Sewanee Chorale in Concert

The Sewanee Chorale presents a spring concert of music for the Broadway and opera stage, classical, and sacred music. The first segment of the program includes popular tunes from the stage, medley from Mary Poppins and Verdi's "Anvil" Chorus. A local celebrity, who has never appeared in a Sewanee concert, has accepted an invitation to perform as the solo anvil player.

The works of Gabriel Fauré are featured in the center segment of the program, with three movements of the Requiem and the Cantique de Jean Racine. Violinist Frederike Koltze, a one-year St. Andrew's-Sewanee student visiting from Germany, will play the violin obligato of the Sanctus, with the chorale. Sewanee music department artist-in-residence Kallen Esperian will sing the "Pie Jesu."

The final part of the program will include three pieces from the works of Arthur Sullivan. The tranquil hymn, "Calm be Our Rest Tonight" is followed by John Scott's arrangement of "The Lost Chord." The rousing final chorus of "H.M.S. Pinafore" will conclude the evening of many favorites.

The concert concludes the Sewanee Chorale's 53rd year of community singing. The Chorale is directed by Ruth Cobb and Zach Zwahlen, assistant university organist accompanies the program. Barbara Carden will provide cello accompaniment. The Chorale receives an annual gift from the Sewanee Community Chest.

The free concert takes place at 8 p.m., Friday, April 12, in All Saints' Chapel. There is free parking available on University Avenue.

'Archiving in Black'

by Bailey Basham
Messenger Staff Writer

In her work on the The African-American Eastern Kentucky Migration Project (EKAAMP), Karida Brown was given an old biscuit tin that she said had seen better days.

"When we received this biscuit can, we said, 'Okay. What's this?' But the family shared the story. It was a set of four siblings, and they decided they had plenty of records about their father's labor because the company-owned coal town had official documentation to represent their father. There were no jobs for women unless you were a teacher when they were growing up," Brown said in her talk.

Brown, who is a professor of sociology at the University of California Los Angeles and the author of the book "Gone Home: Race and Roots through Appalachia," spoke last month on the campus of the University of the South. Her talk, "Archiving in Black: The African-American Eastern Kentucky Migration Project," detailed the importance of preserving the complete history of Appalachia.

Trees Planted for Arbor Day

On April 4, the University's Grounds Crew, University's Forestry Club, Duck River EMC, and TN Forestry Division planted seven trees with the students of the Sewanee Children's Center in celebration of Arbor Day. Trees were planted on the campus of Otey Memorial Parish to shade the playground, beautify the property, and replace trees that have been lost in recent years. Two red maples and four serviceberry trees were provided by DREMC and a white oak was provided by the Forestry Club in memory of Mary Smalley, a long-time member of Otey Memorial Parish and the Sewanee community. All trees were planted by the children with help from the University's grounds crew. Bob Nunley and Steve Rogers of State of Tennessee Forestry Division recognized Sewanee for 29 years as a Tree City USA certified community. Bran and Cindy Potter read the children a story about the importance of trees in our environment and led a sing-along.

Highlander Fire Destroys Records, but Flames Hope

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

An early morning fire on March 29 destroyed the main office building and decades of historic documents, artifacts and memorabilia at the Highlander Research and Education Center in New Market, Tenn. When the sun rose, a white supremacy symbol drawn with black spray paint showed itself in the parking lot. Highlander Center is the reincarnation of the Highlander Folk School, once located in Monteagle.

At 5:32 a.m., the New Market Volunteer Fire Department (NMVFD) received a phone call reporting a brush fire on Highlander Way. When the fire department arrived at 5:53 a.m., the building was already an inferno. For unknown reasons, the building's burglar and fire alarm system failed to alert E-911.

Speculating on possible causes, NMVFD Captain Sammy Solomon said, "The wires could have been cut, the fire was so hot the alarm failed, the alarm wasn't hooked up, or someone unhooked it."

Dandridge Volunteer Fire Department and Rural Metro Fire from Knox County also responded. The fire is under investigation by the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department, the state fire marshal, the Tennessee Bureau of Investigation and the Tennessee Bomb and Arson Squad.

The spray painted image, a borderless grid with three vertical and three horizontal lines, was the emblem of an anti-Semitic political party in Romania in the late 1920s. According to the Knox News, white supremacists have adopted the symbol, including the shooter at the recent Christchurch, New Zealand, massacre and a Knoxville area neo-Nazi group with ties to the August 2017 Unite the Right rally in Charlottesville, Va.

Founded in 1932, Highlander Folk School taught local Mountain people literacy and financial skills and how to unionize to lobby for better wages and working conditions. In the 1950s the school's mission evolved into training up and coming civil rights leaders like Rosa Parks and Martin Luther King in strategies of nonviolent protest. Fearing the growing momentum of the Civil Rights movement, the state revoked Highlander's charter. The school moved to Knoxville and, following pressure by the KKK, on to New Market.

"My first thought was 'let everyone be safe,'" said the center's co-director Ash-Lee Woodard Henderson, who was out of town when the fire occurred. She expressed relief no one was harmed, including the firefighters.

"Our space was violated by white supremacists with the intention to scare and terrify us."

"The building was a total loss, but it was not our full archive. Historic preservation efforts have been intense."

The bulk of the center's archives are in the hands of the Wisconsin Historical Society. "Some records are digitized and on people's laptops, as well," Henderson added. "It's too early to confirm what we can salvage. We haven't been cleared to do retrieval or cross the yellow barrier tape."

Community Chest Update; SCA Speaker Unpacks Estate Planning

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

The Community Chest has reached 89 percent of its goal, announced Sewanee Civic Association (SCA) Vice President Brandon Barry at the April 4 dinner meeting. The campaign continues through April 15. There's still time to make a donation. Visit <www.sewaneecivic.org> or mail contributions to P.O. Box 99, Sewanee, TN.

In addition to honoring award-winners at the meeting, the SCA elected officers for the coming year: Brandon Barry, president; Jade Barry, vice president; Jesse Bornemann, secretary; Erin Kunz, treasurer; and Stephen Burnett, member at large.

Special recognition went to treasurer Diane Fielding. Fielding is stepping down after five years of service.

