'Taming of the Shrew' Takes the Stage This Weekend

by Bailey Basham, Messenger Staff Writer

The theatre department at the University will stage William Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" this weekend.

"The Taming of the Shrew" is a comedy that depicts the courtship of Katherina, an ill-tempered woman, by fortune-seeking Petruchio.

"The crux of the problem is that Kate has a younger sister Bianca, who is perfect," said Peter Smith, director of the play and professor of theatre arts. "The father has decreed that the younger daughter, who has all these men wanting to marry her, cannot get married until the older daughter gets married. Then suddenly, along comes Petruchio, who is coming to the town for the sole purpose of getting married to someone who is wealthy. The set up is that he will marry Kate if he gets enough money, and her father is perfectly capable and willing to pay any price."

Auditions for the show were held right after Christmas break, and Smith said rehearsals began immediately.

Karissa Wheeler, an English and theatre double major, is playing the role of Kate. Wheeler has been acting since she was 8-years-old. She said for her, preparing for the role began with diving into the text.

"With every role that I have, I come to it with an open mindset. I do background research, and I go through the text. I always refer back to the text when I'm having issues because it's all there," she said. "I've really tried to look at why Kate acts the way she acts, why she makes the decisions she makes, and really look back at why she is the way she is. I think that's the only way to bring truth to this character is to look at her reasonings and her circumstances."

South-Central Chapter of the American Musicological Society Conference Paul Austerlitz to Perform

by Bailey Basham, Messenger Staff Writer

The South-Central Chapter of the American Musicological Society (AMS) will host its annual meeting on March 8 and 9, in Convocation Hall. The group will gather to discuss music from an academic standpoint and delve into the different standpoints of music.

César Leal, assistant professor of musicology and artistic director of the Sewanee Symphony Orchestra, serves as president for the South-Central chapter of AMS. He said bringing musicologists from the surrounding region to Sewanee creates a unique learning opportunity for students and the community to learn of the field's current research.

"This is a national organization, and it's one of the leading organizations in the world for musicological studies. The South-Central chapter serves Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, and North Carolina," Leal said. "Even though we serve the south-central region, we accept individual members from institutions across the country. During the fall semester, students, faculty members and independent scholars send proposals, which are anonymously evaluated by the program committee. The committee selects a number of proposals and groups them thematically in different sessions."

Topics of study range from the study of historical soundscapes, which will be presented by the University's Kenneth Miller, to the role of women in music.

"We'll talk about things like the role of women in music, music and ecology, soundscapes, music and pedagogy, ethics of music, music and race and new listening perspectives," said Leal. "These events allow us to see and understand music from a completely different standpoints, to look at music intellectually and pragmatically. We tend to neglect context and what happened historically. What, if any, is the meaning or purpose behind music? What can we learn about us as a society and culture by looking at how composers translated the reality into sound? There are always

Village Update Meeting: BP Construction Plans

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

"We don't want to create internal competition. It's not a big village. It's not to anyone's benefit for anything to go dark," said Jim Cheney, Vice President of Marketing and Business Development for BP Construction. Cheney addressed the community at the March Sewanee Village update meeting, discussing BP's philosophy and plans as the lead developer for the Sewanee Village project.

The University tapped the Chattanooga developer to coordinate development in the Village following two years of discussion about the project's goals and the cultural and socioeconomic circumstances particular to the community.

"The first building we were asked to examine is the market block," Cheney said, referencing the mixed-use grocery and apartment building planned for the lot currently occupied by the Hair Depot.

"The initial footprint has shrunk, making it possible for a second or third building on the lot." At present, Cheney anticipates ground floor retail space in the mixed-use building could be half the 10,000 square feet initially proposed with 12 to 14 apartments on the second floor, 400-700 square feet in size.

In researching what will work in the retail space, Cheney said, "The first conversation will be with the operator of the existing market."

Cheney predicted apartment rent in the $2-$2.50 per square foot range, but stressed, "If we can't get that, we'll need to reconfigure the project."

As for future development beyond the specialty food market and apartment building, Cheney said BP wouldn't "move forward until at least 75 percent of the building was leased."

Citing a Chattanooga area project, Cheney said, "Usually developers do residential first, but we did

Viola and Piano Concert March 10

by Bailey Basham, Messenger Staff Writer

Violist Hillary Herndon and pianist Bernadette Lo have a few things in common. Their instruments play a large role in their lives. And the reason they each started playing is because of their mothers.

When Herndon was little, her mom bought a violin for $100 in a pawn shop in Louisiana. She and her mother began taking lessons together.

"She stopped playing by the time I got into kindergarten," said Herndon, who is the associate professor of viola at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville.

"When I was in fifth grade, I went through that stage where I didn't want to be inside playing violin. I wanted to be outside or playing with my friends. My teacher actually was a violist, and she said, 'Look Hillary, you've put in a lot of time and your parents have put in a lot of money. You're not quitting. We're going to switch to viola for three months.' Rather than buying me a new instrument, they put viola strings on that violin my mom had originally bought."

Sweet Ellie's Ice Cream and Treats proudly serves Black Rifle Coffee.

Head to Sweet Ellie's for Coffee, Dessert and More

by Sarah Beavers, Messenger Staff Writer

Sweet Ellie's Ice Cream and Treats is an ice cream shop that feels like home. The decor invokes the feel of old-fashioned ice cream shops. At the helm are the welcoming owners, Avery and Lisa Kelleher. Sweet Ellie's is the culmination of Lisa's lifelong dream and out of a love of ice cream. This is the love Lisa shares with her daughter and Sweet Ellie's namesake, Elizabeth.

The Kellehers put down roots in Sewanee four years ago. They also have two other businesses, Spare Space and All Blown Up. Sweet Ellie's opened its doors on Dec. 1, in Cowan.

"The most gratifying thing is seeing folks enjoy what we make," Avery said.

The warm and inviting atmosphere the Kellehers have crafted at Sweet Ellie's is reinforced by Avery and Lisa's hands-on approach.

