Community Chest Spotlight: Sewanee Children's Center

The 2012–13 Sewanee Community Chest Fund Drive is underway. The power of the people helping people makes a difference in the life of the community. Sponsored by the Sewanee Civic Association, the Community Chest raises money yearly for local charitable organizations serving the area. This year's goal is $90,000.

For the next few weeks, the Messenger will focus on some of the organizations supported by the Community Chest. This week we shine the spotlight on the Sewanee Children's Center.

The Sewanee Children's Center (SCC) began in 1948. SCC provides a high-quality preschool and after-school program to the youngest members of Sewanee and the surrounding communities of Franklin, Marion and Grundy counties. SCC currently has 45 children in both preschool and after-school care. SCC serves more than 30 families in the local communities and employs nine people.

SCC is requesting $8,000 to fund its scholarship account. SCC has a long history of offering tuition assistance to families in need. These funds allow SCC to serve between seven and nine additional families that meet income eligibility guidelines. Often these children have the most to gain from access to high-quality early childhood education services, but their families are not able to afford the care without financial assistance. The Community Chest funding of this program reaches many in the local community, including children and families most in need.

SCC receives money from tuition fees and other donations. SCC incurred $12,000 in unexpected moving expenses from Otey Parish to Cravens Hall this year. The Community Chest was able to provide $5,000 in moving expense assistance in addition to funds for the scholarship account.

of its $90,000 goal on Dec. 7. There is still time to send in an end-of-year tax deduction.

Yearly expenses for SCC total more than $229,000. The biggest expenses are in payroll, rent and classroom supplies. The goal of the Sewanee Community Chest is to help citizens by funding community organizations. The Community Chest is a 501(c)(3) organization, and donations are tax-deductible. Send your donation to Sewanee

Community Chest, P.O. Box 99, Sewanee, TN 37375. For more information, or to make a donation through PayPal, contact < sewaneecommunitychest@gmail.com>. [Editor's Note: The Sewanee Mountain Messenger was founded in part by the Sewanee Civic Association; however, the Messenger no longer requests Community Chest funding.]

University Vice-Chancellor John McCardell announced the appointment of Marie Eldridge as police chief on Dec. 10.

Eldridge has worked at the University since 1999. She has served as interim chief of police since Aug. 1, when former chief Robert White retired from the University. "After a thorough search process, Marie emerged as clearly the strongest candidate for the position," said McCardell. "She has earned the confidence of her working colleagues, as well as others on the campus and in the greater Sewanee community."

Regents Elect Sutherland

University Vice-Chancellor John McCardell announced on Dec. 11 that Sarah Sutherland was elected interim treasurer by the Board of Regents, effective Jan. 1, 2013. Sutherland has served as assistant treasurer and chief accountant at the University since 1993 and has worked in the financial office since 1968. She replaces Jerry Forster in this role. Forster is moving to West Virginia to be area president for the University of Charleston-Beckley.

"Her appointment will ensure that the work of that office goes forward unimpeded, informed by her many skills and her wealth of experience," McCardell said in the announcement. "The office could not be in more capable hands."

McCardell also announced that Mary Davis has agreed to serve as interim assistant treasurer, also effective Jan. 1, 2013. Davis has been at the University for the past five years and has served as endowment accountant. "She will continue to work closely as liaison with the University's Investment Advisory Committee," McCardell said.

MAKE YOUR VOICE HEARD To the Editor:

A lively conversation continues on our wonderful community email group, the Sewanee Classifieds, regarding the fluoridation of our public water supply. The back-and-forth prompted me to conduct my own research and the following quote by Dr. Peter Mansfield, a physician from the United Kingdom and advisory board member of the recent government review of fluoridation, stood out to me as profound, to wit:

"No physician in his right senses would prescribe for a person he has never met, whose medical history he does not know, a substance which is intended to create bodily change, with the advice: 'Take as much as you like, but you will take it for the rest of your life because some children suffer from tooth decay.' It is a preposterous notion."

We all have to make our own decision about this, and the important part SUD BOARD WELCOMES is that you make your voice heard at the DEBATE Sewanee Utility District (SUD) meet- To the Editor: ing on Dec. 18 or email SUD directly at <fluoride@sewaneeutility.org>.

