Theatre/Sewanee Presents “Dancing at Lughnasa”

Theatre/Sewanee will present the Tony Award-winning play “Dancing at Lughnasa” by Brian Friel Nov. 12–13 and 18–20 at 7:30 p.m., with a Sunday matinee on Nov. 14 at 2 p.m. in the Tennessee Williams Center. Admission is free, but reservations are suggested by calling 598-3260.

Widely regarded as Friel’s masterpiece, this extraordinary play is the story of the five unmarried Mundy sisters, eking out their lives in a small Irish village in 1936. It is August, the time of the Festival of Lughnasa, a traditional harvest celebration filled with revelry and dancing. While the community of Ballybeg, County Donegal, celebrates the festival, the Mundy sisters remain isolated. Their existence is spare, interrupted by brief, colorful bursts of music from the radio—the only link to the romance and hope of the world at large.

The action of the play is told through the memory of the illegitimate son of one of the sisters, as he remembers the five women who raised him. He is only seven in 1936, the year his uncle, a priest, returns after serving for 25 years as a missionary in a leper colony in Uganda. For the young boy, two other disturbances occur that summer. The sisters acquire their first radio and he meets his father for the first time—a charming Welsh drifter named Gerry Evans.

“Lunch and Learn” Series Features Brown Patterson

“Lunch and Learn” provides opportunities for lifelong learning for local residents and visitors in a beautiful bluff setting at St. Mary’s

Sewanee. Lectures are held on the second Thursday of each month. Annual dues for the academy are $10. New members are welcome at any time.

A boxed lunch may be purchased for $10. Lunch reservations for the November program are due by Friday, Nov. 5. E-mail <stmaryssewanee@bellsouth.net> or call Vanessa or Hadley at 598-5342. Reservations are not required to attend the lecture, and participants may bring their own lunches.

Last Week’s Close Call: Sewanee’s Tornado Response

University professor and member of the Weather Event Team Tim Keith-Lucas described the scene in the Sewanee Police Department dispatch office as emergency personnel monitored a severe weather front moving through Franklin County on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 26. Franklin County schools were closed in advance of a strong line of storms that came through around 2:30 p.m. from the Huntland area, moving northeast toward Cowan and Sewanee.

In an e-mail to the Sewanee community and reprinted in the Messenger with permission, Keith-Lucas reported: Let me tell you about the siren on Tuesday, Oct. 26. We knew it was an unusually violent front, especially for this time of year; the isobars (change in air pressure) were so close together it looked like a topographical map of Lost Cove. We sent out extra warnings, even recommending reconsideration of outdoor labs. At first the actual cells in the front weren’t really scary—winds of 50 mph, when we don’t get concerned until they top 60. Then the tornadoes started popping up. Four or five went by north or south of us (one over Sherwood), but none straight at us.

Then one cell formed down in northern Alabama and came our way. It wasn’t high velocity, although it had a lot of rain in it, but it persisted. Most cells dissipate within 15 minutes or so. This one kept coming, turned into a tornado, and the National Weather Service (NWS) put a tornado warning box around it that did not quite reach Sewanee. It kept dropping back to being a turning, not a tornado, cell and then back to being a tornado. When it got close, it was not a tornado, and the NWS box still didn’t include Sewanee, and the straight line winds were only 54 mph. At that point Marie Eldridge [assistant police chief] looked over my shoulder and said, “You know, that’s seven minutes from us, and could turn back into a tornado, with our having no time at all to warn

Council Hears Rock Quarry Concerns and Dog Park Proposal

At the Sewanee Community Council meeting on Oct. 25, council members reviewed updates on topics introduced at the past two meetings and discussed two new issues: a proposal for a dog park in Sewanee and Pelham residents’ concerns about the possible siting of a rock quarry in their community.

Council representative Phil White presented the case for establishing a Sewanee dog park, saying that owners who walk two or more dogs and those whose dogs do not favor leashes would benefit. He noted that dog parks can help socialize dogs to get along better with people and other dogs. Questioned about physical specifics, White mentioned a dog park in Knoxville with a lake, shelters and benches for pet owners and water basins for dogs. Though some dog parks are as large as several acres, White said, “an acre will do”; he recommended a combination of wooded and cleared terrain with some high grass. The area would need to be fenced with a double-gated system, so those entering do not accidentally release dogs on the inside. Dog parks typically provide scooper bags and containers for disposal of canine waste, require dogs to be vaccinated, post a legal disclaimer and display a sign that says, “No aggressive behavior tolerated.”

White suggested that a committee could be established to oversee the operation of a dog park in Sewanee and recommended that a volunteer be present to monitor activities. Several possible locations were discussed. Council representative Phil Loney recommended looking at dog parks in communities of a similar size and surveying local pet owners to determine the degree of anticipated utilization. Vice-Chancellor John McCordell stressed that many questions remain regarding the project, such as whether individual users or the entire community would bear the cost. Representatives Loney and Dennis Meeks agreed to serve on a committee with White to investigate the topic.

Handler Addresses Environmental Issues at Sewanee Woman’s Club

The Sewanee Woman’s Club will meet on Monday, Nov. 8, in St. Mary’s Sewanee conference center located on 770 St. Mary’s Lane. The speaker this month is environmentalist Maureen Handler. The social hour begins at 11:30 a.m., with lunch served at noon.

Handler’s talk will be “The Restoration of the Russell Cave Watershed.” Handler graduated from Virginia Tech with a degree in civil engineering. Since that time she has worked as an environmental engineer who specializes in the cleaning up of industrial sites. She has been involved with the SERA Karst Task Force, a local non-profit that helps clean up caves and associated watersheds. After moving to Sewanee she and some friends reactivated the Sewanee Mountain Grotto and adopted the Russell Cave Watershed and have been cleaning it up since 2006.

