Degree recipients are George E. Core, longtime editor of the Sewanee Review, who will receive an honorary doctor of letters; Jeanie Nelson, the founding CEO and president of the Land Trust for Tennessee, who will receive an honorary doctor of civil law;

Samuel F. Pickering Jr., C'63, professor emeritus of English at the University of Connecticut and author of more than two dozen books, who will receive an honorary doctor of letters; and Woodruff, co-anchor and managing editor of the PBS News Hour, who will receive an honorary doctor of humane letters.

SAS Announces New Head of School

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee School board of trustees met on Oct. 10 and unanimously appointed Karl J. Sjolund to be the next permanent head of the school. His tenure will begin on July 1, 2016.

"Among a slate of highly qualified candidates, Karl stood out as particularly well-suited to lead SAS at this point in its history," said Eunice Colmore, chair of the search committee and vice president of the SAS board of trustees.

Sjolund, a boarding school graduate himself, has devoted his career to living and working in boarding schools. He is currently in his ninth successful year as head of Salem Academy, a boarding and day school, like SAS, with both an essential church affiliation and a reciprocal relationship with its neighboring college. He is a man of great faith, confirmed in the Episcopal Church, and committed to the Episcopal educational model that values diversity in culture and thought.

During a 20-year career at his alma mater, Virginia Episcopal School, Sjolund served in a wide range of administrative positions, taught and coached. An active leader in the field of education, he is currently treasurer of the board of North Carolina Association of Independent Schools and an advisory board member of World View at University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill.

"Sjolund's proven record of increasing enrollment, directing fund raising, improving student retention, leading strategic initiatives in campus improvement and balancing budgets will serve SAS well as it addresses the challenges and opportunities ahead," Colmore said. "Throughout the search process, we were impressed not just by his résumé and strong references, but also by his faith, honesty and thoughtfulness."

School Board Meets to Review Contracts, Policies and Acquisitions

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

At the Oct. 12 meeting, the Franklin County Board of Education approved the purchase of a six-acre tract for a soccer field at Huntland School. The board also took up several policy revisions.

At the board's September meeting, Huntland soccer coach Brian Norcross asked the board to consider purchasing property across from Huntland School for use as a playing and practice field. The team currently practices on the baseball outfield, hampering the team's performance when they compete on a standard-size field at games.

Director of School Amie Lonas said zoning did not pose an obstacle, since the tract was zoned the same as other Huntland School athletic fields. Board member Lance Williams estimated the cost of ground preparation at $10,000. The money to purchase the tract costing $20,000 will come from the capital outlay budget, Lonas said.

The board also approved a clarification to the sick leave policy bringing it into compliance with Tennessee School Board Association (TSBA) regulations. The policy previously limited sick leave to 60 days. The revised policy allows for 60 days sick leave annually and 90 days total for any one illness or accident.

The board discussed revising the student transportation management policy, which requires substance screening for any bus driver involved in an accident. At the November meeting, the board will vote on a policy revision forbidding the involved driver from driving until substance screening results are received. Test analysis usually takes 72 hours. By the proposed revision, contract drivers will be held to the same standard as drivers employed by the school system. Board chair Kevin Caroland said the revision was needed to protect the school system from liability in the event a driver was involved in a second accident before test results were returned.

In reviewing the background investigation policy, Caroland said a recent investigation in Williamson County revealed 10 percent of sports officials had a record of criminal offenses. Caroland recommended the Franklin County School join with other schools in the region asking the Tennessee Secondary School Athletic Association "to conduct background checks on the officials they send us."

Updating the board on the sale of the Oak Grove School property, Lonas said the potential buyers who placed a bid of $35,000 withdrew from negotiations. The property will be re-advertised.

The board approved appointments to two new committees formed at the August retreat. Board member ClejJo Walker will chair the Capital Building Program Committee which will make recommendations for future building

THEWOODLANDS

To the Editor:

I'm so excited that the Elliott Park playground is moving ahead, and there are so many people to be thanked for getting all the fund raising done so we can soon get down to the business of the community build.

Elliott Park is not the only playground that's going through changes at the moment, though, and I wanted to take a moment to acknowledge these others changes. The Woodlands Park playground has gone through a transformation, although on a much more modest scale, thanks to the hard work of many people. Because we have playgroup there each Tuesday, we get to see each change as it is made and to appreciate what it adds.

Thanks go out to some anonymous angel in the community for donating a play structure (the kids have swarmed it!); to William Shealy at PPS for coordinating its move; to Stephen Burnett for helping choose its location; to Dusty and Brad at PPS for the installation; to the community members who came together and spread new mulch; to Dusty and Brad, again, for all sorts of improvements, such as a new trash can, drainage holes in a slide, new bars for the monkey bars, a new platform for the wee-kiddies metal slide, and the installation of the special-needs swing, among other things; and to anyone else who has helped to make the playground better in other ways.

The playground is more fun and more functional than it has been in a good, long while! Thanks to all for making Sewanee a great place to play.

FULFORD HALL REVISITED

To the Editor:

Some members of the community are under the impression, following Vice-Chancellor McCardell's announcement in August, that Fulford Hall has been saved. This is, sadly, not the case. The Board of Regents announced that Fulford Hall is again being considered as the site of a new student union; if they decide to put the new building where Fulford stands, the old building will have to be moved. Both the architect who wrote the official assessment and the director of the Tennessee Historical Commission have advised against moving Fulford: 1) a move would destroy its historic and cultural context; and 2) would likely do serious damage to the structure.

A move would require deliberate damage (removing the roof, lifting the building off its foundation, etc.). Accidental damage would occur, as well: falling plaster, cracking and so forth. The campus planning firm of Hanbury Evans provided the Regents with a detailed assessment of Fulford Hall now available on the University website, and our committee provided them with data collected over the last three months. Yet despite these efforts, "more data is needed." As they engage in the exercise of collecting more data, it would be good if the vice-chancellor and regents at least refrained from calling Fulford Hall a "site." We and hundreds of alumni, students and friends know it is more than a "site." It is a historic house that stands right at the heart of what Sewanee is. It should continue to stand on the land selected to be his home by Bishop Quintard, the first Vice-Chancellor.

RETURN TO SANITY

To the Editor:

America was once the land of the free, home of the brave, strong, moral, basically God-fearing, and respected by other countries, but that is no more. We've allowed other cultures and other values to come in, take over and destroy our greatness. God has been taken out, and the teachings of the Bible have been disregarded, so we are now "reaping what we have sown."

Our president and government leaders have the perfect opportunity to lead us back to sanity and Godliness, but they must be willing to be used by God to do so. Our currency reads "In God We Trust." But do we? We have "a form of godliness, but deny the power thereof" [2 Timothy 3:5 KJV]. Playing "nice" with the enemies of America will destroy us; I agree with Steve Cardwell's letter in the Oct. 2 issue. The Bible says, "We are ever learning, but never coming to the knowledge of the truth" [2 Timothy 2:7]. You can believe the Bible or not—it is your choice and your right.

