Fiery Gizzard's New Route Offers Challenge, Beauty

by Kevin Cummings, Messenger Staff Writer

The second phase of the Fiery Gizzard Trail reroute opened in December and although the new route is more challenging, there's also new beauty.

"All I've heard is people praising it," said Ranger John Ball of the South Cumberland State Park. "People are big fans of the rock work that was done; there's a lot of new rock staircases, and small retaining walls built to bolster up the trail that not only look cool but serve a great purpose—it'll help the trail last longer."

"There's also several waterfalls that the trail goes by that weren't accessible before and are really pretty," he added.

In addition to waterfalls, the reroute skirts sandstone rock faces and offers new views of overlooks and other facets of nature.

In mid-2015, the park announced that a middle section of the trail would be closed after a private property owner decided not to allow access there. Another section near Raven Point was slated to close in December 2015 for a similar reason.

Park staff and volunteers got to work creating about two miles of new trail to reroute around the private properties, which took more than a year. The work, primarily on weekends, involved dealing with an 800-foot drop into a gorge. Boy Scouts, college students, Friends of the Park, rangers, and many others cleared brush, rock and trees, prepared the ground, installed stone steps and wooden staircases, and built dams and bridges,

The Clock Master Begins Massive Cleaning of Breslin Clock

by Kevin Cummings, Messenger Staff Writer

The interview with Keith Henley starts five minutes late and it's easy to tell with the huge Seth Thomas No. 15 tower clock sitting in his dining room.

The No. 15 is a slightly smaller version of the No. 16 Seth Thomas clock in Breslin Tower on the campus of the University of the South, where Henley is "clock master," a title bestowed upon him by the University.

"I wasn't in on the naming. I like 'caretaker' a lot better," he said.

Henley started as the sole caretaker six years ago, after his mentor Paul Engsborg died. Engsborg, University registrar, was the second clock master of the Breslin Tower timepiece, which dates to 1900.

Henley, 31, takes no money for his work, even though the University does regularly cut him a check. He lets them pile up at the accounting office until someone throws them away.

American Spiritual Ensemble to Grace Sewanee

by Kevin Cummings, Messenger Staff Writer

During a five-day residency at the University of the South, the American Spiritual Ensemble (ASE) will perform three times for the public in addition to working with area students and music groups.

The Ensemble features some of the top classical singers from around the country performing Broadway numbers and spirituals with a mission of celebrating and keeping the Negro spiritual alive. Everett McCorvey, professor of voice and director of opera at the University of Kentucky, founded the Ensemble in 1995. McCorvey said every time he and the group perform, he is aware of the remembrance at the heart of the music.

McCorvey, 59, was surrounded by the Civil Rights Movement growing up in Montgomery, Ala. When he was in second grade, state troopers on horseback broke up a civil rights meeting in the church across the street from the school's playground. The troopers rode the horses into the church and started beating people with clubs. The students could hear the screaming even after teachers made them go inside and get under their desks, he said.

He also lived around the corner from Martin Luther King, Jr., when he was in Montgomery. McCorvey's dad was a deacon at First Baptist Church, where the Southern Christian Leadership Conference often met and civil rights leader Ralph Abernathy was pastor.

"Those days will stick with me my entire life," he said. "It never leaves my mind. One of the reasons I wanted to create and perpetuate this music is I feel like it is something we shouldn't forget."

Negro spirituals started as slave melodies and migrated into choral pieces, McCorvey said. Slaves passed down music orally and when the slaves were freed, the music was something they wanted to forget because it was a reminder of such a terrible time, he said. Their songs gained new life when Antonín Dvorak, a Czechoslovakian composer and director of the National Conservatory of Music in America in the late 1800s, insisted that black people be allowed to attend the conservatory and he placed a significant focus on reviving the Negro spiritual in classical music form.

McCorvey said the students at the conservatory were educated in how to write the slave music down and in the early 1900s to 1920s, choirs at black colleges performed the music around the South.

"People came and heard what happened to the slave people, this time, through music" he said. "The music teaches a history, which has great meaning and importance to the formation of the country."

Community Council Welcomes New Members; Refines Project Funding Protocol

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

At the Jan. 23 meeting, the Sewanee Community Council welcomed four new members elected in the November vote for council seats. The new members joined with the returning elected and appointed members in strategizing on implementation of the council's Project Funding program, which allocates $10,000 to be distributed at the council's discretion for community enhancement projects.

"All council seats are filled," said Provost John Swallow introducing new members Richard Barrali, Cindy Potter, Flournoy Rogers and Charles Whitmer. The election marked the beginning of a new directive real-locating council seats to include four at-large seats.

SUD Elects New Commissioner; Reviews Plans for 2017

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

The vote count at the Jan. 24 meeting of the Sewanee Utility District Board of Commissioners saw Charlie Smith elected to serve a four-year term as commissioner. During the course of the meeting SUD manager Ben Beavers reviewed plans for sewer repair, progress on the Midway pressure boosting station, and a request to supply water to Cooley's Rift. Beavers also discussed the possibility of SUD offering leak insurance.

Reporting on operations, both supply lakes were overflowing, Beavers said. The board agreed with his recommendation to "lift drought restrictions and return to normal operations."

Due to heavy rainfall, inflow and infiltration of ground water into the sewer system increased, according to Beavers, "but not nearly as much as in the past during heavy rain events. There were no overflows, and the refurbished Abbo's Alley line worked fine."

SUD completed camera inspection of the Baker's Lane sewer line. "The line is in good shape," Beavers said, "but restricted due to debris and grease. There's no value in upsizing the

by Kevin Cummings, Messenger Staff Writer

A number of people in the area and with Sewanee ties joined women's marches, which took place in U.S. cities and at least 60 countries on Jan. 21, and attended the inauguration of President Donald Trump the day before.

Sewanee resident Helen Stapleton and three generations of her husband's family marched in the Women's March on Washington, D.C., including her mother-in-law, sister-in-law, and her two daughters, Margaret, 20, and Anna, 18.

"It was one of the most powerful experiences in my life," Stapleton said. "I never really identified with feminism throughout most of my life even though I always believed in equality and was grateful to the women who came before me and gave me the rights I enjoyed. I was very smug, and thought that just because I had rights, everyone else did, too."

Stapleton credits her daughter Margaret with enlightening her to the need for feminist advocacy and how it is tied to so many issues she already deeply cares about.

"We decided to march simply

RYLA Program

Rotary Youth Leadership Awards (RYLA) is a one day intensive leadership experience organized by Rotary District 6780 for high school juniors to develop skills as a leader while having fun and making connections. Two St. Andrew's-Sewanee School juniors, Christina Wheeler, a boarding student from Haymarket, Va., and Jack Simons from Sewanee, participated in the program in September and were sponsored by the Monteagle-Sewanee Rotary Club. Jack and Chris spoke during the Club's regularly scheduled meeting on Jan. 12, describing the RYLA leadership building exercises and speakers' presentations. They both came away with a greater awareness of various leadership styles and the importance of effective teamwork.