As many of you know, the Sewanee

Utility District (SUD) board has chosen to review fluoride addition to our drinking water supply. Over a year ago, we voted to reduce the fluoride concentration in our water to 0.7 mg/L, and this decision was based on the best science available to us at the time. Currently, the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and the American Dental Asof my biological mother in this Earth sociation (ADA) recommend using life. It is a great blessing, especially for fluoride additives in drinking water to enhance dental health. The SUD sleep rather than with a prolonged board is aware that there are studies struggle above and beyond what she indicating that fluoride has negative was already experiencing. Due to the effects on human health, but until the CDC, ADA or the Environmental editor, I have chosen to pay for space Protection Agency recommend that so that what I have to say for the benefit fluoride be excluded from our water of all will not be compromised. Please supplies, it will be difficult for me to refer to the letter on page 11 of this is-recommend its removal from our syssue titled "The Transition of Dorothy tem. In the coming months or years, Minkler and Exponential Expansion if the evidence demonstrating the negative consequences of fluoride additives or any other additive continues to grow, I will certainly reconsider my position. SUD and other water utilities also add aluminum sulfate, potassium permanganate, phosphate, sodium hydroxide and sodium hypochlorite to our water for various reasons. I personally welcome the debate about fluoride and any other concern about the quality of our drinking water.

FLUORIDE SAFETY PROVEN To the Editor:

It has come to my attention that there is a local debate going on concerning the merits of water fluorida-

I am saddened that such a debate would happen in the first place. The safety and efficacy of a fluoridated public water supply has been proven time and again. Study after study (freely available online) support both the necessity and the benefits of fluoridated drinking water. These studies, done with scientific rigor, are supported by a legion of professional and governmental entities. Indeed, the fluoridation of public drinking water is hailed by many as one of the singular achievements in modern public health.

And yet, due to ignorance and misinformation, the debate continues.

By sustaining such arguments (in the face of overwhelming scientific evidence), we risk returning to an age when reason is trumped by hearsay, science by superstition. Western thought was once dominated by the same sort of sad ignorance that informs such modern debates. It is a time commonly known as the Dark Ages.

Ways to Help Our Mountain Community

The Mountain offers many ways to make a difference in the lives of others during the holiday season. Whether it is giving a direct donation or honoring a friend or family member with a gift, plenty of important causes and ministries need extra support in the coming weeks.

Operation Noel will make Christmas Eve deliveries in Sewanee this year, thanks to the Sewanee Volunteer Fire Department (SVFD) and FROST (the department's Fund Raising Operational Support Team). Donations of toys and money are welcomed and can be made at the Fire House.

Santa on the Mountain will be at Mid-Cumberland Mountain Ministry, at Holy Comforter Episcopal Church in Monteagle. Parents are asked to call the office at (931) 924-3380 to sign up for a time to visit the church and select two presents per child. Donations of new toys and money are accepted for this

The Sewanee Outreach Office is collecting donations this year for a new organization, Food with Friends. A local traveling soup kitchen working in conjunction with area food pantries, Food with Friends provides hot, healthy, free meals to families in need. By donating to Food with Friends, folks can pick up cards and mail them to loved ones saying a gift was made in their honor. This effort is similar to the "Build An Ark" project of Heifer International that the outreach office has organized in past years, Roper said, but the money stays in the local area to help people in need. For more information call 598-3201.

The Community Action Committee accepts monetary gifts or donations of canned goods and nonperishables for its Christmas program. Call Betty Carpenter at 598-5927 for more information.

Morton Memorial United Methodist Church in Monteagle has an Angel Tree at the Piggly Wiggly in Monteagle. For more information contact Mary Alice Bradley at (931) 924-7770 or <mabradley@blomand.net> or Marietta Poteet, (931) 924-7666 or <nannietta@blomand.net>.

The VFW of Monteagle hosts an annual Christmas party for children. They accept monetary donations and new toys. Call (931) 924-3470 for more information.