Does what we believe and practice depict the good things of God? We will be judged accordingly. America desperately needs a heart transplant. Do we really want our country embracing and overrun by other cultures and values? Are we not in serious trouble? Our children and grandchildren will "reap the harvest" of our decisions. How do we stop the madness? One way, only one: God's heart transplant via His Son, Jesus Christ. Therein lies the answer.

Sewanee Police Reports

A rash of thefts occurred in and around Sewanee on the night of Oct. 12 into the early morning of Oct. 13, according to Sewanee Chief of Police Marie Eldridge. As of Oct. 15, 10 reports of items missing have been filed with the Sewanee Police Department. Eldridge said reports are still coming in as people realize items have gone missing.

The value of the missing items is estimated at $1,710.

"This seems to have been a long night of someone taking things from area residences and buildings," she said. Items were taken from several locations in the Sewanee community including the Wiggins Creek area, Willie Six Road, Texas Avenue, Kentucky Avenue and Laurel Brae subdivision.

Eldridge said a suspect was seen on campus early Tuesday morning loading items in a tan or beige Tahoe-type SUV. This suspect was described as a man wearing blue jeans and a yellow flannel shirt. It is possible that a second person was in the vehicle at the time of the thefts.

On Oct. 14 at approximately 7:30 a.m., a vehicle was stolen from the parking area of the Course at Sewanee golf shop. Sewanee Police were called and sent out a BOLO (be on the lookout) for the vehicle. Monteagle Police spotted the truck in its jurisdiction and called in Sewanee Police for mutual aid and backup. Officers followed the vehicle into a wooded area, but the suspect or suspects escaped on foot. Eldridge said that warrants for two men have been issued in connection with this theft.

"These events may be connected to other criminal activity that has occurred in Sewanee and surrounding areas," Eldridge said. Yard items have been reported stolen in Monteagle; the suspects in the truck theft are alleged to have stolen a tractor in the Pelham area on Oct. 13. The Hospitality Shop on University Avenue also reported a burglary on Oct. 11, when someone broke a lock and took bags of donated items from the shop.

She reminded residents to be aware of their surroundings.

"Our greatest defense against this sort of criminal activity is our community members. We all need to be aware of who is in our area and when something unusual is happening," she said.

"We do not live in a bubble in Sewanee," Eldridge said. "We need to realize that these things happen. Don't leave your keys in your car. Keep your car locked. And lock the doors of your home."

Anyone with information about the suspect in the thefts or any of these incidents should contact the Sewanee Police Department at 598-1111.

If you see a suspicious person, notify the Sewanee Police Department immediately by calling 598-1111. Be prepared to give a description of the person, to tell where you last saw the person, and the direction he or she was headed, if applicable.

Smith Speaks at National Park Service Ceremony

Sewanee professors Ken Smith and Deborah McGrath traveled to New Mexico to participate in the inauguration of the National Park Service's newest acquisition, the Valles Caldera National Preserve in northern New Mexico. They were invited to the Oct. 10 ceremony by U.S. Secretary of the Interior Sally Jewell.

Smith, who is a presidential appointee to the Valles Caldera Board of Trustees, and who has served as its chairman, delivered remarks about the preserve and its prior management. He is a professor of forestry and geology at Sewanee.

The nearly 89,000-acre preserve is in the Jemez Mountains, just west of Los Alamos. It is home to vast grasslands and one of North America's few super volcanoes.

In addition to Jewell, members of the state's congressional delegation, tribal leaders and others gathered at Valles Caldera National Preserve for a celebration to mark its transition to a national park.

"This spectacular area tells a story of New Mexico's rich natural and cultural heritage," Jewell said. "We are honored to serve as stewards of this land to ensure that it remains cared for and shared with future generations."

U.S. Senators Tom Udall (D-NM) and Martin Heinrich (D-NM), and retired Senator Jeff Bingaman, talked about the political maneuvering that helped create the preserve and the need to be forward-thinking about conservation in the United States.

The governors of the Jemez and Santa Clara pueblos also addressed the crowd of about 500 people. They emphasized the religious significance of the preserve to their people, who have used the resources of the region for thousands of years. More information about the event can be found in the Albuquerque and Santa Fe newspapers.

Sjolund earned a master of arts degree in private school leadership through Columbia University's prestigious Klingenstein Fellows program. He received a bachelor of arts degree in economics at Virginia Military Institute, which he attended on a Division I baseball scholarship.

During his campus visit, Sjolund told the SAS community, "I am deeply committed to the unique educational environment that boarding schools provide and to the value that a strong boarding program offers day students and their families.

"At St. Andrew's-Sewanee, I see students who are being challenged in every aspect of their lives and who are answering those challenges because they thirst for knowledge of the good, the true and the beautiful. This is an extraordinary school that turns out confident young men and women who are turned on to learning," he said.

Sjolund and his wife, Susan, will reside on the SAS campus. Their twin daughters, Berkley and Hannah, are freshmen in college.

Richard Westling, chair of the board of trustees, thanked Interim Head of School Judy Chamberlain for the leadership she will continue to provide during the remainder of this academic year.

"We are deeply grateful to the SAS community, search committee, and board of trustees for their involvement and patience throughout the search process. Together, we move forward with confidence that the SAS mission will find growing expression under Karl's leadership," Westling said.

FSC Celebrates New Tract
Across from Stone Door

The Friends of South Cumberland State Park's land preservation celebration on Oct. 11 provided a chance to view a recently acquired tract of land across from Stone Door, followed by a program at the historic Beersheba Springs Hotel. Joining the festivities were more than 100 guests including State Sen. Janice Bowling, State Naturalist Randy Hedgepath and State Naturalist Emeritus Mack Prichard, who enjoyed lovely fall weather, festive food and the music of Bazzania.

Sen. Bowling addressed the crowd at the hotel, explaining her support for state funding of new initiatives in Grundy County to boost ecotourism.

"The acquisition of the Jones Tract brings to fruition a 30-year-old hope and effort," she said. "The FSC, one of the oldest Friends groups of our parks in Tennessee, has added to its credentials as the most successful in land acquisition. I sincerely appreciate the efforts and resources provided by this dedicated organization toward such a significant purchase."

Community leaders Howell Adams, John Greeter and Sam Baggett met with Bowling prior to the celebration and continue to provide support on emerging park projects in Grundy County.

Hedgepath led about 75 hikers to an overlook at Stone Door to view the 40-acre Jones Tract, which includes 2,000 feet of bluff line across from the Stone Door overlook.

"Many tracts of land, if developed, would impact the natural beauty of Savage Gulf, but few more directly than the Jones Tract," Hedgepath said. "The Friends of South Cumberland have given peace of mind to those of us who knew about this missing part. We can now look at the view from Stone Door to the east with comfort, knowing that good people came through and secured it for us all."

Community Chest
Spotlight*Sewanee
Elementary School

The 2015-16 Sewanee Community Chest Fund Drive is underway. The power of people helping people makes a difference in the life of our community. Sponsored by the Sewanee Civic Association, the SCC raises money yearly for local charitable organizations serving the area. This year's goal is $100,000.

Since 1867, there has been a long relationship between the community and the public school. For years this voluntary commitment maintained the educational system, such as St. Paul's on the Mountain school and the school on Billy Goat Hill.

