MESSENGE

Volume XXXVI No. 40

Published as a public service since 1985

Friday, Oct. 30, 2020

School Resource Officer Matt Walker and Sewanee resident Archer Ladd recently distributed more than 60 meals to Franklin County children and their families. The food was provided by Kitchen2Table, a joint venture between the Community Action Committee (CAC), headed by David Goodpaster, and McClurg Dining headed by Chef Rick. Kitchen2Table was made possible with monies raised from the annual Hunger Walk, which is hosted by the Monteagle-Sewanee Rotary Club. This year the Hunger Walk raised more than $45,000.

Kitchen2Table Program: Feeding the People

by Bailey Basham, Messenger Staff Writer

John Hille is on scooping duty, David Goodpaster is in charge of manning the machine used to package the meals and Rick Wright is the mind behind the dishes. Together, the Monteagle-Sewanee Rotary Club, the Sewanee Dining team and the Community Action Committee (CAC) are the manpower behind Kitchen2Table, a new initiative aimed at feeding hungry people and reducing food waste.

The Sewanee community has long been a champion of combating food insecurity, and two years in the making, the Kitchen2Table program is the newest arm of that work. Once a week, the Kitchen2Table team meets in the University kitchens to portion, package and freeze meals that would otherwise be wasted. Since the program officially began in September, the Kitchen2Table team has dispersed more than 80 meals to members in the surrounding community.

"Rotary came on board to help with the funding for the machine, and then the CAC kind of became the engine and host site for the work, as well as partly responsible for finding the distribution channels. This discussion has been happening for quite some time. Right around the time I started at CAC, the grant had been approved. COVID hit and there was a bit of a transition. When I got settled in, I got the green light from Chef Rick. We started [around the beginning of September], and we meet one night a week to package unused portions of one meal each meeting. Out of those unused portions, we've been averaging 50 meals in under an hour. The exciting thing is this will just continue to build

Wright, director of Sewanee Dining, said the issue of food insecurity on the Mountain has been getting progressively worse over the years. And that was before a global pandemic broadened the scope of the problem.

'With a large food service program, some waste is inevitable, and we'd rather divert that to a need in the community. With the Kitchen2Table meals, we're able to package a balanced meal and freeze it. Our desire is to use the resources we have to fill a need in the community that gets bigger every year. Since I've been involved with the program, we've done outreach with the food we don't use," he said. "We might have green beans leftover from lunch that wouldn't be enough for 1,700 students, but it's enough for 50 people. For those 50 people, that helps to fill a need."

Wright said it is the team members' shared hope that eventually community members will be able to take over the production.

"I had a teacher once tell me when I was young that you can't feed everybody in the world, but you can feed one person and that makes a huge difference. There are small operations that feel like they don't have enough to give, but even on a one meal basis, that would make a big difference in people's lives," Wright said. "It's not a truly original idea, but it's a real community effort to reach those in need. We have people from the University who work in different departments that are delivering the food and reaching people. I think the goal is to have this be community-led. We're hopeful those who want to be involved will step up and make it bigger and take it to other areas. It really takes the back one hour before you go to bed whole community to make this happen. I see this as all connected. I think we have a good chance."

Sewanee Council: Project Updates and Resolutions

by Leslie Lytle Messenger Staff Writer

The Sewanee Community Council took on a full agenda at the Oct. 26 Zoom meeting. The council heard updates on the Community Funding Project, Community Clean-up, and Housing Sewanee, approved a resolution on Race and Reconciliation, and presented a resolution of appreciation to former vice chancellor and council chair John McCardell.

Council member Theresa Shackelford drafted the resolution honoring McCardell. Expressing gratitude for the recognition, McCardell joked about how the council had evolved from dealing with the Environmental House's pet rooster and a neighbor's noisy dogs to addressing issues in a manner that responded "to more widespread and community concern." In closing, McCardell thanked council members for their "friendship, support, and dedication to the welfare of the community."

