Green Commissioned as Second Lieutenant in Air Force

Zachary S. Green of Sewanee accepted a commission as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force at a recent ceremony at the Franklin County High School. Green, a 2007 FCHS graduate who had completed the school's Air Force JROTC program, was formally promoted to a second lieutenant in the Air Force on Dec. 15. The ceremony was on Jan. 6 at a school assembly.

Col. Martin Peavyhouse performed the swearing in.

Peavyhouse said Green had been a dedicated student and worked hard in high school, participating in football as well as ROTC.

In December, Green graduated from Tennessee Tech and is scheduled to become active duty in December 2012. Until then, Green has accepted a job with General Electric in Georgia.

At the ceremony, Green said his plans are to go into the intelligence career field. He thanked his family and friend Cadet Daniel Anderson for having an impact on his life and guiding him in his accomplishments.

New Fund Begins on Plateau

A "charitable fund created by the plateau community for the plateau community" is the way founders of the Community Fund of the South Cumberland Plateau (CFSCP) describe this new initiative.

According to co-chairs Scott Parrish and Howell Adams, the fund began when local citizens recognized the many needs of their communities on the South Cumberland plateau, from Beersheba Springs to Sewanee and from Pelham to Palmer.

"Our mission," said Adams, "is to encourage giving to strengthen community and improve lives in the South Cumberland Plateau area, both today and for generations to come. Every gift to the Community Fund will make a difference on the Cumberland Plateau.'

CFSCP will provide a funding mechanism for supporting community initiatives by linking projects in the area with people who have resources and are interested in the region. The CFSCP will make grants to meet immediate needs and will also create an endowment to ensure a solid future, Adams said. The CFSCP is launching a comprehensive effort to raise $250,000 in 2012, and plans to award $100,000 in local grants this fall.

The fund's steering committee includes co-chairs Parrish (of Monteagle) and Adams (Beersheba Springs), Bill Davis (Monteagle), John Greeter (Manchester), Oliver Jervis (Monteagle), Bonnie McCardell (Sewanee), Jack Murrah (Monteagle), Emily Partin (Tracy City), Leah Rhys (Monteagle), Barry Rollins (Tracy City) and Tom Watson (Sewanee). Dale Mullarkey is the fund

Steering committee members are giving informational presentations about the CFSCP to community groups.

According to McCardell, "the need for a broad-based community fund first originated at an early 'Vision' meeting, suggested by Oliver Jervis, so it was most appropriate to come back to this group and share with them the exciting progress that has been made in the last few months." Part-time Beersheba resident Joan Almon helped by assembling a group at Dutch Maid Bakery to pursue the concept.

Grants ranging from $1,000 to $15,000 will be awarded in five areas of interest: economic development (entrepreneurial incubation programs, job training and career development initiatives), basic needs (increasing access to health care, littleleague.org/assets/forms_pubs/ food, clothing and shelter and prevention programs), family, youth and elder support (nutrition programs, transportation and innovative early childhood initiatives), community and recreational improvements (farmers' markets, help with the season. In discussing whether SUD will Funding take advantage of the federal program for schools to fund converting SUD vehicles to operate on natural gas rather than gasoline, Beavers pointed out that the nearest location where SUD vehicles could refuel would be a filling station proposed for Tullahoma. Beavers said all of SUD's work trucks were in "passable" shape and estimated to be serviceable for two more years. The 2012 budget includes funds for a work truck, if needed.

Forum Affirms SES, Reviews County Budget

by K.G. Beavers, Messenger Staff Writer

Sewanee Elementary School will not be closed, according to officials who attended an open forum on Jan. 24 at SES. The meeting was an opportunity for community members and Franklin County leaders to address the education and budget issues facing the county, including evaluations, closing schools and the overall county economy.

Panel members included County Mayor Richard Stewart; Sewanee's representatives to the County Commission, Johnny Hughes and Sherwood Ebey; school board members Chris Guess, Lance Williams and Chris McDonough; and Director of Schools Rebecca Sharber. Supervisor of Elementary Education Nancy Graham and Chief Technology Supervisor Alan Clark were also in attendance.