When the Sewanee Civitan Club (now the Civic Association) was first organized, its objective of good citizenship included "a comprehensive program for the betterment and improvement of every phase of community activity, according to "Sewanee Sampler," a history by Arthur Ben and Elizabeth N. Chitty published in 1978.

This included providing school facilities. At that time, the Franklin County Board of Education agreed to pay the salaries of teachers, but did not provide the buildings. The University was unable to help with the expenses. Funding for a new public school became a community goal. The school building would be on University leasehold land, owned by the Sewanee Civitan Club and operated by the Franklin County School Board.

Funds were raised in the community, and the Sewanee Public School was completed in 1927 through volunteer efforts. In 1933, the community built the Roosevelt addition. In 1943, more than half of the town's Community Chest budget went to maintain the school and to fund programs for enrichment and the purchase of supplies. Franklin County took over the maintenance of the school in 1955, when the building and land were turned over to the county as long as a school remained on that site.

The Sewanee Elementary Parent Organization (SES-PO), a nonprofit organization, requests and disburses the Community Chest funds each year for SES. All money received is used for yearly support of the school. The SES-PO works with teachers and staff to meet needs that are not met by the Franklin County School system.

The Community Chest is the primary source of revenue for the SES-PO operating expenses. It also receives money through annual dues and small fund-raisers. This year the SES-PO will receive $20,000 from the Community Chest if the $100,000 goal is met.

The money raised for the school will help to fund classroom supplies; the library for new books, eBooks and material purchases; enrichment funds for visiting speakers, performing artists, field trips to cultural events and exhibitions, Friday School, Field Day and academic tutoring; and professional development funds to support travel and registration costs for dyslexia/autism training, writing conferences, math and Common Core training.

SES always welcomes community members to art shows, musicals and science fairs. Volunteers are always needed to help in the library, teach Friday School or read to children.

The Community Chest is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization, and donations are tax-deductible. Send your donation to SCC, P.O. Box 99, Sewanee, TN 37375. For more information, or to make a donation through PayPal, email <sewaneecommunitychest@gmail.com> or go to <www.sewanee-civic.wordpress.com>.

Winton family photos: Cal and Elizabeth Myers Winton and their first dog before their drive to Princeton University, where Cal earned his doctorate; the family in Washington, D.C.; Cal and Will at their home near the Jump Off community.

MEET YOUR NEIGHBORS

by Kevin Cummings
 Messenger Staff Writer

"I think you've got a good glimpse of us," Cal Winton says, trying to end the interview again. A little later, "That should give you enough words."

Cal, 88, is friendly and open during the dialogue, but you can tell he's not super-interested in being in the newspaper.

"He's lived a much more interesting life than I have," Will Winton says as he sits next to his dad on the couch. "He's very modest, to a fault sometimes."

And so the interview goes, Will doing most of the talking and Cal occasionally trying to wrap things up. This is the first "Meet Your Neighbor" with two people featured in the same story, but it's the way the tight-knit father and son wanted to go. Will works in computer publishing and is an artist, creating in a unique medium, epoxy. Cal (C'48) was an English professor at the University of Virginia and at the University of Maryland until he retired. He also had a long career in the Navy, serving during the Korean War and eventually retiring as a captain from the Navy Reserves.

"Who was in the office across the hall at the University of Virginia?" Will asks, prompting his dad to share more of his life in academia and literature.

"Mr. Faulkner was there," Cal responds, as in William Faulkner. "When I became an assistant professor, his office was across the hall, and he used to come over. We never talked about literature, but we often talked about dogs and hunting and whiskey-making and so on. He was a delightful fellow."

Cal (again at Will's urging) lists a few more of the people in the literary world he befriended in his life: poet and novelist James Dickey, poet Allen Tate and every Sewanee Review editor since William Knickerbocker.

Cal is currently working on writing projects related to the history of publishing and printing, and also has a chapter about the Southern colonies in "The History of the Book in America" series.

In addition to Will, Cal has an older son, Jefferys (Jay) who lives in the Washington, D.C., area. Will moved to Sewanee from D.C. about four years ago to help care for his ailing mother, Elizabeth (Liz) Myers Winton, who died in December. The Myers family has strong roots in Sewanee and Liz, the daughter of a Sewanee faculty member, grew up in Bairnwick, now known as the Bairnwick Women's Center.

Cal met Liz in Sewanee when they were both in a Purple Masque production: he, the second lead male, and she, the second lead female in "Charley's Aunt," a farce that dates to the late 1800s.

"She was very levelheaded and cheerful," Cal says about his late wife. "On her tombstone I put just a single word, 'hope.' Noun and verb. She was very good about that. She'd say, 'That was tough, but let's hope the next time will be a little better.'"

Cal's family also has roots in the area, especially in the Monteagle Assembly, where his mom owned a cottage that he later purchased.

Since moving to Sewanee, Will says his art has flourished. He's one of only a handful of artists in the country who work with epoxy, which requires gloves, a mask and old clothes because it hardens so quickly and permanently.

"It's been one of the most fruitful production runs in my career, and I've been doing this almost 25 years," Will says. "It's why writers and poets and artists flock to places like this, because some of the burdens that you get living in more hustle and bustle are sort of relieved, and you can focus on your craft and the meaning of what you're doing."

A color theorist, he creates both 2D and 3D pieces.

"I use special pigments that work well in the epoxy and sort of take on their own lives," he says.

Will just completed a catalog of his work and has had a number of exhibitions in Nashville and the Washington, D.C., area.

As father and son finish their interviews and get ready for a photo, it's evident they're both proud of one another, evident they both love this community and its people, and still a bit evident that Cal's glad the interview's done.

An Out of the Blue employee with her first paycheck.

Blue Monarch Purchases Out of the Blue Granola

Blue Monarch has purchased Out of the Blue Granola so that it can serve a greater number of women and offer more employment opportunities to recovered families. Since 2003, Blue Monarch's mission has been to provide a long-term, residential and therapeutic Christian community for women and their children to break adverse cycles and rebuild their families.

Susan Binkley, founder of Blue Monarch, and three partners were the previous owners of the granola production business, which was developed in 2009 as a way to provide on-site employment for Blue Monarch residents and promote the organization to a wider audience. Now the organizations are under the same umbrella.

"We have seen the tremendous impact Out of the Blue has had on women who have shown up at Blue Monarch with felony charges, often with no work history, low self-esteem, and poor job skills, and then developed into proud, excellent employees," said Binkley. "We are excited that there will be greater opportunities to develop the business as a way to support Blue Monarch, while making it an even richer part of our program's Work Ethics course. This truly is a granola with a purpose."

Out of the Blue Granola, all natural and made with local honey, is found at local shops and restaurants in the Sewanee and Monteagle area, as well as select Whole Foods and Kroger stores and other locations across the state. Inside every bag is a photograph of one of the Blue Monarch residents with her story of recovery on the back.

"I'm proud of my job at Out of the Blue," said Gretchen Crowe. "It's my first paycheck being clean and serene!" For more information go to <www.outofthebluegranola.com> or Blue Monarch at <www.blumonarch.org>.

