

Sewanee Basketball Off to a Great Start

For the first time since the 1996–97 season, the Sewanee men's basketball team has started its conference season with a perfect 4-0 start. The Tigers are now 4-0 in Southern Athletic Association (SAA) play with a convincing 77-52 victory over rival Centre College at home on Jan. 16.

The 1996–97 team finished 19-7 overall and 11-3 in conference play.

This season Sewanee is now 11-4 overall after remaining perfect in SAA play. The win over Centre is the first time since the 1997–98 season that the Tigers have swept Centre twice in a season. The visiting Colonels fell to 10-5 overall and 2-2 in SAA play.

Sewanee wasted little time building its lead in the game on Jan. 16. After Centre took an early 6-2 advantage, the Tigers answered back with a 13-3 run over the next seven minutes.

Eventually, the Tigers took a 12 advantage, when Sewanee closed the first half on an 11-5 spurt. A big reason for the Tigers' early success was a combination of great outside shooting and strong defense. The Tigers made six threes in the first half on just 13 attempts. Defensively, Sewanee limited Centre to a 34.8 field goal percentage and six turnovers in the first half.

After the intermission, Sewanee kept rolling. The Tigers outscored Centre 44-31 in the final 20 minutes, which allowed Sewanee to build its largest lead of the game, 27 points, when freshman Chris Kuelling hit a corner three.

Overall, Sewanee made an impressive 49.0 percent of its shots. The Tigers also outrebounded Centre, 31-27.

Individually, Sewanee's balanced offense was led by junior Brody Stone and senior Seth Brown. Both players finished with 12 points. They were joined by freshman Cody Jones and junior Clay Born, each with nine points. As a team, 11 of the Tigers' 14 players recorded at least two points.

Anima Baroque at SAS

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School will host Anima Baroque Music Ensemble at 7 p.m., Friday, Jan. 29, in McCrory Hall for the Performing Arts on the SAS campus. The concert is free and open to the public. Anima will present "Postcards from Orpheus."

This is an unusual opportunity to see Anima Baroque perform in this region, as most of their concerts take place in New York City. The musicians specialize in music for small ensemble and voice from the baroque and late Renaissance era, played on period instruments.

The group features soprano Beth Anne Hatton, baroque violinist Vita Wallace, viola da gamba and lironi player Motomi Igarashi and baroque harpist Christa Patton. Anima's performances are fresh, sincere, joyous and powerful, and connect today's listeners with the music of 400 years ago.

Lecture on Rebranding by Alumna on Wednesday

Martha (Marty) Boal Willis, C'82, the chief marketing officer for Oppenheimer Funds, will present a lecture on "Going Against the Herd: How We Defied Conventions by Defining Our Brand," at 4:30 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 27, in Gailor Auditorium. A reception will follow the talk. Willis is the Babson Center for Global Commerce's Graham Executive-in-Residence for the 2016 Easter semester.

Willis' talk will focus on her firm's 2015 launch of a major rebranding effort that urges investors to focus on long-term optimism other than short-term market negativity. The campaign, called "Invest in a Beautiful World," stresses the value of long-term global investment.

Willis has a long history of support for the University, including a six-year term on the board of regents, serving as chair from 2009 to 2011. She also chaired the University's investment committee from 2004 to 2009. Willis and her husband, Bill, are the parents of three children; one, Caroline Willis, also attended Sewanee and graduated in 2011. The Graham Executive Residencies are made possible by a generous gift from Diane and the late Henry H. Graham Jr. For more information go to <www.sewanee.edu>.

STEM Names Lamborn as New Vicar

The Southeast Tennessee Episcopal Ministry (STEM) recently announced that the Rev. Amy Bentley Lamborn has accepted the call to be vicar of STEM. She began her work on Jan. 1. STEM was founded in 2002 and now includes Epiphany, Sherwood; Christ Church, Alto; Holy Comforter, Monteagle; Christ Church, Tracy City; and Trinity, Winchester.

Amy Lamborn

A 1996 graduate of the School of Theology at Sewanee, Lamborn returned to Sewanee when her husband, Rob, accepted the call to be rector at Otey Parish. She earned her bachelor's degree in English literature from Union University; she earned her Ph.D. in psychiatry and religion at the Union Theological Seminary in 2009. The Lamborns have a 12 year-old daughter, Caroline, who is a seventh-grader at St. Andrew's-Sewanee.

