Sylvia A. Earle

Oceanographer Sylvia A. Earle is explorer-in-residence at the National Geographic Society, and a former (and first woman) chief scientist of NOAA. She first used scuba gear as a teenager, and has since led more than 100 expeditions and spent 7,500 hours underwater. Earle founded Mission Blue/Sylvia Earle Alliance, a foundation that works to establish Hope Spots, protected places in the ocean where exploitation is prohibited, around the world. She is the recipient of more than 150 national and international

Cell Tower Location Discussion Ongoing

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

At the Sept. 9 Sewanee Community Council meeting, a long discussion about locating a new cell tower near the water tower off Breakfield Road led to a suggestion to erect the tower in a nearby wooded area. "We would consider it," said Vice-Chancellor John McCardell. More than 30 community members attended the meeting. A proposal to bring 1 Gbps fiber optic internet service to all leaseholds, partially funded by the leaseholders, also prompted much discussion. [See "Fiber Optic Service to Every House Proposed," page 6.]

Strong community objection to locating a cell tower behind the football stadium and an "adverse affect" ruling by the State Historic Preservation Office prompted a search for another site. According to Eric Hartman, vice president of risk management and institutional effectiveness, the water tower location would require a taller tower, 285 feet as opposed to 185 feet. Verizon, the primary service provider who would use the new tower, said mounting equipment on the water tower walk-around, height 130 feet, would not provide adequate propagation. Likewise, locating the tower further down Breakfield Road would not provide adequate propagation. Verizon also rejected the former convenience center as a possible location due to liability concerns from toxic chemicals revealed in a bore sample. Close proximity to the airport ruled out other possible locations.

Many community members expressed health concerns about the water tower site, pointing to World Health Organization data indicating cell towers "are not guaranteed to be safe." The nearest residence, the Malde home, would be 1,000 feet from the tower.

"The University is not going to put any of our neighbors at risk unnecessarily," insisted McCardell. "There are enough other communities that have erected towers who have decided there is no risk or insignificant risk."

At 285 feet, the tower would require a light, Hartman said, "likely red." He also noted the height might not be sufficient and an additional tower might be needed for satisfactory propagation.

One community member pointed to decreased property values for leaseholds near the tower and asked if the University would provide compensation.

"We haven't discussed that," Hartman said.

In response to the suggestion to move the location from near the water tower into the nearby woods, Hartman said, "I don't know if Verizon is interested in pushing it further into the woods." But Hartman stressed

SCC Funding Applications Due Sept. 16

The Sewanee Community Chest (SCC) funding applications are due Monday, Sept. 16. Please contact <sewaneecommunitychest@gmail.com> to have an application emailed to your organization. A downloadable request for funds form is available at <sewaneeccivc.org>.

Nonprofit organizations serving the Mountain are encouraged to apply. The SCC does not allocate funds to those organizations discriminating on the basis of race, creed, sex or national origin.

The SCC is a nonprofit organization and relies on funding from the community in order to support charitable programs throughout the greater Sewanee area. Contributions, payroll deductions and pledges are accepted at any time at P.O. Box 99, Sewanee, TN 37375. Donations can also be made online through the PayPal and Amazon Smile links on the website.

Community Funding Project Application

The Sewanee Community Funding Project Committee in conjunction with the Sewanee Community Council is again seeking proposals for physical improvements and amenities on the Domain. When completed, these improvements should enhance the community and improve the quality of life of residents and possibly visitors.

We welcome projects both big and small from individuals as well as organizations. The total funding available is $20,000.

To access the online application, please email <sewaneeccfproject@sewanee.edu> and a link to the form will be emailed to you. Copies can be picked up at various locations in Sewanee. Mail those paper forms to Pixie Dozier at 133 Carriage Lane, Sewanee, TN 37375 by Friday, Nov. 1.

Update to Classifieds Renewal Date

As many of you may know, the Sewanee Civic Association (SCA) is responsible for running and maintaining Classifieds. In the past, we have had multiple Directors of Classifieds (DoC's) who have graciously volunteered their time to ensure that our community can stay connected. We love Classifieds as much as you do, which is why we believe it is important to occasionally make changes that allow us to continue improving the service.

The membership renewal process has been one of the biggest challenges we've faced with Classifieds. As some of you have likely experienced, the process of renewing your account is a fairly manual and timely undertaking. We've tried to manage annual renewals monthly; with more than 600 members (and growing!) that means that at any given time we're emailing 50 people reminding them to renew, tracking down their payments, and updating their accounts. There has hardly been time to do anything else aside from keeping the system functional.

Going forward, we will have a single, annual renewal date: Oct. 1. This means that everyone's renewal date will be the same. Each September, we'll send out an email reminding you that the annual renewal is approaching. Anyone who pays between Sept. 1 and Oct. 1 will be added to the coming year's Classifieds membership on Oct. 1. Anyone who pays after that Oct. 1 will be added to the list as soon as payment is received and processed. Everyone's membership will expire on Oct. 1 of the following year. Keep in mind that the $10 annual fee for your subscription will remain the same.

We want to make this change as unobtrusive as possible, so anyone who has paid since June 1 of this year will be included in this coming year's membership (you only need to renew your payment by Oct. 1 if you last paid before June 1). Members will receive an email letting them know that they do not need to renew their subscription.