SAS Outreach a Finalist in Make a Difference Contest

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School's Global and Local Outreach (GLO) student organization has been named a finalist in the Make A Difference in My Community Contest. This contest is sponsored by the South Cumberland Community Fund. Students in grades K–12 from Sewanee, Monteagle and Grundy County were asked, "If you had $1,000, what would you do to make a difference?" There was a formal grant procedure, and all entries had to be sponsored by a school, church, 4-H, Scout or other community youth group.

GLO chose to fund a volunteer- and donation-focused advertising campaign to raise awareness of the need for volunteers and funds for the South Cumberland State Parks. The members of GLO hope to bring the community together to increase the likelihood of Fiery Gizzard reopening by spring.

"I hold great sentimental value for Fiery Gizzard; some of my most beautiful memories of summer have been on that trail," said GLO member Vanessa Moss. "Naturally I was worried about the length of the rerouting process, so when I heard about the South Cumberland Community Fund's competition, my mind jumped immediately to the trail. After a bit of research, the importance of Fiery Gizzard in the South Cumberland Plateau community became apparent, and the rerouting seemed to be an issue worth addressing."

GLO has created a media plan to raise awareness of the importance and the advancements made in rerouting Fiery Gizzard, including social media ads, radio announcements, signage, brochures and press releases. Voting is online through Oct. 22 at <southcumberlandcommunityfund.org/difference>. All contestants are encouraged to solicit votes from the community. Contest winners will be announced on Oct. 24.

Students at SAS are required to complete 15 hours of community service for each year they are in the upper school. From dish duty in the cafeteria, to work in a local food ministry, to just being mindful on a daily basis of the needs of others, students learn a sense of responsibility for the community in which they live. SAS students also develop leadership skills through clubs, class activities, sports and participation in student/faculty committees.

Many of the outreach activities at the school are sponsored through the GLO student group. The purpose of GLO is to help communities both locally and globally, provide help and necessities when and where needed, and to get the SAS community involved.

To learn more about these and other global outreach efforts at SAS, contact Burki Gladstone by email to <bgldstone@sasweb.org>. For more information about St. Andrew's-Sewanee School, go to <www.sasweb.org>.

FCHS Needs Area Student Mentor Publishes First Book

Franklin County High School is seeking just a few more mentors to participate in the tnAchieves program to help FCHS students transition to college.

The tnAchieves program works with the Tennessee Promise project, the scholarship and mentoring program focused on increasing the number of students who attend college in our state.

To be successful, it takes nearly 60 mentor volunteers in Franklin County (statewide, the program needs more than 9,000 volunteers).

The good news is, Franklin County is only 14 mentors away from its goal. Mentors spend about one hour per month assisting students as they transition from high school to college. It is a small time commitment, but the impact a mentor can have on a student can be life-changing.

Mentors remind students of important deadlines and encourage them to reach their full potential. For more information go to <www.tnachieves.org> or call Diana Spaulding at 967-0626.

Landon Scott Booth, a junior at Grundy County High School, formerly of Chattanooga, has written and published his first book, "All Smiles."

He has been writing and creating since he could draw and print words. At age 10, he created a 10-volume comic book, doing all the writing and illustrating. He has not yet submitted that work for publication, as he is still perfecting it.

Landon's family settled in Gruetli-Laager after his father's discharge from the U.S. Marine Corps. The family yearned for a quiet, laid-back, close-knit community to raise their sons.

Landon attended Swiss Memorial Elementary from 3rd through 8th grade.

He has a Facebook page and a YouTube page, "LSB Comics." "All Smiles" went on sale on Sept. 22 on CreateSpace, and is also available for purchase on Amazon.

Upcoming Talks & Lectures

Deresiewicz on What is College For?

William Deresiewicz, author of "Excellent Sheep: The Miseducation of the American Elite and The Way to a Meaningful Life," will speak at 3 p.m., today (Friday), Oct. 16, in Convocation Hall. Deresiewicz will talk about "What Is College For?"

In his book, Deresiewicz takes a sharp look at the high-pressure conveyor belt that begins with parents and counselors who demand perfect grades and continues into college. Deresiewicz explains that college should be a time for self-discovery, when young people can establish their own values and measures of success in order to forge their own path.

Biehl Fellowship Presentations

Five Sewanee students will present their social science research results and travel experiences as Biehl Fellows at 5 p.m., Monday, Oct. 19, in McGriff Alumni House. For more information call 598-1121 or email <careers@sewanee.edu>.

Hampton about Scripture, Science and Southern Identity

Historian Monte Hampton will give a talk at 4:30 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 20, in Gailor Auditorium on the subject "Science and Religion with a Southern Accent: Scripture, Science, and Southern Identity in the Shadow of the Civil War." Hampton is a teaching associate professor at North Carolina State University. His interests focus on religion in the Southern United States during Reconstruction.

Chemistry Lectures on Janus Particles

The Sewanee chapter of Phi Beta Kappa will welcome Rigoberto Hernandez to campus on Oct. 22–23 as a visiting scholar. Hernandez is a leading computational and theoretical chemist, as well as a leader in the area of diversity and inclusion in the sciences broadly through his work as director of Open Chemistry Collaborative in Diversity Equity (OXIDE). He will deliver two lectures to the campus community; the public is welcome at both.

Hernandez will speak on "Transitions and Janus Particles" at 4:30 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 22, in Gailor Auditorium. On Friday, Oct. 23, Hernandez will discuss "Structure and Dynamics of Janus, Striped and Coarse-Grained Particles" during the Chemistry Department Seminar at 2 p.m. in Woods Laboratories, room 216.

In Roman mythology, Janus is the god of transitions. He has two faces: one looking to the future and one to the past. This metaphor provides a basis to discuss challenges and opportunities presented to those students who walk in two cultural worlds. Colloidal particles, with each of their two hemispheres having a distinct type not unlike the other—or so-called Janus particles—assemble and move in unexpected ways. Throughout his talk, Hernandez will discuss how life's transitions and the chemistry of Janus particles mirror each other, giving the audience a deeper perspective on both. In addition to the lectures, Hernandez will participate in several smaller discussions with students and other constituencies across campus.

Cultivating the Ideal Citizen: Childhood, Space and Design

Diana Ramirez-Jasso will give a lecture about "Cultivating the Ideal Citizen: Childhood, Space and Design in Enlightenment Pedagogy" at 3 p.m., Friday, Oct. 23, in Gailor Auditorium. She will focus on an ideal educational space designed by Prussian educational reformer Christian Heinrich Wolke in 1805. By focusing on progressive educators' construal of space and things as programmatic substitutes for the traditional teacher, she interrogates the extent to which emergent discourses of pedagogy and design participated in the social construction of both childhood and citizenship in the modern era. Ramirez-Jasso is the acting provost of Boston Architectural College.