Many area nonprofit organizations are accepting gifts in honor of, or in memory of, friends and loved ones, including the Blue Monarch, Folks at Home, and the Mountain Goat Trail Alliance.

University Guarantees Four-Year Tuition Cost for 2013 Freshmen

nounced on Dec. 12 that it will guarantee tuition, room and board for four the Fall 2013 through Spring 2017 semesters. No student enrolled in the college next fall who graduates in four years will have a price increase during his or her time at the university.

Tuition for rising sophomores, the class of 2016 that entered Sewanee in August, was already guaranteed for four years. Tuition for rising juniors and seniors in the classes of 2015 and 2014 will be frozen at next fall's rate.

"Sewanee's tuition guarantee represents a considerable savings over with the guarantee reflects Sewanee's what families might have expected to pay across four years, based on the national trend of ever-increasing college costs," said Vice-Chancellor John M. McCardell. "Yearly tuition increases receive more than 3,400 applications make it difficult for families to plan. By this year, and will enroll more than 450 locking in the tuition cost for four years, freshmen in the fall.

The University is moving to a tiered years for the college class entering the system of tuition, fees, room and board, University in the fall. The tuition these under which the comprehensive fee for students will pay will remain level from each entering class is guaranteed for four years from that class's matriculation. For the 2013–14 academic year, these prices will be: $43,920 for the classes of 2014 and 2015; $44,630 for the class of 2016; and $45,970 for the class of 2017.

All of these 2013–14 tuition levels remain lower than Sewanee's tuition and fees were in 2010–2011, before the University's Board of Regents lowered tuition and fees by 10 percent. The decision to follow that reduction determination to be a national leader in offering value in higher education.

From the Oxford English Dictionary: Dust: As the type of that which is worthless ...

Garbage: The offal of an animal used for food ...

Junk: ... discarded or waste material that can be put to some use. Offal: That which falls off ... as in chips in dressing wood ... the part which in any process, is allowed to fall off, or neglected as valueless.

Waste: ... unserviceable material remaining over from any process

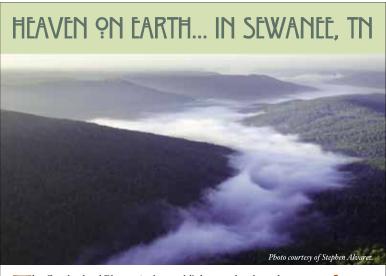

Dreary, negative words, no? That's why our dump is named the Franklin County Convenience Center, not the Franklin County Filth Center. Probably from prehistory on, when we have discarded something, we have always bad-mouthed it. Today we must change. We have to package smart; reclaim, reuse, refurbish, redeem, in order to honor these once despised goods, and in so doing, honor the earth. In my Oxford English Dictionary published in 1980, the word recycle does not even appear. However, Webster's New World College Dictionary, 2000, records: "re-cycle 3. a. to treat or process in order to use again (recycle aluminum cans) b. to gather up (empty bottles ... etc.) to be so treated or processed."

When National Guard Captain Andrew Lane returned from Afghanistan to his parish church, St. Gregory's in Athens, Ga., < stgregoryathens. org>, he took on a new mission—recycling. Since 2010, the church has realized over $4,800 from recycling. It is linked with a remarkable nonprofit, TerraCycle, <terracycle.com>, which pays for trash and sells the new products from the material it collects. It takes items few recycling centers will accept. According to Episcopal News Service (Oct. 10, 2012), UPS delivers recyclable materials to TerraCycle from approved collection points at no charge. Some church or other group in Sewanee might want to investigate this.

Joan and Sam wish our dear Sewanee friends A Merry Christmas-

We look forward to seeing you in the new year!

Sewanee: Zanmi ak Ayiti ("Friends with Haiti")

One of the popular buzzwords in the ever-expanding jargon of sustainability is carbon sequestration, the process of the capture and long-term storage of carbon by living systems, most notably woody biomass and soil. Its newfound buzz stems from its growing attention, as carbon dioxide reduction becomes an increasingly important goal of our society.