Chris Guess, Mike Maxon and Rebecca Sharber represents 73 percent of the county's overall budget. Most of the money to fund schools comes from sales tax, Hughes reported.

"Of all county operations, education is the most important," Hughes said. "The county commission should not be looking at cutting jobs or departments. We should raise revenue in some way."

County Mayor Stewart said, "Funding education is the number one priority. The county commission opposed a wheel tax to raise revenue, which would have brought in approximately $1.4 million. The next thing we have to look at is raising property taxes," he said, noting that he expects the state appraisals for property to go down. "Our kids are worth raising taxes for," Stewart said.

'The county commission will make this work. The county is faced with The budget also includes funds for building a new jail, in addition to a new judicial center. We have schools in need of repair. No one wants to close schools to balance the budget," Stewart said. All panel members agreed that "now is the time for long-term planning."

> McDonough said there is a predictable deficit in the school board budget. This is the county's problem, not just the school board's or county commission's. The school board cannot raise money. We all should be discussing how to raise money, not the other way around."

> Chris Guess, who is the chairman of the school board agreed. "If there is not adequate funding, we have to look at the bad news. Nobody wants to see a school close, and that will not happen. We have to negotiate with our funding body to make the schools better. Children lose when others bump heads."

> 'What kind of county do we want to have? Cut bus lines? Close schools? All need to be involved in a long-term discussion," said McDonough.

> "We are stewards of our schools," said school board member Williams. "It is not in the best interest of the students to close schools."

> Hughes, who noted that he was the only alumnus of Sewanee Elementary on the panel, said "We need to be improving our schools, not making plans to close them."

GET BIG DOGS FIXED EARLY To the Editor:

Bigger is better, but bigger is worse. Is this a contradiction in terms? Not really. We're talking about big dogs.

The volunteers at Animal Alliance South Cumberland know that big dogs are just as wonderful pets as small dogs, but they're really horrible at math specifically their multiplication tables. See, a large dog, one that's more than 40 pounds, will have many more puppies than a small dog each and every time they breed. Big boy dogs father large litters, and big girl dogs give birth to large litters, no matter the size of the father. They eat more, they cost more to get life-saving puppy shots ... the list is endless. Come on! Be a responsible dog owner, not just a dog lover.

But getting your dog fixed, and fixed early in life, is not only essential to the dog's health, it's also easy and cheap. AASC has a special grant that will help the owners of large companion dogs get the necessary sterilization surgeries at a very low cost.

To find out more about this program, call (931) 235-9006 for complete details. And remember, getting a dog fixed before he or she is five months old is recommended by vets everywhere. Don't litter! Get your big dogs fixed!

ALEXANDER'S STANCE ON REDISTRICTING To the Editor:

I am sure the majority of the citizens of Franklin County are opposed to the redistricting that has just been done by the Tennessee State Legislature.

Our state representative David Alexander did not vote against the redistricting, even though he spoke out against it every chance he got to make us think he was against it. His actions $speak \,louder\,than\,\check{h}is\,words.\,He\,went\,to$ Nashville and failed to vote the wishes of the people in Franklin County. In fact, he did not vote on the issue at all.

When questioned about his decision not to vote, he said, "It would be political suicide to vote against it."

I see something wrong with this picture—when your constituents are against an issue and you have to vote the wishes of politicians in Nashville, that is a sad situation.

This is the same David Alexander, who as a candidate, ran numerous ads saying "Jobs, Jobs, Jobs." Where are the jobs?

Rep. Alexander has voted against public education and teachers at every opportunity. Next on the agenda is increasing class size and attacking the retirement system.