Diana Ramirez-Jasso

Crowdfunding, Storytelling and Entrepreneurship

Catherine Merritt, cofounder of a crowdfunding platform targeted toward the entrepreneurial aspirations of mothers, will be the Advent Semester Humphreys Entrepreneur-in-Residence. She will deliver a lecture, "Bringing Ideas to Life: Storytelling at the Heart of Entrepreneurship," at 4:30 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 27, in Gailor Auditorium. The lecture, sponsored by the Babson Center for Global Commerce, is free and open to the public. A reception will follow.

Merritt graduated from Skidmore College with a degree in English and creative writing, and she advocates the liberal arts as a strong foundation for entrepreneurship. She is a vice president with the Chicago office of Olson Engage, a public relations and social media agency. She had the inspiration that led to launching the crowd-funding platform MUMZY.com following the birth of her first child, when she had an idea for a product for mothers but no way to raise the money to finance production.

Catherine Merritt

Crowdfunding is the practice of soliciting relatively small amounts of money from many people, generally via the Internet. Some crowdfunding platforms focus on raising funds for entrepreneurial ventures or to produce products, while other platforms ask contributors to support good causes. According to a 2015 study, the crowdfunding industry worldwide raised about $16.2 billion in 2014, a 167 per cent increase over 2013. Merritt hopes to capture a share of this rapidly growing business.

During her visit, Merritt will also meet with students and teach classes. The Humphreys Entrepreneurs-in-Residence program is endowed by David, C '79, and Debra Humphreys of Joplin, Mo.

High-Voltage Safety Demonstrations at DREMC

Hundreds of first responders—police, firemen, emergency medical responders and highway workers—were exposed to lessons about the danger of high-voltage electricity during a series of demonstrations at Duck River Electric Membership Corporation (DREMC) member appreciation days in September and October. The Sewanee event was on Oct. 6. Many of Sewanee's first responders were in attendance.

Using a custom-made trailer and personnel loaned by Sequachee Valley Electric Cooperative in South Pittsburg, DREMC presented the high-voltage show at the Sewanee service center on Oct. 6 to an audience of first responders and co-op members.

They saw high-voltage arcs caused when ladders, tools and other conductors contact live lines. In addition, power outage causes were explained and shown, from trees growing into lines to squirrels climbing around the tops of utility poles. Other scenarios focused on what to do when encountering energized lines at vehicle accident scenes or in the aftermath of storms.

"Because the demonstration is real and the voltages are what our linemen work with every day, these presentations have impact beyond someone simply preaching about electric safety. The feedback we received from the first responders and public was off-the-chart," said DREMC Safety Coordinator Steven Hopkins.

A high-voltage demonstration trailer is now available for DREMC to use from the Tennessee Electric Cooperative Association. Co-op linemen have been trained on operation and narration. They are already conducting safety shows and booking future appearances.

"There is no cost for scheduling a demonstration, but we must reserve the trailer well in advance and ensure that the proper power supply is available," Hopkins said. The demonstrations can be performed at schools, festivals and fairs or for employee safety groups in the DREMC service area. Call (931) 680-5880 to schedule a presentation.

Fog Happens

Safety Tips for Driving on Gray & Rainy Days

Autumn is here, and that means the arrival of the Mountain's infamous dense fog. And with fog comes greater concerns about traffic safety.

The Sewanee Police Department reminds folks of the following safety recommendations for driving in the fog.

"People need to really slow down, turn on their headlights and use extreme caution," said Marie Eldridge, police chief. Traffic accidents increase in the fog, whether it is because of deer in the roadways that are hard to see or vehicle collisions.

Tennessee state law requires that car headlights be turned on for rain, fog or precipitation. "When in doubt," she said, "turn those headlights on."

Other safety tips for driving in the fog include:

When visibility is limited, turn off any music, roll down your car window and listen for traffic you cannot see.

Stay on the roadway by following the white stripe adjacent to the right shoulder of the road. This is easier to see than the middle stripes in dense fog, and oncoming headlights are not in your eyes. Remember that other drivers have a limited sight distance, and fog can leave roadways slick. Use your turn signals, and when you use your brakes, don't stomp on them.

If an accident occurs, pull as far off the road as possible and turn on your flashing emergency lights. If there is no safe place to stand, stay inside your car.

Before getting in to drive, make sure your car is defrosted and the interior windows defogged. When in doubt, turn on your car lights, but make sure your high beams are not on. High beams direct light up into the fog, making it difficult for you to see. Low beams direct light down onto the road and help other drivers see you.

MES Students Learn About Emergency Services

Monteagle Elementary School recently hosted a Safety Day to educate the students about community services and personnel that keep the community safe. Representatives from local law enforcement in the city of Monteagle, Marion County Sheriff's Department and the Tennessee Highway Patrol spoke to the schoolchildren about safety at home, in the car and how to use 911 services. They also let the children get in the various rescue vehicles.

Members of the Monteagle and Sewanee fire departments were also present and gave the children information about fire safety and steps they need to follow if they are near a fire inside a building or outside in the open. They also let the kids see the bells and whistles on the trucks and gave them their own fire hat and safety flyer to color.

The Air-Evac ambulance helicopter used to transport seriously wounded patients also flew in and landed on the school grounds. Later, students went to the gym to see Chief Virgil McNeece demonstrate, using a special set of goggles, the perception of what intoxicated drivers see. McNeece discussed how alcohol impacts the individual's response time, depth and spatial perception, and overall loss of control while driving under the influence. Students ran a short obstacle course while wearing the goggles, and they got to see firsthand how their judgment and focus were impeded significantly. Police officers also discussed the dangers of alcohol mixed with driving, breathalyzer procedures, and the penalties associated if arrested while driving intoxicated or under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

Two residents from the Bridge at Monteagle (above), accompanied by staff members, traveled to Walt Disney World in Orlando, FL, recently and enjoyed their first-ever airplane ride and their first visit to a theme park. Since 2007, the Bridge has been using programs such as annual elder vacations, to enhance the quality of life for their residents.

PLANNING ON BURNING BRUSH?

You need to call the Sewanee Fire Tower (598-5535, Mon-Fri, 8-4) to obtain a permit, if you intend to burn brush between now and May 15.

SAS Gallery Hosts Robert Durham Show & Workshop

St. Andrew's-Sewanee Gallery is pleased to welcome the work of Robert Durham, on display until Nov. 11.

Durham will offer a day-long workshop, 9 a.m.-4 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 17. The cost is $35 and includes lunch.

Workshop participants will spend the day practicing and drawing either a self-portrait or a portrait of a fellow workshop member. The medium will be charcoal on paper, with liberal help from an eraser and chamois cloth. Students will work directly from observation, not a photograph. Becoming acquainted with the head's proportions (which is the secret of getting a likeness), how to best utilize drawing tools and tips on drawing specific features will prepare artists for the culminating project of a finished portrait drawing in the afternoon half of the workshop. All skill levels are welcome.

For details and to register, contact SAS Gallery Director Molly Schaefer at 598-5651, extension 3151, or email <sasgallery@sasweb.org>.

Durham grew up in Gallatin, Tenn. After graduating from Vanderbilt University magna cum laude with a degree in English, he became interested in visual art. From 1979 to 1994 he worked as a freelance illustrator based outside New York City before returning to Tennessee and concentrating on painting.