Students from Sewanee Elementary School and St. Andrew's-Sewanee loaded food wagons, pulled the wagons to the recipients cars, and loaded the cars for Morton Memorial Food Distribution Saturday Families on Jan. 14. They helped more than 75 families who are experiencing food insecurity on the Mountain. Morton Memorial has a monthly food distribution day every second Saturday of the month beginning at 8:30 a.m. More than 12,000 pounds of food, including fresh produce, meat, dry noodles, rice, beans and fruit juices are distributed to Morton's Saturday Families. Hospitality Shop Sale

The Hospitality Shop, located at 1096 University Ave., is having a sale on women's sweaters and scarves. Buy one at regular price and get another one free. This sale will end on Tuesday, Feb. 28. Hours are Tuesday and Thursday, 9:30 a.m.–1 p.m., and Saturday, 10 a.m.–noon.

Night of Romance Benefit at St. Mary's Sewanee

The community is invited to attend A Night of Romance at St. Mary's Sewanee, 6–8 p.m., Monday, Feb. 13. An elegant evening of food, wine and music, featuring classical guitarist Jonathan Sargent, is planned.

Born in Chicago, Jonathan Sargent began his musical studies at the age of five with celebrated classical guitarist Irene Lorence. After graduating from Columbia University in New York City, he was granted a full scholarship on the classical guitar in Washington, D.C. with Sophocles Papas (Andres Segovia's emissary in the U.S.). He continued with graduate studies in musicology, theory and composition with Jose de Azpizu at the University of Geneva in Switzerland. Jonathan completed his formal guitar education with performances at the master classes of Alirio Diaz in Banff, Alberta, Canada; Angel Romero in New York City; Musica de Compostela in Santiago de Compostela, Spain (founded by Andres Segovia).

Jonathan has toured throughout Europe, South America and parts of Asia. He has composed and arranged for Warner Brothers, Sony and Word Records and served as President of Union Street Records. His CD,

"Little Cathedrals" was inspired by cathedrals around the world. It was composed, arranged and recorded in Franklin, Tenn., where Jonathan resides.

Tickets are $40 per person or $75 for a couple. To register, call (931) 598-5342, email <reservations@stmaryssewanee.org>, or go online to <www.stmaryssewanee.org>. Reservations are required. Proceeds benefit St. Mary's Sewanee.

Upcoming Events

Remembering Roe

As the anniversary of Roe v. Wade approaches, the Women's Center commemorates the historic decision that affected so many women and seeks to continue discussion around the intersectional approach to reproductive rights in order to maintain and further enshrine our rights to our bodies. Former Texas state senator and 2014 gubernatorial candidate Wendy Davis will share her experience as an advocate for choice and share her thoughts about the future. This event at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 31, in Convocation Hall, is free and open to the public.

This event is sponsored by the Women's Center, Women's and Gender Studies, the Departments of History and Politics, Sewanee Democrats, and the Dean of the College.

Reishman at ALLL

Join The Academy for Lifelong Learning (ALLL) at St. Mary's Sewanee at noon, Thursday, Feb. 9. Retired University of the South professor John Reishman will be the speaker.

Reishman's talk will cover the three Pre-Raphaelite painters who founded the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood in London, in 1838. They are Dante Gabriel Rossetti, William Holman Hunt and John Everett Millais. These painters were reacting to what they regarded as a lull in English artistic achievements, which they believed resulted from a slavish dependence on the standards of the Royal Academy and its enthusiasm for Raphael, Michelangelo, Titian and other masters of the High Renaissance. They were determined to revive English painting and to make art once again a force in British culture. It promises to be a fascinating talk.

Box lunches are available for $12 by calling Debbie at 598-5342 or email at <reservations@stmaryssewanee.org>. For more information call Deb Kandul at (931) 924-3542.

Park Manager Shin at the Sewanee Woman's Club

The February luncheon meeting for the Sewanee Woman's Club will be at noon, Monday, Feb. 13, at the DuBose Conference Center in Monteagle. The club welcomes all women from the area. Dues are $5 per year and are used to support valuable community programs and charities.

The program will be "The South Cumberland State Park as a Community Resource" by George Shinn, Park Manager, as Davy Crockett.

Join Park Manager George Shinn as he relates the life of David Crockett and the principles he lived for application in present day rural America. Wilderness and community were very important to Crockett. Manager Shinn will engage that timeless voice and share how South Cumberland State Park and everyone can embark on an adventure together to improve our park and community.

George Shinn has managed the South Cumberland State Park since 2013, after serving Fall Creek Falls State Park, Bicentennial State Park in Nashville and Savage Gulf State Natural Area. He is excited about the direction the park is taking and has established a goal of making South Cumberland the "crown jewel" of the Tennessee State Park System. George's hero is Davy Crockett, who he re-enacts, in full costume, at many South Cumberland State Park events.

Lunch ($13.75) for this meeting will be tossed salad, chicken parmesan, cheese tortellini with marinara sauce, steamed broccoli, garlic cheddar biscuits and red velvet tart. Reservations are required and are due by Friday, Feb. 3. To make a reservation call Pixie Dozier at (931) 598-5869 or email Marianna Handler at <mariannah@earthlink.net>. A vegetarian choice is offered; please request this when making a reservation.

The Sewanee Woman's Club hosts luncheon meetings on the second Monday of each month, September through May, except January. There is an optional social time at 11:30 a.m. Programs begin at 12:30 p.m. Club business matters are handled briefly at 1 p.m. Every effort is made to keep to this schedule to accommodate professional women's lunch hours. Child care is also available; please request these when making a reservation. Please bring a snack for your child.

All Saints’ Chapel

Growing in Grace, All Saints’ Chapel’s contemporary worship service, will continue Sunday night at 6:30 p.m. in All Saints’ Chapel. The speaker will be Christina Rutland, C’17.

This semester, Growing in Grace will focus on moments of our life where we have “mountaintop experiences.” The question we are asking is “How is your time on The Mountain, whether it is four years or a lifetime, influencing the message you hope to share with the world? Growing in Grace features a student-led worship team, and a different speaker every week.

The Catechumenate will continue Wednesday, Feb. 1, at 6:30 p.m. in the Women’s Center. A catered meal will be provided. Based around fellowship, study, openness, and conversation, the Catechumenate serves as a foundational piece for the Christian faith, as well as a forum for discussion for people of all backgrounds. All are welcome.

Contact University Lay Chaplain Rob McAlister <rob.mcalister@sewanee.edu> for more information.

Otey Parish

This Sunday, Jan. 29, in Christian Formation at 10 a.m., the Lectionary Class will explore Sunday’s gospel in the Claiborne House, Adult Education Room. Children ages 3–11 are invited to meet their friends for Godly Play. Middle school and high school students have Sunday School in Brooks Hall. Infants 6 weeks to children 4 years old are invited to the nursery beginning at 8:30 a.m. until after the second service. The Adult Forum will be the Bishop Otey Society, “Coffee and Comments concerning Bishop Otey and His Significance.” Special refreshments will be provided.

Widow to Widow Support Group

All Franklin County widows are invited to a Sunday afternoon support group at Trinity Episcopal Church on 1st Avenue in Winchester (across from Moore-Cortner Funeral Home), 3–4:30 p.m. The series is designed to help widows face their unique challenges and move forward in their lives as single women. The series is sponsored by the Franklin County Wings of Hope Widows Ministry. The series is appropriate to a widow at any point in her grief process and can even benefit a woman who has been a widow for decades. For more information contact Laura Ellen Truelove <laurallent@comcast.net> or by phone at (615) 881-2492.