The SCA also approved the 2019-2020 budget which covers event sponsorship, insurance, the annual audit, expenses related to Sewanee Classifieds, the subscription based online community bulletin board sponsored by the SCA, and meeting expenses.

April's speaker, attorney Ryan Barry, provided members and guests with a primer on estate planning basics.

"The three components of estate planning are incapacity documents, testamentary documents, and documents defining how ownership plays into the testamentary piece," Barry said.

Incapacity documents delineate financial and health care power of attorney, who will make decisions if a person is incapacitated. Living wills and advance care directives stipulate what kinds of medical treatment a person does or does not want and are often included in the health care POA, Barry explained. He recommended assigning POA authority when creating the document rather than waiting until an emergency occurs—"Declaring someone incapacitated takes one or two doctors and can be time consuming. If you don't trust someone to take care of you when you're competent, you shouldn't trust them when you're incompetent."

Testamentary Documents are a person's last will and testament or an irrevocable trust. These documents designate who carries out a person's wishes, the executor or trustee; and where the person's assets are to go.

Documents explicating ownership resolve possible questions that might arise in carrying out a person's testamentary documents. For example, if a will stipulates assets are to be divided equally among all heirs, but one heir is named jointly on an account of the deceased, that heir would automatically become sole owner of the account, removing those sums from the assets to be divided. Confusion and hard feelings can be avoided by making everything clear beforehand.

Barry cautioned against not having a will. "The state of Tennessee has a will for you if you don't have your own," Barry said. By the state's rules, a spouse receives only a minor child's share, which could make it difficult for him or her to continue to raise the children on their own. Also, with no will, a person's estate can be divided among distant relatives the deceased never met.

"In estate planning, each situation is unique," Barry stressed. "There is no one-size-fits-all."

LIGHTS AT THE BALL PARK

To the Editor:

In 2018 Duck River Electric Membership Corporation informed the newly formed Parks Committee of the Sewanee Community Council that there was a severe safety issue with the lighting system at the Sewanee Youth Ballpark. An incident occurred at another park in the county when their lighting system malfunctioned and created a potentially dangerous situation. Luckily no one was at the park and no one was injured. Duck River immediately responded by checking all of the other similar lighting systems in their jurisdiction and terminating their usage. The Sewanee Ballpark fell into that category. We were grateful for their quick reaction.

We have an antiquated lighting system that is approximately 50 years old. Like everything else, things wear out. The Parks Committee began communicating with Duck River concerning the new specifications needed to upgrade the system. This is a complicated problem that has taken time to resolve; meetings have included the State of Tennessee electrical inspector, Duck River and a member of our committee who has painstakingly been through all of the replacement scenarios with this group as well as a host of electrical contractors.

Our goal is to finalize the cost of this project, soon. At that point, our plans are to introduce this to the many stakeholders of the park, including communications with the community and begin acquiring the necessary funds. The 2019 baseball season will be without lights, but we are thankful that Duck River recognized the hazard and is working with us to resolve it. The new system will be safer and more energy efficient, hopefully including LED bulbs.

The Parks Committee was formed to give support to the dedicated volunteers who operate Little League, Youth Soccer, the Dog Park, Elliott Park and the Community Center. We are optimistic and we hope to get the lights on in the very near future.

*S. Dixon Myers, Chair,
Sewanee Parks Committee*

TRAILS AND TRILLIUMS

To the Editor:

Having the largest (and most amazing) state park in Tennessee enriches all of us who live or visit here. You can directly support the South Cumberland by supporting Trails & Trilliums, April 12-14. The festival is a project of the Friends of South Cumberland State Park (FSC); proceeds go to Every Child in the Park programs and park improvements. On Friday, celebrate the opening of the new Nature Play Area at the park Visitors Center, and the dedication of the new CCC Camp interpretive site at Fiery Gizzard. Both are FSC projects, planned, funded and built by volunteers! At Dubose, you can buy native plants, worm castings, annuals, birdhouses, outdoor furniture, botanical prints, etc. Our volunteers have planned a weekend to showcase our park and provide opportunities to increase awareness about the natural world, from kids activities on Saturday to adult workshops and guided hikes. WHAT'S IN A NAME? SEWANEE AS "VILLAGE?"

To the Editor:

I am admittedly an "outsider." Can't help it; it's true.

I would also observe that not a single person is now alive who can claim to know about Sewanee from the beginning. Put another way, every living member of the Sewanee community had a "first day" here, when everyone else knew more, and could claim to know more, than the most recent arrival. No one, in other words, has experienced Sewanee in its chronological entirety.

This seemingly obvious point occurs to me each time I hear it said that Sewanee has never been called a "village." It was thus with considerable interest that I looked up "The Other Side of Sewanee" by Patricia Short Makris. The Short family dates back to the 1850s. In the Foreword to her book, Ms. Makris writes, "By the 1870s, ... people came from all over to be part of the growing population of the mountain town. Even one of Queen Victoria's former guards lived in the village..."

"Village" appears frequently in this book. For example, "An article in the Purple Sewanee states that John Castleberry's house was the first one built in the village" (p. 19).

Or this: "The people of Sewanee were referred to as the 'Village Depot People' in 1870..." [Bishop Quintard] "doctored many people living in the village and surrounding coves. He made it his duty to bring people to the village who would establish businesses to provide jobs for local residents" (p. 32).

Or this: "Mr. Hayes is responsible for financing the first village school.... The first village church adjoined the first village school" (p. 32).

Or this: "Life in the village revolved around the depot area and St. Paul's Church. Many of the early depot village people were baptized and attended church there" (p. 33).

Or this: "The first store in the village was owned by Pleasant Gilliam" (p. 33).

Or this: "At one time there was a fence that separated the Sewanee village from the University of the South" (p. 34).

It is also important to be reminded by those who came before us that Sewanee actually had a thriving retail district at one time. Mary Statem Hamilton, born in 1899, describes stores operated by Allen Gipson ('he catered mostly to school children with tablets and sold some groceries,' P.S. Brooks, who "sold dry goods, groceries, and some hardware;" a "dry goods store owned by Benny Levolitz;" merchants named John Powell and William Kennedy operated grocery stores; there was a Bank of Sewanee; and "Mrs. Baker operated a dress shop."

