retreat, with lunch included.

March 1–3 — The Spirituality of the Enneagram: Experiencing Your Soul. The Enneagram, a self-understanding tool to learn about personal strengths and spirituality types; it offers a window to explore one's personality as well as one's soul. Whether you are new to the Enneagram or have studied it for years, this retreat gives a foundational introduction to apply this information to your own spiritual journey. This retreat is offered in conjunction with the Institute for Being. It is a three-day retreat, Friday through Sunday, with all meals and lodging. Commuter option available.

March 15–17 — Common Ground–Common Good: A Faith and Literature Retreat led by the Rt. Rev. Henry N. Parsley Jr. This event will explore the spirituality of nature through works of poetry, fiction, and science. Prayer and worship in the Celtic tradition will be center the weekend. Three-day retreat, Friday through Sunday, with all meals and lodging. Commuter option available.

March 22–24 — Introduction to Lectio Divina: Learning to Listen with the Heart. "Divine reading" is an ancient practice of praying the Scriptures and is a building block of sustaining a contemplative life in today's busy world. In lectio divina, the participant learns to listen to Biblical texts with the "ear of the heart." No prior experience with the practice or Centering Prayer is required to attend this retreat led by the Rev. Tom Ward. Three days, Friday through Sunday, with all meals and lodging.

March 25 — Dream Care: An Introductory Workshop. Join Marsha M. Carnahan for this one-day exploration that will focus on Dream Care, or tending one's dreams, a spiritual practice that can be used to discern God's will. Carnahan is a Haden Institute certified Dream Coach, Reiki master, and spiritual director. A Monday retreat with lunch included.

master, and spiritual director. A Monday retreat with lunch included. April 5–7 — Aging with Courage and Grace: A Journey Toward Wholeness. Aging presents "an accelerated curriculum" on change and a deep spiritual dive into the paradoxes of love, transition, and renewal. Rather than undertake this in isolation, this retreat offers a safe space in community to explore what it means to become true Elders and to embrace the deep mysteries in aging. This retreat is offered in conjunction with the Center for Courage and Renewal. Three-day retreat, Friday through Sunday, with all meals and lodging. Commuter option available.

Sewanee Elementary School's Sewanee Parent Organization (SPO) and principal Kim Tucker support the Sewanee Community Chest. Through the generous funding of the Community Chest, the SPO fills gaps that the district cannot, from a new kiln, a newly-paved bike area, and enrichment programs (including Forest School training and Friday School) to the everyday needs of the library, school, and classroom teachers. We receive nearly a quarter of the money raised by the Chest: this year, we are scheduled to receive $25,000. The SPO can support many projects and help make a real difference for the children of our community with that kind of money! We are grateful, so we donate, and we hope you will, too. SEWANEE UNION THEATRE

Thursday-Sunday, Feb. 28-March 3, 7:30 p.m. Bohemian Rhapsody

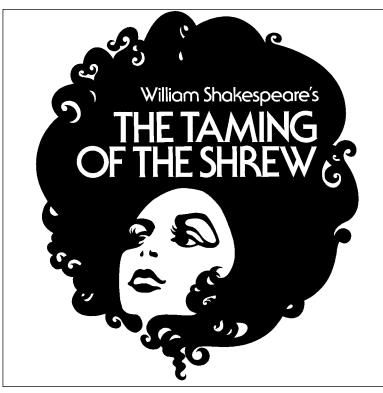

PG-13 • 133 minutes

"Bohemian Rhapsody" is a foot-stomping celebration of Queen, their music and their extraordinary lead singer Freddie Mercury. Freddie defied stereotypes and shattered convention to become one of the most beloved entertainers on the planet. The film traces the meteoric rise of the band through their iconic songs and revolutionary sound. They reach unparalleled success, but in an unexpected turn Freddie, surrounded by darker influences, shuns Queen in pursuit of his solo career. Having suffered greatly without the collaboration of Queen, Freddie manages to reunite with his bandmates just in time for Live Aid. While bravely facing a recent AIDS diagnosis, Freddie leads the band in one of the greatest performances in the history of rock music. Queen cements a legacy that continues to inspire outsiders, dreamers and music lovers to this day.

MAC Hosts Foggy Mountain Swim Meet; Competes at Region 2 Championship

Five local area swim teams competed in the seond annual Foggy Mountain Swim meet on Feb. 2 at the University's Fowler Center pool. Twenty-nine Mountain Aquatic Club (MAC) swimmers competed with several swimmers competing in their first swim meet. While team scores are typically not kept in USA Swim meets the MAC swimmers had Top 8 finishes in 85 percent of their swims. The team had four high point winners: Reese Michaels in the 13-14 girls; Loulie Frazier in the 11-12 girls; Anara Summers in the 9-10 girls; and Konrad Knoll in the 8 and Under boys. Swimmers who improved their personal best times in more than 75 percent of their swims included Reese Michaels, Anara Summers and Archer Ladd. Sarah-Russell Roberson got a BB National Time cut in 100 yard individual medley.