We are blessed on the Plateau to have an abundance of hardwood forests that not only provide clean air but also sequester thousands of tons of $\rm CO_2$ released into the atmosphere. And while initial estimates are still unknown, it appears as if a great deal of Sewanee's carbon emissions are indeed offset by the 13,000 acres of forest on the Domain. Our healthy forests are in stark contrast to the ecosystems of Haiti.

Haiti is arguably the greatest ecological disaster on the planet. Exhaustive agriculture for three centuries has left the soil in ruins, and, as a result, agricultural yields have declined significantly. The only remaining source of income for the already impoverished farmers is to harvest trees remaining on the mountainous slopes, converting the wood into increasingly valuable charcoal. The result of the overharvest of timber has been massive erosion, mudslides and the highest rate of malnutrition in the Western hemisphere. Currently, 98 percent of Haiti's historically tropical rainforests have been destroyed, and the rate of destruction shows no signs of slowing.

Biology professor Deb McGrath believes she has a potential solution to this problem: payment for ecosystem services known by its acronym, PES. PES is a system that offers incentives to landowners to manage their property more carefully to protect the ecosystem; techniques include watershed protection, reduced erosion and carbon sequestration. McGrath, along with recent graduate Keri Bryan (C'12) and a handful of current students, are working with Zanmi Agrikol (Haitian Creole for "Partners in Agriculture"), a sister organization to Paul Farmer's Partners in Health, to make PES a reality for the farmers of the Haitian Central Plateau. Although millions of tree seedlings have been distributed by various non-governmental organizations, Haiti's hillsides remain deforested because it is more economically viable to sell charcoal than allow trees to grow. McGrath and others hope that PES will alter household economies, making reforesting economically viable.

McGrath began this project in 2006 and since then has created a map showing the location of all of the farmers on the Haitian Central Plateau that are currently receiving assistance and seedlings from Zanmi Agrikol. Two months ago, I traveled with Bryan to Haiti in order to help plot a few of the remaining points for the map. A two-day, 30-mile mule ride across the roughest country I've ever known revealed the massive scope and difficulty of this project. Now that the map is nearly complete, McGrath and crew are poised to begin PES projects with these families.

In addition to offsetting a percentage of the University's carbon emissions, this project also helps establish a powerful and meaningful bond between Haiti and Sewanee. One of McGrath's goals is to establish an internship program for Sewanee students to spend the summer in Cange, Haiti; the students will work with a Haitian student to measure the ecosystem services for which farmers will be paid. McGrath hopes that someday Haitian students will come to America to study and work. With such a partnership, Sewanee students and Haitian students can participate in joint learning of ecology and other environmental issues.

Most importantly, this project will help put a steady income in the hands of the impoverished subsistence farmers. Only when Haitians have a steady source of income will they be able to provide for their families, improving both their education and health. The deforestation of Haiti is crucial to addressing financial means and nutritional needs.

ATTHE MOVIES

Sewanee Union Theatre This Week Friday-Sunday, Dec. 14–16, 7:30 p.m.

Rated R• 106 minutes • $3

Seth MacFarlane's film "Ted" may be the first instance in which men actually want to go see a film about a teddy bear. John Bennett (Mark Wahlberg), is living an altogether normal life, save one thing: his childhood teddy bear, Ted, is alive and plays an active role in his life. When John's girlfriend (Mila Kunis) decides she wants more out of their relationship, everything goes awry. The idea of a movie about a stuffed animal may sound innocent, but this movie is rated R for crude and sexual content, pervasive language and some drug use.

Buddy the Elf (Will Ferrell), an orphan who was left as a baby at the North Pole with Santa, travels to New York City in search of his real father, Walter Hobbs (James Caan). Combining the archetypal stories of the journey home, the orphan's search for his parents and the delights of falling in love, "Elf" is darn near perfect. There are terrific performances from old favorites such as Bob Newhart, Edward Asner and Caan. Zooey Deschanel is lovely as Buddy's co-worker Jovie, and Ferrell is a delight. "Elf" could be my favorite Christmas movie. Rated PG for some mild rude humor and language.

Community Playhouse Announces New Season

The Community Playhouse, Inc., in its 58th year of providing live theater entertainment for Tullahoma and the surrounding communities, has announced its plays scheduled for 2013.

