

Sewanee Elementary Leads the Way in TCAPs

Broadview & North Lake Named Reward Schools

by K. G. Beavers, Messenger Staff Writer

With Tennessee's new accountability system to show progress in public school testing, there are new reporting categories including reward, focus and priority status. These new categories replace the No Child Left Behind status designations of target, school needs improvement, corrective action and restructuring.

In Franklin County, North Lake Elementary and Broadview Elementary are reward schools based on performance. A reward school can be in the top 5 percent of overall performance in proficient and advanced achievement goals. A reward school can also be in the top 5 percent of schools where progress is achieved the fastest, based on value-added scores and growth in TCAP reading/language arts, math and science.

While SES had the top TCAP scores in almost all testing categories across the county, SES is not a reward school.

"We did not meet the gap closure with our economically disadvantaged students," said SES principal Mike Maxon. "That subgroup did not grow enough academically," he said.

SES also had a decline in two subgroup scores between the 2011 and 2012 reading/language arts TCAP test. In 2011, 60.5 percent of economically disadvantaged students were proficient and advanced. In 2012, 55.3 percent were proficient and advanced.

In 2011, 81.8 percent of SES students with disabilities scored proficient and advanced in reading/language arts. In 2012, 78.5 percent scored proficient and advanced proficient/advanced in reading/language arts.

Fiction Readings by Tony Earley and Randall Kenan

Fiction writers Tony Earley and Randall Kenan will read from their work at 4:30 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 14, in Gailor Auditorium. The readings, book signings and reception that will follow are free and open to the public.

Earley is the author of a story collection, "Here We Are in Paradise," which won him recognition from both Granta and the New Yorker as one of America's best young fiction writers, and two novels, "Jim the Boy" and "The Blue Star." He has also published a collection of personal essays, "Somehow Form a Family." His stories have appeared in numerous publications, including the New Yorker (most recently "Jack and the Mad Dog"), Harper's, Granta and Esquire. Earley held a Tennessee Williams Fellowship as Writer-in-Residence at Sewanee in 1997. He is the Samuel Milton Fleming Professor of English at Vanderbilt University. In the New York Times Book Review, Ellen Currie praised Earley for his "wonderful gift for deep observation, exact and wise and often funny."

Kenan is the author of a novel, "A Visitation of Spirits," and a collection of stories, "Let the Dead Bury Their Dead," which was a finalist for the National Book Critics Circle Award, a nominee for a Los Angeles Times Book Prize for fiction and a New York Times Notable Book. He has written a young adult biography, "James Baldwin: Author," and two works of non-fiction, "Walking on Water: Black American Lives at the Turn of the Twenty-First Century," which was nominated for the Southern Book Award, and "The Fire This Time." He is also the author of the text for Norman Matusz's book of photographs, "A Time Not Here: The Mississippi Delta." He teaches creative writing at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Author Terry McMillan said, "Randall Kenan is a genius; our black Márquez. He weaves myth, folktales, magic and reality like no one else I know, and he doesn't miss a beat."

This event is presented by the Sewanee Writers' Conference and the department of English.

Civic Association Considers Future of Local Playgrounds

by Kevin Cummings, Special to the Messenger

The pirate ship "set sail" last spring, and Elliott Park is sparse, but community momentum is building to improve playgrounds in Sewanee.

Emily Puckette, a Sewanee math professor and mother of a six-year-old, is one of the strongest voices for bettering local play areas. Puckette began discussions with University officials about playgrounds after the University removed a wooden pirate ship, a log cabin and a metal car that were in disrepair from Elliot Park. Now basically all that remains is a swing set and chin-up bar.

"I'm really involved because I saw the difference when things were in that park and people would come," she said. "And the absence of things in that park ... A whole summer was going by without people gathering there, and children were missing that opportunity."

Puckette, who grew up in Sewanee, said this is a unique and diverse community and the playground off University Avenue was a prime spot for people to "associate and communicate."

She told the Sewanee Civic Association at its regular meeting on Nov. 7 at the EQB Building that she is seeking help from local stakeholders to better playgrounds by considering the best locations and new equipment, and possibly consolidating maintenance of playgrounds.

Money and manpower will be available, and the University has expressed willingness to help, Puckette noted. She added that the Civic Association might be a prime candidate to handle maintenance.

"I really think (helping with playgrounds) is right down our mission and we can really get something done if we get a little more focus and numbers together," said Theresa Shackelford, association president. "It goes right along with what the Civic Association of old did."

Association member Doug Cameron, assistant Sewanee fire chief and a lifelong resident, noted that in the past there were community workdays at the playgrounds, and citizens have a history of spearheading large projects, such as Sewanee Elementary School.

Some of the other public play areas are at St. Mark's Community Center, the playgrounds in the Woodlands community, at the Sewanee Community Center and at the Sewanee Youth ballfields.

In other business at the Nov. 7 meeting, Lisa Rung was selected as the Civic Association's new treasurer. Rung, who works at Otey Parish and is an active Scout leader and community volunteer, replaces longtime treasurer Rocky Morris, who stepped down to pursue a new business venture, the Monteagle Diner.

Kiki Beavers announced that the Sewanee Community Chest, the Civic Association's program to help local charities, has reached 32 percent of its fund-raising goal of $90,000.

The next meeting of the Sewanee Civic Association is tentatively scheduled for sometime in January.

Tracy City Looks at Downtown Renewal

A steering committee in Tracy City is developing a downtown revitalization plan. On Oct. 11, the mayor and board of aldermen of Tracy City approved the plan. Members of the committee are Jeremy Fultz, president of Tracy City Business Club; Nadene Moore, chairman of the water board of Tracy City Utility District; Sue Parrott, Grundy County member of Southeast Tennessee Tourism Board; Emily Partin, commissioner, Grundy County Board of Commissioners; and Larry Phipps, mayor of Tracy City.