Council representative Eric Keen's resolution, Race and Reconciliation in Sewanee, a Statement of Community Support, underscored the work of the Roberson Project's research on race and the Board of Regents commitment to make Sewanee a "model of diversity." The resolution acknowledged "the central role of the chattel and enslavement of African-Americans... in the founding, financing and planning of the University...and the suppression of opportunity for African-American residents." Among other aims, the resolution alled for reconciliation "through conversations on racial, social, and economic justice" and University policies "on fair wages and hous-

Council representative Mary Priestley observed "others have something in the game who are different from us ' and expressed concern about "having discussions about what doesn't effect me." Priestley also questioned whether it was the council's role to dictate University policy on wages and housing.

Council representative Phil White pointed out "Historically

Monteagle Council: Interstate Lights, Roads, Travel Center

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

At the Oct. 26 Monteagle City Council meeting, the council took questions and presented updates on interstate exit lighting, road repair and the proposed Petro Stopping Center. The council also confirmed Halloween parade plans and progress on dealing with unkept property.

Vice Mayor Tony Gilliam said refurbishing the lighting at I-24 exit 134 had been completed and work was underway on the lighting at exit 135. According to Gilliam, the initial estimated cost of the project was $350,000-$400,000, but the city refurbished the lighting rather than replacing it and did the work in-house, cost $10,000. Gilliam projected by the end of the week the lighting at exit 135 would be in service. "We hope this will help increase revenue. Having our exits lit up will show the town of Monteagle is open for business.

Asked about road repair, specifically Laurel Lake Road, Gilliam said the city was measuring roads and prioritizing projects based on need. "I understand you want it [Laurel Lake Road] paved...8th Street and 2nd Street are in far worse shape." Gilliam said $65,000 was budgeted for roads, but that would only pave 1,200-1,300 feet. "Revenue is down because of COVID. We're working on ways to increase the budget." Gilliam also noted most of the 2018-19 road budget went for repair on Laurel Lake Road and purchase of an access road during the February 2019 flooding. He estimated paving Laurel Lake Road would cost $1.5

Speaking to zoning questions related to the proposed Petro Stopping Center, Gilliam said the zoning map would revert back to at least the 2015 version. "We're working with the state on that. We don't know how far [the map] will revert back."

Regarding progress on the proposed travel center, Gilliam said, "A lawsuit has been filed on the town for not signing off on it [the Petro Stopping Center site plan]." City attorney Sarah Bible explained, "It [the law suit] is not for damages, just action."

A resident objected to grading and excavation work being done at the proposed Petro site. He said he consulted with building inspector Earl Geary. According to the resident, Geary [allegedly] said, 'They're skirting the law, not breaking it.'

Gilliam acknowledged the need for and work being done to update city ordinances. "Before, if you wanted to build a service station, you could draw a diagram on a paper sack or cardboard box," Gilliam said.

Another resident said Geary refused to talk with her regarding concerns about an artesian well at the proposed Petro site. "Let us speak with Mr. Geary," Gilliam said. "If there's an issue there he can't handle, maybe we can hire someone else to come in...We apologize, and we will deal with it."

"He [Geary] did deal with it," said Rodney Kilgore, one of the proposed Petro developers. "He served papers on me...You can't stop me. I nave TDEC permits. I'm legal."

Brian Graber, Kilgore's partner in the project, asked, "When do you think we might have some sort of resolution?" Gilliam said he expected the Planning Commission to take up the issue at the Nov. 4 meeting.

In other business, Gilliam said trash and debris at a North Bluff Circle location were being cleaned up by the new owners. The former owners sold the property upon receipt of a letter from city attorneys about cleaning up the property. The attorneys had also sent a letter to owners of unkept property on Central Avenue, Gilliam said.

Alderwoman Jessica Blalock, who heads up parks and recreation, announced the Oct. 31 Halloween Parade beginning at noon at Monteagle Elementary School. Children, accompanied by police and fire department personnel, will walk to Harton Park for trunk-or-treat festivities ongoing until 3 p.m.