As always, you can find information on joining or renewing on our website: <<http://sewanee.org/sewanee-classifieds/>>. We're currently working to update it with information regarding the new process. If you join or renew via PayPal, be sure to click on the link on the Classifieds page which prompts a donation of $10, and not the "Donate to Community Chest" link.

We have several projects we'd like to undertake to make the Classifieds service and user experience even better for you. We believe that freeing up our time and resources from managing the renewal process will enable us to work on these improvement projects. If you have any questions, concerns, or ideas on how to improve the Classifieds experience, don't hesitate to reach out: <sewanee.org@gmail.com>.

American Legion Programs

Passed by Congress and signed by President Trump on July 30, 2019, the LEGION Act (Let Everyone Get Involved In Opportunities for National Service Act) opens the door for approximately 6 million veterans to access American Legion programs and benefits for which they previously had not been eligible.

The American Legion's eligibility criteria immediately changes from seven war eras to two: April 6, 1917, to Nov. 11, 1918, and Dec. 7, 1941 to a time later determined by the federal government. No other restrictions to American Legion membership are changed.

If you have served one day on active duty and were honorably discharged or still serving honorably, you can join the American Legion. If you are interested in becoming a Legion member, please join us at our next regular meeting at 9 a.m., Saturday, Sept. 14. If you have any questions, send an email to <info@legionpost51.org>

All Saints’ Chapel

Growing in Grace continues Sunday, Sept. 15, at 6:30 p.m. in All Saints’ Chapel. For our semester-long series “One Step Before Me,” we’re asking each of our speakers to share about another person—from history or from their own life—who has impacted or shaped them. In reflecting on a “personal saint” who made their path clearer, our speakers allow us all the opportunity to experience gratitude for all who have given us strength to wander and learn. Email Lay Chaplain Kayla Deep if you have any questions. We hope to see you there—and bring a friend!

The Catechumenate continues this Wednesday, Sept. 18, at 7 p.m. in the Bairnwick Women’s Center. Catechumenate, from a Greek word meaning “learning and exploring,” is a place where we explore what it means to be a human being and what it means to be a person of faith in our community. This is a great place to meet new people and build relationships. Food, prayer, questions and conversation power this process. Contact Lay Chaplain Kayla Deep for directions or more information <kayla.deep@sewanee.edu>.

Cowan Fellowship Church

On Sept. 15, there will be a 50th Anniversary Celebration at Cowan Fellowship Church. In 1962 the Cowan Methodist Church and the Cowan Presbyterian Church voted to combine with a shared pastor and a unified ministry. In 1969 the federated church, known as Cowan Fellowship, moved into a beautiful 200-seat sanctuary. Join us on Sunday, Sept. 15 for our 50th year in the “new” church! We will hold a celebration service at 11 a.m. and lunch is served afterward. Cowan Fellowship is located at 609 E. Cumberland St.

For more information log on to <www.cowanfellowship.org> or dial (931) 563-3796.

Harrison Chapel Church will host a Family and Friends Day, Sunday, Sept. 22. The service be-

Toni Daniels to Lead Godly Play Training

On three Saturdays this fall, Toni Daniels will offer training toward certification in the Godly Play method, hosted by Otey Memorial Parish in Sewanee. Godly Play is a Montessori-based spiritual practice that includes storytelling and contemplation. Godly Play is practiced in churches, schools and hospitals across the United States and around the world.

Toni Daniels is an ordained minister with Comunitas International and author of “Back to Joy: An Intimate Journey with Jesus into Emotional Health and Maturity.” She has worked in Pastoral Counseling and Leadership Development for more than 20 years offering international training workshops and skills-based coaching. In 2005, upon experiencing the presence of God in a full Godly Play session in Amsterdam, Toni dedicated her life to seeing Godly Play take root in Uruguay, SA. Eleven years later, over 200 Uruguayans were practicing Godly Play reaching more than 3,000 children.

The Saturday retreat-style trainings will explore children’s spirituality and teach participants how to practice Godly Play storytelling and response time. Those who complete the full training will have heard or told most of the stories in the curriculum, and will have a strong understanding of the foundational teachings of Godly Play.

Training will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Sept. 14 (Sacred Stories), Oct. 26 (Parables) and Nov. 9, (Liturgical Action), with lunch provided. Godly Play training open to everyone, registration required. In most cases, the training costs are paid by a home church, school, or hospital that implements the program. To receive certification as a Godly Play storyteller, the trainee must complete all three sessions; however, those who attend one or two sessions have the option of completing the training at another training session later, in Sewanee or elsewhere. For more information, please contact Jeannie Babb at Otey Memorial Parish <oteyformation@gmail.com>.

Fiber Optic Service for Every House Proposed

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

Eric Hartman described the proposal to bring fiber optic internet service to all leaseholders as “led by Ben Lomand, powered by Duck River, and supported by the University of the South.” Hartman, head of University Risk Management, addressed Sewanee residents and the Sewanee Community Council at the Sept. 9 meeting.

Ben Lomand would provide the service, Hartman explained, and Duck River’s infrastructure would deliver the service. Subscribing to the fee-based service would be optional.