In 1998 he earned his MFA with distinction in drawing and painting from the University of Georgia. Since then, he has lived in Nashville and has taught drawing and painting at Watkins College, the University of the South, Vanderbilt University and MTSU. His paintings have been exhibited both nationally and internationally and are represented in Nashville by Cumberland Gallery. Durham has recently begun painting commissioned portrait work. To see more of his work, go to <bobdurhamportraits.com>.

Bell Tower Open Houses

Though timed for the visitors coming to campus for Family Weekend, the public is invited to open houses in both bell towers. From 4 to 5 p.m. today (Friday), Oct. 16, you may visit the Leonidas Polk Carillon in Shapard Tower. From 9 to 11 a.m., on Saturday, Oct. 17, you may visit the Bentley Change Ringing Bells in Breslin Tower. Parks Greene and I will play a carillon concert at 11:30 a.m., Saturday, and then the carillon tower will be open for visitors from 1 to 2 p.m.

In the past we offered the carillon tours to groups at a certain time. This year we have moved to a more self-guided approach. Visitors are invited to come any time during the time interval. A carillonneur will greet folks about halfway up the 124 steps and explain some of the operation of the carillon.

At the playing cabin at the top of the steps, another person will demonstrate the keyboard and additional information about the carillon. We can always play some of the higher pitched bells without hurting anyone's ears, and the use of cell phones allows us to coordinate playing the eight big bells between the two levels, as we can be sure no one is in that area of the tower as the bells are sounded. We can also demonstrate the four-bell peal, which uses four of those eight largest bells.

There are signs posted on the walls along the staircase that explain some of the important and interesting things about the carillon. Charlene Williamson prepared these signs and a new brochure as part of the requirements for the Guild of Carillonneurs in North America's Associate Carillonneur Exam that she passed in June of this year. She made the drawing (above) that is a main feature of the new brochure.

If the times this weekend are not convenient for you and you want to visit the carillon tower, please get in touch with me. Although for safety reasons we keep the door to the tower locked, we are usually available to give tours to individuals at some mutually convenient time. Please do remember this the next time you have visitors and want to show them "something different."

THE INSATIABLE CRITIC

by Elizabeth Ellis

Parents Weekend at the Sewanee Union Theater kicks off with multiple showings (indoor and outdoor!) of the Pixar-animated smash hit "Inside Out," followed by a French drama later in the week. The following weekend will feature the young adult mystery film of the summer, "Paper Towns." Read on for the in-depth scoop, provided by your friendly neighborhood movie critic.

Every good critic needs a good rating system, and there's nothing on the planet more critical than cats, so one feature each week is rated from one to five Tobys. The more Tobys there are, the better it is!

Sir Toby

Inside Out

8 p.m. • Friday, Oct. 16 • FREE showing, Bishop's Common lawn
2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. • Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 17-18
2015 • Rated PG • 94 minutes

The studio that has taken audiences into the sea and into the far reaches of space now delves into the greatest mystery of all: the workings of our own mind. Pete Docter and Ronnie Del Carmen, who also directed the Oscar-winning "Up," collaborate again with this inventive story anthropomorphizing our inner core feelings—Anger, Fear, Sadness, Disgust and Joy. We are taken on a wild ride inside a tween girl, Riley, who is coping with her family's move from Minnesota to San Francisco. The audience gets to sit in the driver's seat as the emotions take turns at being dominant, depending upon the situation. We see how each one is necessary and relevant as one develops into adulthood. The animation is dazzling. Each of the emotions look like they are made from tiny, moving points of light, rather than being smooth, static creations, all buoyed with top-notch voice talent (comedian Lewis Black an example of pitch-perfect casting as Anger). Rated PG for mild thematic elements and some action, "Inside Out" features Pixar's signature blend of kid-friendly fare with plenty of safe territory adult jokes for the parents, making it accessible for a broad range of audiences, from the young to the young at heart.

Band of Outsiders (Bande à Part)

7:30 p.m. • Wednesday, Oct. 21
1964 • Unrated • 95 minutes

Director Jean-Luc Godard takes the helm on this caper filmed in France in the 1960s. It centers on two men, Franz and Arthur, whose life imitates the art they love so much. The friends are quite literally partners in crime and share a love of old Hollywood gangster movies. Franz meets a woman named Odile in an English class they are both taking together, and they find out the people she lives with are extremely wealthy. Arthur, who owes his uncle a significant amount of money, sees the situation ripe for opportunity. Taking on the personas of the tough guys they see in the movies (creating a film within a film), they pressure Odile into helping them rob her benefactors. It is filmed in stark black-and-white, adding to the "mobster" element that pervades this feature's theme. Due to scenes of peril and sexual tension between all three characters, this feature would be appropriate for families of older children, as well as adults.

Paper Towns

7:30 p.m. • Thursday through Sunday, Oct. 22 to Oct. 25
2015 • Rated PG-13 • 109 minutes

High schooler Quentin admits his life is boring, but at least he's got it all neatly figured out. However, when his secret crush Margo leads him through one wild night in his town of Concord, N.C., to help her exact revenge on her cheating, soon-to-be ex-boyfriend, he starts to wonder if there's more to life than clockwork predictability. With a renewed sense of purpose and the promise of a new romance with Margo, Quentin looks forward to seeing her the following day—only to discover she's vanished. This is where the film begins to elevate itself from the usual teen high school rom-com. Leaving clues behind as she goes, Margo leads Quentin and his friends on another adventure that will lead to unexpected discoveries about themselves and each other. Adapted from the best-selling novel of the same name by author John Green (who also wrote "The Fault in Our Stars"), "Paper Towns" won three Teen Choice Awards despite lukewarm reviews from critics. Rated PG-13 for language and teenagers involved in drinking, sexuality and partial nudity, this film is appropriate for older children accompanied by parents and for teenagers as well as adults who can appreciate the time in all our lives where we relied on our friends to help discover our true identity.

University Gallery Presents Vanessa Renwick: Hope and Prey

The University Art Gallery is pleased to present experimental DIY filmmaker Vanessa Renwick's three-channel video installation "Hope and Prey," on view in the gallery from Friday, Oct. 23, through Dec. 12.

"Hope and Prey" features stunning wildlife cinematography of animals hunting and being hunted, transformed through black-and-white high-contrast recomposition. The viewer is placed in a landscape inhabited by predators. As Renwick writes, "In this installation, the audience definitely has to keep an eye out for danger." Invoking the sublime, "Hope and Prey" has been described in the Brooklyn Rail as "a slow build toward oblivion that summons the awesome grandeur and the cold horror of the wild." Portland-based Daniel Menche composed the score.

Renwick will speak about her work at 4:30 p.m., Friday, Oct. 23, in Convocation Hall. A reception will follow. The event is free and open to the public.

In conjunction with the show, there will be a public screening of Renwick's film "Charismatic Megafauna" (2011) at 7:30 p.m., Nov. 9, in the Sewanee Union Theatre; this event is co-sponsored by Art Forum.