"I am so excited about serving as vicar of STEM," Lamborn said. "The people in each of the individual churches are committed to their communities of faith. They are resilient folks, and so many of them are eager to deepen the life of faith and spiritual practice."

"Together, the STEM churches are poised to work collaboratively and to join in creative ways with other Episcopal institutions and ministries around the Cumberland Plateau. I look forward to discerning with them the ways we are called to be God's people in this place and time." For more information or to contact Lamborn, email <stemvicar@gmail.com>.

Health Insurance Enrollment Deadline Nears

Sunday, Jan. 31 is the final deadline for Tennesseans to enroll in coverage through the Health Insurance Marketplace during the third Affordable Care Act open enrollment period. With just nine days left, the clock is ticking, and Tennesseans should act now to make sure they have time to shop around, consider their options and enroll in the plan that best fits their needs and budget.

"So far, nearly 233,000 Tennesseans have enrolled in coverage during this open enrollment period—but there are still many who stand to benefit and need to take action before January 31," said Enroll America Tennessee State Director Jacob Flowers. "Last year we saw an unprecedented surge of interest leading up to the final deadline, and we expect to see the same this year as we approach the end of the month. That's why we are encouraging people to start the process now to make sure there's plenty of time for them to find the best plan for their family."

During this open enrollment period, there are new plans and new prices available on the Health Insurance Marketplace, so all Tennesseans should explore the options available to them. All Marketplace health plans are required to cover the basics—from preventive care, emergency services, prescriptions and more. And quality protection comes at an affordable price for most Tennesseans, thanks to the financial assistance available to lower the cost of plans. In fact, 84% of the more than 233,000 in Tennessee who have signed up so far are receiving financial help.

In order to help Tennesseans explore their options, there are a variety of resources available so that consumers can be confident that they are choosing the best plan for them. For instance, there is free, local in-person help available across the state. To find a certified assistant who can sit down one-on-one and answer questions about coverage and benefits, go to <www.GetCoveredTenn.org> or call (844) 644-5443 to schedule an appointment at a convenient time and location.

Get Covered America also has a free, easy-to-use digital tool called the Get Covered Plan Explorer, which

MOUNTAIN TOP WRESTLING To the Editor:

The 35th annual St. Andrew's-Sewanee Mountain Top Wrestling Invitational Tournament was held on Jan. 16 with 15 D-I and D-II wrestling teams attending. A special girls-only wrestling division was added; seven schools participated, with several state champions going head-to-head. A packed gym kept the many volunteers busy from sun-up till sunset. My special thanks goes to these organizers: Brian Masters, tournament director; Harrison Camp, floor director; Ty Burnette, computer programming, brackets and results; Kathy Lindlau and Beth Wiley, hospitality room; Stephanie Layne, bookkeeping; Margot Burns and St. Andrews-Sewanee School, hosts.

This could not happen without the leadership taken in all these areas with countless volunteered hours. Many thanks.

Dan Barry, Sewanee ■

A DIFFERENT OPINION To the Editor:

Faye Walter is wrong in her claim [Letter to the Editor, Jan. 15, 2016, issue of the Messenger] that Citizens United allows unlimited donations to candidates, just as Barack Obama was in error claiming in his 2010 State of the Union Address that the ruling allowed foreign contributions (shake your head no, Justice Alito!).

This ruling concerns messaging by outside parties for or against candidates and is a function of the First Amendment. She failed to mention unions in her list of power-players influencing elections. Public and private unions have donated hundreds of millions of dollars in just the last 15 years, overwhelmingly to Democrats.

Her observation: "Supreme Court's Republican-majority" is a canard. Just look at the Obergefell (gay marriage) ruling that spurred the president to illuminate the White House with rainbow colors.

People without voter IDs have all year to acquire the free identification available from their state. To allow someone to vote without proof of citizenship is foolish, unless you feel it will influence the election in favor of your party.

I prefer no party affiliation on ballots. If a citizen is not familiar with the candidates or issues, perhaps they don't need to vote. No indication of (D) for Democrat or (R) for Republican would also decrease the desire to bus people to the polls in expectation of a party receiving their votes.

These views do not reflect those of my family members living outside of Franklin County.

Online Survey Seeks Opinions on Sewanee Water

As part of the ongoing constructed wetlands research collaborative between the University of the South, the University of Georgia and Sewanee Utility District, Sewanee residents are invited to take an online survey about water awareness.

The survey has a new, shortened URL: <www.tinyurl.com/z3dpllw> and will be open until Monday, Jan. 25.