Next was "a hardware store owned by Joseph Fisher. He also carried toys and bicycles." Christian Ruef had a butcher shop. There was also a grocery store operated by Tom Gipson which later became a furniture store.

In his book "Sewanee Places," Gerald Smith, who has been at the University for 50 years, devotes a whole section to "Village," and writes: "Village. In the earliest Lease Book, the Sewanee Village. Also known as the Depot and as the Depot Village. The commercial area of Sewanee below Otey Parish" (p. 388).

In a famous court case, James R. Jetton et al versus the University of the South (1907), attorneys for the University argued that "the University ... controls the very life of the village....the village is enclosed and kept up by the University" (Chitty, Sewanee Sampler, p. 28).

Finally, in his history of the first 50 years of the University (1905), George Fairbanks, one of the original founders, repeatedly uses the term "village." For example (p. 124) he refers to "Sewanee station or village." Later he writes "the village of Sewanee has grown up around the station;" that "we have now at Sewanee village a passenger and freight station, eight business houses, several mechanics' shops, a handsome stone church, ... also a large steam laundry, a steam saw mill, a lodge of Knights of Honor and a Masonic Lodge." He refers to a "village improvement society, organized in 1902," which "has accomplished much in the laying out of stone-curbed broad walks from the railroad station to the University buildings...." (p. 378). He goes on to write, "Leaving the village, University Avenue extends northeast over a mile...."(p. 392).

The main takeaways seem to me to be, first, that "village" is not a new usage and, second, that seeking to create a successful retail district rather like the one that existed before any of us were born is very much in keeping with a Sewanee once fondly remembered by those no longer with us. I am guessing that Mrs. Hamilton, were she to return today, might well not even recognize Sewanee as she experienced it.

History teaches us, perhaps especially us "outsiders," humility. We need to be careful in declaring that what we know or have ourselves experienced is what has always been.

Vice Chancellor, Sewanee*

THANK-YOU TO PEARL'S

To the Editor:

MARC - Marion Animal Resource Connection thanks Robert and Susan Tyler, Pearl's for their gracious hosting of a donation party for MARC on Nov. 11, 2018. Robert and Susan have been faithful supporters of MARC having foster/adopted an English Bulldog from MARC and then fostering another one who got adopted in Boston. Robert suggested the party to help raise money to help the animals. The party was a success with about 30 party attendees enjoying fine food, drink and a relaxed atmosphere while learning about MARC and its mission.

We also thank artists Jeanie Stephenson, Susan Church, and Melissa Tobler, known on this Mountain, and Pat Wilee from Chattanooga for donating beautiful pieces of art for door prizes. Several lucky party goers took home very nice gifts.

Thank-you Ken Taylor and Taylor's Mercantile for wrapping all the door prizes so beautifully. The gifts were as beautiful on the outside as they were on the inside.

Finally, we thank Dr. George and Dr. Ashley Bowers, Animal Care Center in Decherd who attended and support MARC through their counsel and treatment of many MARC animals. They are an important part of our MARC team of resources.

Presentations by MARC's three founders, April Bowden, Anne Grindle, and Sue Scruggs brought lots of discussion and good ideas. We appreciate all the people who support MARC and the work we do to improve the lives of animals. We look forward to working with you this year making this a better place for animals to live.

Community Cleanup Day

University students, St. Andrews-Sewanee students, and community members are encouraged to gather for litter pick-up on Saturday, April 20. Titled "Hearts, Hands, and Headwaters," the event will be the kick-off for Earth Week, and the goals will be both aesthetic and ecological, getting plastics and other trash off our roadways and out of our waterways. This is the first annual event that honors the late Prof. Arthur Knoll, who organized annual community clean-ups for many years.

Volunteers will gather at 8:30 a.m. at the University cornerstone in Louisiana Circle, which is the point where the three main watersheds that drain the campus meet. After orientation, the group will fan out for trash pick-up along streets and streams and in woodlands within the three watersheds: Boiling Fork (Hawkins Cove), Mud Creek (Alto), and Lost Creek (Lost Cove).

After 9 a.m., volunteers rising a little later can go to the parking lot behind Fulford Hall to pick up materials and get assignments. Each cleanup site will have an on-site coordinator.

After the morning's work, everyone is encouraged to meet at noon at McClurg Dining Hall for a picnic lunch, provided at a special reduced price. Chef Rick and crew will be serving Impossible Burgers (Vegan), local grass-fed beef hamburgers from Double Tree Farms, whole wheat buns, condiments, tossed green salad sourced locally and from the University Farm, truffle garlic fries, and Planet Earth cupcakes.

The Bazzania Girls Band will provide music. Professor Martin Knoll, accompanied by Mother Earth, will be the MC. Prizes will be awarded for most trash collected, most unusual item collected, youngest and oldest participants, best get-up, and more.

The grand finale, scheduled for 1 p.m., will be a group photo of volunteers with the day's haul.

Organizations and groups teaming up to make this event possible include the Sewanee Community Council, the Office of Environmental Stewardship & Sustainability, Sustain Sewanee, Sewanee Headwaters Initiative, Civic Engagement, Greek Life, and Facilities Management.

Participants are encouraged to wear long pants and closed-toe shoes and bring work gloves. In case of inclement weather, the rain date will be 2 p.m., Sunday, April 28. For more information, contact <marypriestley@bellsouth.net>.

Catechumenate continues Wednesday, April 17, at 7 p.m. in All Saints’ Chapel. All are welcome! This week we will be reviewing the Great Vigil of Easter. Contact Kayla Deep <kayla.deep@sewanee.edu>.

A Gethsemane Watch—From the close of the Maundy Thursday service until the morning of Good Friday, the blessed sacrament will be in St. Augustine’s Chapel. Members of the community are invited to take part in this watch, much in the same way as Jesus’ disciples kept watch with him the night before his crucifixion. Volunteers are needed throughout the night. A sign-up sheet is located on the wall near the chapel office door or you may call 598-1274 to have your name added. Time slots are an hour in length; these slots are not restricted to just one person. The watch will end at 8 a.m. Good Friday morning. Decorators needed for Easter—On Saturday, April 20, beginning at 9 a.m., you are cordially invited to come and help the St. Augustine’s Flower Guild decorate the chapel for the Great Vigil of Easter and the Festival Easter Eucharist to be celebrated the following morning. All levels of skill and talent are needed. Coffee and pastries will be provided.