"When you make people feel welcome, they keep coming back," Avery said. The genuine kindness Lisa and Avery radiate makes it clear customers return for more than just the delicious ice cream.

Customers can enjoy many flavors of Ashby's Sterling ice cream. Also served is coffee from the Black Rifle Coffee Company. Black Rifle is a veteran-owned business, and a portion of their sales goes to support veterans. Avery said choosing the Black Rifle to supply Sweet Ellie's with coffee was a way the Kellehers could give back. Avery had a previously undiagnosed kidney disorder. Thanks to a Military Entrance Processing Station physical, the disorder was caught and treated.

The Kellehers already have big plans to expand Sweet Ellie's. In late March, a barista will be joining the Sweet Ellie's crew, Avery said. Leading a planned menu expansion, the Kellehers will be integrating a hot food side for the sandwiches and soup offerings. For right now, enjoy the fresh made brownies and waffle cones. Homemade soup is available Monday through Friday.

The Kellehers frequently test new recipes with their customers, and a recent sampling included a jalapeño popper sandwich, crustless apple pie, cinnabons, s'mores, and Sun Drop cake.

"We're all family. Come on in and join the family!" said Lisa.

Sweet Ellie's is located at 112 Tennessee Ave. South, Cowan. Hours are Monday through Saturday, 11 a.m.-8 p.m. Call ahead at (931) 313-5597 or check out their social media for the daily specials.

BRAVO!!

To the Editor:

Thanks to all planners and decision makers who are moving the ball down the field with Village Development. With the addition of BP Construction to the team, it appears we are making real progress. Leveraging off study after study, the builders and lease experts are finally here. BP seems to understand the needs of the Sewanee Business Alliance, the Village Master Plan and the built-up residential demand in this beloved community. As was said at the Village Update meeting March 5, give us all a reason and a desire to go to the Village every day!

WHY YOU WANT TO HELP WITH THE PARADE

To the Editor:

Do you sometimes feel that Sewanee's identity as a small town is really a façade? That there are so many histories, narratives, cultures, and influences, we are in truth some amalgam of city-village-Appalachia? That there are a lot of circles circulating here just out of your reach? If you or your kids have gone to Sewanee Elementary then you know what a Ven diagram is. When I think about the groups of people who are town, gown, old names, founding families, new transplants, back-to-the-landers, recent grads, parents, the list goes on and on, I can't help but think of them as circles. The problem in Sewanee, though, is that sometimes those circles never meet in meaningful ways. The Fourth of July committee, specifically the parade, is one of the most meaningful overlaps of the many wonderful factions in this community, which reaches farther than you might think.

I'd never even seen the parade, which had always been during nap time (my sons', not mine). But when Jade McBee, Mary Heath, and others asked, I thought, okay, here is a place where Sewanee could feel like a family again. Pardon my earnestness. Parades are for the children in all of us, right? And children shouldn't care about politics. The Fourth of July Parade celebrates America and our common history—that time when we could articulate and agree on the ideals of freedom and good citizenship. I wanted to be part of an event where everyone felt welcome and respected. I hoped for a parade that left spectators feeling proud of our big/little town for its creativity, diversity, and mutual respect.

If you've seen the parade the past two summers, you'll know we're almost there. And we really do need your help. I'm not sure if this is particular to Sewanee, but so much is done here behind the scenes by a cadre of the faithful who wouldn't even call themselves volunteers. They just see something that needs doing and they do it. If you believe the parade is not the time to try to change people's minds on political or social issues, but a time to celebrate what brings us together: deep love for this town and deep hope for this country, the parade needs you. If you believe Sewanee is the heart of atypical-America, the parade needs you. And if you want to feel hope again for what is possible in this country and in this community, where we are as different as we are the same, you need the Fourth of July parade.

Contact Jade Barry at <jade.mcbee@gmail.com> to volunteer.

METHODIST CHURCH RULINGS

To the Editor:

The headlines have been rough. Painful even. If you haven't seen them, they were all negative; so much for the old adage that said any publicity is good publicity. Not so. The United Methodist Church has been reeling under such banners as "LGBT Bans Strengthened" and "United Methodists Face Fractured Future." We've been praised for upholding "traditional" principles at a recent meeting of the worldwide Methodist body while at the same time being called "The church that hates gays."

Reports of a possible denominational split have left church members frightened and communities reeling, especially since the "Way Forward" plan that generated the headlines was passed by such a slim margin and was largely supported by delegates from outside the U.S.

Many churches within the denomination have been preparing for the General Conference that ended earlier this month though, and Morton Memorial United Methodist in Monteagle was no exception. With strong lay leadership, the stone church on Main Street spent the months leading up to the gathering in conversations. Church members not only studied and discussed the issues around sexuality but also understandings of Scriptural authority and what it means to be the church. All of those discussions were designed to help the local church as the denomination waits for rulings and changes based on the legislation that was passed.

One thing we want to say about: Morton has long been a church where everyone is welcomed fully and that will not change. The membership at Morton laments the harm that was done and pain that was caused by the denomination's recent rulings. We stand firm in our commitment to openness and diversity and are grateful that every one of us is beloved by God.

Further, we will continue to be an active presence in the community. We are as busy as ever and fully committed to being a strong Christian witness to the area. The church just consecrated a new addition specifically to make it logistically easier to provide their monthly food distribution and to provide space for community activities like a recent series of Diabetes Awareness seminars and a SCCF board meeting. We are busy trying to do our part to bring God's kingdom and ask for the continued prayers of our community partners that we may be blessed to be a blessing to the community around us.

Morton Memorial
United Methodist Church*

Sewanee Emeritus Features Sherwood Road Development Talk

The Sewanee Emeritus Association will meet at 3:30 p.m., Thursday, March 14, in the Torian Room of the library. Everyone is invited to come for the program and stay for refreshments following.

This month the speakers are Mickey Suarez and Michael Coffey. They are the brains and brawn behind the Sherwood Road Development, a housing project in conjunction with Housing Sewanee Inc.