The intent of this survey, according to Sewanee biologist Deborah McGrath, is to help the collaborators better understand what the community knows about water issues, and how they can do a better job of communicating and involving the public in local water issues. The constructed wetland research is aimed at understanding the effectiveness of wetland processes in removing contaminants, such as pharmaceuticals.

As part of the research project, McGrath said that the project will have focus groups with citizens sometime during the spring.

Native Peoples & the Church Lectures

The Rev. Rachel Taber-Hamilton, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church in Everett, Wa., will present two lectures about Native peoples and the Episcopal church: 7 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 27, and 1 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 28; both will take place in Hamilton Hall's Hargrove Auditorium.

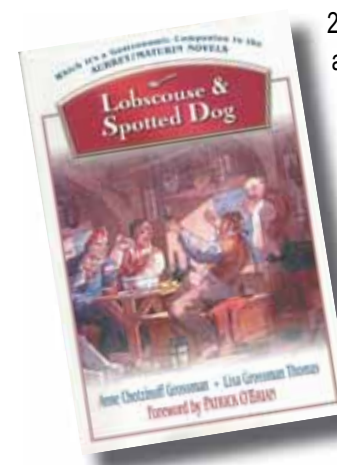

The first lecture will be "An Overview of the History of Native Mission and Relationship of the Episcopal Church in the United States." This presentation will span from the Jamestown settlement to the role, relationship and voice of Native people in the church today.

The second lecture will be on "Cultural Appropriation and the Problem of Romantic Idealization of Native Americans." Since its inception, the United States has had a confused ideological relationship with Native peoples, having decimated Native cultures through war, land appropriation and enforced cultural assimilation.

Being raised in a multicultural and mixed-race heritage of First Nations (Shackan, British Columbia), Pennsylvania Dutch, and Scots-Irish, Taber-Hamilton has had a lifelong passion for cross-cultural communication, preservation of traditional life ways and folk traditions, social diversity and ethnic ministries.

Ordained a priest in 2004, she has served throughout her tenure in the Diocese of Olympia on various councils and committees of the church, including Diocesan Council, the Anti-Racism Committee, the First Nations Committee and Multi-Cultural Ministries. She served for five years on the national Episcopal Church's Executive Council for Indigenous Ministries and recently completed terms as the chair of the standing committee in the Diocese of Olympia and president of the board of directors for Mission to Seafarers in Seattle.

McCardell to Preach at Otey on Jan. 31

On Sunday, Jan. 31, University Vice-Chancellor John McCardell will offer the sermon at both the 8:50 a.m. and 11 a.m. services at Otey Memorial Parish in Sewanee. Jan. 31 has been designated Bishop Otey Sunday, an annual observance at Otey Parish marking the birthday of Bishop Hervey Otey, who served as the first bishop of Tennessee and who was one of the original founders of the University.

The Bishop Otey Society promotes philanthropic support for the parish through planned gifts and bequests. Members of the society are those who have provided for the future of Otey Parish by leaving a legacy gift to the church in their wills or other planned giving or testamentary instruments. For more information contact Rob Lamborn at Otey Parish.

SAS Assistant Chaplain Molly Short to be Ordained

The Ordination of the Rev. Molly McGee Short to the Sacred Order of Priests will be at 11:30 a.m., Saturday, Jan. 23, in St. Andrew's Chapel. A reception will follow the service in the Spencer Room. The public is invited to attend.

"To be ordained in St. Andrew's Chapel is much more than a moment of vocational fulfillment for me," said the Rev. Molly Short. "Of course it will be the culmination of a long process of preparation for the ministry, with many internships, papers, tests, interviews and sermons. However, the real high point for me is the privilege of being ordained in the presence of the St. Andrew's-Sewanee community.

"Not all ordinations happen this way, and not all priests have the joy of experiencing this crucial moment in the presence of God and the people to whom they dedicate their lives. Many students, faculty and staff are working overtime to pull this celebration together, bringing gifts and talents to help make this service beautiful. And for that, I am overwhelmed with gratitude," she said.

"Ordinations almost always take place in churches, so this is a rare opportunity for St. Andrew's-Sewanee," said the Rev. Drew Bunting, SAS chaplain. "Mother Short is being ordained not only as our priest, but also as a priest for the entire Church around the world. When we present her to Bishop Alexander, we will testify that God has called her to serve all people and given her the gifts to do so. We will do so with confidence, having seen those gifts in action."