The steering committee applied to the Tennessee Department of Economic and Community Development for admission to its Tennessee Downtowns program; the group hopes to learn if it has been accepted by the end of 2012. Tennessee Downtowns is designed to help communities as they embark on a comprehensive revitalization effort. In developing its Tennessee Downtowns application, members of the steering committee have seen great enthusiasm within the downtown business community for revitalization.

There are 55 active businesses and organizations in the downtown area of Tracy City and 19 commercial buildings vacant, leaving a vacancy rate in excess of 25 percent. There are two buildings in the downtown area that have been placed on the National Register of Historic Places. There are five additional sites that have historical or recreational value: the gymnasium of the former Grundy County High School; the former Tracy City depot, roundhouse and engine repair shop, along with the contiguous Boy Scouts of America park, the site of the former Shook School with the remaining gymnasium; the site of the Wooten Mine and Coke Ovens; and the site of the former Sam Werner Lumber Company.

Tracy City's application is available for review at the Grundy County Historical Society Heritage Center, 465 Railroad Ave., Tracy City. To provide comments or for more information, contact Parrott at (931) 592-5201 or (931) 592-6008.

"Clear Cut" by Jason Brown (above) is one of the pieces by Knoxville-artist Jason Brown in his exhibition, "SEAM," opening at the Carlos Gallery in the Nabit Art Building on the Sewanee campus. Brown will give an artist's talk at 4:30 p.m., today, Nov. 9, in the Carlos Gallery, followed by a reception. See page 8 for details about the exhibit.

BOXTOPS BIG BOON FOR SES To the Editor:

Sewanee Elementary School and the SES Parent-Teacher Organization would like to thank everyone in the community who has clipped, collected and submitted BoxTops.

BoxTops can be submitted only twice a year. On Monday we sent in our fall submission with 5,229 BoxTops! This means that a $522.90 check will be made out directly to our school in a couple of months. This submission is a 54 percent increase over our submission from this same time last year and is almost 70 percent of our $750 goal for this year.

Please continue to clip the BoxTops. There are collection boxes at SES and the Sewanee post office. They can also be SPOed to Ryan Cassell.

Let's surpass our $750 goal for this school year!

FUTURE HOPES AUCTION A SUCCESS

To the Editor:

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee Parents' Council wishes to thank all those who donated and bid on items for the SAS Future Hopes Auction, as well as everyone who attended the event. With support from parents and community members, the Parents' Council raised approximately $16,000 in support of faculty development at the school.

In particular, we would like to thank the decorating crew of Sherri Bergman, Veronique Durant, Lisa Howard, Linda Mays, Katie Oliver and Sarah Toomey, and event helpers Beth Wiley, Delanna Rhoton, Amy Evans, Lizzie Duncan, Steve Blount, Frank Lundie, David Tobitt, Carla Clay and Sarah Butler. And for those of you who missed the event, emcee Joe Wiegand and auctioneer Rocky Morris should take their act on the road! Finally, the auction would not have been possible without the brilliant work and unbelievable energy of Kiki Beavers.

The Parents' Council of St. Andrew's-Sewanee School is deeply grateful to all who were involved. We are blessed to live in such a generous and caring community.

David B. Coe
SAS Parents' Council President ■

Second-graders at Sewanee Elementary School have been studying the presidential election process and the men who have become president. Marilyn Davidheiser, SES volunteer, shares "A President From Hawaii" with students, a book about the 44th president, Barack Obama. Like President Obama, Davidheiser's family is from Hawaii.

THANKS TO SENIOR CITIZENS To the Editor:

The Senior Citizen's Center board graciously allowed the Sewanee Civic Association to use their space in order to complete the Community Chest fund-raiser mailing. Special thanks to Pete McBee, Alice Sholey and Louise Irwin for helping stuff and address the letters. We most certainly could not have completed our task without the help of mailing professional Bonnie Green. She shuffled all those envelopes like a deck of cards. Volunteers such as these help keep the community strong and vital.

Theresa Shackelford, President
Sewanee Civic Association ■

Public Safety Reports

Sewanee Fire Department

In October 2012, the Sewanee Volunteer Fire Department (SVFD) answered 24 calls, including a major fire at a home on Bob Stewman Road. The call came in shortly after 1 p.m. on Oct. 29. When the first units arrived, the residence was fully involved. The occupants were safely out of the building, according to Art Hanson of the SVFD. The cause of the fire is unknown, and the State Forestry Department was called in to assist with some small brush fires around the property. Hanson said the house was declared a total loss.

Also in October, SVFD had 15 calls to University dorms, fraternity or sorority houses (all had no apparent cause, burnt food or deemed trivial); one to a University building with no cause; one search for two missing persons; and two to other community residences.

One call in October was for a helicopter landing at Emerald-Hodgson Hospital. Two calls were to community businesses (smoke and water issues). One call provided mutual aid to the Monteagle Fire Department.

For the month of September 2012, the SVFD answered 28 calls: 16 to University dorms, fraternity or sorority houses (one fire, 15 had no apparent cause, burnt food or trivial); one to a community residence with a malfunctioning smoke detector; two to University buildings (gas leak, smoke detector malfunction).

Three calls were for support for helicopter landings at Emerald-Hodgson Hospital. Four calls were to community businesses (two unintentional alarm activations and two fire drills); and one call was to clear a tree from a roadway.

Sewanee Police Department

The Sewanee Police Department (SPD) recently issued its report on its activities for the month of October 2012.