Mickey attended the University of Southern Mississippi and majored in math and physics. He worked in aerospace in Huntsville, at the Johnson Space Center, and the Goddard Space Flight Center. Before retiring to Sewanee in 2007, he founded his own company, Data Signal, Inc., which manufactures instruments used in monitoring large rotating equipment.

Michael, also a math and physics major, was in the Sewanee class of 1972 and is a visiting professor at the University. He has a D. Phil in atmospheric physics, has worked in atmospheric research, was a program manager with NASA, and was a visiting fellow at Keble College, Oxford.

Both of these community-minded men realized there is a need in the Sewanee area for low-income family homes. They worked with Housing Sewanee Inc., on many projects and foresaw that new houses should conserve as much energy as possible. The result is a Housing Sewanee project where the first energy-saving house is nearing completion, built with volunteer labor. It includes novel framing techniques and ultra-efficient insulation; a geothermal heating and cooling system; alternative water supplies and other energy efficient techniques. The selected family will be moving in this summer. Up to eight other houses will eventually be built in the same area, using the same techniques. And in order to explain and promote these energy-saving features, a demonstration building will soon be built.

Come share the enthusiasm of the Suarez/Coffey team. A question and answer session will follow this timely presentation.

Friends of the Farm Meeting

A kick off meeting for the Friends of the University Farm will be held this Saturday, March 9, from 10-11:30 a.m. Everyone is welcome and the Friends will gather at the farm on Breakfield Road in Sewanee. Children are welcome if accompanied by a parent or a minder. The Farm will provide coffee and hot chocolate, feel free to bring a snack or baked good to share. If weather permits, there will be a tour of the farm at the beginning of the meeting. Due to recent rainy weather, rubber boots might be needed for this part of the day. We will also have a short seed planting activity and attendees will take home some of these seeded plant pots.

The farm is a co-curricular resource for University students and faculty, and often holds guest lectures, tours and laboratory exercises that are not available to the public. Saturday's gathering will be a meet and greet event, so that members of the community can tell each other and the farm manager how the farm's resources might also be used for the good of the community and what kind of activities are of interest to people who want to volunteer at the farm. This might be organizing public workshops, group seed orders or seed exchanges, gleaning for food banks, learning about animal care, fundraising for nutrition education outreach, or just having a set time when people can feel comfortable dropping in to the farm to ask a question. There are also several community gardens at local schools where the farm does outreach work and where volunteers are always welcome.

The kick off meeting will include a discussion about membership dues, simple officer duties for the group, how often the group wants to meet and how the members can design and enjoy group activities that further the educational mission of the farm. Membership dues will be used solely for the educational benefit of the members and the community at large at the membership's own discretion. The farm manager will be available to advise the group about resources the farm can bring and potential educational projects.

All Saints’ Chapel

Choral Evensong—Please join us Sunday afternoon, March 10, at 4 p.m. for Choral Evensong. The choristers and lay clerks from Saint George’s Episcopal Church, Nashville will be singing the service. They are led by Woosug Kang, director of Music Ministries, and Gerry Senechal, C’02, organist.

Growing in Grace continues Sunday, March 10, at 6:30 p.m. in All Saints’ Chapel. David Johnson, a senior in the College, will be sharing his reflections with us. This informal worship service is designed for students and community members, featuring student-led acoustic music, a different guest speaker each week, and Holy Communion. This semester, each of our speakers will meditate on the theme of Moving Mountains. Inspired by Matthew 17:20, “...if you have faith the size of a mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, ‘Move from here to there,’ and it will move; and nothing will be impossible for you.” Our speakers will consider when they have witnessed God move mountains. Together, we will reflect on times that our own mustard seed-sized faiths have been catalysts for growth, gratitude, and love in our communities and within ourselves. Email Lay Chaplain Kayla Deep at <kayla.deep@sewanee.edu> for directions or more information.

The Catechumenate will not meet this Wednesday, March 13. It will resume at 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 27, in the Women’s Center.

The Lenten Daily Eucharist—A Eucharist will be celebrated each weekday, during the season of Lent beginning at 12:25 p.m. in St. Augustine’s Chapel (back hallway of All Saints’ Chapel). The service is designed to last 20–25 minutes.

Spring Break—Our regular schedule of daily services will be suspended during Spring Break, beginning March 14 through March 24. These services will resume Monday, March 25. The 11 a.m. Eucharist will resume Sunday, March 31.

Christ Church

On the First Sunday in Lent, March 10, we will read again the invitation to Lent and the Great Litany. We are happy to share our library and we encourage all to consider some Lenten reading program which might even be a Psalm a day, or 2nd Corinthians which seems like St. Paul might have written to us today.

Christ Episcopal, Alto

During Lent we will walk The Way of the Cross (Stations of the Cross) at 5 p.m. on Fridays beginning March 8, at Christ Episcopal Church, Alto. This is the moving retelling of the story of Christ on the day of his crucifixion with accompanying prayers. All are welcome.

Otey Parish

This Sunday, March 10, infants 6 weeks to children 4 years old are invited to the nursery beginning at 8:30 a.m. There will be nursery for both services and the Sunday School Hour. Children ages 3-11 are invited to join us in the Godly Play 2 room, next to the Adult Education room. Youth Ministry meets in Brooks Hall.

2019 Lenten Book: Life in Christ: Practicing Christian Spirituality—Applying her years of experience as pastor and spiritual director combined with her study of the spiritual wisdom of the past, Sewanee’s own Julia Gatta explores common Christian practices and their underlying theology through an Episcopal lens. With particular reference to scripture, The Book of Common Prayer, and the wisdom of the Christian spiritual tradition, she illuminates methods readers may already be practicing and provides insight and guidance to ones that may be new to them.

Discussions of the book chapter-by chapter will take place during Lent on Wednesdays from 6–7:30 p.m., beginning with a light supper, and Thursdays from 1–2 p.m., bring a bag lunch. Sign-ups will begin soon. If you can’t come to the sessions, you will profit simply from reading the book. It may be purchased at the University Bookstore.