This past weekend. MAC had five swimmers compete in the Region 2 Championship meet at the Baylor School in Chattanooga. AJ Clements and Sarah Russell Roberson improved personal best times in more than 75 perecent of their swims. Anara Summers got a Southeastern Championships qualifying time for 200 yard individual medley as well as an A National Time cut for that event. She also obtained an AA National Time cut for 100 yard breaststroke, the first AA time cut for a MAC swimmer. Also receiving National Time cuts included Sarah Russell Roberson, BB time cuts 50 yard and 100 yard breaststroke, and AJ Clements, B time cut for 200 butterfly and BB time cuts for 200 freestyle and 200 individual medley. Konrad Knoll was awarded the High Point Trophy. He and Joshua Slap from Johnson City, Tenn., tied for the award.

Anara Summers, Kiran Malde and Sam Frazier have qualified and will be representing MAC at the Southeastern Swimming Championship Meet in Huntsville Feb 23–24. Teams from Florida, Alabama and Tennessee will be competing. More information about MAC can be found at <www.mountainaquaticclub.com>.

Women's Lacrosse Wins Two

The Sewanee women's lacrosse team saw much of the State of Alabama on Sunday, but at their two destinations of Birmingham and Montgomery, the Tigers outscored their opponents 36-12 with an 18-10 win over Birmingham-Southern and an 18-2 victory over Huntingdon.

After a shutout on Saturday, BSC scored the first goal on the Sewanee defense in 2019 almost two minutes in the contest.

At 3:01 into the contest, Sewanee reclaimed the lead and never looked back. The Tigers scored three goals, all assisted by Grace Zechman, in a five-minute span.

BSC made it a one-goal affair, 3-2, but the Tigers answered with an 11-2 run in the final 20 minutes to lead 14-4 at the break en route to an 18-10 victory.

Sarah Strand, Brooke Winfield and Hattie Fogarty each recorded a hat trick for Sewanee against BSC. Grace Zechman assisted on seven of the team's 18 goals. Grace Fulton scooped up 11 ground balls, won eight draws and forced four turnovers. Amanda Jenkins (1-0) saved five shots in 23:31 in between the pipes.

In the second game in the second city, the Tigers and Hawks were even with 26:47 left in the opening half, but the Tigers offense posted an 11-1 run at the break.

Sewanee saw 13 players score in the contest, as the team wrapped up the three-city, two-day trip outscoring the opposition 55-12.

Mary Kate Myers scored four goals on five shots. Anna Day and Grace Zechman each scored two goals for the Tigers, while Grace Fulton won six draws. The Sewanee quartet of goalkeepers, Caroline Roncalli (1-0), Brianna Young, Amanda Jenkins and Molly Morris limited the Hawks to five shots.

Records Fall in Final Day of SAA Champs

The Sewanee Swimming and Diving Teams concluded competition at the 2019 Southern Athletic Association Swimming and Diving Championships Saturday from the Birmingham CrossPlex. Both the men and women finished fifth in the conference meet.

Gabby Acker took home top honors in the 200 breaststroke with a 2:22.20. In the prelims, she was ahead of the competition with a 2:22.33.

Kate Mabry set a new personal best with a time of 2:07.28 in the prelims of the 200 backstroke. In the final, the freshman recorded a 2:07.35.

James Hoyt posted a 16:23.30 for second place in the event. The sophomore shattered his previous personal-best, which was a school record of 16:30.21, set last season.

Carl Failing also shattered a school record in the 100 free. The sophomore swam a 46.12-second mark in the prelims, setting the new mark set by himself last year by 0.02 seconds. In the final, he finished third with a swim of 46.84 seconds.

Sewanee will next compete at the NCAA Diving Regionals on March 1-2 on the campus of Grinnell College in Grinnell, Iowa. Noel Whitlock, the Southern Athletic Association Women's Diver of the Year and Paisley Simmons will compete in the two-day event.

Sue Kim finished regular season play in her senior year in second place for assists in the women's basketball record book and scored nine points in Sewanee's win over Centre, 73-54, on Feb. 16. Photo by Lyn Hutchinson

Cam Caldwell scored 19 points in Sewanee's win over top-of-the-conference Centre College, on Feb. 16. Photo by Lyn Hutchinson

No. 12 Women's Tennis Falters to NCAA D-II Institution

The Sewanee women's tennis team dropped a Feb. 17 match to NCAA Division II opponent Carson-Newman, 6-3, inside the Guerry Indoor Courts.