BIRD REDUCTION To the Editor:

We have been informed by the media of the large reduction of birds in this country (one-third at least, world wide!). Well, I can attest to that. In previous years we have had an abundance of year-round visitors at our feeders: hummingbirds, Carolina chickadee, goldfinch, tufted titmouse, cardinals, nuthatch, rufous towhees, brown thatcher, and three varieties of woodpeckers. Of those named, all are reduced in numbers, and the goldfinches are almost non-existent. In addition, those birds that are seasonal, just passing through or 'local visitors' (grossbeaks, juncos, cedar waxwings, fox sparrows, summer and scarlet tanagers, many warblers, etc.) are extremely rare or not seen at all....we have had flocks of grossbeaks and juncos before.

Also on steep decline, or listed as endangered, are insects, all marine animals, and many land animals. I haven't seen a honey bee in years... even the Japanese beetles are gone.

Guess what species is ever increasing its numbers on this earth. Guess what species is accelerating on Girault Jones Dr.; request to the pollution of the air, earth, and waters of this, the only planet where that species can live and still be the same species. Think about it.

Translating Ovid in the Age of #MeToo at ALLL

Ovid's Metamorphoses is a first century epic poem recounting myths from the beginning of history to the time of Caesar. Ovid's work touches on many aspects of love, sometimes of humans and frequently of the Roman gods, and has had a great impact on other writers throughout the centuries.

In a noon webinar on Monday, Nov. 2, hosted by the Academy of Lifelong Learning, Stephanie McCarter looks critically at how sexual violence has been translated in English versions of Ovid's Metamorphoses and outlines her strategies for more effectively--and more faithfully--construing rape and the objectified female body. The Academy is part of the Sewanee Seminar Series. Those wishing to attend this webinar should email <academyforlllearning@sewanee.edu>. There is no charge for participation.

Stephanie McCarter is Associate Professor of Classics at the University of the South. She did her undergraduate work in classics and English at the University of Tennessee at Knoxville and earned her M.A. and Ph.D. in Classics from the University of Virginia. At Sewanee she teaches Greek and Latin courses at all levels as well as courses in translation, and she is active in Sewanee's interdisciplinary Humanities program. She has recently published a translation of Horace's Epodes and Odes with the University of Oklahoma Press and is now translating Ovid's Metamorphoses for Penguin Classics. She has also penned essays and interviews for The Sewanee Review, Lapham's Quarterly, Literary Hub, Electric Literature, Eidolon, and elsewhere.

the council arrives at positions on various issues... but we have no legislative power. I see this resolution as a statement of the mind of the present council."

Providing an update on utilizing the $15,700 available in Community Funding Project money for COVID-19 related needs, council member Kate Reed said she expected it would be "a tough winter." Reed asked council members to help make nonprofits with COVID needs aware they could apply for funds online via a form at the Lease Office website. Reed also put out a call to council members who wished to serve on the review committee and asked them to contact her via email. Provost Nancy Berner said with the new year there was an additional $10,000 available to the Community Funding Project.

Looking ahead, Priestley said Sallie Green had offered to include expenses for the April Arthur Knoll Community Clean-up in the Lease Office budget. The Lease Office will cover the pickup, materials, and day-end meal costs.

Reporting on Housing Sewanee initiatives, Dixon Myers said the first energy efficient home, recently completed, would reduce the homeowner's combined mortgage and energy expenses to only $400-$450 per month. The Demonstration Building constructed next to the home showcases the energy-efficient systems the home features. When pandemic restrictions relax, Housing Sewanee will offer tours at the demonstration facility, Myers said. The new energy efficient home is in Sherwood Springs, where Housing Sewanee acquired eight lots as sites for zero-percent interest homes. Historically, Housing Sewanee built homes on University leaseholds where the lessee resided in substandard housing. The project began in 1993. Housing Sewanee has built 18 homes.