Short will celebrate her first Eucharist and preside over the baptism of her nephew at 9:30 a.m., Sunday, Jan. 24, in St. Andrew's Chapel. She teaches life issues and introduction to religious studies at SAS and is the assistant chaplain. She was ordained a deacon in the Episcopal Church last summer in North Carolina. She and her husband, Michael, live on the SAS campus, where he teaches humanities, English and outdoor adventure.

helps consumers navigate the plans available to them and estimate their total health care costs for the year, so they can pick the plan that best fits their needs and budget.

Those who don't have health insurance in 2016 may face a fine of $695 or 2.5 percent of their income (whichever is greater). And that is on top of having to pay out-of-pocket for routine medical care and unexpected emergencies. Tennesseans shouldn't delay and risk paying the fine and high medical bills, when they can have quality, affordable health insurance that will cover the essentials and protect them from the unexpected.

Enroll America is the nation's leading health care enrollment coalition. An independent nonprofit, nonpartisan organization, Enroll America works with more than 6,700 partners in all 50 states to create cutting-edge tools, analyze data, inform policy and share best practices in service of its mission: maximizing the number of Americans who enroll in and retain health coverage under the Affordable Care Act.

The Get Covered America campaign was created in 2013 to inform millions of eligible consumers about their new health insurance options, and has been tested, refined and proven successful through two enrollment cycles. Get Covered America programs and tools are now being utilized by partners in enrollment efforts nationwide, supported by more than 100 Enroll America staff working nationally and on-the-ground in targeted communities across the country.

University students and community members, have received IRS-approved training and will help taxpayers fill out their returns via computer and file them electronically with the IRS. With electronic filing, tax refunds can be processed more rapidly, and refunds can be deposited electronically into taxpayers' bank accounts.

The IRS anticipates that about 70 percent of taxpayers will be eligible for tax refunds this year. In 2015, the national average refund was $2,797. Last year, more than 85 people took advantage of the VITA service locally, and they collected refunds of more than $20,000. The volunteers are trained to ensure that filers get benefits to which they are entitled, including Earned Income Tax Credits.

People wanting to take advantage of this free service should bring with them the following items:

- Proof of identification (photo ID) for each filer.
- Social Security Cards (if return is filed jointly, all cards must be available, and both individuals must be present to sign the return).
- Filers without Social Security cards must bring an IRS Individual Taxpayer Identification Number (ITIN) assignment letter.
- Wage and earning statements (W-2, 1099, etc.).
- Dividend and interest statements.
- Birth dates of the filer(s), spouse and dependents.
- Banking account and routing numbers for direct deposit, which can be found on a blank check.

This service is completely free of any expense to the taxpayer. In 2015, the local VITA program was selected for a random site audit, and the program received a perfect score from the IRS. For more information about the schedule or other questions, contact the program director, Ben Carstarphen, via email, <carstjb0@sewanee.edu>, or by phone, (704) 675-1025.

Funding for the VITA program is provided by the University's Canale Endowment.

A Column for Young Adult Readers and Adults Who Appreciate The Genre

by Margaret Stephens

For the Winter Weary

Back in the day, I used to hurry to the mailbox hoping for real letters from real friends. Now, I keep an eager ear out for my phone and those virtual contacts. Can you imagine waiting half-a-year for a letter? Can you imagine being a teenager and waiting that long? A year ago, I said I'd be writing about "heritage" books, fiction that for one reason or another may have slipped below the popular radar. To round out the year, then, one more.

Do you know "Mrs. Mike?" Written in 1947 by Benedict and Nancy Freeman, it's the true-life story of a 16-year-old sent from Boston to Calgary in the early 1900s to recover from pleurisy. Not exactly where I'd send a sick child, but oh, well. Kathy Mary O'Fallon promptly marries Mike Flannigan, a sergeant in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and then travels with him even further north, to the upper wilds of British Columbia and Alberta, where he is policeman, doctor, lawyer, firefighter, adviser and anything else necessary. These outposts are so remote that the initial journey takes several months by dogsled, and Mrs. Mike is generally the only "white" woman for hundreds of miles.

But Mrs. Mike is one feisty and determined young woman. Though no older than our daughters when they're exchanging learner's permits for licenses (our modern-day moment of independence), Mrs. Mike decides early on that the weather, the wolves and the wilderness aren't going anywhere, and if she wants this marriage to work, she's the one who will have to change.