"I Love You, You're Perfect, Now Change" is a musical. It is slated for production in February. Heather Kleinfeld will direct the play.

"South Pacific," considered to be one of the greatest Broadway musicals, will be offered to playhouse audiences in April. This Rodgers and Hammerstein musical is based upon James A. Michener's Pulitzer Prize-winning book, "Tales of the South Pacific."

A Playhouse special event is being planned for the fourth offering of the season. This show, still in the planning stages, will be a locally developed production and will provide unique entertainment for theater lovers.

than once. Some of my favorite movies are spaghetti Westerns such as the "They Call Me Trinity" series with Terence Hill, the man "who keeps alive with his Colt 45." Other favorites include the dark and lawless Westerns such as "The Outlaw Josey Wales" with Clint Eastwood. ("Not a hard man to track. Leaves dead bodies wherever he goes.") Traditional Westerns such as "Jeremiah Johnson" with Robert Redford ("Watch your top knot.") are always on the must-watch-again was not the same. list. Thank goodness my Dad gave me an appreciation of this movie genre.

date night, they loaded up the '65 orange Mustang and headed to the drive-in movies. My brother and I, clad in pajamas, got to drink Sprite from a cup bigger than our heads and eat popcorn with extra butter. Mom thought we would eventually fall asleep in the back of the car. Kris and I were too busy fiddling with the speakers attached to the car windows to even dream of going to sleep. We were wide-eyed by watching movies like "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid." Guns, horses and a shoot-out may have been the best thing going.

It was a treat when Dad and I would go to the theatre without the rest of the family. Our movie adventure was always the same. Dad and I would look in the paper and pick the movie we wanted to see, a Western. At the theater, we got a big Sprite and popcorn with extra butter. The whole adventure cost about $5. After the movie, we went to an old-fashioned soda fountain to get a strawberry milkshake or a chocolate malt. We discussed if the movie was a good flick or not. Of course it was good: a movie with guns, horses and a shoot-out was the best. If John Wayne was in the movie, it was even better.

After my second brother was born, it was harder for all of us to go watch movies together. Mom and Dad would go on their own movie date nights and leave us with a babysitter. They would come back and

Name a Western and I have probably seen it more tell us about the movies they watched, which was not the same. Occasionally, my brothers and I would play drive-in night on snowy Saturdays by making popcorn and folding out the couch to watch a Western on TV.

I cannot remember exactly when Dad and I stopped going to the movies together; it seems as if we just stopped going one day. My brothers and I went to watch movies with friends. Mom and Dad usually stayed home to watch movies on TV or rent a video. Movie-watching

During Christmas 2010, I told Dad we were going to watch the remake of "True Grit" for a movie adventure. I Watching movies with my family has always been had wondered if Dad would even like this movie. Would a big part of my life. When Mom and Dad planned a this movie be just as good without John Wayne in the starring role? Did Hollywood even need to remake this movie, as it was great the first time around? And where exactly were we going to find an old-fashioned soda shop in Franklin County?

Of course we could not go by ourselves. Everyone decided it would be fun to go watch. We loaded up into two cars and headed to the theatre. I paid for Dad and myself. I most certainly did not tell him how much the tickets, the big soda I could not hold with two hands and the popcorn with extra butter was. I went in there with $40 and still had to borrow money from my daughter.

The whole family took up an entire row at the theatre. The preview of "Rango" got a big laugh from Dad. None of us were too sure about the "Cowboys and Aliens" preview. Dad wanted to know what had happened to the good old-fashioned Western. Then we settled in to watch the flick with guns, horses and a shoot-out. The movie was better than I had remembered.

As we left the theatre, I waited for the verdict from Dad. Was this one as good as the original John Wayne version? "That was a pretty good flick," he said.

As it was late and snow had blanketed the cars, we got into the cars and went home. I did not even suggest we all go find a strawberry milkshake or a chocolate malt. Watching the movie together was enough.

The Transition of Dorothy Minkler and Exponential Expansion of Awareness

This purchased space allows for a continuation of the letter to the editor in this issue titled "The Transition of Dorothy Minkler."