All is not lost. We have an election this year—the ballot box is the only way we can change the current situation. This legislature has also made it nec-

HEARING HEALTH NEWS

by Debbie Gamache. M.S. CCC-A Audiologist

ALL THE BETTER TO HEAR

According to a National Council on Aging survey of 2,300 people over the age of 50, untreated hearing loss can lead to depression, anxiety and social isolation. Hearing-impaired persons who did not use hearing aids were more likely to report worries, to have reduced social activity and to feel less secure. Benefits of using hearing aids included improved family relationships, a sense of independence, emotional stability and increased social activity. Hearing instruments do, indeed, increase the quality of life for all degrees of hearing loss, from mild to severe.

Hearing loss can impact our ability to communicate with our loved ones, to perform well in a work setting and to enjoy social activities. The first step involves scheduling a comprehensive hearing evaluation with an audiologist at THE HEARING CEN-TER LLC, located at 705B NW Atlantic St. in Tullahoma. Call our office today at 931-393-2051 or toll-free at 888-303-2051 to schedule an appointment. You can also visit our website at www.thehearingcenterllc.com.

Sewanee

A number of Sewanee residents reported prowlers and attempted break-ins during the weekend of Jan. 21–22, according to Sewanee Police Chief Robert White.

White reminded residents to keep the doors and windows of their residences locked.

"It is important that people report an event just as soon as they can after it occurs," White said.

"Reporting any mildly suspicious event will help us because it may be related to other incidents or help us prevent something else from happening," White said.

He said that community members with concerns should call 598-1111 and ask for an officer to respond.

"We are happy to come and check it out, no matter what time," White said.

Another problem facing the school system is the state-mandated teacher evaluation system. Director of Schools Sharber said that overall, she supports the evaluation system because the instructional model is sound.

"Where we have a mistake is in the ensuring that all gifts are tax-deductimplementation process," she said. "All school directors are hoping that this is a pilot program, and no decisions affecting the performance of teachers should be made." Sharber agreed that Information on how to make a gift there should be some common sense changes to the evaluation system, especially for teachers who are highly effective based on high achievement

"As with all things coming from said Sharber.

The school system is faced with tougher curriculum and new testing standards. Sharber reported that better but there is room for improvetunity to do well. The best possible growth for students is teaching to the standards and great teachers engaging "The evaluation system did not come out of nowhere. Tennessee is faced with some of the lowest test scores in the country. The state had to take some drastic measures to remedy that," said McDonough.

The federal government gave Tennessee $500 million in Race to nessee to become a laboratory. A lot was thrown at teachers at one time.

Space Heater Safety Tips

During these chilly nights, Tennessee's electric cooperatives remind folks to use space heaters carefully.

According to the National Fire Protection Association, half of all home-heating fires occur in December, January and February.

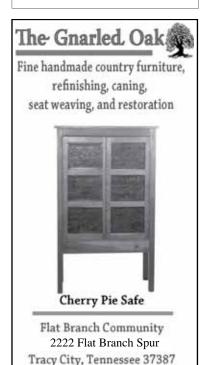

Here are a few tips for using space heaters: Be certain that space heaters at least three feet away from curtains, furniture and other household items. Select a heater that has been certified by a recognized testing group such as Underwriters Laboratories. Do not allow children or pets to play near space heaters. ATTHE MOVIES

Sewanee Union Theatre This Week

Wednesday and Friday-Sunday, Jan. 25, Jan. 27-29, at 7:30 p.m. Puss in Boots

118 minutes • PG • Admission $3

In the wonderful "Shrek" movies, the character of Puss in Boots was never central to the stories, but was always entertaining. In this animated prequel, Puss (voiced by Antonio Banderas) joins with his nursery rhyme friends, including Humpty Dumpty (Zach Galifianakis), for adventure. Salma Hayek and Amy Sedaris add to the fun. One critic said, the movie "prances along on three basic truths. One, cats are funny. Two, vain Spanish cats in high-heeled musketeer boots are even funnier. Lastly, booted, vain Spanish cats voiced by a breathy Antonio Banderas are flat-out hilarious." Rated PG for some adventure action and mild rude humor.