Last month, the SPD patrolled 6,255 miles, investigated three vehicle accidents and issued 10 moving violations. It also issued 318 non-moving traffic violations and 27 warnings.

It made 15 arrests for drug law violations, 16 arrests for liquor law violations, and filed one theft report. One DUI arrest was made in the month.

SPD offered mutual aid to Franklin County three times last month and to other jurisdictions three times.

SPD physically checked buildings on 633 occasions and assisted with locking or unlocking buildings 111 times.

Rotary Tree Sale Begins

The Monteagle-Sewanee Rotary Club's annual tree sale is beginning. The proceeds from this project fund education initiatives in both the Monteagle and Sewanee communities. The club is offering 5-foot to 6-foot sarvisberry, dogwood, redbud and oak trees this year.

"We are pleased to continue the tradition of supporting a variety of educational programs, said Bob Askew, chair of the club's service projects committee. "Our profits have a direct impact at home and abroad. The proceeds have funded a University of the South scholarship for Grundy County students, provided for the purchase of T-shirts for our "Don't Meth With Us" drug awareness program and supported dictionary gifts for Monteagle Elementary. We will be working with the University Outreach office to support the purchase of medical supplies for their spring Haiti trip."

Sewanee Community Chest Spotlight: Folks at Home

The 2012-13 Sewanee Community Chest Fund Drive is underway. The power of the people helping people makes a difference in the life of the community. Sponsored by the Sewanee Civic Association, the Community Chest raises money for local charitable organizations serving the area. This year's goal is $90,000.

For the next few weeks, the Messenger will focus on some of the organizations supported by the Community Chest. This week we shine the spotlight on Folks at Home.

Folks at Home (F@H) is a local nonprofit organization that assists its members in continuing a dignified and comfortable lifestyle through coordination of services they need during their elder years.

Services offered by F@H include providing information and referrals for those with serious illnesses and life transitions, to in-home visits and help with chores and transportation. The organization also offers scholarships for members with long- or short-term needs. People of all ages are invited to become members.

Volunteers are responsible for many of the F@H services. There are also vendors available for hire to provide services such as housekeeping or home repair.

Folks at Home began as a grass-roots project, sponsored by Otey Memorial Parish. In 2010, the organization began its first full year of operation. In 2011, more than 60 community volunteers provided 252 hours of service. University students also helped with in-home visits, task assistance and telephone contact.

For more information, contact F@H director Kathleen O'Donohue at <folksathomesewanee@gmail.com>, phone 598-0303, or drop by for a visit in the "Blue House" at 400 University Ave.

Donations to the Community Chest can be mailed to P.O. Box 99, Sewanee, TN 37375. Donations are also accepted through PayPal. Go to the PayPal website, select "transfer," then "send someone money;" when prompted, enter the email address <sewaneecommunitychest@gmail.com>. Community Fund Announces Inaugural Grants to Nonprofits on the Plateau

The Community Fund of the South Cumberland Plateau (CFSCP) announced its first group of grant recipients on Nov. 4.

Scott Parrish, CFSCP co-chairman, said grants totaling $101,673 were presented to 11 nonprofit organizations that stretch from Beersheba to Sewanee.

"It is amazing that in one year the Community Fund has been able to raise 95 percent of a stated $250,000 goal, to generate support from across the Plateau, and now to see the fruits of this labor in the awarding of grants to these deserving groups. We believe that the seed money provided for these exciting proposals will result in measurable changes on the Plateau—in economic growth, education, arts, recreation, healthcare, job training, elder care and community building."

The following are the new grant recipients:

Animal Alliance of South Cumberland—$6,000 to promote and subsidize spaying/neutering of area pets, including low-cost sterilization and rabies vaccination for low-income pet owners if the procedure is completed when pets are 4 months old. A campaign to educate the public about the "Fix at Four" program will also be initiated.

Beersheba Springs Medical Clinic—$15,000 to underwrite the cost of hiring a trained medical assistant to increase the capacity of the two-year-old clinic that serves a growing number of patients in need of medical services. The clinic provides care free of charge to low-income families without insurance.

Big Creek Lake Project of Grundy County—$5,130 to construct a pavilion with picnic tables on the 1.5-acre county-owned property at Big Creek Lake to facilitate use of the property as a recreational resource for families throughout the county and surrounding area.

Folks at Home—$14,973 to develop a "Time Bank" as a means of linking organizations and individuals in need of assistance with providers. Folks at Home, a Sewanee-based initiative dedicated to helping elderly residents, plans to incubate the project and hopes it will be operated in the future by a consortium of organizations.

Grundy Area Arts Council—$7,500 to develop a Student Theater Project where local youth will learn theater techniques and perform an adaptation of a story written by local author May Justus, paving the way for the development of an indigenous theater program to educate local residents and attract tourists to the Plateau.

Grundy County Food Bank—$12,000 to hire a director to run the organization and raise funds for its long-term sustainability. The food bank, which has been serving the region for 30 years, assists about 200 families per month.

Grundy County Historical Society—$10,000 to refurbish a locomotive boiler that once powered a sawmill in Beersheba, with plans to use the boiler as the basis for an outdoor exhibit area at the new Heritage Center in Tracy City.

Grundy Rotary Service Club (Hands Across the Mountain)—$6,000 to cover the cost of participation of local preschool children in the Tennessee Imagination Library program. The group plans to raise additional funds to increase the percentage of children participating.

Mid-Cumberland Mountain Ministry—$4,465 in support of its "Work for the Future" program, providing scholarships for post-secondary vocational-education students, specifically the Certified Nursing Assistant classes and other trade classes offered by the Tennessee Technology Center. The ministry, an outreach program of Holy Comforter Episcopal Church, provides emergency family services.