Christ Church

Palm Sunday begins with the Liturgy of the Palms which will begin around 10:30 a.m. The reading for this Sunday is from the Gospel accounts, and is also read on the First Sunday in Advent. After the singing of “All glory, laud, and honor,” the service moves into the solemnity of the Passion hymns, and the reading of the Epistle from Philippians 3. This is followed by the Passion Narrative from the Gospel according to St. Matthew. Christ Church is happy to share palms with anyone who wishes to take some home, or share them with shut-ins or those in hospitals.

During Holy Week there are numerous other services including Holy Wednesday at noon and Maundy Thursday at 6:40 p.m. Our Good Friday service is Tenebrae and begins at noon.

NOW ACCEPTING APPLICATIONS FOR CAREGIVERS

Last year we were delighted to have visitors from other churches, and we hope that this can become a custom, since some people do not drive at night and some churches, while honoring the day with private prayer, do not offer a public service. Please join us for this one hour service. We also have a very brief service at noon on Saturday, which is followed by decorating the church for Easter Day and placing the "He is risen" signs in front of the church.

Easter Day is called the "Queen of Feasts." We try to make it so with a full day starting around 10:30 a.m. and continuing with a festive meal and Easter egg hunt. Visitors are always welcomed and expected.

"Appalachia is not only white. It's not just poor white. It's a diverse space and always has been," Brown said in her talk.

The EKAAMP archive is a formal collection housed at the University of North Carolina Chapel Hill. Brown describes it as a community-driven project founded on the stories told by those that lived them.

Brown, who is a third-generation descendent of black coal miners, has worked on EKAAMP for the last eight years. Through her research, she's learned the importance of understanding and appreciating the overlooked parts of history.

"Both of my grandfathers were coal miners in the early 20th century in Lynch, Ky. My granddaddies were coal miners, and my parents were born, grew up, and raised in these coal towns. I'm not from this region, but I share roots," she said in her talk. "I wanted to research and study the black experience in Appalachia, but when I got to the archives, there wasn't anything on them for me to start my research. I had to go out into the streets and build one. I had to write the history so I could examine the questions I was interested in."

Woody Register, director of the project on Slavery, Race and Reconciliation, said the importance of Brown's work, and what he hopes the project is able to accomplish in Sewanee, is providing a more complete picture of the history of the South.

"What we're trying to do is expand African-American history beyond just those marquis moments. We want to recover and preserve and make known the history of everyday life here, the ways in which African Americans contributed to Sewanee life as laborers, as families, as leaders in the community. We want to enlarge what we think of as African-American history. They don't just come into existence when they do something special for the university or win a desegregation suit, although these are important too," Register said.

Brown detailed her work on the EKAAMP archive, explaining that any African-American person who claimed a shared history in or through Eastern Kentucky was invited to be part of the project.

"Not only are the community members a part of constituting this archive, but they are set up as the leaders. It's a big table, but there are only so many seats. Our intention was that the community members would have the most seats and the most prominent seats at the table," she said.

"The black experience in America is always tethered to this simultaneous experience of joy, community, family and expression. It's also tethered to a story of layered historical catastrophe that was inaugurated by the slave trade and the legacies of the traumas. Those two sets of experiences are already always part and parcel to the black experience."

Brown said in a community, an archive like EKAAMP can do at least three things—it can create a place for those whose are often ignored; it gives an opportunity for marginalized folks to be present and accounted for in history and it allows for those in the communities to be remembered in their own fashion.

"The foundation of this project are the stories. They confirm the historical record, but they also challenge it. Stories are how we pass on who we are to the next generation. In the black community, the oral tradition is part and parcel to who we are," she said. "The family who donated the biscuit tin, their mother was a homemaker, and they wanted to honor her labor. That biscuit can had holes in it because every day, she woke up and fed her family through this labor. To have those materials from the folks who experienced it, that is a rare archival material. We're really proud of this archive."

The center has received an outpouring of offers to help with rebuilding ranging from fundraising to hammers and nails. The main office was one of 10 buildings.

While donations, as always, are welcome, Henderson insisted, "We don't want to be opportunistic and fundraise off a tragedy."

How can people help? "Share your Highlander stories, how your families and communities were impacted, how your life was different because you were connected with Highlander."

July 31 marks the 60th anniversary of the nighttime raid that drove Highlander Folk School from its Monteagle home. "The lights were out. They were surrounded by law enforcement and white supremacists," said Henderson recounting a story told to her by Candi Carawan, wife of Highlander School music director Guy Carawan. "A 13-year-old black girl there for a workshop spontaneously broke into song, singing 'We are not afraid. We are not afraid today...' The most powerful verse of the 'We Shall Overcome' ballad was born in that moment."

"We've received support and love from every corner of the planet in languages I can't even read—Japan, the Philippines, Palestine, Kenya, South Africa—and from every state in Appalachia and most of the U.S."

"Our mission is to build community and a world where everyone has what they need and deserve and is treated with dignity and respect. This is work we're supposed to be doing. I'm more certain than ever."

St. Mary's Sewanee Names Interim Executive Director

St. Mary's Sewanee has announced that it has accepted the resignation of the Rev. Dr. Andy Anderson as executive director of St. Mary's Sewanee: The Ayres Retreat Center for Spiritual Development, effective April 30, 2019. In his place, the Board has hired former executive director the Rev. John Runkle to serve in a half-time interim capacity until a search for a new permanent replacement is completed.

Runkle previously served St. Mary's Sewanee from 2013 to 2017, when he departed to resume his architectural practice. Now he also serves as the Vicar of St. James Episcopal Church in Sewanee and will continue in that capacity. Runkle has extensive experience in church and nonprofit management, which includes service at the Washington National Cathedral and consulting with the Episcopal Church Center in New York.

Anderson joined St. Mary's Sewanee as executive director in September, 2017. He had previously served as a parish priest and rector in the Episcopal Church for almost 24 years. During his tenure, Andy focused on helping St. Mary's Sewanee raise much-needed capital funds to support its mission, raising its profile in the wider church and other constituency groups, and expanding its programming to attract a broader following. He and the staff also expanded program offerings, renewed attention to the buildings and grounds, and created new ways for the local community to regularly share the beauty, quiet, and rest of St. Mary's Sewanee. Nonetheless, Anderson has realized that his greatest love and heart for ministry are as a parish priest. He now believes that God is calling him to offer again his gifts and leadership through the life of the church in a parish community.