Thursdays during Lent, at 12:15 p.m., there will be a Holy Eucharist and Healing Service, March 14, 21, 28, April 4, 11.

St. Mary’s Convent

Each Friday during Lent at noon, the Sisters of St. Mary will have Stations of the Cross beginning in the living room area of the convent and ending with a procession to the chapel. All are invited.

The convent and chapel will be closed March 16-23. Services will resume Sunday, March 24 at the 8 a.m. Eucharist.

Register Now for the 16th Annual Trails & Trilliums Festival

The 16th annual Trails and Trilliums festival, the spring fundraiser for the Friends of South Cumberland State Park and a multi-day celebration of spring, features a record number of expertly-guided hikes on the most scenic trails in and around South Cumberland State Park. The April 12-14 festival, presented this year by Lodge Cast Iron, also offers a full slate of nature-themed speakers and workshops, an expanded native plant sale, free family-oriented activities for the kids, plus evening fundraiser events on both Friday and Saturday.

Capacity is limited on most hikes, talks and workshops. Reserve your place at any of these events by registering at <TrailsAndTrilliums.org>.

Expertly-guided hikes, to locations in and around the South Cumberland State Park, leave from the DuBose Conference Center on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. This year, Trails and Trilliums features a record 26 unique guided hikes, both long and short, rated from easy to strenuous, and led by some of the region's most expert guides. The hike lineup includes adventures focusing on wildflowers, salamanders and snakes, Civilian Conservation Corps history, birds, nature photography, geology, and much more.

The expanded Native Plant Sale, Programs, Workshops, Food & Music are at the DuBose Conference Center (times vary; see full schedule at <www.TrailsAndTrilliums.org>).

Friday's 5:30-7 p.m. Wine & Wildflowers celebration and fundraiser is at the Monteagle Inn, and is generously sponsored by Tower Community Bank. This features the presentation of the Trails and Trilliums Tribute Award.

Saturday's free 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Children's Activities are at the South Cumberland State Park Visitor Center, with thanks to sponsors Doug Ferris and John Canale.

Saturday evening's Trail Weekend Hootenanny fundraiser is at Baggenstoss Farms in Tracy City, starting at 4 p.m. This is presented by the Friends of South Cumberland and the Mountain Goat Trail Alliance to raise funds for a new paved connector between the Mountain Goat Trail and the South Cumberland State Park Visitor Center. The Baggenstoss Farms is off of Clouse Hill Road.

Trails and Trilliums has 16 talks and workshops (Friday, Saturday, Sunday at the DuBose Conference Center) on topics ranging from nature journaling to birding, edible plants, watercolor, fairy houses, and more.

This year, Trails and Trilliums also celebrates the grand opening of two new areas of South Cumberland State Park: the new Nature Play area, on the Meadow Trail at the park's Visitor Center and the new Interpretive Trail at the site of the 1930s-era Civilian Conservation Corps camp in Grundy Forest.

Smith said for many of the students, the language in the play proved a challenge.

"Most of them have not really played Shakespeare, and they're having to deal with that language. Karissa has a challenge and she has a very long speech at the end of the play, which is somewhat controversial," he said. "Also, it's a physical comedy. There's a lot of movement and body play, and there's some physical interactions between characters."

Wheeler said her professors in the English department were helpful to her in getting to the center of the play and Kate as a character.

"I think at this point, my hope is I have a good enough understanding of the show and of Kate, to be able to relate that to the audience," she said.

For Wheeler, the final step to getting into the headspace of the character is working to understand the motivations.

"Since our first run through last week, I've been wrestling with what I want to bring to Kate as a character. I was not in the mindset of Kate from beginning to end. It was more like, 'This is Kate in this scene,'" she said. "When we began doing the complete run through, it was harder to see her go from being the shrew who won't have anything to do with anyone and doesn't want to be bothered with love, to seeing her go through this love test situation where Petruchio is breaking her down."

"Dr. Smith gave me some really good advice about how my job as an actor is to bring as much truth to Kate as I possibly can. In the back of my mind, I have an answer to what I think she is doing in that moment. But, I want the audience to be able to make that decision for themselves."

"The Taming of the Shrew" will be presented in the Tennessee Williams Center Friday, March 8 and Saturday, March 9 at 7:30 p.m. and on Sunday, March 10 at 2 p.m. Tickets can be purchased at <www.eventbrite.com>.

We're glad you're reading the Messenger!

so many things to discover and these events are the perfect setting to share and work around those questions."

This year, ethnomusicologist and jazz musician Paul Austerlitz will serve as the keynote speaker. Leal said Austerlitz will be able to provide a contrasting perspective to music and its relationship to issues of class, race and immigration, as well as combine performance and research. Austerlitz will also come to the Mountain early to teach classes in the humanities about cross-cultural interactions.

Austerlitz's keynote talk is titled "Who Is Babalu?: Afro-Caribbean Revolutions and Western Music," and will discuss the Afro-Cuban jazz suite Machito. He said in his work, he's found that the study of diverse music is important to building a true understanding of music.

"Machito played a big role in bringing African rhythms from Cuba to the U.S. The interesting thing is if you think about most of the music people listen to in the world today, regardless of race or cultural background, a very large percentage comes from African culture, like rap, rock and roll, jazz," Austerlitz said. "Most of the time, people don't listen to European classical music. Even in Europe, people listen to a lot of African American inspired music. It's important to understand it and study it because that helps us enjoy it more."

For Leal, he sees the study of music from cultures outside of the European tradition as being a powerful thing for the students.

"When minority students and scholars see themselves represented in the classroom and the curriculum, that is very powerful in any community," said Leal. "People associate Latin music as a party and something that is not worthy of study. This legitimizes the musical tradition of those cultures. I have a student from Latin America and at some point, he said, 'I never thought I would be able to study this in a classroom because it's one of those areas that is seen as not scholarly enough.' It's like those cultural traditions are not good enough for classrooms. For that student, being able to experience music and to study the music of his culture is what changed his experience in Sewanee."