Sewanee Union Theatre Next Week

Wednesday and Friday-Sunday, Feb. 1, Feb. 3-4, at 7:30 p.m. Moneyball

126 minutes • PG-13 • Admission $3

Even if you don't like baseball, you should see "Moneyball," which has been nominated for six Academy Awards. This is the great story of Billy Beane, the manager of the Oakland A's baseball team and his revolutionary approach to evaluating players' skills. But this summary doesn't do the movie justice: it is really a story of relationships and nostalgia and personal passion. "Moneyball" is a well-written movie (by Steven Zaillian and Aaron Sorkin, based on the book by Michael Lewis) and expertly directed by Bennett Miller ("Capote"). Brad Pitt stars, and Jonah Hill steps out of his usual role to give a terrific performance as the statistical geek who helps Beane. Rated PG-13 for some strong language.

SES Girls' Basketball

The Sewanee Elementary School Lady Tigers played a "Thriller in Townsend" against North Lake on Jan. 19. North Lake was looking for its first win of the season and came out ready to play basketball. SES secured the lead at the half, 10-7. SES had lots of steals, some rebounds, a few assists and one blocked shot. What the Lady Tigers could not find was the inside of the net.

North Lake crept back into striking distance of a win, tying the score 12-12. A monumental defensive effort from SES led to Mariel Rinck scoring a bucket. With a foul from the SES team, North Lake went to the free-throw line, hitting the front end of a one-and-one. SES kept its cool and went on to win, 14-13.

Kate Butler scored six points. Rinck scored five and Anna Post scored three points. SES is now 4-4 on the season.

SAS Swim Team

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee men's swim team finished 13 out of 19 at the Excel High School Invitational on Jan. 14. Five boys scored a total of 54 points. The women's team placed 21 out of 25 teams with a total of 12 points. The combined team placed 16th with a total of 66 points. "We are a small team compared to many of the Nashville teams we competed against," said Coach Patti Boone. "But what our team lacks in quantity, they more than make up for in quality and determination."

When I was in elementary school, my father used to take me to watch UNC-Asheville basketball games. The university was only a mile away from my house, and we began to know the players and their opponents fairly well. One of the Bulldogs' rivals at the time was Mars Hill College, a school just 20 minutes north of town.

Mars Hill featured a player who was a fierce competitor and had previously been a local star at what was, at the time, a predominately African-American high school in Asheville. After the North Carolina schools had been integrated, this would later become the sole city high school in town and also became my alma mater. His name was Rodney Johnson, and I cheered against him because he was so determined to beat my favorite team. My best friend at the time, Jay Robinson, was a Mars Hill fan, so we spent those games having fun cheering against each other.

After Johnson, a rugged defender, graduated from Mars Hill College, he became the physical education teacher at my middle school. In seventh grade, Coach Johnson taught us basketball skills with the same passion that he played with in college, and he taught us to love the game. He explained the pick and roll, how to shoot correctly and how to box out on rebounds. For a couple of years, all of us were very lucky to have had Coach Johnson as a teacher. One day he explained to us that he was leaving to take a high school basketball job on the other side of the Tar Heel state. He had a chance to be a head coach and begin the career he always wanted. We were all his friends, and we were lucky he had taken the time to take us to basketball camps and ball games in Chapel Hill and introduce us to the legendary Dean Smith. This was the 1970s in the South, and the march toward racial equality was still in its infant stages. For many of us, having a chief role model who was African-American was a new experience, but none of us really ever gave it a second thought.

As sad as we were, Coach promised us that he would return to Asheville and coach us again one day. Â few years later, when we had grown into high school basketball players, the head coaching position at Asheville High opened up, and Coach Johnson did return as promised to help us begin an exciting time in our favorite sport. Our team was fairly mixed racially, and once again, during those years following integration when tensions sometimes ran high, none of us on the team ever gave any of it a second thought. We were all just friends and teammates no matter who lived on which side of town.

Coach made sure that players who lived in the projects were able to come to basketball camps along with the rest of us, even when they couldn't afford it. He made life fun for a great group of guys, because he cared to make our team and our athletic experience special. We grew up, moved on and were better for having known him and played for him.