Beyond the installation expenses Ben Lomand and Duck River will pay for, “the cost is $725,000,” said Vice-Chancellor John McCardell. “The University is in for about 15 percent of that, or about $100,000. The remaining 85 percent needs to be covered in some way.”

The 15 percent figure is based on the fact that of 555 total leaseholds, 15 percent are University properties.

McCardell proposed a possible payment model in which residents and businesses would be assessed $12.50 per month and nonresidents $50 per month for 10 years.

“We’re not looking for a specific decision,” McCardell said, “We’re simply asking your opinion about what is a fair spreading of this cost over a period of time.”

Council representative Eric Keen noted some leaseholders would “use the service more than others and not all need it.”

McCardell stressed the discussion was about “laying the infrastructure,” not about whether individuals chose to “avail themselves of the service.”

No vote was taken. No other objections were raised.

Suggestions from council members and residents for proportioning the cost included basing the share each leaseholder paid on property values and offering a discount to leaseholders who paid up front as opposed to over time. Opinions varied on whether residents and nonresidents should pay the same amount.

Ben Lomand was ready to begin construction immediately, Hartman said.

the service provider was committed to “trying to make it work.” Hartman noted the Environmental Protection Agency objected to tree cutting due to concerns about bats.

No contracts have been signed with Verizon or the company that would own the tower, Hartman said. He estimated the rent the University charged at $1,000 per month, but said nothing had been negotiated.

McCardell insisted the conversation was ongoing and invited additional questions and comments.

In other business, Sewanee Community Funding Project chair Pixie Dozier announced $20,000 was available for improvements and amenities “to enhance the community and improve the quality of life.” Applications are available at various locations throughout the community and online by emailing <sewaneefproject@gmail.com>. The deadline for applying is Nov. 1.

Election officer Charles Whitmer announced a special election would be held to fill a vacant District 4 seat. Candidates must reside in District 4 and submit a nominating petition signed by 10 District 4 residents before Oct. 4. Nominating petitions are available at the Lease Office, the “Blue House,” on University Avenue. Voting will take place at the Lease Office, through Oct. 25. Only District 4 residents can vote in this special election.

Unlearning Racism

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

“We’ve all internalized negative messages,” said Beverly Daniel Tatum, speaking about people’s unwillingness to talk about race and racism. In a conversation format presentation, Tatum led the audience into a complex and at times painful awareness of where those negative messages come from and how to “unlearn” them.

Cassie Myer, director of the Dialogue Across Difference Programs, moderated the conversation with Tatum. President emeritus of Spellman College, honored as a leader in race relations and higher education, and author of the book, “Why Are all the Black Kids Sitting Together in the Cafeteria?”, Tatum introduced audience members to themselves by asking them to recall their earliest moment of racism. For most, the circumstance occurred between the age of three and eight, prompted feelings of “discomfort,” and was never discussed with an adult—even though children are normally “chatty” at that age—because the child sensed the adults’ discomfort.

“Many people learn at a very early age that this is something they don’t want you to talk about.”

Tatum cited a Washington Post story by the father of a young white man involved in the Unite the Right rally in Charlottesville. According to Tatum, the father insisted he did not share the son’s racist views, but confessed, “we were silent on the subject and other ideas filtered in.”

Pointing to the change in demographics since the 1950s when the United States was 90 percent white and 10 percent “other,” Tatum said in 2000, the United States was 50 percent white and 50 percent “everybody else.” Nonetheless, due to the practice in public education for children to attend neighborhood schools, “Most students come to college from a racially isolated environment.” Tatum dismissed the assumption that “learning to connect across lines of difference” will happen automatically by putting the students together in classes and residence halls.

“We need to provide structures for that to happen...to create the opportunity for students of different backgrounds to engage with each other in a sustained way that allows for the exchange of experience and stories.”

Tatum said the first step was creating “opportunities for same experience support.” Interaction and conversation with those of shared circumstances fulfilled a basic need for safety and belonging, Tatum stressed. She drew the analogy of a hungry person being unable to focus on other things until the hunger need was gone.

From the white student perspective, the shared experience group offered an opportunity to overcome “white fragility.” Engaging in dialogue about race in an all-white group provided an opportunity to reflect on experiences without having to worry about inflicting pain on people of color, Tatum suggested. “Most white people lack stamina for talking about race and racism...engaging in dialogue about race is painful and hard. To build up your stamina you need to practice and sometimes that practice is best done with other white people.”

However, Tatum insisted, “It’s not an either-or. It’s a both-and.”

Asked about her vision for Sewanee and other colleges 20 years from now, Tatum said, “For one thing, [colleges] will more accurately reflect the demographics of the nation...or they’ll find themselves with a shortage of students.”

Tatum pointed to “affirming identity” as key to accomplishing that goal. She gave the illustration of persuading Spelman College to modify its baccalaureate service to include scripture from non-Christian faiths like Islam and Baha’i. People look for themselves first in a group photograph, Tatum said, and if they have been digitally removed, the question “What’s wrong with this picture?” quickly becomes “What’s wrong with me?”

Paraphrasing Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Tatum said social change required empathy for the circumstances of others. She argued listening was the path to empathy, and empathy in turn led to action.

“It takes constant effort and vigilance to get beyond the inertia of past habits and practices.”