The Role of the Church in Fostering Unity and Combating Hate

The 2016 presidential election in the United States has spurred a new commitment for many people of faith to become advocates for justice, equity and unity. The Book of Common Prayer calls people into reconciliation with God and one another, but what does that look like in the today’s church? Heidi J. Kim, the staff officer for racial reconciliation for The Episcopal Church, will give a presentation about reconciliation and discipleship, and renewing the commitment to building the Kingdom of God. The event will take place in the School’s Hargrove Auditorium in Hamilton Hall at 7 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 31. This presentation is hosted by the School of Theology. Everyone is invited to attend.

including one across McAlloyd Creek.

"It was a monumental undertaking and it couldn't have been accomplished without the help of a lot of very dedicated volunteers," Ball said.

A 300-acre wildfire in October 2016 delayed the project after a scorched part of the re-route needed repairs, park officials noted.

Latham Davis, president of Friends of South Cumberland State Park, said people who love the Fiery Gizzard met the challenge.

"Originally it seemed distressful, both because we were having to change the route of a long-loved trail that had existed for a very long time, and the fact that it was going to take a lot of effort to reconstruct part of that trail," Davis said. "But as it turned out we had a tremendous outpouring of help with that. So many more volunteers than we expected showed up and we had a great effort from the park rangers."

The almost 13-mile Fiery Gizzard Trail starts at Grundy Forest Trailhead nears Tracy City and goes to Foster Falls. Since the 1970s, park officials have overseen the trail with the cooperation of a number of private property owners, officials said. Ellen Stamler, a private property owner, provided an access road so crews could bring in materials and equipment for the reroute.

The Lyndhurst Foundation, Sequatchie Valley Electric, Tennessee Trails Association, REI Tennessee, and the Friends of South Cumberland provided funding and materials for the project.

Visit <friendsouthcumberland.org> for more information, including videos of the reroute.

McCorvey founded the American Spiritual Ensemble in the tradition of groups such as the Fisk Jubilee Singers, the Hampton Institute Choir and the Tuskegee Choir.

"I remember hearing all these great choirs with a beautiful, full sound; it was something I wanted to emulate," he said.

César Leal, associate professor of music and conductor of the Sewanee Symphony Orchestra (SSO), became familiar with McCorvey and the Spiritual Ensemble while he was a doctoral student at the University of Kentucky. The Ensemble's visit coincides with the 30th anniversary of the SSO.

"I have had a close connection with Everett and the ASE for many years and I always wanted to bring them to Sewanee," Leal said. "I wanted to go big and for the orchestra to celebrate its 30th anniversary with a world class ensemble."

One of the Spiritual Ensemble's performances will be with the SSO.

"I am so happy to see so many groups from the University and elsewhere helping to bring the ASE and celebrate the 30th anniversary of the Sewanee Symphony Orchestra," Leal said. "I am also really happy to see that, in a time of division and instability, music has the power to bring us together. That is our best birthday gift: the support of a community that understands that, now more than ever, we need more music in our lives."

The University's Performing Arts Series is sponsoring the residency and all performances are free. The event is also made possible thanks to a grant from the Tennessee Arts Commission and support from All Saints' Chapel, the Office of the Dean of Students, the School of Theology, the Office of the Dean of the College and Dr. François S. Clemmons.

Here are the American Spiritual Ensemble's public performances:

On Thursday, Feb. 9, at 11 a.m., the University will host a Community Welcome Assembly at Guerry Auditorium. The event will feature performances with Sewanee Elementary School fifth graders and St. Andrew's-Sewanee School students.

On Friday, Feb. 10, at 7:30 p.m., the Spiritual Ensemble will perform again at Guerry Auditorium, featuring Jack Jarrett's medley, "A Tribute to Gershwin," and Linda Twine's "Ellington Medley." In the second half of the show, the Sewanee Symphony Orchestra will join the Ensemble to perform selections from Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess."

In the finale on Saturday, Feb. 11, at 7:30 p.m. at All Saints' Chapel, the Ensemble will perform almost two dozen spiritual and Broadway selections.

Keith Henley surveys the Seth Thomas No. 15 clock in his dining room. The clock once graced the tower of a town in Ohio. Photo by Kevin Cummings

"It didn't seem right to take money," he said. "It's extremely fun to do and you're getting to work on a machine that nobody could just walk up to and say, 'I'm going to take this apart,' or 'I'd like to set the time on it.' It feels enough like a privilege just to be a part of the history of the clock."

Sewanee Vice-Chancellor John McCardell said Henley's work is much appreciated.

"Keith is a man who loves his work and undoubtedly knows more about the Breslin Tower mechanisms than anyone else. And what a blessing that is," McCardell said. "His painstaking care of the winders and his meticulous attention to detail means that none of us can ever offer the excuse that we did not know what time it was, or that the Breslin clock was off. So we might add the virtue of punctuality to the many other benefits we have received at Keith's hand."

Henley noted that the "Westminster Quarters," the chime of the Breslin Tower clock and many others, started as a prayer, four verses saying, "Lord through this hour, be thou our guide, so by thy power, no foot shall slide."

"That is another reason I like to show people about time," he said. "So as people pass a clock and hear it chime, remember that a clock is a reminder of the gift of time given by God himself...I say that prayer with the clock when it chimes."

During Christmas break, Henley started a project to clean every part of the clock, a process that will take years to complete, in large part because of the deep and careful cleaning involved.

He disassembled and cleaned one of the three winders in the clock, which included soaking the oil and grease-coated transmission in a solution of kerosene and Dawn dishwashing liquid to strip off the main grease, followed by washing with clock cleaner. The one winder took about two weeks.

"After you clean everything and you remove all the old grease and build-up over the years, the sad part is, once you do that, you have to start oiling it again," he said. "So now the oil you're adding today will be the oil you'll have to remove a couple of years down the road."

The project includes pictures of his work for a book on how to disassemble and clean the clock. He's also creating a ledger of the work he's doing on the clock, which will help a future clock master and also identify parts that may be wearing out.

The design of the clock is intricate, with its driving chains, weight trips, pulleys, sprockets, bell strikers, winding arbors, bushings, shafts and hundreds of other parts. But Henley notes that most of the clock is original despite its age, which is a testament to the workmanship and design from the Seth Thomas Clock Company, which its namesake started in the early 1800s. Henley hasn't had to correct the time in the Breslin Tower clock in six months, he noted.

At his home, Henley has about 20 clocks, and all but two of those are Seth Thomas clocks; the other two are antique Gustav Beckers, a German clockmaker. His house is filled with ticking, which he doesn't hear anymore, but when he shuts the clocks down, the silence is loud.

"When you become a collector of clocks, when the ticking stops, it's something else. It bothers you more than the ticking itself," he said.

A Huntsville chapter member of the National Association of Watch and Clock Collectors, Henley said he would like to travel to different cities repairing tower clocks.

For questions or to request tours of the Breslin Tower clock, email Henley at <theclock@sewanee.edu>.

In August, the council voted to continue the Project Funding program, which began in 2014 on a trial basis. The council deferred discussion on future implementation of the program until following the election.

Discussing the makeup of the selection committee which reviews projects before presenting them to the council for a vote, council representative Theresa Shackelford said, "the past committee chairs did a great job, but I think the chair should be a council member." Shackelford, who served on the committee last year, said the six-member committee was adequate. She recommended including two non-council members, as was the case last year, but proposed the council approve the non-council representatives.

Council member David Coe asked, "Would it be advantageous to have an odd number of committee members, seven for example, to serve as a tie breaker?"

"There was a good bit of debate last year," Shackelford said, agreeing with the suggestion.