Give Sergeant Flannigan his due, he does everything in his power to make her life a little easier. He's also one charming guy, with "eyes so blue you could swim in them" and that distinctive Dudley Do-right red serge coat. But it's the teen-wife's courage that stands out for me: Once she makes up her mind, she endures blizzard, forest fire, illness and the twice-a-year mail delivery with a fortitude that reminds me of Laura Ingalls Wilder in "The Long Winter," though with more sense of humor.

This is no marshmallowing-over of events. People die by cold, grizzly attack, fire, bear trap, disease, murder. A couple of women can't handle the wilderness and return home, broken in spirit and mind. But not Mrs. Mike. She takes it all in stride, from the impromptu "tea party" she gives when her first home is overrun with curious Indians, to hitting the trail once again when heavily pregnant.

The book, considered by some to be a Young Adult classic, was made into a film and inspired two sequels. The New York Times pointed out that its persevering heroine and her Mountie "captivated a war-weary world." Perhaps it will relieve your winter-weary spirits? I'm still not sure how I missed this book. It was only by the grace of a kindly Chattanooga librarian who was giving it away that I stumbled on it at all. But you can find it a lot easier: just head for duPont Library. And be thankful that you don't have to get there by dogsled.

What book is your winter warmer? Let me know by email to <mgtstep@mgmail.com>. As always, I blog at <www.my2ndfreshmanyear.wordpress.com>.

Farmers planning to sell products at farmers' markets can learn simple marketing methods that can make them money at Farmers' Market Boot Camps in 2016. Topics to be addressed will include basics of marketing by social media and email, sources of grants and micro-loans, record-keeping for good business management, requirements for basic types of foods that may be manufactured and sold at farmers markets and an overview of new food safety regulations.

"The focus of this year's farmers' market boot camps is learning marketing methods to increase sales or decrease costs, finding sources of money and knowing whether you're making money," says Hal Pepper of the UT Center for Profitable Agriculture. "We will also discuss the regulations that apply when making a food product to sell at a farmers' market and how to determine whether the new federal food safety regulations for produce growers and food manufacturers apply to your operation."

These workshops are open to all farmers and will be taught by University of Tennessee Extension specialists Faith Critzer, Megan Leffew and Hal Pepper.

To attend a workshop, preregister online at <<https://tiny.utk.edu/FMBOOT2016>>.

THE INSATIABLE CRITIC

by Elizabeth Ellis

Every good critic needs a good rating system, and there's nothing on the planet more critical than cats, so one feature each week is rated from one to five Tobys. The more Tobys there are, the better it is!

Sir Toby

The Peanuts Movie

7:30 p.m. • Friday and Saturday, Jan. 22–23

2:00 p.m. • Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 23–24

2015 • Rated G • 88 minutes

Charlie Brown and crew get an animation upgrade in the first big-screen adventure of the lovable characters from the imagination of Charles "Sparky" Schulz. And they've never looked so good! Melding the classic hand-drawn style of the characters with their toothy grins and shaky smiles with vivid colors and textures, the characters gain added dimension without losing their souls. Nominated for a Golden Globe for Best Animated Motion Picture, Snoopy is as fluffy as we've ever seen him, and Lucy's black bob gets a sheen that would make L'Oreal jealous. The story line follows two intertwined tales of Snoopy hitting the skies to take on his nemesis, with his best friend Charlie Brown looking for a second chance by winning back his great love. Rated G, this family-friendly feature, while a little thin on plot, remains an inspiration for the "underdog" in all of us.

La Haine

7:30 p.m. • Wednesday, Jan. 27

1995 • Unrated • 98 minutes

This French black-and-white suspense drama focuses on the stark lives of three young men—one Jewish, one Arab and one black—living in a suburban ghetto in the 24 hours after a violent outbreak, when the diverse population clashes with a racist police force. Vinz, the Jewish man, vows to take revenge if his Arab friend dies from the beating he received. It is a tour de force that raises important questions about race relations locally and internationally, and is best suited for older teens and adults. Parents of younger children should use caution due to the harsh content of this film. French with subtitles.

Bridge of Spies

7:30 p.m. • Thursday–Sunday, Jan. 28–31

2015 • Rated PG-13 • 142 minutes

Based on true events, this latest Steven Spielberg hit (nominated for Best Picture this year) takes us right into the heart of the Cold War. Tom Hanks plays lawyer James B. Donovan, who in 1957 finds himself in the unenviable position of defending an accused Soviet spy, Rudolf Abel, whom many in the country believe should be executed without a trial. When Abel is convicted, Donovan convinces the judge to keep him as a prisoner, in case they need to use him as leverage when negotiating with the Soviets. A complicated game of cat-and-mouse ensues, when the CIA notifies Donovan three years later that a U.S. spy pilot has been arrested by the Soviets, and Abel may be their pawn to get their man back. Rated PG-13 for violence and brief strong language.