Austerlitz said he has seen that power in his work as well. He said applying musicological scholarship to music of African influences provides a more holistic understanding of all music.

"Most music classes and departments talk about European classical music," said Austerlitz. "Our whole mentality and the way we talk about music is very Eurocentric, but most of the music people listen to is not European. For example, Machito would refer to African religions in their songs and use African words in their music. Most people that listen to it didn't know that. They thought it was Spanish. There is all this stuff going on that if you look at it from a scholarly standpoint, you can really understand a lot better than just at a first listen."

The AMS meeting will be held in Convocation Hall on Friday, March 8 and Saturday, March 9. For information about presentations or to register to attend, visit <https://www.south-central-ams.org/registration>.

Austerlitz will also perform at 7:30 p.m., Friday, March 8, at Guerry Auditorium. Tickets can be purchased at the door for $20. Tickets for conference participants, Sewanee students, faculty and staff are free.

Rabies Clinics Continue

Franklin County Animal Control, in conjunction with local veterinarians, Dr. Traci Helton and staff from Midtown Veterinary Services and Hospital, Dr. Harry Prince and staff from Town and Country Veterinary Hospital, as well as Drs. George and Ashley Bowers and staff from Animal Care Center, will be conducting clinics on Saturdays throughout the month of March. In addition to these scheduled community clinics, each of the four local veterinary offices (including Lakeside Veterinary Clinic) will be offering Walk-In rabies vaccinations to any healthy dog or cat during their regular office hours at the discounted price. No appointment is necessary.

The Tennessee Anti-Rabies Law states that dogs and cats may be vaccinated as early as three months of age and must be vaccinated by 6 months of age to be compliant with the law, so please come take advantage of the discount!

For every Saturday in the month of March, rabies clinics will be set up at community centers, churches, and parks across the county. Efforts have been made in recent years to offer clinics on the outskirts of the county in order to be more accessible to those residents and their pets. The two newest clinics are being held in Sherwood and on Keith Springs.

The cost of each rabies vaccination is only $12 per dog or cat. The goal of these clinics is to vaccinate as many dogs and cats as possible.

commercial first. We spent a lot of time doing community relations work asking people what they were looking for, and then recruited for those uses.

"We do all the marketing and leasing ourselves. My sense is that what the Village needs is more mundane uses, not bars and restaurants. We want to invigorate the Village concept without damaging existing entities, to find businesses that work together."

"We need a strong retail market to attract other retail markets," agreed Frank Gladu, who heads up the Village project.

Cheney emphasized the importance of promoting activity on the proposed Village Green. BP requested being involved in developing the green and envisions it as a site for music events and other activities with no charge to presenters and users—"The green is free."

Gladu noted design plans for narrowing Highway 41A now included a trailhead for the Mountain Goat Trail near the green.

Asked about the future of the Sewanee Community Center, Cheney said, "If it's established, we don't want to undercut it, but augment it."

Gladu concurred. "There's no reason to disrupt activity and vitality that already exists. We want as much activity on each side of the green as possible. I would love for the community center to say they needed to expand." Gladu cited an area next to the American Legion Hall as a possible location for a new community center.

Cheney also emphasized the importance of fostering Sewanee as a visitor destination along the Nashville-Chattanooga corridor in order to support complimentary retail businesses.

Gladu acknowledged the need for "transient visitor housing" and said it was "on the radar screen," suggesting rentable townhouses as a possible solution.

"The Village concept is a broader economic development initiative for the whole Plateau region," Cheney insisted. "It could have a significant economic impact on the entire community."

Patient of the Month

"I began coming to Dr. Shull many years ago. My neck and shoulders seemed to bother me all the time along with my lower back. After my first treatment, I actually felt some better and thought 'Man this is gonna help!' I went through the twice a week to once a week to twice a month stepdown program. Now I have been on the once a month schedule for many years. Maintenance to me is the key. Keeping everything aligned seems to help me feel much better than before. To sum it all up, chiro care worked for me and I am so glad I decided to check chiro care out. My neck doesn't bother me anymore and my lower back is much improved." - Randy Farris

Lo, who is the visiting professor of piano at Sewanee, said like Herndon's mother, her mom had always wanted to learn an instrument as well.

"I've been playing since I was 6-years-old, but I didn't choose it. My mom had always wanted to learn an instrument, but she came from a really poor family and could never afford any luxury. By the time I arrived, the economy in Taiwan just began to take off, and both my parents were actively saving money for my education and my sister's education. She wanted me to learn an instrument, perhaps to fulfill her own wish to be fluent in music."

On Sunday, March 10 at 2 p.m., Herndon and Lo will take the stage in Guerry Auditorium for a joint recital. The pair will play music from Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge's competition of 1919. The event is free and open to the public.

"This competition was a seminal moment in the viola and piano repertoire, and was really forward-thinking for that time. There were 70 works from the romantic era, but of things that were published, there were like five or six pieces," Herndon said. "The competition and the $4,000 prize inspired composers from all over to compose. They had 72 entries, which was more music than had been written for viola up to that point."

The contest ended in a tie, with Coolidge herself having to step in to choose a winner.

"Ernest Bloch was the one who won, and Rebecca Clarke was second. People were just astounded that the composer was a woman, and they demanded her piece be performed as well. Those two works have become staples of the repertoire. The other 70 entries were returned to the original composers. We somehow lost what those were in between," Herndon said.

Herndon said her colleague, David Bynog of Rice University, set out to trace down the remaining 70 pieces.

"He's found a lot of work and found evidence that they were likely entered, things like letters where the composers had written Elizabeth asking about details of the competition. Those add up to about 50 of the works, and he wanted to give a presentation on his findings. David asked me and a couple others to play a few examples, and we prepared a recital around that."