Vice-Chancellor John McCardell proposed a seven-member committee with a council member serving as chair and including two non-council representatives.

The council concurred with the recommendation. Council member Pam Byerly volunteered to serve on the committee. Community members interested in serving on the committee should contact Swallow at <jrswallo@sewanee.edu>.

Reiterating the Project Funding Committee's (PFC) charge, Swallow said, "The committee's function, as last year, is to solicit proposals for civic projects that should receive funding through a portion of the municipal services fee; to evaluate those proposals; and to recommend the meritorious among those proposals to the Community Council. The PFC may, at its discretion, consider one or more rounds of proposals and recommendations during the year. An affirmative Community Council vote will be necessary to authorize funding of any project."

Bringing the counsels attention to a rumor the American Legion Hall was for sale, council representative Louise Irwin insisted this was not the case. Quoting from a letter by long-time Sewanee resident Ina May Myers, Irwin said the Legion was chartered in 1919 by returning World War I veterans. In 1949, the Legion's Ladies Auxiliary took the lead in raising funds for the construction of the current Legion Hall on University Avenue.

"I know the Sewanee Village Plan promoters want the building," Irwin said, "but we need to keep the building intact and in its present location."

While acknowledging Irwin's concern, McCardell stressed, "It's inappropriate for the council to insert itself in private real estate transactions. If something is offered for sale it can be bought. This is a private Legion matter."

Frank Gladu, special assistant to the vice-chancellor, will lead a town meeting addressing the Sewanee Village Plan at 10 a.m., Tuesday, Jan. 31, at the Blue Chair.

The next council meeting is March 27.

SCCF Elects New Officers and New Board Members

At its Jan. 23 meeting, the board of South Cumberland Community Fund (SCCF) elected new officers for the nonprofit organization and welcomed new members to its board. Marshall Graves, of Tracy City, was elected board chair and Sheri Lawrence of Nashville was elected vice chair. Jack Murrah of Monteagle will continue as SCCF's treasurer and Bonnie McCardell of Sewanee will continue as secretary. Margaret Woods of Monteagle will serve as immediate past chair.

New members joining the board are Nancy Bowden of Sewanee, Ashley Clark of Huntsville, Lecia Post of Sewanee, and Linda Roberts of Altamont. Members elected for second terms of service were Jack Murrah and Margaret Woods.

"I am really excited about this year for SCCF," said Graves. "I am proud of the work we've done in our first five years and look forward to helping community partners across the Plateau with their projects and to achieve their goals. This is our home, our Mountain and our future."

South Cumberland Community Fund works to improve the quality of life across the Plateau by increasing philanthropy and supporting leadership of the area's communities, schools and nonprofit organizations. Established in 2012, SCCF has reinvested more than $500,000 in projects that benefit the tri-county area; it will make another round of grants in 2017.

Free Income Tax Prep Available

Beginning Sunday, Jan. 29, the IRS-certified Sewanee Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) Program will begin processing and filing qualifying residents' income taxes for its 5th year in a row. This year the student leads and volunteers are working with the Babson Center for Global Commerce as well as the University of the South and South Cumberland Community Fund-sponsored South Cumberland VISTA Program.

In order to try to increase the number of returns submitted and maximize the amount of money returned to the community through free tax returns, the Sewanee VITA volunteers will move to partner sites each weekend besides the home site of Otey Parish. These partner sites include the Grundy County Detention Center, the Dutch Maid Bakery, the Franklin County Library, the Sewanee Senior Center, Sewanee's McClurg Dining Hall and Monteagle's May Justus Memorial Library.

Any resident of Franklin, Grundy, or Marion counties who makes less than $54,000 a year, is disabled, or is elderly qualifies for a free tax return.

Each resident interested in filing must bring proof of identification (a photo ID), social security cards (if filing jointly with another person then bring both social security cards and both individuals must be present), wage and earning statements (W-2, 1099, etc.), dividend and interest statements (if this applies to the resident filing), birth dates of the resident(s) and dependent(s), and banking account and routing numbers for direct deposit (found on a blank check).

If a resident filing does not have a social security card, then he/she must bring an IRS Individual Taxpayer Identification Number (ITIN) assignment letter. There are no appointments, all filing is done by walk-in.

Each site will be open from noon until 5 p.m. Please direct any questions to <economic.development.vista@gmail.com>.

line." Instead, SUD will smoke test to determine the inflow source. Beavers suspects an open pipe or manhole cover. He projects the budgeted cost of refurbishing the line will decrease by nearly half.

SUD finished 2016 with revenues a significant 10.8 percent over budget and expenses just slightly over budget due to prepaying 2017 insurance in December. "Cash on hand, $1,722,000, is 20 percent over last year," Beavers said.

The cash reserve has more than recovered the amount SUD withdrew for the 2014 meter replacement project. Beavers attributed the over-budget 2016 revenue to the large number of taps sold in 2016, 13 total for the year.

The board approved the SUD engineer's recommendation to award the contracts for the Midway pressure boosting station to the two low bidders, Walter A. Wood Supply Co. for the pump ($34,586) and G & C Supply for materials and equipment ($4,326).

"The pipe should be here next week," Beavers said. "The pump is being built. We told them we want it as soon as is humanly possible."

Beavers expressed concern about the Cooley's Rift developer's request for water service to the remainder of the residential lots in Franklin County. "The hydraulic analysis showed minimum pressure," Beavers said.

SUD engineers are reviewing the data. Beavers pointed the Midway pressure boosting station as a possible remedy for increasing the pressure. He stressed that Midway customers would not be in any way negatively impacted—"Were prevented by law from doing anything that would be detrimental to existing customers." The developer would bear all costs related to increasing the water pressure to acceptable levels.

At the March meeting, the board will hear a presentation on leak insurance from an insurance provider. If SUD decides to offer leak insurance, the adjustments policy would change slightly. "The lifetime limit on three adjustments would be lifted," Beavers explained.

The adjustment policy would continue to allow customers one adjustment per year, with the customer paying half the cost of the leaked water and SUD paying half. If SUD decides to offer leak insurance, for customers who opt in to the program, the insurance company would pay both the customers portion and SUD's portion.

The estimated cost per month to customers choosing insurance would be $1.50-$1.80, Beavers said. The insurance policy would not cover leaks in the home.

At the next meeting on Feb. 28, the board will elect officers and oversee the swearing in of new commissioner Smith.

HEARING HEALTH NEWS
 by Debbie Gamache,
 M.S. CCC-A Audiologist
HEAR AND NOW

As the hearing instrument industry enters an era of improvements inspired by advances in digital developments and wireless technologies, the hearing impaired public has more reason than ever to take advantage of devices that will help them to hear better.

For 21 million Americans, hearing the world around them is a daily challenge. Some have faced hearing loss since childhood and others have had their hearing affected by illness or prolonged exposure to noise. For many however, hearing loss is a reflection of passing time. Is your hearing less than it used to be? Debbie Gamache's The Hearing Center LLC is located at 705 NW Atlantic St. Suite B, Tullahoma and invites your call at 931-393-2051 for complete hearing services from a licensed certified audiologist. You can also visit our website at www.thehearingcenterllc.com.

because we wanted to feel counted and heard in expressing that Trump doesn't reflect our values," she said. "I take his scapegoating very seriously, and it really scares me because I'm Jewish. Today the scapegoated people are Mexicans, Muslims and the Chinese. Sixty years ago, Jews were the ones being scapegoated."