SAS Gallery Presents Exhibit by Elizabeth Core

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee Gallery is pleased to welcome the work of Elizabeth Core from Jan. 27 through March 3.

A gallery reception celebrating her exhibition will be held from 5 to 7 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 4, in the St. Andrew's-Sewanee Gallery, located in the center hall of the Simmonds Building.

Core spent her formative years in Sewanee and graduated from St. Andrew's-Sewanee in 1984. She received her B.A. in studio art and M.A. in English writing from Hollins College. She earned her M.F.A. from University of North Carolina-Greensboro. Core's work is in numerous corporate, nonprofit and private collections.

"My paintings are first and foremost about color and its ability to create an essence of spirituality," Core said. "I layer color in a variety of shapes, marks and textures to create rhythm, harmony and movement. The resulting abstract landscapes are vibrant, yet organic and mystical images. Each evokes an essence of my own spirituality and my belief that color can create supernatural sensations. To see more of her work, go online to <elizabethcore.com>.

Core will offer a community workshop, 9 a.m.–4 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 27, at the SAS Gallery. During this mixed media class, participants will use pastels, paints and fibers (both from nature and man-made) to create texture on canvas. Participants should bring a small paper or fabric item to incorporate into their piece. The price of the workshop is $35 and includes lunch.

Gallery hours are 9 a.m.–3 p.m., Monday through Friday, and by appointment. For more information or to register for the workshop contact SAS Gallery Director Molly Schaefer at (931) 598-5651, extension 3151, or email <sasgallery@sasweb.org>.

Mountain Lion Swimmers Qualify for Regional Meet

On Jan. 12 the St. Andrew's-Sewanee School swimmers competed against swimmers from Fayetteville, Lincoln County, Grundy County, Webb School, Warren County and Tullahoma swim programs. Both the men's team and the combined teams finished second to Tullahoma, defeating all other teams.

Sam Smith continued the strong performance he has displayed all season, with a first-place finish in the 200-yard individual medley and a second-place finish in the 100-yard breaststroke. Senior Joshua Alvarez took second place in the 100-yard freestyle (1:00.38 sec), sophomore Catherine Gray took second in the 200-yard individual medley, and junior Lilly Zhen took second in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Time drops of note were achieved by seventh-grader Michael Vaughn and sophomore Fiona Qian.

The Mountain Lion swim team took to the pool again on Jan. 14, when they hosted swimmers from Franklin County High School and a combined Franklin County middle school swim team. The SAS varsity men's team was narrowly defeated by a one-point margin, while the SAS middle school men's team lost to the Franklin County middle school team by six points.

The University has begun the final stage of the Sewanee Inn and golf course project. Ground has been broken for the golf clubhouse (above), and construction is expected to be completed by July, weather permitting. Clubhouse plans call for retail space, a snack bar, and indoor and outdoor dining areas. Funded completely by gifts made for the project, the clubhouse will be located behind the ninth green, adjacent to the practice range. The clubhouse architect is Street Dixon Rick of Nashville.

Three seniors were honored at the meet: Joshua Alvarez of Sewanee, a day student from Sewanee and seven-year member of the swim team; Andreas Forsyth of Germany, who competed in his first and only SAS meet; and Jerry Jin of China, a first-year swimmer. Jin finished the season with an incredible 25.13-second time drop on the 100-yard breaststroke.

The SAS middle school men's team continued to improve in the 200-yard freestyle relay, and eighth-grader Aidan Smith took first place in the 100-yard butterfly.

Varsity swimmers Joshua Alvarez, Catherine Gray, Jack Haight and Sam Smith travel to Nashville on Jan. 29 for the high school regional meet and the chance to qualify for the state championship. Middle school swimmers travel to Nashville to compete in the championship meet on Jan. 30.

Frazier & Knoll Lead Mountain Aquatic Swimmers

On Saturday, January 9, 11 swimmers from the Mountain Aquatic Club (MAC) travelled to Tullahoma to compete in the Tullahoma Swim Club's annual Karen Hamilton Memorial Swim Meet. MAC swimmers competing in the meet included Jackson Frazier, Sam Frazier, Konrad Knoll, Caroline Neubauer, Libby Neubauer, Maya Mauzy, Edie Paterson, McKee Paterson, Sarah Russell Robertson and Anara Summers.