John Lewis Ford

John Lewis Ford served for 12 years as senior vice president and dean of campus life at Emory University. Previously, he was the Robert W. and Elizabeth C. Staley dean of students and a professor of policy analysis and management at Cornell University. His early work with community service projects to lessen economic disparities in access to health care led to efforts with students and faculty colleagues on problems of feeding and housing homeless people. Later in his career, Ford co-led Emory’s Journeys of Reconciliation with students, faculty, and staff to explore how historic racial, religious, and ethnic conflicts in other countries continue to challenge community-building and the search for social justice.

During that time, he worked closely with the chancellors of the Episcopal Church on diocesan mediations and conflict resolutions, interventions, and all Episcopal elections. Bishop Matthews continues to serve as the managing director of the College of Bishops, an authorized school for education and formation of bishops of the Episcopal Church, the Anglican Church of Canada, Wales, Scotland, Tanzania, Mexico, Guatemala, Australia, Cuba, and others.

SCCF to Host an Evening with Stephen Alvarez

World-renowned photographer and Sewanee native Stephen Alvarez will speak at South Cumberland Community Fund's annual fundraising event at 6 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 28, at Monteagle Sunday School Assembly. Alvarez will speak to "My Life as a National Geographic Photographer and the Deep History of the South Cumberland Plateau."

As a filmmaker and explorer as well as a photographer, Alvarez produces global stories about exploration, culture, religion, and the aftermath of conflict, and has served as a National Geographic photographer since 1995. His images have won awards in Pictures of the Year International and Communications Arts and have been exhibited at Visa Pour L'Image International Photojournalism Festival in Perpignan, France. Alvarez's most recent story for National Geographic explores why humans become artists. In 2017, he established the Ancient Art Archive, a worldwide effort to explore and preserve ancient artworks left by humanity's first ancestors. His recent discoveries and photographs include ancient drawings discovered in caves under the South Cumberland Plateau and in the surrounding region. Alvarez will be introduced by fellow photographer and University of the South professor Pradip Malde.

"The attention Stephen is bringing to the importance of ancient drawings worldwide, and to the caves of the South Cumberland Plateau as a repository for some of these works, is remarkable," said Leah Rhys, SCCF development committee member. "This serves as a fascinating subject for those attending this year's SCCF event."

In addition to cocktails and a seated dinner, the evening will feature a silent auction of four beautifully framed and signed open edition prints by Alvarez. Bidding prior to the event for those who do not plan to be in attendance may be done by proxy through the SCCF website at <www.southcumberlandcommunityfund.org>. Online reservations are also available on the SCCF website or by mailing a check to SCCF, P.O. Box 1301, Monteagle, TN 37356.

Support the Fifth Annual Hunger Walk

Food insecurity exists in every county and congressional district in the United States. Food insecurity is defined as not having reliable access to adequate nutritious food. Those that experience food insecurity may not necessarily be insecure at all times during the year—often times families are forced to choose between paying bills or other expenses like buying medicine and buying groceries to feed themselves and their families.

Hunger issues that people face are intertwined with many other prominent issues in this country. Hunger and access to healthy foods play a large roll in rates of chronic health problems such as diabetes and heart disease, as well as many more. Minorities, children, the elderly, and those living in rural areas are statistically more likely to suffer from food insecurity.

Seventeen percent of rural households are food insecure. Compared to an average of 15.4 percent food insecure nationwide overall, rural areas are more highly affected.

There are numerous organizations dedicated to addressing the problem of food insecurity in the community, including the Grundy County Food Bank, Morton Memorial Church and the Community Action Committee. Through a joint effort in the fifth annual Hunger Walk, the Monteagle-Sewanee Rotary Club and Grundy Rotary Club hope to raise awareness about these hunger issues as well as raise money to help end them.

The best way to support The Hunger Walk is to be a community partner through sponsorships. By donating $250, businesses and individuals can become a partner and have their logo/name featured on Hunger Walk posters and participant T-shirts.

Another way to help out is to walk, showing your support. Registration is free for children under 12, $15 for students and $25 for adults. Register to walk at <www.thehungerwalk.com>. Register by Sept. 14 to receive a T-shirt.

Registration may also be completed on the day of the walk, Saturday, Sept. 28, at Angel Park in Sewanee. Registration begins at 8 a.m. with the walk starting at 9 a.m. For more information, go to <www.thehungerwalk.com> or <www.facebook.com/SewaneeHungerWalk/>.

Rotaract Club Relay for Life

The Rotaract Club of Sewanee is sponsoring an American Cancer Society Relay for Life. Relay for Life represents the hope that those lost to cancer will never be forgotten, that those who face cancer will be supported, and that one day cancer will be eliminated.

Last year's event raised $37,490. This year's goal is $50,000.

This event will take place from 4 p.m.-8 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 26, at the Hardee-McGee Field at Harris Stadium. For more information on how to donate, form a team or get involved, go to <www.relayforlife.org/sewaneetn> or email <amasoek0@sewanee.edu>.

Register for Lifelong Learning Courses

The Center of Lifelong Learning at the University of the South is excited to announce our new courses. Contact Dan Backlund at <lifelong@sewanee.edu> for further information and to register before the classes are full. The enrollment fee for each course is only $60 and includes six hours of formal learning time.