Annual membership dues are $5, and lunches are $13. Reservations for the meeting are due by noon on Friday, Nov. 5. Contact Caroline Shoemaker, 598-0982, Marietta Poteet, (931) 924-7666 or e-mail Marianna Handler at <mariannah@earthlink.net>. Women in the surrounding area are invited to join and enjoy a great meal and program.

State General Election Results

The Tennessee State General Election was held on Tuesday, Nov. 2. THE HUMANE SOCIETY EXPRESSES GRATITUDE To the Editor:

On behalf of The Franklin County Humane Society, I would like to thank the manager and staff at Tractor Supply for hosting our Halloween Pet Pictures event on Oct. 23 and 24. We are grateful to all the kind people who helped us stage this event: Linda Curty and LC Photography, Kristina Tibbo, Joanne Groat, Pat Thompson, Jim Curty, George Bowers, The Sewanee Mountain Messenger, The Herald Chronicle and Animal Care Center. And many thanks to all our friends who brought their pets in for Halloween pictures. This successful event raised over $550 for Animal Harbor.

A CONCERNED VOLUNTEER To the Editor:

There are two service institutions in Sewanee that need help badly. They are the Sewanee Senior Citizens' Center and the Hospitality Shop. They both depend heavily on volunteers to accomplish their work.

The Senior Citizens' Center provides enrichment and meals for our senior citizens. The monies taken in at the Hospitality Shop buy equipment for the hospital and scholarships for young people going into nursing.

The volunteers are faithful and hardworking, but more volunteers are needed. Check your daily calendar and see if you have a few hours one day a week when you can volunteer at one of these places.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:

Mail your letter to the Sewanee Mountain MESSENGER, P.O. Box 296, Sewanee TN 37375, or come by our office, 418 St. Mary's Ln., or send your e-mail to <news_messgr@bellsouth.net>. Please include your name, address and daytime telephone number. Preference is given to letters under 250 words. Unsigned letters will not be used. Letters are edited for space and clarity.

THANK YOU, LAURA WILLIS To the Editor:

I have often read the letters of thanks that Laura Willis has written over time to both the volunteers and board members of the Community Action Committee (CAC) for their assistance in numerous events. However, the kudos should go to Laura herself for the direction and leadership she has provided to CAC over the years.

As a volunteer and former board member, I have had the honor and pleasure for the past two years of working with Laura. What I have witnessed during that time is a person with great passion for her job and unbelievable compassion for the clients of CAC. One merely needs to see a client in tears when that person learns of Laura's departure to see what she has meant to the organization.

Whereas many are aware of the filled grocery bags making their way out the door of the food pantry, the monthly breakfasts, the special Thanksgiving and Christmas meals for clients and the annual mobile food pantry, many don't know the work that Laura does "behind the scenes." The late night phone calls from clients in need, the counseling of those same people, and the time she devotes to this "part-time" job speaks not only of her dedication and compassion, but to her Christian spirit. She is a real credit to the Sewanee community and we should be thankful to have her.

CAC's loss is the Sewanee Mountain Messenger's gain. In one man's opinion I think she will do a great job! So, I say a great big "THANK YOU" to Laura Willis, and wish her nothing but the best in her new endeavors. Good luck and Godspeed, Laura. You go, girl!

FINANCIAL INFORMATION To the Editor:

There was a mistake by one of the correspondents in the last edition of the MESSENGER. There was no increase in the income tax, but a decrease for the very top payers. It occurred under the Republicans almost 10 years ago.

There was another misleading assertion: The people who earn money earn it because they can under our system; they could not "earn" it under a Nazi or Communist system.

Serving Where Called

Seven years ago this column began to support the large number of reservists and National Guard members called up for active duty to serve in the war in Iraq. About 50,000 troops remain in Iraq to support and train their military and assist with counterterrorism.

This is a reminder that someone else is standing guard and facing fire for us. Please keep the following individuals, their families and all those who fight for freedom in your prayers:

Nick Barry
Robyn Cimino-Hurt
James Gregory Cowan
Robert S. Lauderdale
Alan Moody
Brian Norcross

Cowan Christmas Parade Set for Dec. 4

The 46th annual Cowan Christmas Parade will be held on Saturday, Dec. 4, 2010, starting at 1 p.m. at Cookie's Corner and proceeding down Cumberland Street through the downtown area to end at Cowan Elementary School. This year's theme is "The Characters of Christmas" and entrants are encouraged to pick a character and depict it on their float.

"Mark your calendars to come and share in the fun and excitement of the annual Christmas parade in beautiful Cowan," says the parade committee. "That Saturday morning—with its multitalented marching bands, colorful floats and the return of the Shriners' Tin Lizzie Unit—will mark the official start of the Cowan holiday season." The deadline for submitting parade entry forms is Wednesday, Nov. 24, at noon. For the last 45 years, Franklin Countians and visitors from surrounding areas have enjoyed and supported the parade with attendance as high as 5,000.

In addition, the "Twas the Night Before" Christmas Boutique in Monterey Station will return. Booths are for sale and it is hoped that multiple vendors will be selling a variety of products. Booths will open at 1 p.m. Friday, Dec. 3, with a visit from Santa, photos with Santa, cookie decorating and entertainers for everyone's enjoyment later that evening.

Sponsors are still needed for this year's parade. For more information or to obtain a parade entry form or a booth for the boutique, call 967-7318 or visit the official parade website at <www.cowanparade.org>. Information about how companies, civic organizations or nonprofit groups can participate is also available.