In departing, Anderson said,

John Runkle

"Thank you for entrusting me with the great privilege to serve at St. Mary's Sewanee. Words are not enough to say thank you to both the board and the staff for this opportunity, as well as to the Sewanee community for their encouragement and response. So let me say 'thank you, thank you, to all exponentially!' Godspeed, prayers, blessings, and much love for God's work through St. Mary's Sewanee as you move into a bright future of service and commitment in offering people a place to know God's love and presence in deep ways. I know St. Mary's Sewanee will continue to be a place for rest, renewal, and reconnection for countless people on the spiritual journey."

St. Mary's Sewanee's board president Dale Grimes expressed the feelings of the board of trustees in thanking Anderson very much for his contributions over the last 18 months, and wishing him well as he moves into a new phase of ministry. He also stated, "We are indeed fortunate that our former executive director John Runkle resides on the Mountain and is willing to step in to provide continuity and leadership as we continue to build on the legacy and inspiration of our founder Bob Ayres." He said a search for a permanent executive director will begin soon.

Groundbreaking for New Bookstore April 13

A groundbreaking ceremony for the new university bookstore will be held at 1:30 p.m., Saturday, April 13, at the new bookstore location, 120 University Ave. The community is invited.

The new bookstore will be a two-story building with a large front porch and a prominent entrance on University Avenue. Adjacent parking will be provided on the south side of the building (near the post office). The bookstore has been designed to serve both the university and the local community, with a gathering place on the first level for book signings and other special events. In addition to a book inventory similar to that offered in the previous location, the upper level will provide a generous amount of space for clothing, supplies, and other merchandise.

The ceremony will include brief remarks from University Vice-Chancellor John McCardell and Board of Regents Chair Joe DeLozier.

Leadership Grundy County Teams with Food Bank

Leadership Grundy Class of 2019 is teaming up with the Grundy County Food Bank. This group of community leaders in Grundy County have begun a fundraising campaign for the Grundy County Food Bank as part of their class' yearly project. The funds are being raised primarily to assist the Food Bank in purchasing new, critical equipment.

Leadership Grundy is stressing that no donation is too small. Anything contributed can help make an impact for an organization that has become an institution in Grundy County and on which hundreds of Grundy residents rely on every month.

The Grundy County Food Bank is currently located in Tracy City and has been serving the community since 1983. The organization works to provide assistance for those living with food insecurity throughout the South Cumberland Plateau, to meet their monthly food needs. Each month they serve approximately 210 families. Out of those families, approximately 75 percent of the recipients are either elderly or disabled; many of them are also raising grandchildren. The food bank is open once a week for families to come in.

The Food Bank operates with one staff member, and otherwise only continues through the assistance and time given by a handful of volunteers. As the roof begins to leak and the Food Bank starts to seek new housing for their operations, they simultaneously are grappling with problematic equipment and a frequently breaking refrigerator truck. The Leadership Grundy fundraising attempt is hoping to assist in the purchase of a new refrigerator truck, a digital scale to help with the current beam scale, a computer to replace the aging one, and an electronic pallet jack.

Donations can be made on GoFundMe if someone searches for "Grundy County Food Bank" or visit <www.gofundme.com/grundy-county-food-bank-needs-our-help>.

SCA Honors Sherrills, Knight, and Beavers

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

At the April 4 dinner meeting, the Sewanee Civic Association (SCA) presented the 36th annual Community Service Award, and a Summa Cum Laude Award. The 2019 Community Service Award co-recipients were the Sherrill family and Amanda Knight. Kiki Beavers received the Summa Cum Laude Award.

If you need help, tell a Sherrill, or so goes the local maxim. Family patriarch James Sherrill served in an array of civic roles—cemetery caretaker, police officer, firefighter, and post office agent to name a few. His wife Cleo Sherrill was also an active community volunteer. The Sherrill children and grandchildren have extended the family legacy of community service coordinating the July Fourth celebration, assisting with Operation Noel, serving as firefighters and police officers, and reaching out to anyone in need. The family's garden continues to feed the Sewanee flock. Police Officer Dylan McClure, grandson of James and Cleo, received the award on the family's behalf.

Midway resident Amanda Knight's gift is for making magic happen behind the scenes. Knight orchestrated receiving a grant to improve the Midway playground, organizes trunk or treat, meet Santa, and Easter egg hunts events, and helps coordinate the summer meals program. She's worked for years on behalf of the Cowan-Sewanee Little League program and keeping the ball park in repair, along with organizing fundraisers and working at the concession stand. She also serves on the Sewanee Elementary School Parent Organization and the Community Council Parks Committee. Knight turned the opportunity to comment into an act of community service, remarking "If anyone would like to donate to the ball field, we'd really appreciate it. We need lights."

Kiki Beavers received the Summa Cum Laude Award. The award recognizes volunteers whose long-time commitment to the community and behind the scenes work often goes unacknowledged. Beavers' gift for organizing and promoting saw the SCA through successful Community Chest fundraising campaigns. As SCA president, Beavers was the driving force behind fundraising and coordinating the Elliott Park renovation, seeing the years' long project through to completion. Outside the SCA, Beavers has volunteered for the St. Andrew's-Sewanee Parents' Council auction, worked with the youth soccer organization, and helped with many other youth activities.

In receiving the award, Beavers said, "I accept this award on behalf of anyone who ever stood up and said, 'I'll go coach that team, I'll be on the PTO. I'll run your fundraiser or spaghetti dinner.' On behalf of anyone who went out and mowed the soccer and baseball fields every single week, on behalf of anyone who has ever done anything community minded. Everyone has something to give, whether it is time or money. You need to support what matters."

Andean Fire Ceremony

After living in the Sewanee area for 24 years, Heidemarie Huber Feely is going to Peru for a year. She is flying to Cusco on April 19 to volunteer as an English teacher and to learn from the Q'ero, the Quechua speaking people of the Andean mountains.