"Charismatic Megafauna" juxtaposes 16mm film footage from Renwick's own life as a teenager in inner-city Chicago living with a wolf dog, with video documentation shot by biologists reintroducing wolves into the western United States in the late 1990s. We watch the wolf dog scavenging in the gutters of Chicago, and we watch humans performing the act known perversely as "wildlife management" on wolves. While the footage of captured wolves can be harrowing, the reintroduction program was successful, and some of the offspring of the captured and re-released wolves are those filmed living freely in the wild in "Hope and Prey."

Based in Portland, Ore., Renwick is founder of the Oregon Department of Kick Ass <www.odoka.org>. Described as being "as punk rock as they come," Renwick began making low-budget films in the early 1980s. Her films have screened nationally and internationally in venues ranging from the Centre Pompidou in Paris, France, to the Museum of Jurassic Technology in Los Angeles.

The gallery is free, accessible and open to the public. For more information call 598-1223 or go to <www.sewanee.edu/gallery>.

SSO Announces 2015-16 Season

The Sewanee Symphony Orchestra (SSO) announces its 2015-16 season, the third under Maestro César Leal. This year kicks off with a third annual Halloween concert for area elementary schoolchildren at 10 a.m., Friday, Oct. 30; they will perform it again for the public at 7:30 p.m., Friday.

The concert, "Escape the Fog," features Beethoven's "Egmont Overture," Khachaturian "Masquerade Dances" and Anderson's "Syncopated Clock."

SSO will bring back its Celebrate the Season event at 7:30 p.m., Dec. 4. Repertoire for this concert will include audience favorites Tchaikovsky's "Waltz of the Flowers," Rebecca Van de Ven performing Mozart's "Oboe Concerto," and Ralph Vaughan Williams' "Fantasia on 'Greensleeves.'"

A Column for Young Adult Readers and Adults Who Appreciate The Genre

by Margaret Stephens

It's fall break, and I'm still getting used to the fact that school is in session at all. What happened to September? And what happened to the kids who, only a few moments ago it seems, were draped on the couch in front of the television or dripping milk and Cheerios from a hasty bowl of cereal while they head out the door?

Gone.

College; jobs; spouses—wherever, but I miss them, and I almost miss the noise and clutter of the days when they were underfoot.

One way to pretend I'm still an active part of their lives is to stalk college reading lists, especially easy to do with the books assigned for freshmen to read before they show up on campus. Some of which turn out to be books I actually want to add to my shortlist, thus achieving two things at once: distraction from a too-empty house and stimulation for my aging brain.

Top of the list is Karen Joy Fowler's "We Are All Completely Beside Ourselves," winner of the 2014 PEN/Faulkner Prize and short-listed for the Man Booker Prize. You may remember Fowler's "Jane Austen Book Club," made into a lively film a few years back. This novel has superlative reviews by everyone from Ursula LeGuin to Barbara Kingsolver, but mostly just looks like something which will be a joy to read: humorous, vivid characters, and with deep insight into the contemporary family. It's assigned to the freshmen at Transylvania University, and I'm hunting up my own copy.

Cornell is reading Vonnegut's "Slaughterhouse-Five," which I'm embarrassed to say I've never read, even though I did go to college with his (somewhat annoying) nephew. After helping my son proofread his Master's history thesis ("The Lid of Hell Was Off: War Culture and Violence in British Boys' Literature, 1914–18," which is sure a lot catchier title than my MA thesis had), I'm about ready to dive into Vonnegut's edgy anti-war book.

UT-Knoxville freshmen read Cristina Henríquez' "The Book of Unknown Americans," a fictional tale about two immigrant families—from Mexico and Panama—who come to America in search of better lives. I like the explanation of the title: "We're the unknown Americans ... the ones no one even wants to know, because they've been told they're supposed to be scared of us and because maybe if they did take the time to get to know us, they might realize that we're not that bad, maybe even that we're a lot like them." I think I'll have a better feel for the ongoing immigration debate if I read it.

Apparently it's tradition at Columbia University that freshmen read the Iliad, but Vanderbilt is reading another book that's been around for awhile, Brando Skyhorse's "Madonnas of Echo Park." This novel-in-stories about various Mexican-American inhabitants of an LA barrio—bus drivers, house cleaners, dish washers, migrant farm laborers—will, like "Unknown Americans," expand my world. And hopefully give me more insight into the lives of the ESL students I've started to work with.

There are a number of interesting nonfictions assigned, but I'm picking and choosing from the fiction lists only. The advantage of not being in school: I can read whatever I want.

And, since the kids ARE out of the house and I don't have to set a good example, we may be having cereal for supper.

What's on your fall reading list? I'd love to know. Drop me a note at mgmtstep@gmail.com.

SAS Soccer Team Falls to Mt. Juliet in Playoffs

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School's varsity girls soccer team lost 2-1 to host Mt. Juliet in the first round of the playoffs.

These two teams competed hard, and the game began with high energy on both sides.

Mt. Juliet was able to score two goals in the first half, but SAS sophomore Kyra Wilson (Sewanee) and senior Mason Goodson (Sewanee) both defended beautifully against a strong offensive line.

Senior Isabel Butler (Sewanee) and sophomore Erin Berner-Coe (Sewanee) threatened to score off a cross from the right midfield.

In the second half, freshman Kate Butler (Sewanee) worked hard to keep Mt. Juliet on their toes. Finally, SAS scored after a wall pass up the midfield between the two Butlers. Berner-Coe attempted to finish off a cross and Mt. Juliet's goalkeeper knocked the ball into the goal in the confusion of the attack.

SAS goalkeeper Rachel Alvarez (Sewanee) had some incredible saves in the match.

The game ended in a frenzy of excitement after Mt. Juliet fouled in its own box. SAS missed the penalty kick, but the Mountain Lions fought hard until the very last second of the game.

Sewanee Tigers Topple Transylvania in Field Hockey

Behind a strong offensive performance, the Sewanee field hockey team rolled past Southern Athletic Association (SAA) foe Transylvania, 3-1, on Oct. 11 at Puett Field.

The win moved the Tigers to 8-3 overall and 3-2 in conference play.

After Jessie Wilson scored for Transylvania, Sewanee answered back just over a minute later. On a fast break, Katie Wilson lifted the ball in the air, where Madison McAdams slammed home a shot past Allyson Benz.

Overall, Sewanee took 19 first-half shots and had 11 corners.

In the final 35 minutes of action, the Tigers stayed on the attack. Carrie Anderson pushed Sewanee in front, as Kat Mulligan found her in front of the cage in the 40th minute.

Anderson would then score another transition goal, as Virginia Barry dribbled the ball in and passed to a wide-open Anderson.

A big key on both plays was Sewanee's ability to quickly get the ball in the attacking third from the midfield. Janie Spilman, Nikki Erel, Luna Goodale, and Emma Horgan all were outstanding, stopping Transylvania attacks and then getting the ball outside on the attack.

Anderson led the Sewanee attack with six shots, while Wilson finished with five. Barry and Hannah Tompkins also had four shots.

Sewanee Golf Ranks Seventh, Javadi Second

After an outstanding tournament at the prestigious Golf Week Fall Invitational recently, the Sewanee women's golf team moved up to seventh place in the latest Golfstat rankings.