The meeting was called to order, and the following items were approved: the September minutes; the request to install a pool, privacy fence and trellis on Lease No. 648, located at 236 Mississippi Ave.; the request to transfer Lease No. 698, located at 12595 Sollace Freeman Hwy., to Ogre Company, LLC; the request to install a deck and roof on Lease No. 601, located at 288 Willie Six Rd.; the request to create a garden and install a fence on Lease No. 544, located at 156 Morgan's Steep Rd.; the request to add a shed to Lease No. 847, located at 479 Kennerly Rd.; and the request to enclose a back porch with glass and screen on Lease No. 684, located at 178 Maple St.

The request to rent to undergraduates during a sabbatical leave was not approved.

Discussion items included an update by John Vineyard on the storage building request from Housing Sewanee. Proposed changes to the tree policy were postponed until next month.

Leaseholds offered for sale since the last meeting: Lease No. 649 (Way), 319 Florida Ave., $298,000; Lease No. 978 (Williamson), 426 Wiggins Creek Dr., $495,000.

Leasehold reduced since the last meeting: Lease No. 597 (Ihrig), 120 University Ave., reduced from $250,000 to $228,000.

The University recommends that leaseholders hire contractors who comply with the State of Tennessee's laws for licensing and insurance. It is the leaseholder's responsibility to confirm that a contractor meets the State of Tennessee's requirements. The University assumes no responsibility or liability for the work performed on leasehold property.

A county building permit is required for structures with roofs. Please contact the Franklin County Planning and Zoning Office at (931) 967-0981 for information.

The University must consent to Deeds of Trust that secure mortgages against leasehold property. If you are interested in obtaining a loan against your leasehold, it is important to get the lease office involved early on in the process. Failure to do so can result in a delay in the loan process. Loans also include equity loans, lines of credit, and refinances.

Current policies, meeting dates and other leasehold information are available online at <www.sewanee.edu/leases> or by calling the lease office at 598-1998.

The next meeting is scheduled for Nov. 17. Agenda items are due in the lease office no later than 4:30 p.m. on Nov. 10.

Lewallen Publishes "Making Your Way to the Pulpit"

The Rev. Jerrie Parker Lewallen, a 1998 and 2009 alumna of the School of Theology, has published "Making Your Way to the Pulpit: Hethcock's Homiletics Goes to the Parish," a book on the teachings of the Rev. William H. Hethcock, professor emeritus of homiletics at the School of Theology.

Hethcock directed field education from 1979 to 1985 and taught homiletics (the art of preaching) from 1985 until his retirement in 1997. He remains active as a teacher, speaker on the subject of preaching and preacher.

"Making Your Way to the Pulpit" is a book for all preachers who are looking for a tested, reliable approach to sermon preparation. Assimilating the work of other scholars, Hethcock developed his own process for approaching sermon preparation on a weekly basis. This book summarizes and describes the Hethcock method. When followed, his process reliably gets the preacher to the pulpit with a biblical proclamation that resonates with individuals in today's congregations.

An endorsement for "Making Your Way to the Pulpit" by Sewanee Chancellor J. Neil Alexander appears on the back cover: "William Hethcock is a master pedagogue in homiletics, who for a generation taught seminarians a reliable path from their study to the pulpit."

Lewallen earned a B.A. from the University of Texas, a J.D. from Indiana University and the M.Div. and D.Min. degrees from the School of Theology.

Lewallen is a retired Episcopal priest who has served as rector at St.

The Rev. Jerrie Parker Lewallen received congratulations from the Rev. William Hethcock following her graduation from the School of Theology with a Doctor of Ministry degree in 2009.

Timothy's in Athens, Ala., priest in charge at St. Columba in Huntsville, Ala., and interim rector at Otey Memorial Parish, Sewanee. Currently she is a supply priest at churches in various dioceses and serves on a ministry team for Epiphany in Sherwood, Holy Comforter in Monteagle and Christ Church in Alto. Before attending seminary, Lewallen was a lawyer in Huntsville, Ala., from 1977 to 1995.

Sewanee Aimed for “Zero-Waste” Founders’ Day Events

In its first such large-scale effort, the University planned four “zero-waste” events surrounding the recent Founders’ Day and vice-chancellor installation celebrations. Two formal dinners and two picnics, with a total of about 2,700 guests, were planned with the goal of sending no waste materials to the landfill.

The collaborative effort brought together Sustain Sewanee (a student group working on sustainability education projects), residents of the GreenHouse (a campus residence where students model sustainability), Aramark (the University’s food services provider) and the University’s Sustainability Steering Committee.

Service for the formal dinners used only reusable linens and china. Packaging materials, including cardboard, glass and plastic, were all recycled. All uneaten food was collected and composted. Student volunteers supported Aramark staff in the kitchens by collecting the waste in containers and taking it to the campus composting site. Even the magnolia trees used as event decorations are being planted on campus.

Food service for the picnics used fully compostable items (paper plates and napkins, biodegradable cups and utensils). Student volunteers served drinks in compostable cups (no cans or bottles) and staffed compost stations, assisting diners with the disposal of materials.

In his installation address, Vice-Chancellor John McCardell envisioned a Sewanee where visitors “are immediately struck by evidence all around us of a commitment to sustainability ... What strikes us is that the commitment to sustainability is not limited to the classroom—recycling and composting are a way of life ... This place doesn’t just talk the environmental talk” (McCardell’s full address is available on the university website at <www.sewanee.edu>.)