One of my teammates and Coach's real protégé, Buzz Peterson, was good enough to play for Carolina and was the college roommate of Michael Jordan while at Chapel Hill. He was on the team in 1982, when they won the national championship in a memorable game behind a final shot that became the springboard of Jordan's stardom. Coach Johnson moved on to college coaching in Washington, D.C., and then finally into university administration, and guys like me gradually began to lose touch. After the death of my father last year, Coach reached out and gave me a call and gave us the chance to catch up. He told me about his successful and fulfilling career in student life at George Washington University and how he was truly happy as he neared retirement. He had a great home and family and loved both his job and his friends.

Last week a parent graciously stopped me to say thank you for coaching their child in youth basketball. I stopped and smiled, and thought, "This is nothing. Someone did give a second thought when it came to my athletic experience. All of this was once done for me and so much more."

Crocus in Bloom

Sister Anna Kathleen has spotted a blooming yellow crocus outside St. Joseph's Hall at St. Mary's Sewanee.

Great Blue Herons and Sandhill Cranes

Recently Dr. Louis Koella told Harry and Jean Yeatman of a near collision with a flying Great Blue Heron. He was driving down the highway with his daughter, Maggie, when a large Great Blue with outstretched wings was about to smash into his car's windshield. He yelled, and the bird managed to avoid the crash by rising just over the windshield. This was a real lucky break for the heron, the windshield and the Koellas.

A tall Great Blue Heron is frequently seen on the pond by the road to Cowan. Although this bird is a year-round resident in Tennessee, it is an interesting subject to watch, according to Harry. It stands almost 4 feet high and has a 6-foot wingspan when it flies. Some people think it is a crane, but that tall bird flies with an outstretched neck and makes loud calls. A heron flies with its neck drawn in and usually stands motionless at the edge of ponds trying to catch fish, frogs and even water snakes. The Yeatmans watched one swallowing a large snake by the Tennessee River in Chattanooga. This meal required about 15 minutes to accomplish. During most of the year, it is solitary, but during late spring, which is breeding season, it congregates in large colonies and many nests of sticks and twigs are built in trees near the water.

Susan Thomas took the photograph below of Sandhill Cranes congregating recently in one of the pools of the Sand Switch on the Marion/ Franklin county line.

Pets of the Week

Meet Buddy Boi and Butterscotch

The Franklin County Humane Society's Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption.

Buddy Boi is a wonderful young dog. He loves children, loves to play and also to relax. In addition to his great personality, he is so cute. Buddy Boi would love to be an indoor dog with a big yard to play in during the day. He is up-to-date on shots and neutered.

Handsome Butterscotch is a super sweet kitten who wants a lap to cuddle on and someone to pet and play with him. He purrs softly when his lovely coat is brushed. Butterscotch is negative for FeLV and FIV, house-trained, up to date on shots and neutered.

Every Friday is Black Friday at Animal Harbor! On Fridays, adoption fees will be reduced 50 percent for black or mostly black pets more than four months old who have been at Animal Harbor for more than a month. Pets adopted from Animal Harbor qualify for a free post-adoption wellness exam by local veterinarians.

Call Animal Harbor at 962-4472 for information and check out the other pets at <www.animalharbor. com>. Enter the drawing on this site for a free spay or neuter for one of your pets! Echoes of the Great Depression

No more money in the bank, No more babies left to spank; What's to do about it? Let's put out the lights and go to sleep ...

Wouldn't trade the wealth of Wall Street For a path that Nature trod; And I calculate, I'm worth my weight in goldenrod....

I got a million-dollar baby At a five and ten-cent store

They used to tell me I was building a dream, And so I followed the mob; When there was earth to plough Or guns to bear I was always there — Right on the job.

They used to tell me I was building a dream With peace and glory ahead — Why should I be standing in line Just waiting for bread?

Once I built a railroad, made it run, Made it race against time; One I built a railroad, now it's done; Brother, can you spare a dime?