Secret Messages: Old and New Methods of Encryption—This course will look at simple and complex substitution cyphers (think of Poe's The Gold Bug) and then spend time exploring how computers encode text. Note: encoding and encrypting are very different. After realizing that messages on a computer are just a string of zeros and ones students will spend just enough time with some mathematics to be able to understand modern encryption techniques. At the end, the course will examine potential encryption techniques which might be used when much more powerful computers are available. Instructor: Laurence Alvarez, Professor Emeritus of Mathematics, Tuesdays, Oct. 29, Nov. 5, 12, and 19, from 1–3 p.m.

Feuding Couples in Theatre and Film (the Comic Version)—Comedy is a particularly powerful means of exploring relationship anxieties, which is why some of our great comedies use the battle of the sexes for their structuring tension. In this course we will apply different theories of laughter and of the comic to (in theatre) "Lysistrata," "Much Ado about Nothing," "Taming of the Shrew," Fletcher's "Tamer Tamed," Aphra Behn's "The Rover," "Pygmalion," and "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" and (in film) "It Happened One Night," "The Awful Truth," "His Girl Friday," "Philadelphia Story," "Pillow Talk," "Annie Hall," and "Mr. and Mrs. Smith." Instructor: Robin Bates, Professor Emeritus of English, Mondays, Oct. 28, Nov. 4, 11, and 18, from 2–4 p.m.

Matthew Arnold (1822-1888): A Man For Our Season—Among all of the major Victorian poets and cultural critics, Matthew Arnold was especially attuned to the unique contours and problems of industrial society and capitalist global economy. His poetic voice and stance anticipate many of the major themes and techniques of 20th and 21st century poetry. His capacity to "see life steadily and to see it whole" especially recommend him to readers of our age. In this brief course we will begin in the first of four sessions by considering an Arnoldian essay (The Study Of Poetry) in which he makes his claims for the role of poetry in the modern life: then we will read and discuss Arnold's major poems that address the human condition in the context of the modern landscape. Text: Victorian Prose and Poetry (the Oxford Anthology Of English Literature); eds. Lionel Trilling and Harold Bloom; ISBN 0-19-501616-5; paperback edition. (This is the same text used in the previous Robert Browning Course offered in the winter of 2018.) Instructor: John Reishman, Professor Emeritus of English, Wednesdays, Oct. 30, Nov. 6, 13, and 20, from 9–11 a.m.

New Classical Music: Learning from the classics while experiencing the modern—This class will explore the differentiation between classical music in differing time periods while also exploring new compositions and how to understand them as a listener. We love the "classic" aspect of classical music, but what is it that makes it so classic? And, what about modern classical music? Just like we exercise our palates with cuisine, this class will strengthen your palate within classical music. Instructor: Hilary Dow Ward, Thursdays, Oct. 31, Nov. 7, and Nov. 21, from 2–4 p.m.

University Welcomes New Faculty Members

The University of the South welcomes several new faculty members this fall, along with two Mellon Fellows.

Anthony M. Donaldson Jr., assistant professor of history, is a Knoxville native. A first-generation college student, he graduated summa cum laude from North Carolina Central University. An alumnus of Teach For America, Donaldson co-founded a nonprofit, Teaching to Eliminate Negative Stereotypes through Education, which has served more than 1,000 at-risk youth and funded scholarships and school supplies. He is an oral historian and was coordinator for the African American History Project with the Samuel Proctor Oral History Program at the University of Florida, where he earned a Ph.D. in history. Donaldson's scholarship connects localized black social movements to larger black freedom movements around the world. His expertise and current research explores the intersectionality of race, class, and identity as it relates to American popular culture and politics.

Kerry Ginger is assistant professor of voice. A mezzo-soprano, she is active nationally as a voice pedagogue, performer, clinician, and scholar. Ginger has appeared as a soloist with the Phoenix Symphony, Arizona Opera, and Phoenix Opera, and she performs regularly with the Santa Fe Desert Chorale, the Oregon Bach Festival, and other. Her research interests include feminist and queer musicology, vocal music, and the intersection of music and culture. Her current research centers on women's participation and portrayal in 20th-century Viennese modernism. She earned a Doctorate of Musical Arts in voice and Master of Music in opera performance at Arizona State University.

Jason Rosenberg joins the University as assistant professor of music. He is an acclaimed composer, conductor, and music cognition researcher, and worked in Switzerland and Singapore for several years. He seeks to link contemporary music scenes in the U.S. and abroad through collaborative projects and innovative programming. Rosenberg has been a selected composer at several festivals, including the Royaumont Abbey and the Acanthes Festival, and has received the Salvatore Martirano Award and the Foro de Música Nueva Composition Prize. He holds a Ph.D. in music from the University of California San Diego.

Lily Thompson is assistant professor of geology in the Department of Earth and Environmental Systems. Her research probes the properties of geological materials at extreme conditions to better understand the constitution and evolution of planetary interiors. Her current focus is on combining theoretical calculations and high-pressure, high-temperature experiments to constrain the distribution and cycling of hydrogen in the deep Earth. She earned a Ph.D. in geophysics from the University of Chicago, and worked at Northwestern University as a National Science Foundation Earth Science postdoctoral fellow.