The zero-waste effort made during the Founders’ Day events was a visible start toward the goal of turning that vision into reality. Subgroups of the University’s Sustainability Steering Committee are investigating full-scale composting and recycling programs.

Forty-four students provided support for the events, managed by Rocco Calandruccio, C’01, assistant director of Residential Life for sustainability and facilities.

Thurmond Library News

Theresa Shackelford reports that browsing through the nonfiction books that arrived at Thurmond Memorial Library on the Highland Rim Bookmobile last week, you could say, “It’s beginning to look a lot like Christmas.” This quarter’s installment included books on crafts, entertaining and cookbooks. If you’re a chocolate, Santa may have come early for you. “I’m Dreaming of a Chocolate Christmas” by Marcel Desaulniers features treats, gifts, desserts and even drinks that look good enough to eat. Not just another culinary pretty face, Desaulniers won the James Beard award for his earlier cookbook, “Death By Chocolate.”

“At Home in Tennessee, Classic Historic Interiors” is a lush coffee table book that showcases some of the most famous homes in Tennessee with full color photos and a bit of history. Some of the homes you’ll find are Travellers’ Rest, the Hermitage and Belmont Mansion. Hamilton Place, an ancestral Polk home, is most famous for being the birthplace of Sewanee’s Harry Yeatman. Back in the day, Harry’s family and the White House used the same source of marble!

“The Audubon Backyard Bird-watcher” is an easy to use identification guide, full of information and boasting 1,000 full color photos. There are directions on how to create a bird-friendly environment, which includes information on hundreds of plants—trees, shrubs and ground-cover—that attract birds, perfect reading as we enter winter.

Thurmond Memorial Library is located in Otey parish hall and open Monday–Tuesday, 9:30–10:30 a.m.; Wednesday–Friday, 10 a.m.–noon. Please note the change in Friday hours.

people.” Good thinking. It would not feel good to explain that we saw it and didn’t get people to cover, with the campus looking like Union University in Jackson did in February 2008. We blew the siren. On the next radar scan (they come every four minutes), no tornado. No cell, either. Nothing at all. Damn! We just disrupted 2,000 people’s lives, and we have nothing at all to show for it.

But then the next scan. Bingo! It’s not only a tornado, it’s sitting right on top of Sewanee. Went right over us. Did not touch ground. No damage, but lots of people left wondering what happened. It wasn’t very big. If it had touched down, think Midway the last time one did, not Union University, but small tornadoes still kill people. We maintained the lockdown for 29 minutes, until we were clear of that first wave of the front. That front put a tornado on the ground near Chattanooga and made a mess. The second wave, two hours later, was actually more violent than the first, but all the straight line cells, tornado warnings, and tornadoes missed us, and we did not have to do it all again.

[Editor’s Note: Please visit the Sewanee Mountain Messenger website at <www.sewaneeemessenger.com> for images of the actual radar weather scans and a more detailed explanation.]

Now you know what goes on in the Sewanee dispatch office during a violent front, and what dispatchers deal with in trying to protect people while minimizing disruption to lives. Often only one person has to do it all (we had four on Tuesday), and I think it remarkable what a skilled and careful job they do of it.

Keith Lucas notes that public education about weather is very important in our area on the Cumberland Plateau. Without people knowing what is actually happening, they tend to ignore potential life-threatening situations.

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee School Gallery welcomes the work of Erin McIntosh through Nov. 7. A reception in her honor will be held this evening, Nov. 4, from 5 to 7 p.m. and is open to the public.

McIntosh will work with SAS art students and offer a Studio Workshop, "Visualizing Passages: Poetic Abstraction in Water-Based Media," to the public on Saturday, Nov. 6, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. To register contact Christi Teasley at <ctasley@sasweb.org> or 598-5651, ext 3151.

McIntosh says she is "most interested in the inter-relationships of the human mind and body—complexities that permeate our thoughts, feelings and actions. I playfully investigate the nature of human communication, visually exploring the fluid process of thought formation as it is woven throughout emotional and physical aspects of the McIntosh currently lives and works in Athens, Ga., where she has resided for 12 years. She graduated from the University of Georgia with a B.F.A. in painting, a B.F.A. in art education and an M.F.A. in studio art.

Community Playhouse Presents "Our Town"

Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" will be presented by the Community Playhouse in Tullahoma as its second offering of the 2010–11 season.

Performances are Nov. 12–14 and 19–21. Friday and Saturday shows begin at 7:30 p.m., and Sunday afternoon, at 2 p.m. All will be held at the South Jackson Civic Center at 404 South Jackson St. in Tullahoma.

The director is William Baxter, a relative newcomer to the Tullahoma Community Playhouse, though he is certainly not new to stage directing. Before moving to Tullahoma almost five years ago, Baxter was active for 30 years with a community theater group in Bowling Green, Ohio, where he directed, acted in and produced numerous shows including "Anatomy of a Murder," "Love Letters," "An Inspector Calls," "Sylvia," "Moon Over Buffalo," "The Woman in Black" and "A Tuna Christmas," among others. Baxter enjoys working closely with a cast to individually hone their skills and polish their performance.

Cast in leading roles are Terry Bradford as the stage manager, Jacqueline Sullenger as Emily Webb, Jon Lucas George Gibbs, Susan Campbell as Mrs. Myrtle Webb, Rex Brown, as Mr. Charles Webb, Carolyn Bradford as Mrs. Julia Gibbs and John Jones, as Doctor Frank F. Gibbs. Supporting roles include Rick Lee as Simon Stimson, Cameron Paul as Joe Crowell, Chris Jones as Howie Newsom, Emma Allish as Rebecca Gibbs, David Ellenburg as Professor Willard, Elana Donde as Mrs. Soames, Glendale Swann as Constable Warren and Ben Reeves as Sam Craig.