Mountain T.O.P. (Tennessee Outreach Project)—$5,605 to inaugurate a fall festival at Camp Cumberland Pines that is both a fun community-building event and an opportunity to provide necessities for residents in need, especially shoes, which will be acquired through "Soles4Souls." Mountain T.O.P. is an interdenominational group dedicated to rural life ministry.

South Cumberland Collaborative for Children and Families—$15,000 to create a Family Co-op Project that will provide a gathering place for preschool children and their families for recreation, support and participation in literacy-oriented learning activities. The project will be implemented with support from Scholastic Press and the Yale Child Study Center, which will receive and administer the grant.

The Campaign

Rated PG-13 • 85 minutes • $3

In this election satire directed by Jay Roach (“Meet the Parents,” “Borat” and “Dinner for Schmucks”), a couple of CEOs are determined to get incumbent Congressman Cam Brady (Will Ferrell) booted out of office. They choose another candidate to run against him—the only problem is that this new candidate, Marty Huggins (Zach Galifianakis) has essentially no political experience. Also starring Jason Sudeikis and Dylan McDermott. As one reviewer wrote, “It’s loud and profane and relentlessly vulgar. It’s also occasionally funny.” Rated R for crude sexual content, language and brief nudity.

There is no Cinema Guild film on Wednesday, Nov. 14.

Liberal Arts

Rated PG-13 • 97 minutes • $3

Jesse Fisher (played by Josh Radnor, who also wrote and directed the film) is a 35-year-old admissions counselor who returns to his alma mater to attend a retirement ceremony for one of his former professors. While on campus, he encounters 19-year-old student Zibby (Elizabeth Olsen) and forms a bond with her over their mutual love of literature, launching them into a romantic relationship. Veteran reviewer Peter Travers described it this way: “Elizabeth Olsen is beguiling in ‘Liberal Arts,’ and Josh Radnor has a true filmmaker’s eye for detail and atmosphere.” Rated PG-13 for sexual references and teen drinking.

SEAM Opens at Carlos Gallery

The Carlos Gallery in the Nabit Art Building at University presents “SEAM,” an exhibition of sculptures and installations by Knoxville artist Jason Brown.

The artist’s talk and opening reception are at 4:30 p.m., today, Nov. 9, in the Carlos Gallery. The exhibition will run through Dec. 18.

Brown’s work explores the controversial practice of mountaintop removal coal mining. Particularly interested in this mining practice that dramatically changes our regional landscape, Brown explores transitional spaces where growth and decay are happening simultaneously.

Large sculptural works such as “Clear Cut” and “Cul de Sac” hang on the wall, and assemble construction materials with photographic depictions of the natural world as it is being developed, mined or permanently changed. These objects invite the viewer to engage in a dialogue about individuals, community and place.

For this exhibit, Brown is specifically interested in the Sewanee coal seam that lies under much of the Cumberland Plateau.

“I want to initiate a dialogue about the complex layers and issues connected to the system of coal mining and the consequences of our collective dependence on coal as an energy source,” Brown said.

“I am also exploring other extractive industries in my artwork, such as hydraulic fracturing for natural gas. The impact of this contentious practice on our watersheds and landscape is just beginning to be understood, especially as new gas wells are opened in East Tennessee.”

Brown received an M.F.A. from the Rhode Island School of Design. He has been teaching sculpture at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville since 2001. Brown’s artwork has been exhibited nationally.

A Column for Young Adult Readers and Adults Who Appreciate The Genre

by Margaret Stephens

“With Malice Toward None”

It’s over—at least, I assume it will be by the time this goes to press. The election. Time now to stop snarking at the other side and use that energy to create solutions.

The last year or more of the campaign hasn’t been war—though we use the same word for both kinds of battle with good reason. And certainly not civil war as in “The.” But hasn’t it sometimes felt that way?

I think that’s why I keep wanting to hear those famous lines from Lincoln’s “Second Inaugural Address”: “With malice toward none, with charity for all.”

And why I’m looking forward to Nov. 16, when Steven Spielberg’s film “Lincoln” will open. Daniel Day-Lewis is supposed to be awesome in the title role, though it will be hard for me to give up my image of Lincoln as portrayed by Sam Waterston in the 1988 television movie based on Gore Vidal’s novel.

Meanwhile, this is a good time to be brushing up on the real story. I’m going to re-read bits of “Abraham Lincoln’s World” by Genevieve Foster. I know it’s old—first published in 1945—but like all Foster’s books for younger readers, it combines careful research with lively narration and even has illustrations to break up the text.

When Foster says “world,” she means it. Her books trace the lives of a number of other famous figures, along with that of the main man. Thus we read about Napoleon, the “human volcano,” and Venezuela’s hero of independence, Simon Bolivar, along with Lincoln’s birth in a Kentucky log cabin. And Harriet Beecher Stowe and Queen Victoria-to-be, as a young Abe shucks corn to pay for the borrowed biography of Washington that he ruined in the rain. Each chapter, devoted to a different character, is only a few pages long; each fits into a larger section organized around significant events in Lincoln’s life. As a child, I loved just looking at the two-page spread of illustrated sketches that introduce each section, puzzling over names like Alexandre Dumas and Tecumseh. As an adult, I enjoy the fast-paced narrative which is complete enough to use as a basic introduction to the time period. (I did with each of my homeschoolers.)

Fortunately for us, Foster wrote a bunch of these, presenting the various worlds of Augustus Caesar, Washington, Columbus, John Smith and William Penn.

For younger readers, there is the wonderful illustrated “Abraham Lincoln” by Ingri and Edgar D’Aulaire, the same couple who gave us the denser but still child-friendly book of Greek myths.