Assistant Professor of Mathematics Zhexiu Tu enjoys questions from a variety of fields, especially those in the fields of matroid theory. His research lies primarily in combinatorics and topology. In recent years, he developed an interest in symplectizing various matroids whereas maintaining his interest in delta matroids, oriented matroids and matroids over tracts. He holds a Ph.D. from Cornell University.

Eric Zinn, C'81, returns to Sewanee as instructor of accounting. His professional experience includes clerking for judges of the United States Tax Court and legal practice in both the Washington, D.C., and Denver metropolitan areas, and he has published several articles on tax topics for The Colorado Lawyer. Most recently, Zinn has taught at the University of Colorado-Denver Business School. He holds J.D. and L.L.M. degrees from the University of Florida, and M.S. and M.B.A. degrees from the University of Colorado-Denver.

Mellon Fellows on campus this year are Tiffany Momon and Camille Westmont. Momon's role will include teaching public history classes in support of the Southern Appalachian Studies program. As a public historian, she travels across the Southeast consulting with museums, historical societies, and preservationists on exhibits, heritage trails, and other public history products. Her current research focuses on the material world of enslaved Africans in 18th-century South Carolina. Momon earned a Ph.D. in public history from MTSU.

Camille Westmont is a Mellon Postdoctoral Fellow in Historical Archaeology. She is a historical archaeologist with interests in 19th and 20th century industry, gendered labor, public archaeology, and industrial cultural heritage. Her work has taken her across the United States as well as to Mexico, Belize, the Virgin Islands, Jamaica, Sweden, and, most recently, Iceland. History Lesson

One of the joys of having grown children is getting to share in their adventures without any of the effort.

Our middle child is working towards his PhD in History, and I've been privileged to get to read some of his papers. I won't say I understand all I read, but I do pick up enough to ponder in directions I might not have gone on my own.

For his Master's thesis, he studied British children's literature written before and during World War I. Apparently, as the war went on, the portrayal of Germans in both books and popular weekly papers (akin to our comics) altered dramatically till "the enemy" was ever more emphatically depicted as unsportsmanlike, cunning, and downright barbaric.

We all know that propaganda is part of a country's ammunition in times of war. But this particular shift in characterization was less governmental-requested propaganda and more response to what the British public wanted to see: their enemy portrayed as demonic "other."

See, that is, not just on the usual recruitment posters, but in the stuff their children were reading.

I find that unsettling.

As an antidote, I re-read a couple of the YA novels of Margot Benary-Isbert, a German writer who lived through not one, but two world wars. After the second, she and her family found themselves on the wrong side of the Iron Curtain. "One dictatorship had been enough," to quote her bio, so they left everything they owned and fled West, eventually moving to America, where she became a citizen.

She wrote her first novel, "The Ark," while living in a tiny West German flat with two other families, a feat I find impressive given the need of most writers for quiet. It follows the fortunes of a family who found refuge on a farm in a converted railway car.

As with several of her other books, this and its sequel, "Rowan Farm," depict the struggle to survive and even thrive in a war-ravaged land. My favorite is "Castle on the Border," which centers around an ancient castle stripped bare of windows, doors, furniture, everything portable, by villagers desperate for fuel and rebuilding material. Situated on the newly-drawn line between East and West, it becomes a shelter for "border jumpers," but above all, for a group of dedicated young actors determined to bring theatre to a countryside more obsessed with finding food than watching "Hamlet."

The main character, Leni, is the orphaned relative of the elderly couple who move back to their ancestral home despite its gaping windows. At not quite 17, Leni has been functioning as an independent adult, and isn't quite sure what to feel about being back with family. Throughout the novel, she wrestles with competing priorities: her passion for acting, and the responsibility she begins to feel for the castle's refugees.

Benary-Isbert's references to the war are scant; it's more the aftermath she writes about. Most of the characters bear scars, physical and otherwise: Leni's are memories of being one in the stream of starving and homeless refugees who wandered Germany those last days of the war and afterwards.

When I first found these books decades ago, it felt wrong to be reading about "them." All these decades later, I'm glad to be able to access a little of what it was like "on the other side." I appreciate being able to be, metaphorically speaking, one of the "border jumpers." Benary-Isbert encourages this ecumenical thinking, describing "a new type of European young people...to whom the frontiers between countries no longer mattered." "Determined to get along together, they sing, folk dance, work, and above all, discuss together "the things that must come into being if the world were not to go up in flames..."

For after all, those young people "had seen that the world had never been any the better for peoples' killing one another because they disagreed."

Good reminder.

Middle School Soccer 2-0 in League Play

The SAS middle school girls' soccer season rolled on last week as they welcomed both Lincoln County and Liberty to the mountain for home tilts.

While the Mountain Lions played well during Tuesday's match, two SAS fouls inside the goal box resulted in a pair of penalty kicks for Lincoln County, putting the Lions at a significant disadvantage. Though they eventually fell 4-0, SAS had an excellent effort from Sarah Brewster on the front line as she consistently pressured the Lincoln County defense. Julia Sumpter and Vie Virkhaus both continued their improvement in their first year in the sport, showing excellent progress in their ball skills, their understanding of offensive and defensive philosophies, and their playing with tenacity and grit in the face of a strong opponent.