Updating the council on cell tower progress, Berner said Vogue Towers was working through the approval process with the State Historic Preservation Office. Plans call for the tower to be operative by mid-2021.

Six council seats are open for election, one in each of the four districts and two at-large seats. Early voting is ongoing at the Lease Office through Oct. 30, during regular business hours. Council representative Anna Palmer will devise a method for residents to vote remotely. On Nov. 3, community council voting takes place at Sewanee Elementary School.

University to Begin Search for a Chief Diversity Officer

Sewanee Vice-Chancellor Reuben Brigety has announced that the university is beginning the process of hiring a chief diversity officer, who will have the title of vice provost for diversity, equity, and inclusion. The vice provost will oversee a new Office of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI). Provost Nancy Berner will lead a national search for candidates for the position.

Amid America's own reckoning with systemic racism, the university's Board of Regents recently called the university to become a "model of diversity, of inclusion, of intellectual rigor, and of loving spirit in an America that rejects prejudice and embraces possibility." In September, Brigety named several initiatives toward this goal, which will be increasingly important as Sewanee recruits students, as well as faculty and staff, from an ever more diverse pool.

The new vice provost will assess current programs and practices to identify barriers that limit progress in the areas of DEI and will recommend changes; partner with other offices and students to support a welcoming and inclusive campus climate; and ensure that diversity and inclusion initiatives are integrated throughout the university.

'The vice provost will help ensure that Sewanee's campus climate reflects the University's deepest value, that of Ecce Quam Bonum," said Brigety. ("Ecce Quam Bonum" is shorthand for the university's motto, "Behold how good and pleasant it is when kindred live together in unity.") Brigety noted that much great work already has been done at Sewanee toward diversity, equity, and inclusion. The chief diversity officer will work with those who are already engaged in these issues, and will coordinate and leverage the University's various efforts for greater overall effectiveness. "The work to enhance DEI at the University of the South will be integrated in everything we do-how we recruit students and prepare them for the world, how we achieve academic excellence, how we recruit and support faculty and staff, and how we interact with our neighbors and the world," he said. "I'm excited to continue this work together.

LILY GREEN GUILD UNVEILS BRASS TABLET

Erected to Memory of Miss Lily Green, Beloved Woman.

SEWANEE, Tenn., Aug. 26—(Special)—The Lily Green Guild, formerly the Ladies' Aid Society of Otey Memorial Church, unveiled a brass tablet on Sunday to the memory of Miss Lily Green, long-time president of the society, who died in April 1917. The service was in charge of Bishop Thomas F. Gailor and the Rev. W.H. DuBose, and the principal addresses were made by Bishop Gailor and the Rev. William Mercer Green of Jackson, Miss., a nephew of the deceased. The tablet is located on the wall of Otey Church alongside of the pew occupied for many years by Miss Green.

The occasion was one of great interest to a large number of Sewanee people who knew Miss Lily as a girl and young lady and knew of the unreserved energy with which she gave herself to the

It was in 1867, one year before the formal opening of the University of the South, that Miss Lily came to Sewanee with her father, the Rt. Rev. William Mercer Green, the first bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Mississippi and the first chancellor of the university after it opened. They made their home here in what was then a virgin forest, and after her father's death (1887) Miss Lily kept the home as her permanent residence. In those early days the students lived in the homes of residents connected with the university, and her home became so popular that a number of cottages had to be erected on her lot to take care of those who desired to partake of her hospitality.

Miss Lily's given name was Elizabeth Waters Green. The Greens' house was named Kendall Hall. It was located on Tennessee Avenue. The house was torn down in the late 1960s. Miss Lily's tablet is now located in the hall in the Claiborne Parish House at Otey.

Sewanee Elementary Announces SAS Virtual Admission Open House, Nov. 15

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School welcomes families seeking better educational options to a virtual admission open house on Sunday, Nov. 15, at 2 p.m. for students seeking admission to grades 6-8 and 4 p.m. for students interested in grades 9-12. Families will enjoy the opportunity to hear from and interact with school administrators, teachers and students. Families can register online at <sasweb.org/ admission>.