The duPont Library has the newer book, “The Lincolns: A Scrapbook Look at Abraham and Mary” by Candace Fleming (2008). She uses bits of letters, newspaper clippings, photographs and old cartoons to create a kind of “museum on the page.”

November is a month which, one way or another, will be making history. But it’s also a good time to review it. In the hopes that looking back to what we as a nation have been and meant to be will help us as we, to finish off Lincoln’s sentence, “strive on to finish the work we are in, to bind up the nation’s wounds, to care for him who shall have borne the battle and for his widow and his orphan, to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations.”

This month also gives us time to read ahead for another film event: the first of Peter Jackson’s Hobbit films (“The Hobbit: An Unexpected Journey”) opens Dec. 12.

Both duPont and Chattanooga libraries have it and the rest of the “Lord of the Rings” books as audio recordings on CD, with narrator Rob Inglis more playing than reading each character. “Scrumptiously crunchable!”

SAS Rings Chocolate Bells

Every year at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School, the "Chocolate Bells" are rung at 11:11 a.m. on Armistice Day, Nov. 11. The ritual is an annual celebration of peace and a reminder of the unusual way the bells in the St. Andrew's Chapel came from New Jersey to Tennessee more than 90 years ago.

Before World War I ended, the women in a small Episcopal church in Morristown, N.J., began collecting money to send chocolates to American soldiers overseas. When the war ended, they decided to allocate the balance of their "War Time Chocolate Fund" to some other worthy cause. They sent the money for three bells as an Armistice Thanksgiving. In return, the school agreed to ring the bells for 11 minutes on the 11th day of the 11th month at 11:11 a.m. every year in memory of those who died in World War I and as a prayer for peace. This will be the 92nd year the bells have rung out over the fields and forests of the mountain-top campus on this day of celebration.

KILLINGTHYME

by Buck Gorrell

se·nes·cence—noun \si-'ne-san(t)s\

1: the state of being old : the process of becoming old

2: the growth phase in a plant or plant part (as a leaf) from full maturity to death

<<http://www.merriam-webster.com/dictionary/senescence>>

Professor Harry Yeatman is due many thanks for his excellent discussion of the chemistry and physiology that produces our majestic autumn color. I always find the scientific aspects of the resulting aesthetic very intriguing. Every season has both. As such, one must grapple for a description of the unique attributes which give a season its character.

Senescence, for me, is a single word that sets a tone for autumn. Rather, autumn is the culmination of senescence in the plant world. The passage from full, reproductive maturity to death—death being the operative word—is shockingly visible in the plant world right now.

As the farthest reaching arms of Hurricane Sandy strip the leaves from our hardwoods here on the Mountain, the arboreal skeletons of winter appear, changing the landscape dramatically. My massive sugar maple (Acer saccharum), site of a tree house in progress, favorite roost of a red-tailed hawk in winter, is stripped of two-thirds of its leaves. Baker Lane, a modest gravel road running under a row of white pine (Pinus strobus) across from my Prince Lane address, has metamorphosed into a needle-strewn track reminiscent more of 1812 than 2012.

To be honest, fall depresses me. Not only are we losing precious daylight, my favorite botanical displays of the South Cumberland have gone, not to return for what seems an eternity. Ahead lays cold, dark and fog.

Yet, in the death of needles and leaves, the capitulation of annuals' and perennials' growth to last night's 32 degree low, there is the promise of life. The energy present in all of this matter during life is transformed, through the long, dark, lifeless season to come, into the black gold upon which the new growth of spring and fruits of summer thrive.

And, there are the unique fruits of the season. Leafy greens are abundant. Among the most nutritious of plants, these tough vegetables will produce for a while yet. Red Russian kale, arugula, turnip, mustard and collard greens are chock full of vitamins and flavor. The winter squashes—acorn and spaghetti come to mind—are great for storage. As chef George Stevenson at Pearl's proved recently, they are also amazing soup bases. I enjoy simply roasting squashes with root vegetables and herbs for a tasty, hearty dish.

Through it all, I have one confused Azalea in full bloom, propagated 15 years ago from Alex and Zell Hoole's garden in Chapel Hill, N.C.

As always, I welcome your questions, comments or conversations at <buckgorrell@gmail.com>.

"The issue for Sewanee was the gap between the economically disadvantaged and the non-economically disadvantaged. Also, if a school had measures that declined they could not be a reward school," said Franklin County Director of Schools Rebecca Sharber.

For SES, 77.8 percent of all students were proficient and advanced in math, compared to 67.2 percent of Broadview and 66.4 percent of North Lake students. In reading/language arts, 77.8 percent of all SES students were proficient and advanced. For Broadview, 61.6 percent of all students were proficient and advanced. For North Lake, 67.7 percent of all students were proficient and advanced.

In science, 82.1 percent of all SES students were proficient and advanced, compared to Broadview with 75.5 percent and North Lake with 78.1 percent. In social studies, 93 percent of all SES students were proficient and advanced. For Broadview, 96.5 percent of students were proficient and advanced, while North Lake had 92.7 percent scoring proficient and advanced.

SES also led in TCAP scores between the subgroups, except for the economically disadvantaged subgroup in reading/language arts.

In the fifth grade TCAP writing assessment, SES had the highest score in the county with a score of 4.5 out of 6. Cowan Elementary was next with a score of 4.4. Broadview and Decherd both scored a 4.2. North Lake and Clark Memorial both scored a 4.1. Huntland and Rock Creek both scored a 3.9.

SES also had the highest grade in achievement, which is a measure of overall student performance.

At the middle schools, North Middle School improved in math with 39.4 of all students scoring proficient and advanced. In reading/language arts, North declined slightly from last year's testing results to 44.6 percent of all students proficient and advanced.