When Lo and her husband, who is the music director of the opera program at the University of Tennessee, moved to Knoxville in 2007, she and Herndon met and struck up a partnership.

"It has been a wonderful experience working with her. I've met so many wonderful musicians. I have learned a lot from her," Lo said.

"For a pianist, we rarely play with other people. To play with another musician always makes me feel less lonely on stage. It is like having a conversation with someone you genuinely like. You keep passing the energy between each other."

St. Mary's Sewanee Offers New Spring Retreats

St. Mary's Sewanee: The Ayres Center for Spiritual Development is pleased to announce three new retreats this spring: Lectio Divina: A Three-Day Lenten Retreat, Dream Care Introductory Workshop, and Aging with Courage and Grace.

Lectio Divina, which means "divine reading," is a contemplative way to approach Scripture. Led by Tom Ward, this three-day retreat March 22-24 will focus on the building blocks of a developing and sustaining a contemplative life in the modern world. Lectio Divina includes time for reading, reflecting, responding, and resting in the word of God with the aim of nourishing and deepening one's relationship with the divine. Periods of silent Centering Prayer will be a part of the retreat although no Centering Prayer experience is required to attend.

Dream Care is a spiritual practice that can be readily developed and used to discern God's will. Dream work raises consciousness, builds community and intimacy, and can impact society. Led by Marsha Carnahan, this one-day workshop on March 25 will take a Jungian approach with time for experiential and creative learning.

Aging with Courage and Grace: A Journey toward Wholeness is a three-day retreat, April 5-7, that will offer safe space for participants to consider the paradoxes of loss, transition, and renewal that happen in the second half of life. Participants will explore how they have an increased capacity to love, serve, forgive, and seek peace. The workshop invites guests to become "true elders" with meaningful contributions to make, and ultimately asks them to embrace the deep mystery we will enter in our own deaths. This retreat, held in conjunction with the Center for Courage and Renewal, will be led by Marjorie Thompson and Marta Murrell.

Unsure about which workshop is right for you? St. Mary's Sewanee's new director of programs, the Rev. Regan Schutz, can help you consider and discern the right choice. For more information about these events or making reservations, call (931) 598-5342, email <reservations@stmaryssewanee.org>, or go online to <www.stmaryssewanee.org>.

University Announces New Role for Scott Wilson

The University of the South has announced the promotion of Scott Wilson to assistant provost for global and strategic partnerships. Wilson, the Alfred Walter Negley Professor of Politics, has been associate dean for global citizenship.

In his new role, Wilson will continue to oversee the Office of Global Citizenship. He will also serve as the university's primary liaison with CreditEase and other Chinese partners, including high schools, universities, and private sector partners. He will lead strategic planning for the university's internationalization efforts, developing and coordinating additional external partnerships.

"Professor Wilson brings a wealth of experience abroad and specifically in China to this new position," said Provost Nancy Berner. "I am grateful that he has agreed to expand the use of his considerable talents for the broader betterment of the university in service of its students."

Chinese New Year Celebration at SCC

The children of Sewanee Children's Center had a great two weeks learning and getting ready for the Chinese New Year. Each class participated in age-appropriate activities by creating a Chinese restaurant, preparing menu items in the play dough center, and learning about Zodiac Signs and Chinese symbols. They enjoyed reading books on this very festive holiday. They have been practicing using chopsticks to manipulate small loose parts in various activities. Of course, celebrating involved a lot of craft activities. The celebration ended with a Chinese Banquet!

The Discovery class (2-year-olds) also had the chance to celebrate the Japanese holiday Setsubun. Setsubun is celebrated on Feb. 3 and is the day before the beginning of Spring. The name means "seasonal division." Setsubun can be thought of as Japan's New Year Eve. There is a special ritual to cleanse away all the evil of the former year and to drive away disease-bringing evil spirits for the year to come.

Alison Miller, who is one of our parents and also professor of Art History in Sewanee, came and spent the morning with the children. She lived with her family in Japan for a few years and has recently spent three years living in Japan learning all about their culture and traditions. Alison read several Japanese books, and she taught us how to say some everyday words in Japanese. Alison also taught us how to play "Janken Pon" (rock, paper, scissors). We also had a special treat, onigiris, which is a traditional rice ball.

We completed our celebration by making scary masks to wear as we chased away the evil spirits. As we chased them out, we yelled: "oni wa soto" (out with the demons) "fuku wa uchi" (in with good luck).

The University Choir

University Choir on Tour

The University Choir has been busy preparing for a tour where they will perform in multiple venues across the southcentral U.S. The choir, which consists of 60 undergraduates from the University of the South, will start the tour in New Orleans on Friday, March 15. Christ Church Cathedral on Saint Charles Street will be the venue to kick off the tour.

This will be the third tour that the choir has taken under the direction of Geoffrey Ward. Previous tours saw the choir perform on the east coast and the Washington National Cathedral in March 2017, and in Canada in May 2018.

Touring requires a tremendous amount of work and dedication from the students. This is something that choristers are used to in terms of the weekly schedule of rehearsals and services required to be a member of the choir. The choir will be singing in the following cities: March 15 at 7 p.m., Christ Church Cathedral, New Orleans, La.; March 17 at 11 a.m., Christ Church Cathedral, Houston, Texas; March 17 at 6 p.m., Saint David's Episcopal Church, Austin, Texas; March 19 at 7 p.m., Saint Michael and All Angels, Dallas, Texas; March 20 at 7:30 p.m., Trinity Episcopal Cathedral, Little Rock, Ark.; and March 21 at 7:30 p.m., Saint John's Episcopal Church, Memphis, Tenn.

The choir will be performing four recitals, one Sunday morning Eucharist and one service of choral evensong. Music to be performed includes works by Batten, Leighton, Howells, Gardiner and Attwood from the U.K. American works include two arrangements from Alice Parker, who was recently awarded an honorary degree from Sewanee in recognition of her astounding career as a composer, arranger and performer.

Zachary Zwahlen, who was hired as the assistant university organist in July 2018, will be the principal organist for the tour. This is his first tour with the University Choir.