At the march, Stapleton said there were many clever signs and people taking photos of each other's signs. She also noted that the demonstration wasn't just about women's issues. The concerns cited in marches included environmental issues, LGBT rights, scientific integrity, reverence for facts and truth, civil rights, immigration rights, disability rights, a demand for health care, nationalism, and others.

"There was such a feeling of unity, love and peace," she said. "I feel forever bound to all of the men, women and children who were there. We were surrounded by oceans of people, many in pink. Lynne Vogel knitted a pink hat just for me, so I was proud to be part of that cohesive look and feel. I loved the fact that every one of those silly looking hats were hand knitted in the USA."

The crowd was massive, and Stapleton's cell phone didn't work due to the demand on cell service, she said. But, people got along well despite the tight spaces.

"Everyone was pleasant and agreeable, high fiving and smiling," she said.

Iris Rudder, who lives in Winchester and like Stapleton is a Franklin County commissioner, attended the president's inauguration. Rudder was an area coordinator for President Trump during the campaign.

"Because we had worked so hard in the campaign and for Trump and were big supporters, it was just the trip of a lifetime to actually be there and watch him be sworn in," she said. "The people impressed me. The people that were there were middle America. They were enthusiastic, they were courteous and respectful."

Her friend Joann Davis, who is also active in the local Republican Party, attended the event with her. They were able to spend time with Congressman Scott DesJarlais, and do some sight-seeing, including Arlington National Cemetery. Rudder said they had good seats for the president taking the oath of office.

"It was just a very moving experience because you have so much hope for the country and hope Trump will do the things he said he would do," she said. "That he will turn our economy around, that he will bring jobs back and that he will renegotiate trade deals. All of those things are very important to me and I hope that President Trump will turn our country around."

Stephanie Faxon of Seawanee joined the Women's March in Nashville on Jan. 21 with her two twin 18-year-old daughters, Abbie and Allie. The Faxon women were among an estimated 15,000 people that marched in Nashville.

"We marched for several reasons, the rights of the LGBTQ community, healthcare, women's and minorities' rights, and the concern for our environment," Faxon said. "My daughters are very involved in preserving civil rights. I was proud to share this day with my girls."

The Faxon women were some of the first at Cumberland Park that morning, with initially only a few hundred people there before the demonstration crowd swelled.

"It was amazing to see all the people come together with their own personal reason for marching," she said. "The speeches were powerful and the music was encouraging."

After marching from the park to the John Seigenthaler Pedestrian Bridge, Faxon said they were among people of many nationalities, ages, genders and races. They all marched together for about one mile to Public Square.

Another Seawanee resident, who asked to remain anonymous, also marched in Washington, D.C. She arrived early the morning of Jan. 21 and nabbed a prime spot close to the rally stage.

She said she was impressed with how many men were there, estimating about a third of the attendees were men. She added that the ocean of pink clothing was also inspiring.

"The multitude and variety of hats that everyone wore was a testament to American creativity, as were the signs," she said. "By far, the most amazing aspect was the positivity and willingness to help one another, and the age range of attendees. Despite the dire need many felt to march, the communal spirit of kindness was overwhelming."

There were human traffic jams at times when marches going east and west would meet up with marchers going north toward the White House, she said. A second march route was established after the original route became clogged, she said, which shifted people to Pennsylvania Avenue.

"I had no idea I would find myself in the middle of 500,000 people lending shouts, chants, raised fists and vocal roar—but once there, it felt like home," she said.

She added that she felt a responsibility to take part in the demonstration.

"I have deep concerns for the environment under the new administration as well as a fear of nuclear war, and what appears to be the normalization of bigotry, anger and hate; not to mention the apparent repeal of many civil rights," she said. "I would like to hope that we can come together as a nation under strong leadership, but after seeing the reaction from Washington the past several days, I have concerns."

She carried a Seawanee sign and many people stopped to take photos and share Seawanee stories and the occasional, "Yea, Seawanee's Right."

"The depth of love and recognition for our wee spot in the universe was powerful," she said.

O'Connor Recipient of Presidential Award

Daniel O'Connor, son of Carolyn and Richard O'Connor of Sewanee, was recently honored by President Obama as a recipient of the Presidential Early Career Awards for Scientists and Engineers (PECASE). This is the highest honor bestowed by the United States Government on science and engineering professionals in the early stages of their independent research careers.

The awards, established by President Clinton in 1996, are coordinated by the Office of Science and Technology Policy within the Executive Office of the President. Awardees are selected for their pursuit of innovative research at the frontiers of science and technology and their commitment to community service as demonstrated through scientific leadership, public education, or community outreach.

Daniel grew up in Sewanee where he attended the Sewanee Children's Center, Sewanee Elementary and St. Andrew's-Sewanee School. He received his Ph.D. in neuroscience at Princeton University and is currently an assistant professor of neuroscience at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. He also runs a lab at Johns Hopkins with research interests in the areas of neuropsychiatric illness, neural circuits, circuit dysfunction and sensory perception.

Mainzer and Willis Named to Honor Rolls

Abigail Mainzer of Monteagle has been named to the President's Honor Roll for the Fall 2016 semester at Oklahoma City University. Students must complete a minimum of 12 credit hours during a semester and maintain a GPA of 3.9 or higher to meet the President's Honor Roll requirements. She is the daughter of Robin and James Mainzer.

Casey Willis of Sewanee has earned Semester Honors for the Fall 2016 semester at Edgewood College. Full-time students who achieve a 3.5 grade point average for the semester are eligible for this honor. He is the son of Sally Krebs and Kevin Willis.

Moana

PG • 103 minutes

Walt Disney Animation Studios presents this CG-animated feature film and the ultimate girl-power story. Moana is the daughter of a chief-tain and longs to venture past the reef surrounding their island home. Such travel has been forbidden. The island and the ocean are slowly dying because a demigod, Maui, hilariously voiced by Dwayne Johnson, stole and then lost the stone heart of a goddess.

Moana knows she has to help save her people. The sea entrusts the heart to Moana, and she sets out on a daring adventure to find Maui and restore the heart to the goddess. Come for the adventure but stay for the crab Tamatoa, voiced by Jemaine Clement. The movie is rated PG for peril, some scary images and brief thematic elements.

Cinema Guild, Wednesday, Feb. 1, 7:30 p.m.

The Color Purple (1985)

PG-13 • 154 minutes

Based on the Pulitzer Prize-winning novel by Alice Walker, Whoopi Goldberg stars as Celie. Celie is a Southern black woman sold into a life of servitude to her brutal husband, sharecropper Albert (Danny Glover). Celie pours out her innermost thoughts in letters to her sister Nettie, but Albert has been hiding the letters Nettie writes back, allowing Celie to assume that Nettie is dead. Set in the early 1900s, this movie shows the problems African American women faced during the early 20th century. Nominated for 11 Academy awards, the transformation of Celie is a remarkable story to watch. This movie is best suited for adults and mature teenagers.

Thursday–Saturday, Feb. 2–4, 7:30 p.m.

Special Sunday, Feb. 5 matinee at 2 p.m.