Reservations for the production may be made by calling (931) 581-7767. Ticket prices are $10 for adults, $9 for senior citizens and $8 for students under 18. Group discounts ($1 off each ticket) will be available for parties of 10 or more people. Season ticket holders and other prepaid tickets may be picked up in advance at the civic center office the week prior to the performances.

For Your Information...

PEDESTRIANS/BIKERS – EXERCISE CAUTION...

When you are out getting your exercise, following a few simple rules will keep you on the go. When biking on Sewanee sidewalks, cyclists should slow down when passing pedestrians since some may not hear a warning bike bell and know to step to the right. Walkers should walk on the left-hand side of the road, traveling against the traffic; bicyclers should travel in the right-hand lane, going with the flow of traffic. During the day, both walkers and bikers should wear clothing of bright, easily seen colors, and, from dusk on, wear light, reflective clothing. In any case, don't just assume drivers can see you. Be on the lookout for your own safety.

CONVENIENCE/RECYCLING CENTER HOURS

The Convenience Center, for household garbage, trash and recycling, is located on University Avenue by the golf course. Its regular hours are: Monday, 1-6 p.m.; Tuesday through Friday, 3-6 p.m.; Saturday, 8 a.m.-4 p.m.; Closed Sundays and on national holidays. There are recycling bins for metal, newspapers/magazines, plastic, plastic bottles and aluminum cans. Glass is not recycled here.

BE SAFE! OBEY THE BICYCLE HELMET LAW

Tennessee law requires all persons under the age of 12 to wear a helmet while riding a bicycle on any state road. University Avenue is a state road and, therefore, subject to the law. The act also contains provisions requiring restraining seats on bicycles for passengers who are children under 40 pounds or who are less than 40" tall.

Cowan Elementary School Celebrates Blue Ribbon Award

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 27, the students of Cowan Elementary School, along with teachers, staff, parents and supporters, celebrated the school's 2010 Blue Ribbon Award. CES was one of 304 schools in the nation chosen for the award this year. During the awards ceremony, James Francis from the Tennessee State Department of Education congratulated the students and announced that CES received 126 points out of a possible 126 points on their application. State Rep. George Fraley presented the school with two American flags and one Tennessee flag. Former principal Raymond Council was recognized with a standing ovation from the audience. CES principal Cynthia Young welcomed special guests, including Chris Guess, Franklin County School Board chair; Rebecca Sharber, director of schools; and Chuck Stines, Franklin County commissioner.

Blue punch and blue cookies were served while everyone watched a talent showcase of Cowan Elementary School, and parents and students participated in the Reading after Dark program.

The school's celebration included a parade, with each class creating wagon-sized floats; complimentary ice cream sandwiches from Blue Bell Ice Cream; and a schoolwide puppet show performed by Lesha Everett from Way to Go Ministries, Inc. Other schools in Franklin County contributed to the celebration by recognizing Cowan Elementary School graduates.

SAS International Students Present Flags

Representatives of the 41 international students at the school entered the chapel to the strains of their national anthems, presented their flag to the Rev. John Thomas, head of school, and shared a bit of information about their country.

This year's student body includes students from 11 countries, including Australia, China, Costa Rica, Denmark, France, Germany, Jamaica, Korea, Taiwan, Zimbabwe and, of course, the U.S. The flags will be flown in the school's library. Denmark is a new addition to the many flags already flying there.

"We are delighted to have representatives from so many countries who enrich our campus on this Tennessee mountaintop," said Sharon Zachau, international student coordinator.

SAS Teacher Selected to Serve on National Book Award Committee

Tracy Randolph, St. Andrew's-Sewanee School humanities teacher, was selected to serve on the Jane Addams Children's Book Award Committee based in New York. This national committee chooses the Jane Addams Children's Book Awards each year. She will replace Pat Wiser, who teaches a children's literature course at the University of the South and has served on the committee for the last three years.

Randolph uses children's literature extensively in her SAS humanities class, especially in teaching history, which revolves around themes such as diversity, conflict and human rights. She also designed and taught a children's literature course at the University for the last two spring semesters.

The Jane Addams Children's Book Awards are given to the children's books published the preceding year that effectively promote the cause of peace, social justice, world community and the equality of the sexes and all races, as well as meeting conventional standards for excellence. The award committee members serve for three years and participate in online discussions in choosing award winners and honor books.

State Sponsors Senior Essay Contest

High school seniors who express themselves well in writing may choose to enter an essay competition sponsored by the Securities Division of Tennessee's Department of Commerce and Insurance.

To compete, Tennessee 12th graders are asked to write a 1,500-word essay on this topic: "Discuss how social media has influenced you, if at all, in developing the goals and financial plans for your future, and [discuss] how social media has contributed to your decisions for your financial future."

Two winners will be selected from the state's eastern, middle and western regions. First-place winners will receive a $2,000 savings bond, and second-place winners, a $1,000 savings bond.

Dec. 5, 2010, is the deadline for entries. Securities Division representatives will present certificates during the winners' senior awards programs at their schools near the end of the 2010 school year. The savings bonds will be mailed to the winners.

Contest rules are posted on the Securities Division website: <www.tn.gov/commerce/securities/esayrules.shtml>. Students or school representatives who have questions may call Patsy Holt at (800) 863-9117 or (615) 253-8722, or e-mail her at <Securities.5@tn.gov>.

Centre and Piedmont Drop Tigers in Volleyball

The Sewanee Tigers dropped matches to Piedmont College and Centre College in Division III volleyball action played in Danville, Ky., on Oct. 30.