The Tigers were previously ranked 10th before finishing second behind Texas-Tyler by one stroke.

Sewanee is currently the highest ranked team in the Southern Athletic Association. Rival Rhodes sits at No. 11, while Centre dropped to No. 29.

Other notable teams that were ranked are No. 5 DePauw, No. 6 Washington, No. 19 Washington & Lee, and No. 23 Trinity. Redlands remains ranked No. 1, while Wittenberg and George Fox round out the top three.

Overall, Sewanee is 8-5-0 head-to-head against the top 25 teams. Additionally, the Tigers are ranked third in the region behind Wittenberg and DePauw.

Individually, Sewanee placed four student-athletes in the top 100. Senior Emily Javadi leads the way with a No.

2 national ranking, which is a career-high for Javadi, who finished second behind No. 3-ranked Laura Lindsey of University of Texas-Tyler by a single shot at the Golf Week Fall Invitational. The Chattanooga, Tenn., native continues to rank first in the region.

Javadi has finished no worse than second place in four fall tournaments. She tied for medalist honors at the Dan Quayle Collegiate Classic and dominated the field at the Montgomery Country Club Women's Intercollegiate.

Along with Javadi, freshmen Meghan Symonds (36th) and Sophia Morrill (60th), and senior Alison Eley (79th) are also ranked.

The Sewanee golf team is not scheduled to play again until March 6 at the Callaway Gardens Collegiate.

Sewanee Extends Unbeaten Streak to Seven Straight with Hendrix Win

A goal in each half extended the Sewanee women's soccer team's unbeaten streak to seven straight matches on Oct. 11, as the Tigers defeated Southern Athletic Association (SAA) member Hendrix College, 2-1, at Puett Field.

The Tigers have not lost since September 15 against Covenant. During this stretch, Sewanee has outscored its opponents 21-4. The Tigers have allowed only one goal in their last five contests.

The Tigers got on the board early, as freshman Daly LaRocque scored in the second minute.

Sewanee stayed on the attack the remainder of the half with six shots. The Tigers extended their lead in the 67th minute, as Kiley Ezzell scored her second goal in as many matches. Ezzell took a pass from teammate Mary "Sissy" Frank into the corner. On the ensuing touch, Ezzell broke past her defender and raced to the top corner of the box, where she blasted a low shot past the near post for the goal.

Overall, Sewanee finished with a 12-1 advantage in shots. The Tigers and Warriors were tied in corners with four each.

Sewanee, which is only a half game back of the SAA lead, returns to action with a 5 p.m. match at Millsaps today (Friday).

Sewanee Crew Competes in Chattanooga Head

The Sewanee crew team on Oct. 10 competed in the demanding 5,000-meter Chattanooga Head Race. Sewanee raced against the likes of Tulane University, Tennessee, Georgia, Clemson, Alabama, Georgia Tech, University of Tennessee-Chattanooga, Vanderbilt, Georgia State and other Division I schools.

Sewanee had an outstanding team effort, and a pair of medalist groups.

Women's four silver medalists: Ann Robinson, Emma Chinn, Abbie Warr, Josephine Hardin and cox Suxin Chen.

Mixed four bronze medalists: Sarah Board, Katharine Barwick, Nathan Wegman and cox Andrew Korn.

Eidson Player of the Week

Sewanee women's soccer student-athlete Elizabeth Eidson has been named the Southern Athletic Association (SAA) Women's Soccer Defensive Player of the Week, the league announced on Oct. 12.

Sewanee has not been beaten in its last seven matches, while the defense has limited opponents to just four goals.

That included only one goal the weekend of Oct. 9 in 185 minutes of play. During the recent unbeaten streak against some of the top offenses in the league, Eidson and her back-line teammates have helped Sewanee outscore other teams 21-4.

"I am happy for Eddie. She has been a key contributor to our success the past month," said head coach Patrick Johnston. "That being said, our entire defense continues to play well. This award could have also gone to Baker [Walls] or Martha [Dinwiddie]. All three ladies had a great weekend against two of the better offenses in the SAA."

NATURENOTES

Woolly Bear Caterpillar

Former Sewanee Children's Center director Larry Sims recently brought a woolly bear caterpillar for the children to observe.

SCC director Harriet Runkle notes that this is the season when we begin to see lots of the woolly bears (a.k.a. "woolly worms") crossing streets and sidewalks. As the temperatures cool off, these caterpillars, which are at the end of the larval stage of the Isabella tiger moth, begin to look for a place to overwinter under leaves, in rock crevices and under bark. Then, when temperatures begin to rise in the spring, the woolly bears come out of hiding and eat a little bit before spinning their cocoons to pupate. They fashion their cocoons with their bristles (which don't feel woolly at all) and silk and emerge after 10 days to two weeks. The Isabella tiger moth is a dull orange-yellow color with black spots on its wings that span about two inches.

Woolly Bear Caterpillar

SCC children are going to test the validity of the legend that woolly bears can predict the severity of the coming winter. According to folklore, the wider the middle brown section is, the milder the winter will be; and the narrower the brown band, the harsher the winter. Some people have gone so far as to say a completely black woolly bear caterpillar is a "bad omen" and predicts a winter unlike any other. So watch out, Sewanee ... the SCC woolly bear is completely black!

Another Large Caterpillar

Robin Gottfried noticed what turned out to be the huge (3–4 inches) caterpillar (pictured above) of the Imperial Moth on the Gottfried's garden fence. This one was green, but it may be salmon, red, cinnamon, tan, brown or charcoal. However, the guidebook says it is always recognizable by its long silky setae (hairs) and prominent white spiracles. It feeds on many different woody plants and overwinters as a pupa in an underground cell to emerge later as a magnificent adult moth.

Edible Landscaping Workshop

June Mays is offering a workshop on "Edible Landscaping," 9:30 a.m. to noon, Saturday, Oct. 31, at St. Mary's Convent. The event ($25 per person) is a benefit for the Community of St. Mary's and is part of its Ora et Labora program.

"Sometimes our best sun is in front of our houses," Mays said. At the workshop, participants will learn how to blend shrubs, flowers and vegetables to create an edible landscape around your home that you, the neighbors, and the passersby will enjoy.

Mays enjoyed a 31-year career as a financial advisor in Birmingham with a major Wall Street firm. Since 2009 she has enjoyed a second career as a garden designer, writer and lecturer. She spent a year studying garden design at the English Gardening School in London and has designed or consulted on over 100 gardens since her return to the United States.

She is a member of the Garden Writer's Association and the Association of Professional Landscape Designers. June and her husband, Joe, live in Birmingham and Sewanee. You can visit her gardens anytime. For more information go to <www.junemays.com>.

BARDTOVERSE

by Phoebe Bates

Keep love in your heart. A life without it is like a sunless garden when the flowers are dead.

If you are not too long, I will wait for you all my life.

Men always want to be a woman's first love – women like to be a man's last romance.

Women are made to be loved, not understood.

The old believe everything, the middle-aged suspect everything, the young know everything.

—Oscar Wilde, born October 16, 1856