Against Liberty on Thursday, Elizabeth Perkins scored her second goal of the year with two minutes left in the first half after stealing the ball in the midfield. Drew Delorme scored her team-leading fourth goal of the season off an assist from Mia Val. In what was easily the prettiest goal of the year so far, Perkins played a push pass from a corner kick to the feet of Nailah Hamilton, who dribbled around several Liberty defenders before firing a pass to the left foot of Caty Layne who finished beautifully far post. The 4-0 win leaves the SAS girls at 2-0 in league play to open the season.

Athletes Corner

"I am a student athlete at Huntland High School. I play basketball, softball, and run cross country. The summer of 2018, I rolled my foot in basketball practice right before camp. I could not run on it at all. I went for X-rays and they said it was just a sprain. I was out for the whole summer. Basketball season came and I was in a lot of pain. My trainers at school helped me as much as they could by taping me before every game and practice. I also used metal plates in my shoes while playing. I still always had some pain that made me not perform the way I wanted to. It affected my defense a lot. This past summer I started going to Dr. Shull and it has changed my life. I can now play basketball to the best of my ability without pain, and I am back playing good defense! I can now walk around my house and not hear my foot continually popping and wear the shoes I want comfortably." —Brooklyn Morris

SAS Mountain Biking at Lock 4 Trail

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee School high school and middle school mountain biking teams competed in their first race of the Tennessee High School Cycling League's 2018 season on Sept. 1, at Lock 4 Trail in Gallatin, Tenn. Approximately 400 riders raced in categories ranging from sixth grade through varsity for both girls and boys.

Fifteen high school riders and five middle school riders raced for SAS. In middle school competition, Elliott Benson and Cameron Crawford raced in the eighth grade boys' category, with Benson earning 16th place in a large group of sixty riders. Sevie Griswold and Jack Hale showed great improvement in fitness and skill level on the trail competing in the seventh grade boys' category. William Schrader posted a 10th place finish (sixth grade boys) in a group of 38 riders, quite an accomplishment in his first NICA mountain biking race.

In JV and sophomore category races, SAS senior Evan Fox earned a strong ninth place finish out of 61 riders in a very competitive JV boys' category. Ninth grade rider Libby Neubauer (third place), and junior Luciana Mollica (ninth place) started the season strong in the JV girls' category. Namtso Norbu finished her race lap after suffering a crash in the sophomore girls' category. Eli Thompson, Rhys Fricker, Jon Wert, Isaac Pauley, and Kenneth Simmonds competed in the sophomore boys' category, with Thompson earning a 16th place finish.

In ninth grade races, Madeline Sumpter rode a strong race to start the season and finished fifth in the girls' category, with Samantha Lu completing a lap in her first mountain bike race ever. For the boys, AJ Clements broke into the top 10 with an eighth place finish, with Caleb Palmertree (14th) and Huxley-Hume Allingham (15th) close behind. Alex Waldrup also competed well for SAS, showing big improvements in skill and fitness from 2018.

Coaches Speed Baranco, Beth Pride Ford, and Michael Short are proud of all the SAS athletes who competed during the weekend for their efforts and enthusiasm. Many thanks go to volunteer coaches Steve Holt, Alex Neubauer, Sian Baranco, Barbara and John Fox, and Jill and Pete Mollica for assisting with the SAS mountain biking program and for providing race day support for the team and the Tennessee High School Cycling League. The next Tennessee Interscholastic Cycling League race will be held at Chickasaw Trace Park on Sunday, Sept. 15.

Aidan Smith on a 28-yard touchdown.

Mountain Lions Flash Potential in Opening Game

On Aug. 29, the St. Andrew's-Sewanee Mountain Lions faced off against Riverside Christian Academy in the opening game of the 2019 football season. RCA came out on top with a final score of 40-19, but the score belied the strength of the SAS team. Due to some mistakes and broken plays on special teams, RCA jumped out to an early lead, but the Mountain Lions showed great tenacity by holding them to just two touchdowns on offense. Senior Aidan Smith recovered a fumble forced by freshman Spears Askew, sprinting for a 28-yard touchdown down the sideline early in the first half. Later on, senior Cailan McLean demonstrated his power as a ball carrier, breaking through several tackles on his way to a 72-yard touchdown. The final SAS score came on a deep pass from junior Cameron Harmon to freshman Kyler Cantrell, who put his speed on full display as he outran defenders for a 66-yard touchdown in the second half. McLean and Harmon were also strong factors on the defensive side of the ball, as were senior Sylvan Huber-Feely and sophomore Cameron Robinson, ensuring that the RCA offense remained contained and off-balance. SAS will look to build on the bright spots from this contest as they seek their first win over the upcoming weeks.

Kickball Tournament

On Friday, Sept. 13 and Friday, Sept. 20, from 3-7 p.m., the Office of Civic Engagement and the Office of Campus Activities are hosting a kickball tournament in conjunction with the Sewanee Parks Committee. The tournament will raise funds for the Sewanee Youth Ballpark to have lighting so that games can be played on the field after dark.

Up to 16 teams can register for the tournament. Each team can have up to 11 members on the team, the registration fee is $10 per person and can be paid via cash or check at the event. To register your team, go to <<https://forms.gle/guGf4n4XkKhe3Kxq6>>.