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School provides outstanding college and life preparation for day and boarding students in grades 6-12. Named one of the South's most beautiful high schools by Southern Living Magazine, the school takes full advantage of its 550-acre mountaintop campus. Students spend significant time outdoors each day walking the historic campus and enjoying outdoor learning and recreation opportunities. Playing as the Mountain Lions, the school fields 25 teams in 10 sports, including a varsity mountain biking program, one of the first in the state, and the best private school girls' wrestling program in Tennessee. SAS is also known for its rich visual and performing arts programs.

SAS students enjoy small classes, personalized instruction, and the opportunity to participate in a wide range of activities regardless of their prior level of experience. The school's Learning Resource Center provides academic support for students needing additional attention. Students seeking more challenge may take college courses for free and for credit at the nearby University of the South.

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee School's Episcopal heritage is central to its mission, but the school welcomes students of all faiths. To provide educational opportunities for those students for whom such experiences might not otherwise be available, the school awards close to $2.3 million in financial aid each year.

SAS has been in session on-campus and in-person since August. The school recently completed the first quarter of the academic year without a positive COVID test on campus despite extensive testing of its students, faculty and staff. Students are enjoying more outdoor classes in the school's many outdoor classrooms. The school calendar will move classes online from late November through mid-January. Parents gave the school high marks last spring when classes went online and teachers have received additional training on the effective use of technology for online classes.

Families are encouraged to schedule a personalized campus visit and on-campus interview as part of the application and admission

For more information about St. Andrew's-Sewanee School and the Virtual Admission Open House, go to <www.sasweb.org>. Registration will close on Friday, Nov. 13.

VILLAGEREPORT

by Frank X. Gladu

It's time once again to move our clocks back one hour this weekend. This will have the sun setting crazy early until the winter solstice when sunsets begin to gradually become later and later. It's also election time when we will choose our local, state and national leaders. The Sewanee Community Council elections are an important part of choosing representatives to provide a voice to guide our small town's quality of life and development. Part of the development includes the Village project. It is important to have individuals that can provide insight and perspective to guiding Sewanee. Early voting is in progress at the Lease and Community Relations Office at 400 University Ave., or you can cast your vote at the General Election on Tuesday, Nov. 3 at the Sewanee Elementary School.

Leading the list of remaining priority projects for the Village is the narrowing of Highway 41A. The Tennessee Department of Transportation is in the process of putting the road narrowing project out to bid in order to select a contractor to do the work. Once a contractor is selected, a construction project time line will be created. So stay tuned for some possible activity as early as Spring 2021. Allow me to take a moment to reiterate the purpose of this project. Primarily it is to better connect the existing commercial area north of Highway 41A to an important future expansion on the south side of Highway 41A. The south side of Highway 41A is where most of the vacant land is and it is important to the future long range plans to develop this land over time to create a vibrant Village. It will take many years for this to evolve, but it is a fundamental first step in that process. Narrowing Highway 41A will also create a more walkable pedestrian friendly downtown. The project will provide sidewalks and planting areas for trees and landscaping as well a crossing signal at the University Avenue intersection. In addition, Franklin County has been very supportive of this project from TDOT as they see this as a positive development step for Sewanee and the county potentially providing more business activity and jobs. TDOT is providing the funds for the construction of the project. The University will eventually need to participate with some funding expenses such as lighting, street trees and landscaping. But to achieve this level of development as part of a state project is a tremendous advantage to our small town. It has taken a long time, nearly 7 years, to get to this point in the process and we can see the light at the end of the tunnel.

The remaining priority projects include a food market, a variety of additional housing options and the creation of a Village green to gather and hold events in Sewanee. Some incremental progress is occurring on all three projects. However, there is no immediate or significant activity to report at the present time.