Jackson Frazier was a top qualifier in all personal events, with two first-place finishes in the 100-yard individual medley and 50-yard breaststroke, a second-place finish in the 50-yard butterfly, and a third-place finish in 100-yard freestyle. All times were new personal bests for Frazier. Frazier's 50-yard breaststroke time was fast enough to qualify for the USA Swimming Age Group Sectionals in Atlanta in March.

Other swimmers finishing in the top three include Maya Mauzy with third-place finishes in the women's 8 and under 25-yard backstroke and 25-yard breaststroke, and Edie Paterson with a third-place finish in the women's 10 and under 50-yard freestyle. All swimmers dropped time in almost all events, including significant time drops by Libby Neubauer, Caroline Neubauer, Anara Summers, Sam Frazier and Konrad Knoll.

On Jan. 16-17, Zolon Knoll competed in the Augusta/Aiken Swim League's Annual Winter Invitational. Knoll steadily dropped time during the meet, earning personal bests in all events, finishing second in the 50-yard breaststroke, third in the 50-yard butterfly, fourth in both the 100-yard breaststroke and 50-yard freestyle, and seventh in the 100-yard freestyle. Knoll also competed in the age 13-14 men's 200-yard breaststroke for the first time, finishing 24th.

Knoll qualified for the USA Swimming Southeastern Short-Course Championships in the 50-yard freestyle, 100-yard freestyle, 50-yard breaststroke and 100-yard breaststroke, and will compete in Alabama Feb. 19-21. Knoll's 50 breaststroke time was also fast enough to qualify for the USA Swimming Age Group Sectionals in March.

Mountain Aquatic Club is owned and coached by Nicole Noffsinger-Frazier; she is assisted by Jeff Frazier, Mary Cash and Nan Long. The club is an official USA Swimming club that practices at the University of the South natatorium from August through April. Interested swimmers should be able to swim a length of the pool in a minimum of two strokes. For more information contact Noffsinger-Frazier at <nanoffsinger@sewanee.edu>.

OVERTIME

by John Shackelford

My father was a decidedly non-violent man, yet as a coach, I work daily in a situation that is naturally combative with those on the other side. As a lawyer he saw more than his fair share of acrimonious disputes, some that ended in harmful violence. He always preached to me that it took a stronger man to walk away from a situation than to succumb to a violent solution.

As a 12-year-old, I was friends with several other boys who all sat in the back of the school bus together. There was another group of boys that, as a punishment for their previous misbehavior, had been assigned to the first two rows of the bus, up next to the driver. As young boys do, words were exchanged. The moderate amount of testosterone that was just beginning to enter our system led us into a contest of one-upmanship. One morning as we exited the bus, our rival group waited just outside the door. A larger boy stepped forward and gave me a few pushes, trying to pick a fight. I'd be lying if I didn't admit to being a little scared and unsure of what to do next. I recall making a feeble excuse about waiting until after school, and I turned to go into the building. He jumped on my back, sending me facedown into the sidewalk. A cheering crowd gathered around us, and he was on my back punching away, as I lay there with a bloody nose.

At some point the principal pulled him off of me and held his flailing arms back, allowing me the chance to stand. I stood there with a decision to make. My father had taught me about Martin Luther King Jr. and Gandhi, and I remembered his advice about having the strength to walk away. The boy was held firmly in the grasp of an authoritative adult. I couldn't just stand there and chicken out of a good fight. What should I do? With my friends all watching and awaiting my response, I reached back and punched him as hard as I could, square in the nose, to even the score.

We both received in-school suspension that day and were assigned several chores together to work off our preadolescent anger. As we cleaned toilets in unison, we found some mutual respect and common ground. After a few hours of hauling trash to the dumpster, we were laughing at our shared situation. It was pretty clear that hitting back, especially someone who was defenseless, was a poor decision.

As our world today becomes increasingly violent, I cannot help but think of those words my father tried to teach me about the strength required to walk away. His good advice was to look for higher ground when trying to solve problems. When I see senseless acts of terrorism, mass shootings or misunderstandings caused by poor communication or needless prejudice that end in more violence, my natural instinct is to strike back, to throw a strong punch with everyone watching. Bombing a country into submission clearly doesn't quell the hate that seems to grow exponentially with the more people we kill. Continuing a path of allowing guns to be prevalent in our society doesn't seem to increase our defenses. Fear and paranoia don't always lead to improved vigilance, but instead can turn into unneeded aggression when there is no trust.