Sewanee fell to Piedmont in straight sets (25-17, 25-17, 25-17). The Tigers were led in kills by Liz Boddiford with five. Erin Brahm led Sewanee with nine assists and eight digs, while Adrienne Borchardt recorded two service aces.

In the second match of the day the Tigers dropped a 3-1 decision to host Centre. The Colonels took the first two sets by scores of 25-10 and 25-11. Sewanee extended the match by taking a 25-23 decision in the third set. Centre bounced back to take the fourth set and the match by a 25-10 score. Boddiford again led Sewanee with eight kills. Brahm had eight assists and a season-high 20 digs. Tarver Shimek paced Sewanee with two aces, and Kim Conkell had four blocks.

The Tigers drop to 2-32 on the season. Sewanee will participate in the SCAC volleyball tournament Nov. 5-7 in San Antonio, Texas.

SAS Boys' Basketball Team Edges Tracy City

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee middle school boys' basketball team began their season at home on Thursday, Oct. 28, in a well-matched game against the Tracy City Eagles. The Tracy team ran a well-disciplined offense. The Mountain Lions controlled most of the game until late in the third quarter, when fatigue and a few errors helped reverse the score. Tracy held the lead until late in the fourth quarter, when Andrew Heitzenrater's sharp three-point shooting and Kyle Johnston's aggressive defense helped SAS recapture it with less than two minutes left. Heitzenrater ended up with 14 points, Johnston had 16, Casey Willis added four points and Henry Fisher, two. The Eagles had more balanced scoring, with six players scoring: Jacob Martin led the way with 8 points. The final score was 36-31 in favor of SAS.

Willingham Named SCAC Player of the Week

Sewanee women's soccer player Kate Willingham has been named Defensive Player of the Week by the Southern Collegiate Athletic Conference (SCAC) for play the week of Oct. 18-24.

Willingham, a senior from Atlanta, plays defender for the Tigers and serves as a captain for the 2010 squad. She was honored for her play in two Tiger wins over the weekend. Sewanee topped the Lynx of Rhodes College 2-1 on Friday and rolled over the Hendrix College Warriors 3-0 on Sunday.

Sewanee is currently 9-5 on the season and 3-3 in SCAC play. The Tigers have won five straight and have outscored and outshot their opponents in those five games, 17 to 3 and 123 to 29, respectively.

"Kate has been consistent and steady for us all season. And by consistent, I mean good to great. The question is always 'How good will Kate be today?' As she goes, our team goes. It is not by mistake that we gave up more goals in the games when she was out. We are simply better when she plays. She deserves this award every week as far as I am concerned. Thanks to the SCAC for recognizing her," said Head Coach Patrick Johnston.

Overtime with Coach Shack

By John Shackelford

From Coach Shack's mailbag:

*Dear Coach Shack,
Who was the greatest coach ever?
Signed, Billy Kneadtono*

Well, Billy—aside from the very obvious answer, most people seem to go with Knute Rockne, Vince Lombardi, Casey Stengel or John Wooden. For these legends, the practice field was a classroom, a place to teach, to work, and to learn. Rudyard Kipling, Robert Fulghum and the Wizard of Oz, however, are my go-to guys when I need some sound coaching advice. As you enter the gates of Wimbledon, inscribed above for all the players and spectators to read is a line from Kipling's poem "If": "If you can meet with triumph and disaster, and treat those two imposters just the same." That is a pretty nice way of reminding us that winning or losing really shouldn't change who we are or how we should behave. He goes on to say, "If you can fill the unforgiving minute with 60 seconds worth of distance run." Somehow that has a better ring to it than my efforts of "Give 100 percent and play all the way to the final whistle." In his poem, "The Law for the Wolves," my favorite coach and Jungle Book author instructs us with, "For the strength of the pack is the wolf, and the strength of the wolf is the pack." I would have to agree that I have never won anything without the help of the whole team, but it doesn't hurt to have some pretty strong wolves in the mix. Or as poet and coach Dickie McCarthy reminds me, "It's not the X's and the O's, it's the Jimmies and the Joes." Robert Fulghum, who wrote "All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten," would have made a pretty solid coach as well. "Share, play fair, put things back where you found them, clean up your mess" are just a few of the bits of advice most teams would do well to follow. I am not sure how this next advice fits in to athletics, but he also recommends cookies and milk and an afternoon nap. Who am I to argue with a wise coach like that?

I guess what I am saying, Billy, is that good coaches teach, and good teachers coach. Knute Rockne inspired passion, Vince Lombardi taught fundamentals, and John Wooden preached the art of tiny details like tying your shoes properly before practice. If you are going to apply the life lessons that you've learned from sport, then you must also bring the lessons you've learned in life to your sport. The Wizard of Oz may have the answer you are looking for. He was able to communicate to his players that everything they needed they already had. You, too, already have the tools. So practice and play hard, have fun, learn something new every day, and read some poetry every once in awhile—it won't hurt. It may help you to bring some poetry to your game.

Sewanee Field Hockey Recognized by SCAC

To celebrate 20 years of existence as the Southern Collegiate Athletic Conference, throughout the year the SCAC will be naming the Top 20 moments for each sport it sponsors. The conference announced the Top 20 field hockey moments, and Sewanee's 2008 championship run took the top spot.

In 2008, Sewanee headed into the SCAC Field Hockey Championships holding onto an 11-6 overall record and was seeded fourth in the five-team conference tournament. The Tigers put together a spectacular three-day run that included three wins in three days to become the 2008 SCAC field hockey champions and earn the program's first bid to the NCAA tournament.