The next Village Update meeting will occur after Thanksgiving, so keep a look out for the announcement of the date, time and topic. Make your vote count and have a wonderful Thanksgiving. Take care....and keep your distance!

Halloween Blue Moon

This week on Halloween we will have the second full moon in the month of October. When there are two full moons in the same month, the second one is often referred to as a "blue moon." The last time this happened was March 31, 2018. The actual lunar cycle is about 29.5 days, so every two and a half years, this sort of "doubling up" occurs, since our months are 30 or 31 days long (except for February, of course). A blue moon on Halloween only occurs every 19 years, however, because the lunar calendar repeats itself every nineteen years. The idea behind the expression, "once in a blue moon," seems to predate the use of the term "blue moon" for this second full moon in a month. That is, the idea of a blue moon referred to something that seldom if ever happened, and since this second full moon in a month is a rare occurrence, it became a blue moon. The moon isn't actually blue in color of course, unless highly unusual atmospheric conditions are present. Then it would be a blue moon in all senses!

Freddy Tucker of Sewanee called to say all the hummingbirds which were coming to his feeders have apparently gone. He noted that he didn't have as many as usual this year. Daryl Walker of Alto says she still had one little female last week, hanging out after the others had left.

DREMC Warns Members About Phone Scams

Duck River Electric Membership Corporation (DREMC) is warning members about recent phone scams impacting several communities, in which the caller demands immediate payment be rendered to avoid disconnection of services.

Hermione

Pets of the Week Meet Mr. Belding &

Hermione

Hello, my name is Mr. Belding! You may recognize my name from the hit series "Saved by the Bell," but my personality is not as stern and goofy as the character. I am a quiet type that likes to chill and lay back under the shelves in the rooms. Sometimes my kitten roommates can be "a little too much" for my taste since I have a shy personality. So I think if I have a family that would love me and be patient, I will be a family's best friend. You will never have to worry about being alone, because I will be right there by your side for life. I am also a great looking kitten, and would be a fantastic window ornament for your picture window. I am up-to-date on my vaccinations, FIV/FeLV negative, neutered, and microchipped. If you are interested in adopting me, make sure you submit an adoption application at <www.animalharbor.org>.

Hermione, named after the Harry Potter character, is a striking black kitten with a characteristic white spot on her chest. She is a kitten with loads of personality. Hermione is approximately five months old and is very intelligent and a leader of the pack type, just like the character in the Harry Potter series. At first glance, Hermione seems like any other kitten, but her quick wit and bold personality makes her a special kitten that will give you a chuckle. Hermione likes to swat her roommates and play rough, therefore she may not be best friends with a dog, unless the dog has patience and is very gentle! She is up-to-date on vaccinations, FIV/FeLV negative, spayed, and microchipped. If you are interested in adopting Hermione, please be sure to submit an adoption application

Election Day, Nov. 3

If I should need to name, O Western World, your powerfulest

'Twould not be you, Niagara—nor you, ye limitless prairies nor your huge rifts of canyons, Colorado,

Nor you, Yosemite—nor Yellowstone, with all its spasmic geyser-loops ascending to the skies, appearing and disappearing, Nor Oregon's white cones—nor Huron's belt of mighty lakes nor Mississippi's stream:

-This seething hemisphere's humanity, as now, I'd name—the still small voice vibrating—America's choosing day,

(The heart of it not in the chosen—the act itself the main, the quadriennial choosing,)

The stretch of North and South arous'd—sea-board and inland—Texas to Maine—the Prairie States—Vermont, Virginia,

The final ballot-shower from East to West—the paradox and conflict,

The countless snow-flakes falling—(a swordless conflict, Yet more than all Rome's wars of old, or modern Napoleon's:) the peaceful choice of all,

Or good or ill humanity—welcoming the darker odds, the dross:

—Foams and ferments the wine? it serves to purify—while the heart pants, life glows:

These stormy gusts and winds waft precious ships, Swell'd Washington's, Jefferson's, Lincoln's sails.

--Walt Whitman, Election Day, November, 1884