Dr. Strange

PG • 105 minutes

Marvel Cinematic Universe brings another comic book superhero to the screen, with Benedict Cumberbatch in the title role. Dr. Strange is a brilliant but egotistical neurosurgeon. We know how the story goes: rich, successful guy with a huge character flaw suddenly transforms. When a horrific car crash renders Dr. Strange's hands useless, (don't text and drive) he searches the world to find a way to repair them. He eventually becomes a powerful sorcerer under the guidance of the Ancient One. The visual effects are stunning and it is fun to watch Dr. Strange in alternate dimensions and space. To see the warping of New York City is well-worth the price of admission. Rated PG-13 for sci-fi violence and action throughout, and an intense crash sequence, this one is best suited for older teens, and adults.

All showings are at 7:30 p.m. unless otherwise noted. Regular feature films are $3 for children/youth/students and $4 for adult non-students. Cinema Guild features (typically Wednesday) are free, as are other special showings unless noted. The SUT is located on South Carolina Ave., at the back of Thompson Union across from All Saints' Chapel.

Documenting Childhood: Jane Izard's Children of a Certain Age

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School's Gallery is honored to welcome the work of photographer Jane Izard. The exhibition draws on both Izard's portraits of children commissioned for clients such as The Nature Conservancy and Hallmark Baby and from Izard's personal work, documenting the lives of young family members and friends.

A reception celebrating the exhibition will be in the SAS Gallery 5–7 p.m., Sunday, Feb. 19. The public is invited to attend. The show is on exhibit until March 8.

As a small child in Charleston, S.C., Jane Izard was fascinated by her mother's Pentax camera and started taking her own pictures on a Fisher-Price film camera. As a teen, Izard worked as a model, but soon decided she'd rather be on the other side of the camera.

Izard studied Fine Arts at The University of the South and graduated with honors. Pursuing both personal and commercial bodies of work, Izard decided to further her technical abilities and applied to The Portfolio Center in Atlanta, GA. After graduating with a Masters degree from The Portfolio Center, Izard went on to work with commercial clients including Hallmark Cards, Hallmark Baby, Turner Broadcasting (TBS), CampMinder, Ronningen Design, Charleston Mercury, Western North Carolina Magazine, Nature Conservancy Magazine and American Camping Association Magazine and numerous children's camps.

Izard's photographs reflect her ongoing fascination and rare connection with children. She reminds us that it's ok to play. Her seemingly effortless ability to catch just the right light, the fleeting expression, the telling gesture. These create an immediacy, giving the viewer a glimpse of life as a child of a certain age.

She will offer a one-day public workshop on iPhone photography on Saturday Feb. 25, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Participants will explore the technical and creative side to smartphone photography. We will discuss photography apps, storytelling, and how to most effectively use and share your imagery. All participants must bring a mobile device with a camera such as an iPhone, Windowsphone, or Android smartphone. The fee is $30, which includes lunch. There are a limited number of fee waivers available for art educators. For workshop details and to register contact Gallery Director Julie Jones at <sasgallery@sasweb.org>.

SAS Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m.–3 p.m., and by appointment. Contact Jones at <sasgallery@sasweb.org> for more information.

“Faces and Phases” at UAG

The University Art Gallery presents the work of renowned South African artist activist Zanele Muholi in a selection of 22 photographs from her series “Faces and Phases,” a series of dignified portrait photographs of black South Africans who identify as LGBTI. Shown together, these portraits of individuals represent and build community. Muholi is a visual activist. In collaboration with her sitters, she uses photography to combat the oppression of a group whose existence had been excluded from South African history, even 10 years after Apartheid. The people represented in Muholi's portraits choose to be visible, empowered and themselves. They invite us to see and know them, and thereby resist the fear and erasure threatened by the prejudices, hate and brutal violence too often directed at them.

“Faces and Phases” ensures visibility for black queer and transgender individuals and communities. “Faces and Phases” is on view in the University Art Gallery from Feb. 3 through April 14.

Art on the Rise: Celebrating Young Artists

This spring, St. Andrew's-Sewanee School will welcome young artists and their art to campus for Art on the Rise. The celebration of young artists includes a gallery exhibition of student artwork and a day of lectures and workshops for students with professional artists and art educators.

The Art on the Rise exhibition will be March 16-April 22, in the SAS Gallery. Schools in the region are invited to submit up to 20 pieces of 2- or 3-dimensional art by eighth–12th grade artists for consideration for the show. Submissions should be made online by Feb. 21. Teachers will be informed of works chosen by March 5.

Artist and art educator Jessica Wohl will jury the exhibition and select merit awards. Wohl is an assistant professor of art at the University of the South. She received her B.F.A. from the Kansas City Art Institute, and her M.F.A. from the University of Georgia. Her work has been exhibited nationally and internationally and is collected by the Nerman Museum of Contemporary Art, the Sprint-Nextel Corporation, H&R Block World Headquarters, and numerous private collectors.

The Art on the Rise Celebration will be Saturday, April 22 and will include an opening address by Wohl, and workshops in collage, competitive sand castle building, painting and natural dyeing. Workshops and the 3 p.m. gallery reception that concludes the day are open to the public. The cost will be $15 and will include lunch.

For more information contact Julie Jones, SAS Gallery Director, <jjones@sasweb.org> or (931) 598-5651 ext. 3151.

by Scott Bates

Mrs. Miller was the principal and the main teacher in the St. Mark's Community Public Elementary School in the 1950s and early 1960s in Sewanee. The little two-room school was situated close to where the Headstart building is now located, in a cluster of three buildings, next to the St. Mark's Episcopal Church and the Community Center; there were thirty to forty African-American students in eight grades. Besides Mrs. Miller, Miss Peggy Kennerly taught some of the younger students. "Miss Ophelia," as she was known to the Community, was tall and thin with a commanding presence; she was a conscientious teacher, a serious, well-educated person who had the respect of the whole community. Although sometimes strict with the children, she was fair and friendly with them and always had their respect.

I had arrived at the University of the South in the fall of 1954, the year that the law decreeing desegregation of all United States public schools was passed by the Supreme Court. Having attended an excellent integrated high school in my home town, Evanston, Illinois, and having two sons, I naturally hoped that integration in what I immediately saw was a totally segregated system in Franklin County, Tennessee, would soon be implemented. In this, I was sadly disappointed. I soon found out that not only did the Franklin County School Board have no plans to desegregate the two tier system, black and white, then in place, but they refused even to discuss the matter when it was suggested to them.

After 1956, I had been teaching a class of poetry appreciation and folk songs once a week at the St. Mark's school and thus become a friend and associate of Mrs. Miller. It was easy to see that despite the best efforts of the two teachers, having eight grades in two small classrooms was not enabling the pupils to arrive at anywhere near the education that their white peers were getting at the Sewanee Elementary School with its good facilities and full teaching staff. Thus after discussing the pros and cons of desegregation with Mrs. Miller, she and I and a colleague of mine at the University, Dr. Felder Dorn of the Chemistry Department, decided to poll the members of the St. Mark's community to find out what they felt about desegregation. Thus we went to each family in the community with a questionnaire, made out as objectively as possible, and talked the subject matter over in extended conversations before we left the questionnaire with them to fill out. This took several months, and when we assembled all the questionnaires, we truly had no idea what we would find on them, especially since many of the community members had well-founded fears of the well-known antagonism of most of the white community towards desegregation. To our surprise, then, we discovered that more than 85 percent of the community were in favor of desegregation if it could be accomplished without violence.