The SCAC's Top 20 moments included several other Sewanee highlights.

At number five, Sewanee's Claiborne Buckingham, C'09, was recognized for her participation in the 2008 National Field Hockey Coaches Association Division III All-Star Game at Ursinus College.

The Tigers also took moment number 10, with Charlotte Baptiste, C'06, being honored. On October 31, 2004, Baptiste scored four goals in a 6-2 win over Centre. With her four goals, Baptiste became the first (and only) player in SCAC history to score four goals in one game.

The 2008 Sewanee squad was honored with moment number 11 as well, as the conference recognized the Tigers' first trip to the NCAA Division III Field Hockey Championships.

Head Coach Jen Baldaccini took home a moment to herself, as her being named the 2008 National Field Hockey Coaches Association Great Lakes Region Coach of the Year was honored as moment number 17. In just her first year, Baldaccini led the Tigers to their first SCAC championship, their first appearance in the NCAA Championships and coached four All-SCAC selections, including the co-Offensive Player of the Year and co-Defensive Player of the Year.

And rounding out Sewanee's appearances in the Top 20 moments, Tiger Lynn Hancock, C'09, was honored with moment number 18. Hancock scored 16 goals in the 2008 season, setting a new single-season record for the SCAC.

Cross Country Men Win All-SCAC Honors

John Gilmer of Mobile, Ala., and Clay Bond of Atlanta, garnered All-SCAC honors for their performance at the SCAC Cross Country championships held Oct. 30 in Seguin, Texas. The championships were hosted by Trinity University.

Colorado College defended its title by capturing the men's championship, and Rhodes College took the women's crown. The Sewanee men's and women's teams both finished seventh in the team competition. Individual winners were Jackson Brainerd (25:09) of Colorado College in the men's 8k race and Taylor Stephens (22:22) of Rhodes College in the women's 6k race. Gilmer (26:07.0) and Bond (26:07.2) paced the Sewanee effort in the men's race, finishing 11th and 12th, respectively.

"I am really proud of how our team performed today," said Sewanee Head Coach Jeff Heitzenrater. "They ran tough in a strong field of runners. John Gilmer and Clay Bond led the way with outstanding All Conference races. Our team is racing fast at the right time and will be ready to race fast at the region meet in two weeks."

Council representative Annie Armour introduced residents of the Pelham community—Arlene Bean, Quentin Partin and Jennifer Thompson—who provided information about a rock quarry proposed for the Pelham area by Stewart Industries, Inc., owned by Cowan resident Phillip Stewart. In early 2009, the council appointed Armour and the domain manager to monitor progress of a quarry proposed by the Tinsley Group near the Greenhaw community. The council was concerned that any industrial rezoning of this property, located 1.5 miles from the University's boundary, could set a precedent for future industrial rezoning.

Stewart Industries has leased land in Pelham as a rock quarry site. As Pelham is not an incorporated municipality, it has no zoning laws. The Pelham residents expressed concerns about possible damage to wells, caves, streams and sinkholes from blasting. Bean compared quarry blasting to the Oklahoma City bombing, an explosion generated by 5,000 lbs. of ammonium nitrate, which registered 3 on the Richter Scale as far as 16 miles away. The average quarry blast uses 4,000 lbs. of ammonium nitrate, Bean said, but for some blasting larger amounts (5,000–6,000 lbs.) of the compound are used. Partin said that the proposed site in Pelham is less than a half mile from the Cooley's Rift and Deep Woods subdivisions, 400–500 feet from a natural gas pipeline and 100 yards from a sinkhole. A cave on Partin's property could be destroyed by the blasting, he said. Pelham residents have organized under the name Pelham Valley Preservation; a community meeting to discuss the proposed quarry was scheduled for Oct. 28, with representatives of the Tennessee Department of Environment and Conservation (TDEC) attending to listen to residents' concerns.

Commenting on the proposed Greenhaw quarry, Pelham resident Thompson said that the Tinsley Group had applied for a water permit with TDEC, and a public hearing would be held in the near future. Domain Manager Nate Wilson noted that even if TDEC were to grant the permit, the Tinsley Group did not have the zoning authority needed to move forward.

Weeks, council election officer, gave an update on the Sewanee Community Council election of Nov. 2. [The winning council representatives in each district are reported on page 1].

Updating the council on the new Duck River Electric Membership Corporation (DREMC) building proposed for a site on the corner of Highway 41A and Trimble Lane, Chief Financial Officer Jerry Forster reported that the University's Lease Committee had approved the site, Franklin County Planning and Zoning had approved the plan, and the E.C. Commission had approved the location for a mixed zone (commercial and residential) designation. On Nov. 3, DREMC was to present its site plan to the Lease Committee, and if approval is granted, the utility will present the plan to the council. Several council representatives objected that concerns expressed by the council at the September meeting regarding the visual impact of the facility and harm to the scenic quality of the community, had not been addressed. The council had expected DREMC to be present at that evening's meeting with photographs of similar facilities. Forster said that the site plan was still in the process of being revised to address the council's concerns and that DREMC would be present at the November meeting to answer questions and provide visual aids. Armour said there are traffic safety concerns because the facility would be located on a curve in a 45-mph speed zone. A visitor suggested that the utility could provide information about how many customers paid their bills at the office versus paying by bank draft or mail.