Sewanee saw themselves down 2-1 after doubles play. Caroline Adams and Mary Jane McCaghren clinched an 8-7 victory at the No. 3 flight.

In singles, despite Sewanee trailing 3-2 after the No. 1 and 2 flights were completed, CNU took No. 3, 4 and 5 to clinch the match.

McCaghren and Maura McCrary captured wins in singles. Sewanee will be off until the team competes at the ITA Indoor National Championships in Nashville. The quarterfinal round is set to take place against No. 2 Emory on March 1 at 3 p.m.

No. 23 Men's Tennis Defeats Carson-Newman

The 23rd ranked Sewanee men's tennis team defeated the Eagles of Carson-Newman, 8-1, Feb. 17 inside the Guerry Indoor Courts.

Sewanee swept doubles play to go up 3-0 early in the match.

The Tigers recorded five of six wins in singles, with Andres Carro and Jordan Brewer forced to play three sets with their opponents. Carro won at the No. 1 flight, 4-6, 6-3, 10-7, while Brewer was victorious at the No. 2, 6-2, 1-6, 6-2. The men's team will hit the road next weekend with matches against No. 37 Stevens, No. 14 Kenyon and No. 20 Mary Washington in Fredericksburg, Va. on the campus of the University of Mary Washington.

"My name is Eric Shull and I am a senior at Milligan College where I have been studying Biology/Pre-Med and running cross country, indoor track, and outdoor track. I have enjoyed success in my long distance running career at Franklin County High School and Milligan College. So far I am the only male to ever qualify for state in cross country at FCHS. My collegiate career consists of being a part of two NAIA cross country national qualifying teams. In my younger years I was part of a USATF 4x100 national qualifying team called the Tennessee Cheetahs. I have been receiving chiropractic care from my dad, Dr. Kurt Shull, ever since I was born. I am convinced that the chiropractic care and healthy lifestyle from a young age is one of the key reasons I have been able to run at a relatively high level for almost 10 years with minimal injuries. My Dad and the health benefits of chiropractic has inspired me to follow in his footsteps and pursue a career in chiropractic. I have been accepted to Life University in Marietta, Ga., where I will begin my journey of becoming a Doctor of Chiropractic."-Eric Shull

Ibis and Iguanas

White Ibis is a wading bird of the coastal southeastern U.S. Here in south Florida where we are visiting it is commonly seen in the Everglades, but increasingly it is seen near human habitation, in lawns and roadside wet areas. They are usually found in flocks. In this photo, they have taken up residence in a zoo, though they are not part on the actual exhibit. Some residents are starting to view them the way others view pigeons or squirrels, but they are a native species and are actually experiencing declines in their breeding areas in the Everglades due to hydrologic changes. Their appearance is distinctive, white except for black wingtips, with a long, reddish down curved beak and reddish legs. The juveniles start out brown, as can be seen in the photo.

Another unofficial resident of the zoo and common sight in south Florida is the green iguana. It is a non-native species, but it has become well-established, at least partly due to pets released into the "wild." It can be a real pest, consuming landscape plants and door yard fruits, digging burrows, and creating health hazards through defecation. They are sensitive to cold, and populations were greatly reduced a few years ago due to an unusually cold winter. However, they seem to be recovering since then, although they will fall out of trees during a cold snap. Efforts by property owners to deter them remind one of local efforts in our area to control deer (smelly sprays, noise, reflective objects), except that they also include trapping.

Jacob

Pets of the Week

Meet Jacob & Shrek

Jacob is a 2.5-year-old Black Lab/Great Pyrenees mix. Jacob has a very vibrant presence and loves to be petted, played with, and loved on. He is very intelligent and we feel he can become a great dog with the correct direction and training. Jacob came to us in a neglected state and tested positive for heartworms. Jacob has undergone heartworm treatment and has been under strict medical care for 4 months. He is still recovering from treatment, and we will be asking for a vet reference to assure Jacob gets the best medical care and follow up care possible. It will be imperative that Jacob is given his heartworm preventative monthly and is medically tested with his local vet at the appropriate time. Jacob is fully vaccinated and neutered. Help Jacob's dream come true, for he truly deserves the best with all he has gone through.

Shrek is a striking dilute orange tabby 8-month-old kitten. Shrek was once a feral kitten, but has warmed up to humans quite significantly since he has been at the harbor. He vies for your attention at any opportunity now! Shrek loves to hang out in his designated spot on the cat tree in the teenage room. He also loves to browse the windows and see everyone coming in the shelter lobby. He is a very curious cat that wants a second chance at life and can't wait to see the world around him outside of the shelter. Shrek is fully vaccinated, microchipped, neutered, FIV/FeLV negative and ready to spend his lifetime in a home that will shower him with a ton of love and attention.