We took these results back to the Sewanee Civic Association for discussion and possible action. Despite resistance of a minority of the members, we came up with a majority decision to request the School Board to allow the Sewanee Elementary School to start a desegregation program the following year starting with the first grade and thereafter proceeding with the desegregation of a grade a year until the whole school system at Sewanee was integrated. We sent a written request to the School Board, but the latter refused to discuss the matter; indeed refused even to open the letter, having learned its contents through the grapevine. For a number of months we tried to contact the members by various means, but all in vain; the School Board was adamant in its resistance to any desegregation plan for the public schools, even of the most gradual kind.

The Franklin County Chapter of the NAACP had just been founded (this was 1960), and so Felder Dorn, Mrs. Miller, the new head of our chapter, Mrs. Johnnie C. Fowler of Winchester, and I went down to the NAACP lawyers in Nashville, Looby and Williams, to discuss the matter. They told us that we could not legally change the system in our county without bringing suit against the School Board, and that the suit would have to be brought by school children as plaintiffs. Thus we arranged for the children of eight families, four black and four white, to bring the suit, which was done in the summer of 1962. Thereupon a number of hearings took place at the Franklin County Court House in Winchester with our lawyer, Avon Williams, representing us; the costs were covered by the National Office of the NAACP. After two tumultuous years of fully-attended hearings, the Federal judge from Chattanooga decided in the plaintiffs' favor and the whole Franklin County system was desegregated, both children and teachers, starting in the fall of 1964. All the black schools were either closed or turned into office buildings.

Through these four years of discussions and hearings, Mrs. Miller was an admirable leader, along with Mrs. Fowler and various valiant members of both the black and white communities; Miss Ophelia held up in the face of much negative reaction, some of it quite hostile on the part particularly of the white community, and kept the black community calm and reasonable through the whole affair. She knew of course, that she would end up being demoted in an integrated system—never again would she be appointed principal—but she accepted this fully as the sacrifice she would have to make for the sake of a better education for the children. Thus she became an excellent teacher at the Sewanee Elementary School in the desegregated fifth and sixth grades, and later on ran the Cowan community center for the black community near her home in Cowan, Tennessee.

Scott Bates made this tribute to Mrs. Ophelia Miller at the 22nd annual celebration of Martin Luther King, Jr. on January 15, 2007, at the Bishop's Common at the University of the South. Published in Keystone issue Jan./Feb. 2007.

Toby Foyeh and Orchestra Africa

Toby Foyeh and Orchestra Africa will perform at 7 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 4, in Guerry Auditorium. Orchestra Africa features dancers, drummers, and vocalists, and creates a unique fusion of traditional Nigerian Yoruba music (including Highlife, Afro-beat and folklore) with jazz, pop, and Latin music. Admission to the event, which is ideal for all ages, is free and the public is invited.

The band blends traditional African instruments including the gangan (talking drum) and kalimba (thumb piano) to turn contemporary tunes into a swirl of colorful African music and dance. The music of Orchestra Africa attempts to convey the joys and challenges Africa faces as the continent moves into the global economy. The musicians of Orchestra Africa are also explorers, creating new musical horizons while respecting the traditions of the past.

Toby Foyeh began playing and performing music in Nigeria from an early age. He later honed his skill and developed his talent at the prestigious Berklee College of Music in Boston and at Howard University. Foyeh and Orchestra Africa have performed in the United Kingdom, Europe, U.S., Canada, Japan and Africa.

Carol Curtis at the Art Center

The Tullahoma Art Center will welcome Murfreesboro-based artist, Carol Curtis, Feb. 4–25, as the February artist at the Center. A meet the artist reception will be 5–7 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 4, at the Center. Refreshments will be provided. Exhibit admission is $5 for nonmembers and free for members. The center's gift shop will also be open for the event.

A native of the South, Curtis is an accomplished watercolor and needlepoint artist whose designs capture the essence of still life and botanicals in exquisite detail.

Curtis' needlepoint designs were commissioned to grace the White House Christmas tree in 1997 and she has designed and distributed more than 75 original hand-painted needlepoint canvasses to more than 130 stores throughout the United States.

Curtis has also had great success with oils and pencil drawings but said passion lies firmly grounded in watercolor.

The Tullahoma Art Center is located at 401 S. Jackson St., Tullahoma. For more information, visit online at <tullahomaart.org>.

Mural Workshop Scholarships for Area Teachers

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School's Shakerag Workshops is offering 10 full scholarships to area teachers (Franklin, Grundy and Marion counties) for this summer's mural painting class with Andee Rudloff.

Each year St. Andrew's-Sewanee School welcomes adults to campus for Shakerag Workshops, a studio arts program held for two separate weeks every June. During the week of June 11–17, Shakerag Workshops is offering a class in mural painting "From Street Art to Rural Barn Paintings: Telling Our Big Stories," taught by Andee Rudloff, a well-known mural painter from Nashville. Through the generosity of a donor, SAS is able to offer this experience to 10 teachers in the area at no charge. These scholarship recipients may choose to live on the SAS campus for the week or simply attend class and enjoy their meals at SAS with other Shakerag participants. Participants will leave the class with their own small murals, as well as with the skills and knowledge to create murals in their schools. One does not need to be an art teacher to participate.

Teachers who are interested in this possibility can contact Shakerag Director Claire Reishman <creishman@sasweb.org>. Applications are due March 1. Applicants will be notified of whether they have been accepted by March 15. Learn more about Shakerag Workshops at <shakerag.org>.

SAS Goes Out Fighting in Big 8 Tournament

Pelham came to the tournament with a newly-healthy player, a new coach, and a new post passing game that was too much for the St. Andrew's-Sewanee middle school basketball team to handle on Jan. 20 in the semifinals of the Big 8 Conference Tournament.

Pelham turned back the Mountain Lions, 42-15. Nathan King, a Big 8 All-Star, led SAS with nine points.

In the consolation game on Jan. 21, Palmer turned back SAS, 37-34. The Mountain Lions played well but the league Defensive Player of the Year Ben Freeman proved his worth on offense also, notching 24 points.

For SAS, Cameron Harmon played inspired on offense and scored 12. King contributed nine and Payton Zeitler added eight points in addition to solid defense.

Ethan Hargis scored three and almost sent the game into overtime with a Steph Curry-esque shot as time ran out. Sean Willis also contributed two points.

Palmer led most of the game but SAS came back in the second half and even took the lead with under two minutes. But Zeitler and Harmon fouled out, which allowed Palmer's players access in the post.

Overall, this was a successful season by a team that never gave up, school leaders said, adding that knocking off second-seeded Monteagle to start the conference tournament will remain a great memory.

Wrestlers Compete at Mountain Top, Middle Tennessee Championship

On Jan. 14, the St. Andrew's-Sewanee School boys' and girls' varsity wrestling teams competed in and hosted the 36th annual Mountain Top Wrestling Tournament.

SAS senior Christian Taylor won four matches to place third overall in the 170-pound weight class. Junior Bailey McLean placed fourth in the 138-lb. weight class.

Senior Wyatt Lindlau and junior Justin Elgouhary both placed fifth in the 182- and 195-lb. weight classes respectively.

"Our wrestlers did an outstanding job," said SAS wrestling coach Raymond Val. "There were some very good teams at the tournament and the SAS wrestlers worked very hard to place where they did."

The team's next home match is Tuesday, Jan. 31, against Sale Creek.

On Jan. 21, the SAS girls' varsity wrestling team participated in the Middle Tennessee Wrestling Officials' Association Grand Championship Tournament at McGavock High School.