Michael Hurst, elected in September to serve as the council's representative on the Campus Master Plan steering committee, reported on three meetings he had attended: a Sewanee business owners' meeting, a Trustees Community Relations Committee meeting and a Campus Master Plan Committee meeting. Hurst said that the business owners are pleased that all business properties in the community are occupied. The trustees committee discussed a proposed visitors center for the community, also of interest to the business owners. Nothing significantly impacting the community was discussed at the campus planning meeting, Hurst said. Forster announced that the next campus master planning meeting is scheduled for Monday, Nov. 29, and that an open forum inviting community input would be held in January. The November campus master planning meeting is expected to focus on the architects' assessment of flows of students, pedestrians, bikers and others, Forster said.

Provost Linda Lankewicz introduced a discussion about a community council representative serving on the Natural Resources Advisory Council (NRAC), which advises the University on issues outside central campus. The NRAC recommended that Mary Priestley, although not a community council member, serve as the community representative because of her knowledge and expertise. The council voted to appoint Priestley to the position. Representative David Coe requested that Priestley be asked to report to the council on the activities of the NRAC.

At the August community council meeting, representatives of the Sewanee Leaseholders' Association attended to say that leaseholders need to have greater input regarding management of municipal services. To follow up on that request and to give community members basic information on how these services operate, Forster reported on the Sewanee Emergency Medical Service at the September community council meeting. He gave an overview of the Sewanee Volunteer Fire Department (SVFD) at this (October) meeting, and a report on the Sewanee Police Department is scheduled for the November council meeting.

The SVFD operates as a department of the University, Forster said. The University polled 49 other schools about their fire protection protocols, and none of the schools surveyed operated a fire department, although two of the schools provided financial support to their local fire department. Approximately 70 percent of the SVFD's financial support comes from the University, 16 percent from Franklin County and 14 percent from Sewanee leaseholders. The top three expenditures for the fire department are food, equipment purchases and repairs, and annual contributions to the capital reserve fund, from which major equipment purchases are made. In 2009, the SVFD purchased a 75-foot aerial truck.

Fire Chief David Green and Assistant Chief Doug Cameron were on hand to answer questions. Of the 30 volunteer firefighters, 16 are students, Green said, and because of high turnover, training of new volunteers is an integral part of the department's operation. Conducting training also has a revitalizing effect on long-standing members, he added, many of whom have served for 20 or more years. Cameron pointed out that all but two of the nonstudent volunteer firefighters live off the Domain, which greatly enhances the department's efficiency. "No matter where [a fire] happens, someone can be on the scene in a minute or so to get people out of the house and get us information," Cameron said that the firefighters unanimously rejected a suggestion that the SVFD become a subscription service with fees because "These people are our neighbors." Answering a question about fire protection in the residence halls, Green said that the greatest safeguards came from the sprinkler and alarm systems. The department does routine drills in student residences, Cameron noted. Looking to the future of the SVFD, Forster said that establishing a "volunteer association" is being considered to coordinate the resources of the SVFD and the Jump-Off Volunteer Fire Department, established in the 1990s. If such an association were formed, the University would continue its capital reserve funding, Forster said.

The council passed a resolution congratulating John McCardell on his official induction as vice-chancellor and welcoming him and his wife, Bonnie, to the community.

Council representative John Flynn expressed traffic safety concerns about the restructured entrance to the University. This subject will be added to the agenda for the next Sewanee Community Council meeting, scheduled for Monday, Nov. 22, at 7 p.m. in the Sewanee Senior Citizens' Center.

Nature Notes

Golden Eagles

This October, Harry and Jean Yeatman have been rewarded by the repeated sightings of a Golden Eagle soaring over Lost Cove and the front of their house. These eagles are scarce in Tennessee and other states in eastern North America, but are common in our western states. There they compete with magpies, ravens and vultures in scavenging large dead animals, especially during winter, when their usual summer prey—marmots, jackrabbits and prairie dogs—are scarce or hibernating. Young Bald Eagles, before they acquire the white head and tail, can be misidentified as Golden Eagles. These young eagles have anterior white wing linings, and also some white on the body. Young Golden Eagles have a white patch at the base of the primary feathers and white on the tail base (see below). Golden Eagles glide in flight with their wings held level, unlike the dihedral angle of vultures and many hawks. Black Vultures have a white tip near the end of each wing, but this bird is much smaller than an eagle and the black vulture's tail is short, not long as that of eagles. Look up in the sky for soaring eagles, vultures and large hawks, such as the Red-tailed Hawk.

F.C. Humane Society Pets of the Week Meet Gizmo & Wilbur

The Franklin County Humane Society's Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption.

Gizmo, a cute little Terrier mix, is 35 pounds of love and affection. All he wants is a family to call his own. Gizmo is up to date on shots and neutered.

This week's kitty, Wilbur, is a sweet little piggy who loves to eat. He's quite a gentleman, and he loves to play and lounge with his friend Lucian.

BEAUTIFUL, PEACEFUL HISTORIC FARM-HOUSE FOR RENT. Outside Cowan, 5BR, 2BA, front porch looks out on the Plateau. Hardwood floors, recent updates. Plenty

From Bard to Verse

by Scott and Phoebe Bates

I did but prompt the age to quit their clogs
By the known rules of ancient liberty,
When straight a barbarous noise environs me
Of owls and cuckoos, asses, apes, and dogs;
As when those hinds that were transformed to frogs
Railed at Latuna's twin-born progeny,*
Which after held the Sun and Moon in fee.
But this is got by casting pearl to hogs,
That bawl for freedom in their senseless mood,
And still revolt when Truth would set them free.
Licence they mean when they cry Liberty;
For who loves that must first be wise and good:
But from that mark how far they rove we see,
For all this waste of wealth and loss of blood.

Latuna, mother of Apollo and Artemis, Greek gods of the Sun and Moon.*