South Middle School improved to 32.4 percent of all students proficient and advanced in math. South had a slight decline in reading/language arts with 48.8 percent of all students proficient and advanced.

Rotary Expands "Don't Meth With Us" in Area Schools

As part of Red Ribbon Week (or Drug Awareness Week), the Rotary Club of Monteagle Sewanee hosted "Don't Meth With Us" programs for fifth-graders in area elementary schools. Last year the programs included Monteagle Elementary School and Sewanee Elementary School. This year the club expanded its efforts to include Cowan Elementary School. Instead of just saying "Don't do drugs," this program focuses on the danger of methamphetamines.

The program featured school personnel, members of drug prevention coalitions, a child of a meth addict and law enforcement personnel. During one of the presentations, more than one-fifth of the students raised their hands when asked if they knew someone who had died from using meth, a reflection of the toll that meth addiction has had on these communities. The presentations also alerted students to community resources that can intervene to help meth users and their families. Both the community resource and law enforcement representatives stressed getting help if there is someone among the students' peers or family that is using meth.

At each session, students were given a yellow T-shirt with the "Don't Meth With Us" logo, with a broken heart in the center. The shirt was designed last year by Haley Lucy, a student at Monteagle Elementary School. It emphasizes the broken hearts and broken families that are a result of addiction. In addition, each student received a key ring and fob.

Rotary Club members Bob Askew, Bill Davis, Dan Hatfield and Chip Manning led this initiative. Launching and sustaining this program has been made possible by generous funding from Rotary International District 6780 and community schools and businesses. This is an ongoing program of the Monteagle-Sewanee Rotary Club. It is hoped that the program can include even more schools next year.

State Releases TCAP Scores

Franklin County School System at Intermediate Status

by K. G. Beavers, Messenger Staff Writer

The 2011–12 Tennessee Comprehensive Assessment Program (TCAP) achievement test and End of Course (EOC) scores for individual schools were released by the Tennessee Department of Education on Nov. 1. The TCAP and the EOC tests are mandatory for students in grades 3–8 and in grades 9–12.

With Tennessee's waiver from No Child Left Behind, achievement and progress targets are under a new accountability system that includes annual measurable objectives (AMO) for each school and school district. The state also has specific targets to reach in the new accountability system.

As a district, Franklin County is at intermediate status since the school system did not meet certain gap-closure goals. Franklin County did not meet the goal for all students versus non-white students in English II, grades 3–8 aggregate math and grades 3–8 aggregate reading/language. Franklin County also did not meet the goal between economically disadvantaged and non-economically disadvantaged in Algebra I and English II. For achievement, Franklin County met all goals except seventh grade reading/language arts, English II and the graduation rate.

As a district, Franklin County had a target of 3.5 percent growth for all students in grades 3–8 math, with 42.6 percent being proficient and advanced. Clark Memorial and Huntland did not reach that district target. There was also a 3.1 percent growth target for all students in grades 3–8 reading/language arts, with 50.9 percent being proficient and advanced. Clark Memorial, Decherd and Rock Creek did not meet that district target.

For Franklin County in grades 3–8, the greatest growth was in math and science. In math, 44.6 percent of students were proficient or advanced, a 5.5 percent increase over last year. In science, 63.4 percent of the students were proficient or advanced, an 8.4 percent increase.

Reading scores and social studies scores for Franklin County students in grades 3–8 stayed about the same as last year's TCAP results. There was a 1.7 percent growth in reading (49.5 percent proficient or advanced), and a 0.4 percent growth in social studies (87 percent proficient or advanced).

In the Franklin County high schools, 61.8 percent of the students on the English I test were proficient or advanced, a decrease of 1.5 percent. In English II, 61.8 percent were proficient or advanced, a decrease of 1 percent. U.S. History had a slight growth decrease, with 96.2 percent of students scoring proficient or advanced.

The biggest gain for the Franklin County high schools was in Algebra II, where 35.8 percent were proficient or advanced (8 percent growth). In Algebra I, 52.5 percent were proficient or advanced. In Biology, 54.2 percent were proficient or advanced.

Individually, Huntland High School had more students scoring proficient and advanced than Franklin County High School. At Huntland High School, 53 percent of all students were proficient and advanced in Algebra I. In English II, 65.6 percent of all students were proficient and advanced. At FCHS, in Algebra I, 52.5 percent of all students were proficient and advanced. In English II, 56.4 percent of all FCHS students were proficient and advanced.

ANGELWITH ANATTITUDE

by Virginia Craighill

Dear Angel,

Why would I choose to stay in Sewanee to see "The Nutcracker" on Nov. 17 rather than driving to Chattanooga or Nashville?

Nuts about Ballet

Dear Nuts:

If you enjoy putting extra miles on your car, paying extra dollars for gas and tickets, and dealing with road rage just to see strangers in tutus from nose-bleed seats, and then drive home late at night (in other words, if you're a masochist), go ahead and book the Big City Production. But as Dorothy figured out (I know, different story), sometimes what you're looking for is right in your own backyard.

If we at Sewanee believe in eating locally and being sustainable, shouldn't this philosophy also apply to our entertainment? Let's sustain our own homegrown talents, which are considerable, and save some money while we're at it.

The stars of the Alabama Youth Ballet and Sewanee Dance Conservatory you can see here on Nov. 17 may well be on the Big Stage in the future, but see them here first; you'll be bragging about it later. Tickets for "The Nutcracker" are $5 for students and $10 for adults.