The opportunity to visit many Episcopal churches and cathedrals is part of the student's education by sharing their hard work and talents in singing, and connecting with alumni, prospective students and new friends.

Author C H Hooks in Conversation with Adam Latham

Star Line Books is excited to host an evening of conversation with C H Hooks. C H will be in discussion with Adam Latham at 6 p.m., Tuesday, March 12. Adam is associate marketing director for the Sewanee Writers' Conference, and is currently working on a novel.

C H Hooks sets sail on a multi-city, Wild-Alligator book tour. This consuming discussion, reading, and Q&A about magic, myth, and the beasts of the South promises to thrill.

C H Hooks makes his novel debut with "Alligator Zoo-Park Magic," the deep-south book hailed as, "In the best tradition of Florida literature."

Is Jeffers an Alligator Zoo-Park Magician or the Messiah? Two friends live unapologetically on the edge of poverty in the un-decorous South. Jimmy is a single father, and Jeffers is a magician with tricks closer to miracles. When Jimmy loses his best friend to a trick gone awry, he stumbles to find a footing and what it means to escape.

FROM THE HERITAGE CENTER

by Oliver W. Jarvis, Grundy County Historical Society

Leonard L. Tate

"In the years to come, Grundy County will be remembered for one reason: that Leonard Tate lived here and wrote his poetry." These words of County Judge J.L. Rollins proclaim the significance of the Poet Laureate of Grundy County.

Leonard Tate was born April 19, 1912 in a log cabin set on a bluff in Beersheba Springs overlooking the Cumberland Plateau. He lived on this magnificent site until his death on Nov. 30, 1989.

Leonard Tate's family first came to Middle Tennessee in 1805. He was the son of William M. Tate and Martha Belle Smith Tate. His mother was the first librarian of Beersheba Springs. He credited her for all in him that was good.

Leonard Tate attended Grundy County High School. There he began writing verse, encouraged by his English teacher. He graduated in 1932. This was his only formal education. In a letter to the editor of the Chattanooga Times in 1940 he wrote:

"I have never had a moment's literary training of any kind in my life. I write merely because I love it and want to. In short, I have worked alone always, since there is no one else here who writes or is interested in writing for publication. Consequently, I have had very little to encourage me in my loneliness. I think sometimes if it were not for the inspiration I derive from these hills I love that I could not carry on."

Despite his isolation, Tate was published in more than 50 national periodicals including Country Gentlemen, Poetry Digest, The Bard, and Anthology of Verse. 108 poems were published in Shadows in the Wind, a privately printed collection. The Beersheba Springs Historical Society in 1990 published posthumously a collection of his poems in "All the Lost Octobers and Other Poems." The collection spans his writing career and was published to honor him and to make certain that his poetry was preserved.

The critic, Kim Worthington, writing about Leonard Tate, noted:

"We found a gentle poet at his work
Upon a Mountain in the land of sun
Where purple peaks rise up against a sky
That in its glory would not be outdone.
The circumstance of his existence there
Completed a solitary life apart
But, Oh, the beauty of the place
It was no wonder he had a poet's heart."

Dr. Herschel Gower, author and former professor of English and American Literature at Vanderbilt University, in the introduction to All the Lost Octobers and Other Poems, observed:

"Leonard Tate was a gifted conventional poet, and with this Volume he will be established as the poetic voice of the Cumberland Plateau. By conventional, I mean he was a practitioner of the prosody, meter, rhyme, and verse patterns that he inherited in traditional English verse from Chaucer through Shakespeare to the present. Except for a handful of pieces in free verse, Leonard kept the metrical rhythms and rhyme patterns that he learned from a long line of established predecessors.

"It would be difficult to account for Leonard's very considerable gifts: being born in a musical family, his acute sensibility, his communication with the real world, his feel for intangibles, his glimpses of infinity. He was a man for whom the real world existed at his front door and he loved every sight, sound, and touch of it. No taste or fragrance eluded him. Nothing in Nature was wasted on him, as the poems attest. Because his heart was open to all the wonders, he was able to see the world and see it whole and sing his anthems."

Readers are invited to visit the Heritage Center Monday through Friday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Saturday 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

SAS Honors Winter Athletes with Awards

Winter varsity athletes in basketball, swimming, and wrestling at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School were recently honored at a morning all-school assembly. In front of the entire student body, athletes were presented with the Most Improved Player (MIP), the Most Valuable Player (MVP), and the Coaches' Awards. The teams vote for the MIP and MVP awards.

Director of Athletics and Head Boys' Varsity Basketball Coach Rob Zeitler kicked off the ceremony with these words, "At SAS, winning is the goal, but we also have a purpose. Our purpose is to express ourselves through sports, to have fun, to work hard together for a common goal, and to develop grit and courage. What we gain from the athletic experience extends well beyond a game, season, or high school career. It informs everything we set out to accomplish throughout our lives."

The boys' and girls' varsity swim teams finished as Middle Tennessee High School Swimming Association's Division 1 Champions and Runner-Up, respectively. The boys' team set two new school records.

The boys' 200 medley relay of Aidan Smith, Randy Paul, Zolon Knoll, and Porter Neubauer set a new record at 1:43.73. They were joined at regionals by teammates Sarah Grace Burns, Anna Freyland, Sarah Beth Hobby, Sophia Patterson, and Kathleen Perkins. Kathleen set a new record in the girls' 100 IM with a time of 1:21.67. The boys' 200 medley relay finished in 22nd place and the 200 free relay finished in 23rd place at the State meet.

Boasting the only girls' wrestling program at a Tennessee private school, SAS had two girls' wrestlers Iliana Pate and Charlie Barron place fifth at regionals in their given weight classes.

Several varsity athletes received recognition beyond the school. Junior Nneka Okolo was named to the All-District Girls' Varsity Basketball Team. Senior Jalen Tillman was named to the boys' team.