In order to say goodbye and thank-you to friends and community of the Sewanee area, Heidemarie Huber is offering a Fire Ceremony, with the support of Stephen Feely. The event will be at 8:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 16. Rain date is Wednesday, April 17. Both Stephen and Heidemarie respectfully offer this tradition that has been passed down with permission by the descendants of the Inca people. It will be free and open to the public.

This ceremony acknowledges the cosmology of the Inca, while honoring each participant's own personal experience of the sacred. All religious beliefs are welcome here.

All ages of humans are welcome; if you need to bring your pet, please discuss with Heidemarie first. Please contact Heidemarie for directions and questions at <huber.feely@gmail.com> or (931) 636-2291.

Lincoln Lecture

James Cornelius, curator of the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library in Springfield, Ill., will lecture on “What’s New in Lincoln and Civil War Studies,” at 4 p.m., Monday, April 15, in Gailor Auditorium.

During the 20th century, historians and society overall, shifted from looking at decisions and words by the high-profile figures such as presidents, generals, church leaders, leaders of Congress and the courts, to an interesting new focus on the lesser-known or unknown voices: sergeants, servants, slaves, farmers and tradesmen, and especially women. In the 21st century, good history combines these two strands, but we also benefit from the continuing discovery of long-lost original documents: letters by Mary Lincoln, statistical work on the numbers killed in the Civil War; overseas activity having to do with slavery and abolition. We’ve even finally learned what Lincoln thought of the Irish Potato Famine of 1845–48; what became of his dog; whether African-Americans had his permission to use the White House lawn; and perhaps most of all why (some people think) the Civil War was inevitable, and whether Lincoln’s hopes for Reconstruction were realistic.

Novelist Jay Parini to Give Talk on St. Paul

Author Jay Parini will return to Sewanee to give a talk, “St. Paul and the Idea of Easter,” at 4:30 p.m., Thursday, April 18, in Convocation Hall. A book signing and reception will follow, and the public is welcome.

In his new novel, “The Damascus Road,” Parini brings the fascinating and ever-controversial figure of Paul of Tarsus to full human life, capturing his visionary passions and vast contradictions. In relating Paul’s epic journeys, both geographical and spiritual, he unfolds a vivid panorama of the ancient world on the verge of epochal change. And in the alternating voice of the Gospel writer Luke, Paul’s travel companion and ghostwriter, a cooler perspective on his actions and beliefs emerges.

Parini is regarded as one of the leading innovators in the genre of biographical fiction. “While Parini’s contributions to American letters are many and varied, as he is a first-rate poet, a well-respected critic, and a masterful novelist,” writes Michael Lackey of the University of Minnesota, Morris, “he is a pioneer, as both a practitioner and theoretician, in the genre of the biographical novel.”

On April 5, Joseph Sumpter of Joseph's Remodeling helped Tigers Don't Leave Tracks! lead a Materials Matter demonstration for the students of Sewanee Elementary. The students thought about what it takes to make, use and dispose of different building materials and packaging, and compared the true costs of different materials and packaging over time.

Mrs. Barnes' first-grade class won the latest Tigers Don't Leave Tracks! reusable bag draw.

SAS Celebrates 38th Annual Earth Day

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School will celebrate its 38th annual Earth Day on Wednesday, April 17. Since 1982, the school has suspended regular classes for one full day each year of learning and fun in celebration of the environment.

The school community will convene in McCrory Hall for the Performing Arts at 8 a.m. to hear architect and director of design Matt Brown of franklin|architects speak. Matt's design team designed Wade Hall for the Sciences, SAS's award-winning, LEED-certified, academic building. Workshops will begin at 9 a.m. followed by an Earth Day picnic feast prepared by students. Following lunch, the entire SAS community will gather in McCrory Hall for an Earth Day-inspired Creative Expression Assembly, an opportunity to share music, poetry, and skits. The day's celebrations end with House Cup Games at the varsity field.

Workshops this year focus on environmentally-conscious shopping, cooking, activism, activity in nature, and art. Students will explore Green politics, astronomy-inspired music, old growth forests, local botany, caves, science fiction, and math in nature. They will visit nearby farms, contribute to the graffiti gallery currently in the SAS Gallery, help to clean up the SAS campus, work in the school's orchard, mountain bike, fish, hike, and practice yoga. They will merge art and nature by making dreamcatchers, watercolor paintings, recycled art, sun prints, pressed plants, and a scale model of the solar system.

Matt Brown is the Director of Design and Principal at franklin|architects in Chattanooga. Matt is passionate about research and its application in design and problem solving. As a result, his firm has received numerous awards, including one for Wade Hall. In 2015 he attended the Learning Environments for Tomorrow Institute at Harvard University, which assembled school designers from around the world to address the impact of the built environment on learning. His passion for environmental stewardship has resulted in six LEED-certified buildings, including Wade Hall. Matt serves on the boards of several nonprofit community organizations and actively participates in workshops and initiatives that promote value, community, and a strong sense of place.

SCC Progressive Dinner

On Saturday, April 27, you are invited to join in the Sewanee Children's Center's 70th year celebration by taking part in the third annual Progressive Dinner, an evening of food and fun to be held at various locations across the community.

You may reserve your tickets ($60 per couple, $35 for singles) at the Children's Center (SCC) by contacting Sandy Glacet at <sewaneechildrenscenter@gmail.com>. The evening's activities will begin with hors d'oeuvres and conversation. Participants will then move to their designated host's home for a lovely seated dinner. A final participant-wide dessert gathering will conclude the evening's event. Participants will be notified of their appetizer and dining assignments the week before.

Proceeds from this major fundraising event will be directed toward the Center's continuing commitment to excellence in pre-school education, offered in a safe and nurturing environment by teachers and staff whose goal is to draw out the unique creativity and personality of each and every child.

M. Night Shyamalan brings together the narratives of two of his standout originals—2000's "Unbreakable," from Touchstone, and 2016's "Split," from Universal—in one explosive, all-new comic-book thriller: "Glass." From "Unbreakable," Bruce Willis returns as David Dunn as does Samuel L. Jackson as Elijah Price, known also by his pseudonym Mr. Glass. Joining from "Split" are James McAvoy, reprising his role as Kevin Wendell Crumb and the multiple identities who reside within, and Anya Taylor-Joy as Casey Cooke, the only captive to survive an encounter with The Beast. Following the conclusion of "Split," Glass finds Dunn pursuing Crumb's superhuman figure of The Beast in a series of escalating encounters, while the shadowy presence of Price emerges as an orchestrator who holds secrets critical to both men.