SAS Wreath Sale Begins

The annual SAS sixth-grade holiday balsam wreath sale is now underway. The wreath sales help to raise funds for a variety of outreach projects. This year, part of these proceeds will help the Middle School classes continue their support of students at Amazing Grace Orphanage in Uganda. In an additional project, each sixth-grader will be given the opportunity to research three charities and choose one to receive a donation.

"Using the Internet, students explore a wide variety of non-profit organizations that are doing work in areas where the student has an interest," explained sixth-grade teacher Cindy Potter. "Students must research whom the organization benefits and how much of their donation actually goes to outreach services versus administrative overhead."

For the past two years, the sixth-graders have created individual websites and made oral presentations about their selected project. Students used the opportunity to support organizations that promote causes that are important to them, such as the protection of animals, scientific research and the preservation of the environment. In some of their presentations, the students told moving stories of people they knew who had benefited from their chosen organization. Charities have run the gamut from large organizations like Save the Children and the American Cancer Society to more local causes like Sewanee's Operation Noel or the Elephant Sanctuary in Hohenwald, Tenn.

The sweet-smelling balsam wreaths are shipped fresh from the woods of Maine. The wreaths measure at least 22 inches and come with a big red bow, six pine cones, and several sprigs of red berries. The majority of wreaths should arrive during the first week of December, and Potter assures customers wanting a wreath in time for Lessons and Carols (Dec. 1-2) that some will be available then. Folks will be notified as soon as the wreaths arrive. Each wreath costs $24, and may be paid for either when the order is placed or when it is picked up.

To order wreaths, please contact any St. Andrew's-Sewanee sixth-grade student or contact Cindy Potter by phone at 968-0210, ext. 1019, or by email to <cpotter@sasweb.org>.

New Group Focuses on Energy Efficiency

A coalition of local groups launched the Tennessee Healthy Energy Campaign in Sewanee with the goal to encourage the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) to set a 1 percent annual energy efficiency target. With an annual efficiency standard, TVA can protect the public health by reducing its dependence on coal while saving energy and money.

The campaign was launched on Nov. 7 at the Harris Commons on campus with speakers Dan Joranko, David Haskell and Jane Brown. There was also music by Bea Troxel and Joey Mooradian. Signature cards were signed by the community, and these signed cards will accompany the coalition to the next meeting of the TVA.

"TVA has an opportunity to unleash the power of energy efficiency, which will boost our local economy while saving customers money and close TVA's oldest and dirtiest coal plants. This is a win-win for our pocketbooks and our health," said Debbie Welch, organizer of the Sewanee group.

The campaign wants to persuade TVA to offer more financial incentives and to add more energy opportunities for homeowners, businesses and industry.

The Healthy Energy Campaign is a statewide network of organizations, which includes the Cumberland Center for Justice and Peace, the Green House, the state chapter of the Sierra Club and Sierra Club's Beyond Coal Campaign.

The group will meet again at 6:30 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 13, at 170 Faculty Circle in Sewanee. For more information call Welch at (423) 637-3849 or go to <http://www.tnclimateaction.net>.

Sewanee United Ends Fifth

Sewanee United capped its 2012 season with two exciting games in Huntsville this past weekend. In the first round of the Area 5 AYSO championships, Sewanee defeated Huntsville in a tight 2-1 victory. Evan Fox scored for Sewanee in the first 30 seconds of play off of a nice pass from Isaac Smith. Huntsville came back to tie the score, and the teams battled to a draw until the final minute of the game. Aidan Smith scored the winning goal after receiving a beautiful assist from Sylvan Huber-Feely.

In the second game, Monrovia and Sewanee played another tight battle that went back and forth over 60 minutes. The game ended in a scoreless tie. Tournament rules dictated that the two teams enter into a sudden death shootout to determine who would go on to the semifinal round. Unfortunately, Sewanee lost the shootout 1-0, and Monrovia advanced.

Sewanee's defense ruled the day at the tournament and was led by Seth Walker and Kenneth Dykes on defense and Larson Heitzenrater in goal. Contributing to the tough defense were John Beavers, Alexander Milford, Delana Pierce and Aden Rung, who all shared time on the back line, as well as midfielders Kase Johnson and Tyanna Klekotta.

Tessa Shackelford and Cate Bachman played forward and did well to keep the ball up field against tough competition.

Sewanee United finished their season at 9-4-1, and coaches Ken Smith and Don Rung expressed their thanks to the parents for traveling to all the games, and to the AYSO administration and volunteers for keeping Sewanee's home field in such great shape throughout the year.

SES Punt, Pass & Kick Winners

Several students from Sewanee Elementary will be participating in the Sectional Punt, Pass, and Kick Competition in Chattanooga, Sunday, Nov. 11. The students qualified for the sectional competition by placing first in their age group at the local competition held recently at the school.

SAS MS Basketball Update

Mountain Lions

An experienced Tracy City team, looking to repeat as Big-8 champions, hosted the SAS Mountain Lions on Oct. 30.

SAS responded well to the challenge: Tracy's vaunted man-to-man defensive pressure produced almost no turnovers. Sam Smith played hard and ended up with 13 points, and John Grammer earned four points off the bench. SAS lost the contest, 45-27.

The SAS Mountain Lions had a difficult time with the size of the visiting Palmer Bulldogs' squad on Nov. 1.

The SAS defense woke up in the second half and caused numerous turnovers. The team also shot better than in the Tracy City game. Sam Smith scored 10 points for SAS, and Ryan Toomey had six points. SAS lost 40-21.

Lady Mountain Lions

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee Lady Mountain Lions played their first home game of the season on Nov. 1 in a matchup with the Palmer Bulldogs. The athletic, experienced Bulldogs came out fast and never looked back. The young Mountain Lions tried to stay in the game, but ended up falling to Palmer, 50-14.