SAS Boys' MS Soccer Begins Season

On March 5, the St. Andrew's-Sewanee middle school boys' soccer team fell to Cascade Middle School 1-0, in their opening match of the season. Cascade struck quickly, scoring the game winning match in the first 10 minutes. Despite this, the Mountain Lions' settled down and for the remainder of the match dominated play, but were not able to find the equalizing goal. SAS saw strong play from Isaac Simmons, who created explosive attack on the left wing, along with center midfielder, Raulston Barnett, who dominated the midfield. On the back line, Robbie Johnston was tenacious.

On March 6, the team tied rival Webb School of Bell Buckle, 1-1, before a supportive home crowd. Webb got on the score board first and led 1-0 at halftime. "We had multiple opportunities," said coach Burns, "but we couldn't capitalize." In the second half, Isaac Simmons scored the Mountain Lions first goal of the season off a corner kick served by classmate, Cecil Rodgers. Strong play was also seen from captains Ryan Ostrowski and Caleb Palmertree. Ostrowski earned 6 saves and anchored the back line while Palmertree worked hard up top to pressure Webb's defense.

by Yolande Gottfried

Not Quite Spring

On a hike to Bridal Veil Falls last Saturday, some early spring wildflowers were in evidence. There were numerous Hepatica in flower and in bud near the falls, though not as open as they were on the sunny days earlier in that week. Cutleaf Toothwort was also in flower and in bud. Some toadshade trilliums, Little Sweet Betsy, were up and in bud. A Rue Anemone and a Common Blue Violet were also spotted. The tiny yellow flower clusters of spicebush lined the trail in the many wet areas.

Two days later brought us back to winter and a beautiful display of rime ice in the airport area and beyond on Monday morning. The ice crystals were all on one side of a surface such as a pine needle, growing out like a little wall. This occurs when supercooled liquid water droplets in the air contact a cold surface and freeze to it. A gentle wind will cause this to occur on the windward side of the stem surface and subsequent droplets will freeze to the first ones, growing into the wind and causing the formation of this little “comb” of ice crystals, rime ice, with the opposite side of the stem bare of ice. I believe we were watching this occur over the span of a few hours that morning as the whiteness on the trees increased. Another type of ice, hoar frost, occurs when water vapor in the air goes directly from a gaseous state to a frozen, solid state and does not have this directional quality to it. It forms basically like dew, but instead of condensing from vapor to liquid it goes from vapor to solid ice crystals.

Oscar Myer

Fiona

Pets of the Week

Meet Oscar Myer & Fiona

Oscar Myer is a one-year-old Doberman mix with a ton of positive energy. Oscar came to us as an owner surrender, by no fault of his own. He has great temperament and gets along with the staff members. He is very playful, long-legged, with a quirky side. Oscar responds to training with treats, and we think with some proper training, he can come a long way with his confidence and behavior. Oscar can be a bit timid around certain people, but we hope this improves and he can find his special human. Oscar would do well in a home with older children and with a dog his size and/or cats. Oscar is fully vaccinated, microchipped, heartworm-negative, neutered, and ready to go to his forever home once and for all!

Fiona is a nine-month-old beautiful dilute grey tabby cat. Fiona was brought into us after a feral momma had kittens. She has a clipped ear since she was considered feral at the time. She is no longer feral, but still has an independent personality. She has slowly opened up to us, and enjoys the occasional petting. She becomes a purr bucket when the right person comes along! She loves to bask in the sun while laying in her cat suite’s window. She also tries to vie for the attention of her roommate Bocelli. If your family is looking for an independent cat that wants the occasional bit of attention, Fiona would be a great addition to your family. Fiona is FIV/FelV negative, up to date on vaccinations, spayed, microchipped, and ready to be in her forever home.

Trees are available to order for a $1 donation per tree, while supplies last, through March 17, by visiting the event website at <www.tectn.org/250KTreeDay>. The event is organized by Tennessee Environmental Council in its effort to maintain a healthy tree canopy in communities across Tennessee. Tree species include Red Oak, Red Bud, Pine and Plum or similar fruit variety. All trees must be picked up on the dates and locations published on the event website. There are 150 volunteer-run local tree pickup locations set up across Tennessee.

Tennessee Environmental Council’s Tree Program was established in 2007 with a goal of planting one million native trees across the state to help repopulate trees lost to development and other causes. The organization has planted over 540,000 trees since 2007 fulfilling the mission to educate and advocate for the conservation and improvement of Tennessee’s environment, communities, and public health.

The event is sponsored by numerous funders and agencies, including the Memorial Foundation, the Lyndhurst Foundation, Cumberland River Compact, MTEMC’s Sharing Change, Bridgestone, Bass Pro Shops & TVA. A complete list of event sponsors is featured on the event website <www.tectn.org/250KTreeDay>.

Herbarium Winter Event

Early Spring Wildflowers—Shakerag Hollow, Sunday, March 17, 1:30 p.m., with Yolande Gottfried. It’s St. Patrick’s Day, a good time to look for early “green” in Shakerag Hollow. If you don’t get out about now you might miss the beginning of the big show—spring ephemerals bloom early and fade fast. Meet at Green’s View for this moderate-to-strenuous 2-mile walk that may include a steep rocky section of the trail.

In the March 1, 2019 edition of the Messenger the rain total was reported as 1.83 inches. New data received from University of the South Domain Ranger Sandy Gilliam reveals that the actual rainfall total for the preceding week was 4.08 inches. Thanks, Sandy!

Taming of the Shrew

And therefore, setting all this chat aside,
Thus in plain terms: your father hath consented
That you shall be my wife; your dowry 'greed on;
And, Will you, nill you, I will marry you.
Now, Kate, I am a husband for your turn;
For, by this light, whereby I see thy beauty,
Thy beauty, that doth make me like thee well,
Thou must be married to no man but me;
For I am he am born to tame you Kate,
And bring you from a wild Kate to a Kate
Conformable as other household Kates.
Here comes your father: never make denial;
I must and will have Katherina to my wife.