Arts Guild Crocheting Sleeping Mats for Homeless

A dedicated group of ladies at the Franklin County Arts Guild have been crocheting mats that can be used by anyone who sleeps outdoors. The mats are made from "plarn" — plastic yarn made from plastic grocery bags — and the mats are easy to make, lightweight, waterproof and provide a more comfortable place to rest.

To expand their efforts, the Franklin County Arts Guild group is starting an ongoing workshop to create more mats. During the month of April, the Artisan Depot is gathering plastic grocery bags of the type given at Kroger, Walmart and Dollar General.

Bags may be dropped off at the Artisan Depot during regular hours: Thursday, Friday and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m., Saturday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Mini-workshops to craft the mats will begin on Wednesday, May 1. The sleep mats will be distributed to a homeless mission in Nashville by the Harmony Cumberland Presbyterian Church, the Belvidere Family & Community Education and The Journey Church in Winchester.

If you'd like to participate in this project, please contact Joyce Adams at (931) 962-0280.

Ed Carlos Exhibit at Frame Gallery

Frame Gallery presents "Swept Away, Drawn Into & Adrift in the Blue" by Ed Carlos through April 30. The reception for the artist and an artist talk are tonight, April 12, 5:30-7 p.m.

Carlos and his wife, Sarah, have been residents of Sewanee since 1969 when Carlos accepted a teaching position and eventually chaired the Fine Arts Department of The University of the South. During his 36 years at the university, Carlos also managed the University Gallery for 15 years. Carlos has exhibited widely, usually with thematically-oriented work as with the title of this exhibit.

Since his retirement in 2005, Carlos created his studio and gallery - IONA: Art Sanctuary, where he manages a seasonal Festival of Fine Arts giving area creative writers and local artists opportunities to share their own creative works. IONA is located at 630 Garner-town Rd., Sewanee.

ANGELWITH AN ATTITUDE

by Virginia Craighill

Dear Angel,

I hear a lot about "brands" and "re-branding" at the University, but I don't really know what that means. Isn't our brand the Barbour jacket? Why do we need people from outside to tell us what we are supposed to be?

Signed, Image Conscious

Dear Imagist,

Somehow the concept of re-branding brings to mind a herd of cattle being sent through a chute and having hot metal in the shape of YSR burned into their flanks. However, in this case the consultants-for-hire who rode into town with pens a-blasting want the University to go farther than the Stronger, Truer brand, and insist that three, triple-syllable words in a row are sexier than two in today's competitive higher education market, and the more alliterative, the better. To that end, all of Sewanee's offices, programs, and departments will be re-christened to sound like law firms. For example, the Advancement Office will be re-branded as The Office of Donations, Dividends, and Dinero, and the Office of Admission will now be known as the Bureau of Enrollment, Enticement, and Encentive [sic].

These experts in academic optics, who get Fat Fees for Finding Faults, spent an arduous 30 minutes walking around campus looking for a Starbucks, and came up with the following suggestions for luring superior students: 1) put cute purple tiger paw tracks on the sidewalks to guide students to class; 2) hang colorful welcome banners and applaud for prospectives wherever you see them as if they'd just achieved something extraordinary; 3) wash off those dirty rocks on the buildings; 4) get a Starbucks on campus. Once Sewanee implements these surefire marketing ploys, we'll have to turn the students away.

Instead of paying outside firms to tell us what to do, polling people who live and work here might be the cheaper and more effective alternative. It seems fairly obvious that putting goats on the quad and re-branding the English department as the Department of Fashion, Design and Aerospace Dynamics will make Sewanee more attractive to the 21st century college consumer.

So, "YSR," or "Yeah, Sewanee's Re-branded!"

SAS Middle School Tennis Serves Up the Season

The middle school girls' and boys' teams opened their seasons on April 4 against Coffee County Middle School. The girls' team lost 0-7 but gained great experience on the court. Melanie Val and Reagan Vaughan showed courage playing in their very first tennis match while more experienced players, Sarah Brewster and Madeline Sumpter, showed improved court management. The middle school boys' team dropped a tight match 3-4. Cameron Crawford (No. 2) and Dylan Kinningham (No. 3) contributed singles wins. Grayson Cleveland and Crawford teamed up at No. 1 doubles to add one more win. Additionally, Aiden Tate added a singles win in an exhibition match at the No. 7 slot.

On April 5, the girls' team fell to Webb Bell Buckle, 1-6. The matches were close, and the girls showed improved consistency. Melanie Val and Reagan Vaughan won their first tennis match with a 7-5 victory at No. 2 doubles.

The boys' team enjoyed a 7-0 win against Webb. Grayson Cleveland won at No. 1 singles 6-0. The remainder of the matches were won by default as Webb did not have enough players. The SAS team took the opportunity to play inter-squad matches and exhibition matches against the Webb girls so that all players got plenty of practice and match experience.

Sewanee Women's Tennis Completes Perfect Weekend, Sweeping Berry and Oglethorpe

The No. 26 Sewanee women's tennis team completed a perfect weekend, April 6-7, on the tennis courts, sweeping Berry and Oglethorpe at the Bruton-Guerry Tennis Center.

Prior to the first serve on Saturday, seniors Mary Jane McCaghren, Maura McCrary, Sara Thompson and Haley Tucker were recognized for their dedication and service to the program.

The Tigers swept doubles play against Berry, but the Vikings, the 17th-ranked team in the region, did not make it easy for the home team. Catherine Owen/Ellie Czura at the No. 1 survived a close battle with Allison Ivey and Kathryn Barker.

In singles Owen, Maury McCrary and Caroline Adams played a 7-5 tiebreak in the opening set. Each player took the opening set and won their respective point.

In Sunday's match, the doubles teams of Sewanee allowed just eight points on the defensive side. Mary Jane McCaghren won the No. 2 point with a 6-4, 7-5 win over Shannon Cruz of the Petrels.