Regarding the bigger picture, in November 2008 an accomplished academic neurosurgeon, Dr. Eben Alexander, contracted a very rare form of bacterial meningitis which aggressively attacked his brain. He went into a coma for seven days and all parts of his brain that could accommodate any form of conscious experience were totally shut down. The attending doctors asserted that he would probably never regain consciousness and, if he did, he would require 24/7 care for life.

However, he totally recovered all of his faculties and went on to write a New York Times best-selling book, "Proof of Heaven: A Neurosurgeon's Journey Into the Afterlife," in which he writes of the profound and ultra-real experiences he had during his coma which totally transformed his formerly rigidly-held reductionist, materialistic, "scientific" view of himself and of the universe. Any quest for truth, "scientific" or otherwise, is valid and integral only if it takes into account ALL evidence available at any given time, not just the evidence which supports pre-existing agendas of any kind. Although unique in significant ways, Alexander's experiences had much in common with those recorded by many thousands in modern times and for thousands of years who have had "near death experiences" (NDEs). At the very least, his account is clear confirmation that who we are is a lot more than our physical body and, at the deepest level, our consciousness exists independently of our brain.

After I finished reading the book soon after Dorothy left her physical body, I had two basic concerns about the book: (1) From where I sit, it did not address some deep existential questions about "good" and "evil" that I've struggled with since the age of eight. There are vast differences in perceptions of good and evil depending on how much we are willing to look at and acknowledge, what our intentions are and our own level of consciousness at any given time. (2) Alexander asserted that he was given a message in the higher realms that "You can do no wrong." When I read that in conjunction with the first concern, a big red flag went up.

But then I read a transcription of a two-part interview with Alexander that, for me, did address those and related issues. Just do an internet search for "Part 1: A Neurosurgeon's "Proof of Heaven" - Angelic Beings and Human Families - Linda Moulton Howe" or if you are online go to http://www.earthfiles.com/news.php?ID

Keep in mind that if the interview is read before reading the book, it is being read out of context and is best read again after reading the book.

I may have seen all of the assertions in this interview, in one form or another, at some prior point in this life. However, context and timing are crucial. Due to a synergistic convergence of events and processes in my life, with Dorothy's transition as the backdrop, reading this interview AFTER having read the book brought my relationship with (1) the book, (2) with all of my blood family members (currently embodied or not), (3) with the local community and (4) with the totality of my existence here on Earth into an exponentially clearer perception. A tsunami of spontaneous holographic awareness, far beyond the severe constraints of any wishful thinking or fabricated intellectual synthesis, flooded every cell in my body and brought tears of gratitude to my eyes. This marks a closure and a "quantum leap" new beginning all at once.

My intention here is simply to bring attention to the book and subsequently to the interview. That is all. The rest is up to the reader.

With gratitude.... Ray Minkler, styraco@blomand.net

Debbie Brady

by John Shackelford

Traveling solo early on Saturday morning while on a trip to the grocery store in Winchester and selfishly enjoying the rare moment of not having a single health-conscious passenger aboard to observe my breakfast choices, I slipped into the Hardee's drive-through lane like a stealth fighter jet cruising under the radar. I pretended not to know that the biscuit I ordered was made with white flour held together with buttermilk, butter and shortening. It was difficult to ignore the fact that stuffed inside this soft cylinder of warm fluffy dough was a deep-fried chicken breast still piping hot to the touch. My whole body greeted this taste sensation that was as comfortable as an old friend joining me for the ride with a thankful appreciation of something so warm and good filling the loneliness of my empty stomach.

 $Id rove \ on \ toward \ Walmart \ as \ Jimi \ Hendrix \ covered \ the \ Bob \ Dylan$ original song "All Along the Watchtower" on the radio of my stealth fighter, which was posing as a Prius.

"There must be some kind of way out of here,"

"Said the joker to the thief,

"'There's too much confusion,

"I can't get no relief."