Kate Butler once again led the team in scoring with six points, with Lexie Laurendine close behind with four points. Mariel Rinck and Emily True also contributed to the scoring with two points each.

Southern Athletic Assn. Awards

Volleyball

Led by first-year head coach Shawna Laurendine, the Sewanee volleyball team took home a number of Southern Athletic Association (SAA) post-season awards on Nov. 2.

Laurendine took over as head coach after the Lady Tigers compiled an overall record of 18-130 during the last five seasons. Despite the limited success in the past, Laurendine led the 2012 team to a 14-11 record.

Along with Laurendine, players Jamie Sue Wilson, Kayla Sewell and Jamie Kosman earned all-conference honors.

After leading Sewanee in kills (230) and points (276.5), Wilson was named to the All-SAA Second Team. The outside hitter finished the season ranked seventh in the league in kills per set and fourth in total attacks.

Sewell was named to the All-SAA Second Team after she started and played in every match this season. Sewell finished second on the team in kills (230) and digs (286). She led all Tigers in solo blocks with 23.

Kosman was named to All-SAA Honor Mention Team. The defensive specialist led Sewanee in total digs (301) this season. Kosman finished the year ranked fifth among all conference players in digs per set (3.86).

Swimming and Diving Teams Finish Second at Invitational

Led by some of the fastest times this season, the Sewanee men and women's swimming and diving teams both finished second at the 12th Annual Sewanee Invitational on Nov. 3.

As a team, the Tigers (901.5) wrapped up the two-day event second behind Cumberlands (924) in the men's meet. On the women's side, Sewanee (895.5) finished as the runner-up, again behind Cumberlands (981.5).

Overall, Sewanee combined to win 11 events during the weekend.

In the relays, Sewanee opened with a victory in the men's 100 free (Jackson Cromer, Evan Escobar, Brian Glatt and Thomas Walters) with a season-best time of 43.42.

In the 200 medley relay, Cromer, Glatt, Escobar and Phillip Link finished with a season-best time of 1:31.76.

Glatt continued to swim well. The sprinter won both the 100 and 200 free with season-best times of 48.17 and 1:45.71. Glatt was joined by Link, who was victorious in the men's 200 breaststroke with a time of 2:26.75.

Sewanee ended the 2012 football season with a loss to former conference rival Trinity 48-7 on Nov. 3. Photo by Lyn Hutchinson

Tigers Lose to Trinity

Trinity quarterback Mason Blaschke finished with 219 total yards and three touchdowns, as Trinity defeated the Sewanee football team, 48-7, on Nov. 3.

After Trinity jumped out to a 10-0 lead, Blaschke capped off a three-play, 75-yard drive with a one-yard touchdown run. On the drive, Blaschke was key on all three plays. After tossing a 46-yard pass to receiver Matt Kenemer, the Trinity signal caller set up his score with a 28-yard run to the one-yard line.

After Sewanee failed to move the ball on its next possession, Trinity broke the game open with a return of a Tiger punt back 65 yards for a touchdown.

From there, things would not improve much. Trinity went on and added three more touchdowns and a field goal in the second half.

Sewanee's lone score came midway through the fourth quarter. On the drive, quarterback Curtis Johnson found slotback Jase Brooks on a 32-yard pass play. After Brooks scampered 12 yards to the Trinity 16-yard line, he capped off his career two plays later with a four-yard touchdown run.

Johnson finished 6-of-9 for 113 passing yards. On the ground, Andy Moots finished with a career-high 53 yards on seven carries.

Linebacker Johnny Davenport led the Tigers with a team-high 10 tackles.

With the 2012 season over, Saturday marked the final game for seniors Davenport, Brooks, Sergio Acosta, John Philip Boudreaux, Garrett Schlosser, J.D. Crabtree, Adian Cook, Dorsey Dobias, Trey Knighton and Murphy Walters.

NATURENOTES

By Harry and Jean Yeatman

Slate-colored Junco, from "Birds of the South"

Junco Returns

Jean Yeatman reports: "What a thrill on Nov. 1 to look out at our feeding area to see the Slate-colored Junco, back from its northern breeding grounds to spend the winter with us. Some people call it the Snowbird, and this poem is Harry's favorite. He loves to recite it:

"From out the white and pulsing storm
I hear the snowbirds calling;
The sheeted winds stalk o'er the hills,
And fast the snow is falling.

On twinkling wings they eddy past,
At home amid the drifting,
Or seek the hills and weedy fields,
Where fast the snow is sifting.

"This bird is short and plump," she continues, "about the size of an English Sparrow, but stockier, and is slate gray in color, with a white belly that looks like a white-bibbed apron. It sometimes breeds with White-throated Sparrows, and you often see them in a flock together in the winter.

"While watching a flock of robins eating the berries on a black gum tree," she commented, "I saw an amazing sight. One robin would hover like a hummingbird to pick the berries from the tips of the branches."

BARDTOVERSE

by Scott and Phoebe Bates

Nov. 11—Veterans Day

... Happy the soldier home, without a notion
How somewhere, every dawn, some men attack,
And many sighs are drained.
Happy the lad whose mind was never trained;
His days are worth forgetting more than not.
He sings along the march
Which we march taciturn, because of dusk,
The long, forlorn, relentless trend
From larger day to huger night ...

But cursed are dullards whom no cannon stuns,
That they should be as stones;
Wretched are they, and mean
With paucity that never was simplicity.
By choice they made themselves immune
To pity and whatever moans in man
Before the last sea and the hapless stars;
Whatever mourns when many leave these shores;
Whatever shares
The eternal reciprocity of tears.

—“Insensibility” by Wilfred Owen
(Killed in combat Nov. 11, 1918)