There is not a clear answer when trying to solve so much irrational hate that has an undetermined source. How can we stop gun violence when the patterns are so unpredictable? We must act on how to limit gun use in this country and consider our role in supplying weapons to the world. Do our fears of the unknown and our distrust of those whose culture is so unlike our own protect us? Or does it simply foster the cycle of violence? When I read about a university president at a leading Christian college advocating that all of his students arm themselves to better prepare to defend a college campus, I am left shaking my head. I am no biblical scholar, but I am pretty sure that "Thou shalt not kill" was one of the big ones.

Perhaps we could assign those who believe that violence is the only answer an afternoon of scrubbing toilets together and emptying the trash cans of the world. As a 9-year-old I had a collection of plastic and wooden guns to play soldier, or cowboys and Indians with my friends. Today I just want peace on earth. No matter how you feel about the best way to reach that goal, we can all agree that learning to turn the other cheek may give us a moment of reflection and a chance to share some more useful chores.

Florida Adventures

While in Florida Yolande and Robin Gottfried spent some time in the Apalachicola area on the Gulf coast of the Florida panhandle on St. George Island.

"St. George Island State Park is noted as a prime birding area and we had hopes, but all we saw were mockingbirds, cardinals, red-bellied woodpeckers and towhees. Of course, winter on a cold day may not have been the best time for birds.

"What we did see of interest were slash pines that had been turpentine and still showed the "cat-face" scars. These are visible in the photos above, along with nails where the bucket was hung and metal "troughs" to guide the sap into the buckets.

"These incisions were made in the winter. In the hot clear weather of summer the sap would flow rapidly into the bucket, to be later distilled to produce gum spirits or oil of turpentine. This activity took place in the early and mid-1900s, and the trees with their scars are still there.

"In addition to the slash pine forests, another ecosystem on the island is remnant coastal scrub, which has fragrant Florida rosemary (photo at right) or sand heath as a characteristic shrub. It is nothing like the rosemary herb and is more closely related to plants in the heath family. It certainly looked unique to me, with bright yellow fruits along the stems and short, needle-like, spirally arranged leaves."

Sewanee Herbarium Announces Winter Events

Herbarium Tour and Mountathon at the Sewanee Herbarium, Spencer Hall, 9:30–11:30 a.m., Saturday, Feb. 6, with Mary Priestley—This is your chance to see where and what the herbarium is and to help in the work. Learn methods that have been passed down through generations and are still used today, and take home a guide to mounting pressed plants.

Hunt for the Second Hepatica in Shakerag Hollow, 1:30 p.m., Sunday, Feb. 14, with Yolande Gottfried—The first hepatica was already spotted in December. Valentine's Day is known as Olde Groundhog Day by Appalachian traditionalists. We probably won't see a groundhog, but we may see other signs of spring such as pepper-and-salt (harbinger of spring), star chickweed, toothwort and maybe more hepatica. Meet at the Shakerag trailhead by the gates for this moderate-to-strenuous walk that may include a steep rocky section of the trail. Come prepared for muddy, wet, icy, and/or rocky conditions.

Sewanee Garden Club, at the Sewanee Herbarium, Spencer Hall, 1:30 p.m., Monday, Feb. 22, with Mary Priestley and Yolande Gottfried—The Sewanee Garden Club will have its February meeting at the Herbarium.

Early Spring Wildflowers in Shakerag Hollow, 2 p.m., Saturday, March 19—This is the last day of winter, and it's time to head out to Shakerag Hollow to see bloodroot, trout lily and Dutchman's breeches. Meet at Green's View for this moderate-to-strenuous 2-mile walk.

Nature Journaling—A nature journaling group, sponsored by the herbarium, meets 9–11 a.m., Thursday mornings, in the herbarium. An informal gathering, participants share observations and writing and sketch plants or other natural objects. Everyone is welcome.

BARDTOVERSE

by Phoebe Bates

Lord Byron, born January 22, 1788

There is a pleasure in the pathless woods,
There is a rapture on the lonely shore,
There is society, where none intrudes,
By the deep Sea, and music in its roar:
I love not Man the less, but Nature more,
From these our interviews, in which I steal
From all I may be, or have been before,
To mingle with the Universe, and feel
What I can ne'er express, yet cannot all conceal.

—From "Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, Canto IV"
by Lord Byron