Freshman Brandon Kali won in all of his three matches over the weekend, once in doubles and twice in singles. The Sewanee men's tennis team, ranked 18th in the nation, extended its winning streak to seven matches with a 6-3 win over Oglethorpe, Sunday inside the Guerry Indoor Courts. Photo by Lyn Hutchinson

Sewanee Women's Lacrosse Powers Past Hendrix

The Sewanee women's lacrosse team earned a dominating 22-12 win over the Warriors of Hendrix College April 6.

Sewanee scored six of the first seven goals of the contest to sprint out to a 6-1 lead with over 20 minutes left in the period.

Hendrix made it a two-goal contest with over 15 minutes left in the opening half, but the Tigers responded with four straight goals to lead 10-4 with 10 minutes left in the opening half.

Sewanee kept the foot on the gas pedal as they led the contest 12-6 at the break.

Hendrix came out scoring in the second half with two goals in the first minute-plus to make it a 13-8 affair, but the Tigers scored nine of the next 11 goals to seal the contest.

The Tigers' 22 goals in the contest ties the fourth-most in program history, with the last coming on Mar. 9, 2015 vs. The College of Wooster (22-16).

Sarah Strand led the Tigers with a career-best seven goals on 11 shots. Finishing the game with eight points thanks to an assist, the sophomore also added eight draw controls.

Preston Cooper and Kelly Thomsen each added a hat trick.

Hattie Fogarty forced six turnovers and won seven draw controls.

Brianna Young (5-4) started the game and saved five shots in 30 minutes.

The regular season will conclude next Saturday for Sewanee, as a first round bye in the SAA Tournament will be on the line as Centre comes to the Domain. The winner of this contest will earn an opening round bye and the right to host a semifinal game in the conference tournament, scheduled to begin April 19.

MARC Call for Volunteers

MARC (Marion Animal Resource Connection) is a 501(c)3 non-profit organization of volunteer citizens concerned about the welfare of animals. MARC was created to assist people and animals live more humanely in Marion County and the surrounding areas, and to help ease the social burden of too many stray dogs and cats.

Through its directors and volunteers, MARC provides education for children and adults about humane care and treatment of animals. MARC connects people with affordable spay/neuter procedures to begin decreasing the number of unwanted and costly litters. MARC works with county and town governments to prevent needless killing of impounded dogs and cats. MARC works with individuals and other animal groups to try to find good homes for unwanted dogs and cats.

MARC is not a shelter. We can save only the number of animals for which we have foster homes. We are a resource to help residents find safe places for strays, dumped, and unwanted animals. Residents who call MARC for help will be encouraged to foster the animals, while we work hard hopefully to find a place to relocate the animals.

MARC was founded in October, 2011 by April Bowden, Director; Anne Grindle, Director of Education; and Sue Scruggs, Executive Director. They started in Marion County where they lived and frequented and saw numerous stray, neglected, or abused dogs and cats and nothing being done to help. MARC quickly grew to helping people and pets in counties surrounding Marion. Today, many animals helped come from Franklin, Grundy, and Sequatchie Counties and from bordering areas of GA and AL.

Join the mission to improve the lives of animals. Support MARC by volunteering or donating. Currently MARC is looking for foster homes, people to teach, a board member to represent Monteagle/Sewanee, drivers of the MARC van to transport animals, a fundraising person, a social media/ website person, people to assess dogs and cats as they come into MARC's program and volunteers in general. If you are interested in being part of MARC please contact MARC through the website <marc4change.org> or email at <info@marc4change.org>.

Financial donations can be made through the MARC website through PayPal or by sending a check to MARC at PO Box 153, Jasper, TN 37347

Sewanee Herbarium Spring 2019 Calendar of Events

16th Annual Trails & Trilliums Festival, Friday-Sunday, April 12-14, DuBose Conference Center. The Herbarium Staff is involved in several events in this year's Festival, including a walk in Shakerag Hollow. See the Trails & Trilliums website, <http://www.trailsandtrilliums.org> for the whole schedule. Numbers are limited and pre-registration is encouraged.

69th Annual Spring Wildflower Pilgrimage, Great Smoky Mountains National Park, April 24-27. Mary Priestley will lead nature journaling workshops. Mary and Yolande Gottfried will each be leading wildflower walks. Please see <http://www.wildflowerpilgrimage.org/> for more information. Registration online is recommended.

Shakerag Hollow—Sunday, April 28, 2 p.m., with Mary Priestley. A walk among the abundant and diverse spring wildflowers of this partly old-growth forest area. Meet at the Green's View parking lot (past the golf course). Two miles, moderate to strenuous, with one fairly challenging incline.

Piney Point—Sunday, May 5, 1:30 p.m., with Yolande Gottfried. The community of plants that grows on the sandstone outcrops along the trail to Piney Point, including the rare elf orpine, is a special one. This moderate one-to-two hour walk begins at the tennis courts at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School (beyond the football field).

The herbarium sponsors a nature journaling group that meets Thursdays, 9–11 a.m. led by Mary Priestley. Come try it out – stick with it if you like. Bring an unlined journal (or a few sheets of unlined paper) and a pen or pencil. No experience needed. The group meets in Spencer room 173. All are welcome. Email Mary at <mpriestley0150@gmail.com> for more information.

Wear appropriate shoes on all of these walks. Risks involved in hiking include physical exertion, rough terrain, forces of nature, and other hazards not present in everyday life. Picking flowers and digging plants are prohibited in all of the above-mentioned natural areas.

For more information on these or other Sewanee Herbarium events, please contact Yolande Gottfried at the Herbarium (931-598-3346) or by email at <ygottfri@sewanee.edu>. A map of meeting place locations is available at <http://sewanee.edu/media/offices/herbarium/sewanee_herbarium_maps.pdf>.

BARDTOVERSE

by Phoebe Bates

Palm Sunday

When fishes flew and forests walked
And figs grew upon thorn,
Some moment when the moon was blood
Then surely I was born.

With monstrous head and sickening cry
And ears like errant wings,
The devil's walking parody
On all four-footed things.

The tattered outlaw of the earth,
Of ancient crooked will;
Starve, scourge, deride me: I am dumb,
I keep my secret still.

Fools! For I also had my hour;
One far fierce hour and sweet:
There was a shout about my ears,
And palms before my feet.

--G. K. Chesterton, "The Donkey"