As I deciphered those lyrics I considered an idea: Coaches deal with this problem often when their athletes' minds are imprisoned by doubt, negativity and confusion. Learning to concentrate requires much more than simply trying to block those negative thoughts that interrupt our progress. Blocking a thought requires that you acknowledge it. And by replacing those negatives and focusing on a positive image allows the mind to be filled with winning and triumphant energy. The trick is to allow the grass to overcome the weeds.

Two weeks ago a photo of New York police officer Lawrence DePrimo offering a pair of new socks and boots to a barefoot homeless man on the cold streets of New York circulated on the Internet and $news\ programs.\ A\ Florida\ tourist\ photographed\ DePrimo\ during\ his$ random act of kindness. The visiting Floridian approached the homeless gentleman who was resting against a closed storefront window with feet numb and blistered from the cold, when DePrimo bent down and kindly offered the socks and boots he had just purchased after seeing the man hobbling down the street on painful bare heels. He pulled the socks up for the man and gave him the brand new size 12 boots. He asked for nothing and expected nothing in return. His only comment was that the man could not have been more polite and gracious in giving thanks.

It is the season of giving and it is easy to provide for those we know and love. It is also not very hard to find the suffering of those less fortunate disturbing, but it does strangely seem rare to witness an act as kind and generous as Officer DePrimo's for an unknown recipient.

The only thing I know for sure is only how little that I do know. What I am most certain of this time of year is that when we replace our selfish desires and petty complaints with random acts of kindness (like this caring gift of new boots), we are filled with a warm satisfaction much like a hot chicken biscuit on a cold December morning.

May all our stockings be filled with the power to show kindness to those in need like that which was provided for a stranger on an undistinguished street corner in New York. So if I could provide a coaching recipe to Hendrix's need for "some kind of way out of here" and give relief from all this confusion and negativity, it would be to fill our souls with a tasty warm biscuit and pick up a couple extra for those without.

Merry Christmas to us all.

Brown Creeper, illustrated by Don Eckelberry from "Audubon Bird Guide: Eastern Land Birds."

Brown Creeper

Jean Yeatman reports that she and Harry had not seen a Brown Creeper in three years until they looked out their window on Dec. 11 and saw one going up and down the trunk of a Red Maple tree. They watched it for 10 minutes as it searched for insects and larva in the bark of the tree. The creeper is a small brown bird with a white breast; its length is 5-1/2 inches. Its habit of spiraling up a tree trunk, then dropping to the base of another to repeat the process, is distinctive. Its slim, curved bill is a distinguishing feature. The Brown Creeper is largely insectivorous, but will come to suet. It breeds throughout a large part of the northern hemisphere and winters south to Florida, the Gulf Coast and Texas.

Pets of the Week

Meet Sasha and Gypsy

The Franklin County Humane Society's Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption.

Pretty Sasha is a teensy little Italian Greyhound mix. She's around 9 months old and sweet as can be. Sasha is up-to-date on shots and spayed.

Gypsy is a lady-like kitten who has a lovely dilute tortoiseshell coat that is mostly blue. She is affectionate, friendly and lots of fun. Gypsy is negative for FeLV and FIV, house-trained, up-to-date on shots and spayed.

Every Friday is Black Friday at Animal Harbor. On Fridays, adoption fees will be reduced 50 percent for black or mostly black pets over 4 months old who have been at Animal Harbor for more than a month. Pets adopted from Animal Harbor qualify for a free post-adoption wellness exam by local veterinarians.

Call Animal Harbor at 962-4472 for information and check out their other pets at <www.animalharbor.com>. Enter their drawing on this site for a free spay or neuter for one of your pets. Please help the Humane Society continue to save p.m. seven days a week. For more in- abandoned pets by sending your donations to the Franklin County Humane Society, P. O. Box 187, Winchester, TN 37398.

Good Night Near Christmas

And now good night. Good night to this old house Whose breathing fires are banked for their night's rest.

Good night to lighted windows in the west. Good night to neighbors and to neighbors' cows Whose morning milk will be beside my door. Good night to one star shining in. Good night To earth, poor earth with its uncertain light, Our little wandering planet still at war.

Good night to one unstarved and gnawing mouse Between the inner and the outer wall. He has a paper nest in which to crawl, Good night to men who have no bed, no house.