Games will be played for three innings or up to 30 minutes, whichever comes first. All games will take place at the Sewanee Youth Ballpark. For more information email <fsl@sewanee.edu>.

Men's Soccer Ties with Covenant

The Sewanee men's soccer team played to a 1-1 tie with the Scots of Covenant College in the final day of the Kyle Rote, Jr. Invitational Sept. 7, from Puett Field.

Sewanee came out attacking early with a fifth minute shot by Andrew Turk, but it was saved by the Covenant goalkeeper.

In the ninth minute, Thompson Schollaert found Austin Young's pass to give the Tigers the early advantage.

The Tigers held the Scots to its first shots in the 21st and 23rd minutes, both off-target. However, despite Covenant out-shooting Sewanee, 5-4, in the first half, the home team held the 1-0 advantage at the intermission.

The visitors netted the equalizers in the 75th minute. After a Sewanee shot and save, the Scots ran downfield and Josh Brower evened the match with the score off of the pass from Anthony Buzzeo.

The final 15 minutes of regulation saw no shots by either team. Late in regulation, however with less than 10 seconds left, Sewanee tried to capitalize on a game-winning opportunity, but they were offside.

In overtime, the Scots attempted to end the match 1:42 into the extra period.

As the time was winding down, Drew Zolper tried to end the match, but the shot was blocked by a Covenant defender.

In the second extra period, the dramatics flared in the final two minutes. Sewanee's final chance to win the contest came in the 109th minute off a Tashinga Vhumisai shot, saved by the Scots.

The visitors were able to get a wide shot off with 30 seconds left, and after earning and getting a corner kick off, the match was over.

Thompson Schollaert led the team with three total shots, all on goal, and he netted the lone goal.

Andrew Turk and Severin Velasco each recorded two shots on goal.

James Murray (2-1-1) saved six shots in full time plus 20 minutes of extra time.

Football Opens 125th Season with Defeat

The Sewanee football began its 125th season of football on Historic Hardee-McGee Field at Harris Stadium with a 47-7 loss to Southwestern (Texas) from the American Southwest Conference on Sept. 7.

Southwestern scored on its two possessions of the game. The first score was a, four-yard rush by the quarterback Austin Emery, and then a 66-yard touchdown pass to David Brandenburg from Emery saw the score at 14-0 with 6:21 left in the opening quarter.

The visitors made it a 20-0 lead at the break, but the Tigers had an opportunity to break the shutout. Near the end of the half, Brody Palmer missed a 47-yard field goal attempt.

Southwestern pushed the lead to 40-0 before Sewanee saw the endzone for the first time in 2019. At the 14:29 mark in the fourth quarter, Colin May found Alex Darras' 24-yard pass. Prior to the strike, Southwestern fumbled the ball at the Pirates 24-yard-line recovered by Jack Lambert.

For the game, the running game belonged to the Pirates, out-rushing the Tigers, 331-22 and out-gaining the home team, 520-195.

Alex Darras threw for 164 yards on 17-of-33 passing with one touchdown.

NATURENOTES

by Yolande Gottfried

Cormorant by Dianna and Tom Kempfer.

Dianna and Tom Kempfer wrote: “to share our excitement of having two pairs of cormorants stay overnight last week on Lake Louisa in Cooley’s Rift. One pair decided to roost in our backyard, but I couldn’t convince them to stay longer. This seems to be a good resting spot, since we have herons, grebes, coots, buffleheads, and even a friendly egret stayed a few weeks three years ago.”

Peggy Bonds writes, with regard to the note last week about a Great Egret: “I saw two of them in the flooded area next to Lapp’s Greenhouse about a week before the water dried up. I went back a week later and the dryness had become inhospitable to the geese and white birds I had seen there. They certainly looked like Great Whites to me, but I didn’t have binoculars with me, so I could have been mistaken. That said, what else could they have been? They were certainly large!”

I observed a pair of walking sticks apparently mating on the new steps down to the beach at Lake Cheston. The larger one would be the female, with larger mouth parts for eating more and a larger abdomen to produce eggs. This is particularly interesting in that there are many fewer male than female walking sticks, and they usually reproduce through parthenogenesis, in which unfertilized eggs develop into new individuals. The pair can remain coupled for hours, days, or weeks, so perhaps they are still there!

In any case, fall color should be starting to reflect in the water. This walk may be wet, so wear suitable foot wear.

Looking ahead, the herbarium-sponsored nature journaling group will have its annual “All Things Bright and Beautiful” exhibit in Stirling’s in January. This display will be in celebration of the 50th anniversary of Earth Day.

A group meets for nature journaling Thursdays from 9-11 a.m. Come try it out—stick with it if you like. Bring an unlined journal (or a few sheets of unlined paper) and a pen or pencil. No experience needed. As the seasons transition, we gather in different places, so contact <mpriestley0150@gmail.com> for info on the meeting place.

BARDTOVERSE

by Phoebe Bates

Friday, thirteenth, is a date bewitched:
Be not born or hanged or hitched
Or hired or fired on that day;
Cut not thy nails, nor mow the hay,
Or wash the clothes, or visit sick
Or turn the bed, or take a trip,
Or spill the salt, or burn the bread--
Better thou shouldst stay in bed!