SAS senior Nakkia Whitman placed third overall in the 165-lb. weight class. Senior Zaferah Fortune placed fourth in the 185-lb. weight class.

Freshman Jiayang Yang performed well in her first matches at the 106-lb. weight class. All three Lady Mountain Lion wrestlers did very well, each of them wrestling five matches. SAS team placed ninth overall out of 26 teams.

"The Lady Mountain Lions did an awesome job," Val said. "There were some outstanding matches by all three ladies and all worked very hard to place where they did."

The Lady Mountain Lions next match will be at regionals on Jan. 28 at Nolensville High School.

Little League Baseball Registration

The T-ball and baseball registration dates have been set for the 2017 Cowan/Sewanee Little League.

There will not be late sign-ups this year. If you cannot make these registration dates, please contact Knight to get signed up.

On Saturday, Feb. 25, at 9 a.m., there will be a work day at the ballfield. Bring your rakes, shovels, gloves and anything else we might be able to use to get the ballfield looking great again.

SAS Varsity Basketball Action

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee School varsity boys' basketball team defeated Berean Academy 52-46 on Jan. 23 in Hixson, Tenn.

The Mountain Lions faced a four-point deficit with 1:34 remaining in the game when Dustin Stensby was fouled on a 3-point shot and a technical was accessed to Berean. Stensby hit all five free throws to give SAS the lead.

Larson Heitzenrater completed a 3-point play to seal the win. Blaise Zeitler led SAS with 16 points; Stensby added 14; Jaylen Tillman had 10 points; Heitzenrater scored seven; John Grammer had three points; and Kenneth Thomas chimed in with two points. The win moved SAS to 10-8 this season.

On Jan. 20, the varsity boys lost at home to Friendship Christian, 50-33. SAS struggled to find a consistent offense.

On Jan. 17, SAS defeated Providence Christian Academy 74-23 at home. Stensby led SAS with 16 points; Thomas and Zeitler added 11 each; Tillman scored 10; Aubrey Black had seven; Emmanuel Thombs and Jonathan Rwalinda scored six each; Joe McDonough had four points; and Heitzenrater had two.

Dustin Stensby of St. Andrew's-Sewanee shoots a freethrow in a recent game.

Monteagle Baseball Meeting

Community Chest Spotlight: Sewanee TigerSharks

The 2016-17 Sewanee Community Chest (SCC) Fund Drive is underway. Sponsored by the Sewanee Civic Association, the SCC raises money yearly for local charitable organizations serving the area. This year's goal is $116,850 for 26 organizations that have requested basic needs funding for elder care, food, books, children's programs, animal care and recreational spaces. Currently, 78 percent of the goal has been reached in donations and pledges.

The TigerSharks swim team is a local club that provides an organized athletic experience for children ages 4-18 in the spring and summer, develops strong swimmers, builds self-esteem and encourages youth of all ages to work together as a team. The TigerSharks contribute significantly to a safer community by providing excellent swim instruction to children of all ages, regardless of their ability to pay the registration fee. Approximately 90 local youth participated in the swim program last year.

The TigerSharks swim team is requesting $500 to help support scholarship swimmers. The TigerSharks also raise funds through bake sales, T-shirt fundraisers, and parent donations in order to break even. Registration fees are paid directly to the University of the South to cover pool use, insurance and stipends for the coaches. Community Chest funding is approximately 3.5 percent of the gross income for the TigerSharks.

Since 1908, the goal of the Sewanee Community Chest has been to help citizens by funding the community. Through Community Chest funding, local organizations help those caught in the cycle of poverty, improve quality of life through outreach and community initiatives, and provide support for children with a variety of programs.

The Sewanee Community Chest is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization, and donations are tax-deductible. Send your donation to Sewanee Community Chest, P.O. Box 99, Sewanee, TN 37375. For more information, or to make a donation through PayPal, contact <sewaneecommunitychest@gmail.com> or go to <sewanecivic.wordpress.com>.

BSC 3-Pointers Drain Tigers

Host Birmingham-Southern College made 70 percent of its 3-point shots en route to an 80-68 win over the Sewanee men's basketball team on Jan. 22.

The Tigers led only once after Leo Born hit a three on Sewanee's second possession of the game. BSC never trailed again.

Overall, Sewanee made 43.6 percent of its attempts. The Panthers made a staggering 60.4 percent of their attempts while outrebounding Sewanee 32-27.

Individually, Born led the Tigers with 17 points. Adrian Thomas added 12 points, while Brody Stone finished with nine points and 11 rebounds.

BSC forward Harrison Deneka led the Panthers with a game-high 24 points and 10 rebounds.

The loss dropped Sewanee to 4-3 in conference play, 11-6 overall.

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School varsity swimmers Randy Paul (left), Catherine Gray (right), Sam Smith, Aidan Smith, Jack Haight, Lilly Zhen, Sarah Beth Hobby and Fiona Qian have all qualified this season to participate in the regional swim meet on Jan. 27 in Nashville.

Panthers Claw Past Sewanee, 69-60

Despite an early lead, the Sewanee women's basketball team dropped a 69-60 contest at Birmingham-Southern on Jan. 22 inside Bill Battle Coliseum.

Overall, Sewanee struggled from the field for the second straight game. The Tigers made only 31.7 percent of their shots.

Individually, Hannah McCormack led Sewanee with 23 points while Corey Caulder (11 points, six rebounds) and Bella Taylor (10 points, four rebounds, five assists) also finished in double figures.

Paced by their play inside the paint, the Panthers made 40 percent of their shots. Forward Emilee Olsen finished with a 20-point, 13-rebound double-double. The loss dropped the Tigers to 5-12 overall, 2-5 in conference play.

Stone Earns TSWA Player of the Week

The Tennessee Sports Writers Association on Jan. 18 named Sewanee's Brody Stone as the week's TSWA Men's Basketball Player of the Week winner.

Stone is the first Sewanee men's basketball player in program history to win the honor and the second in Sewanee history (Bella Taylor, women's basketball was first).

The weekly TSWA award is given to the top player in the state of Tennessee regardless of collegiate division. Stone was awarded the honor alongside Samantha Reeves of Christian Brothers, who was named the Women's Basketball Player of the Week.

Stone, a senior forward was outstanding the previous week, averaging 21.5 points, 17.0 rebounds and 3.5 assists per game. The Knoxville, Tenn., native made 56.7 percent of his shots overall and 81.8 percent of his free throws.

In the Tigers' game on Jan. 13 against Hendrix, Stone finished with 22 points, 17 rebounds and two assists. Two days later against rival Rhodes, the Tiger forward added 21 points, 17 boards and five assists.

Overall, Stone is the only player in the Southern Athletic Association averaging a double-double this season. He is averaging 16.5 points per game and 10.6 rebounds per game. He ranks fourth overall in scoring and first in rebounding in the SAA. Stone grabbed his 500th career rebound on Jan. 15.

Is the Drought Over?

Last year's drought is undoubtedly the top weather story of 2016 for Sewanee and surrounding areas. Have the recent rains pulled us out of the drought? The answer is "mostly." The water level in Lake Jackson, Sewanee's chief reservoir, was at three feet below lake-full levels on Jan. 22, up from levels that were more than 20 feet below normal for much of October through December of 2016. Lake Cheston is full again, after having dropped almost 2.5 feet during the height of the drought. Surface streams and streams emanating from caves (such as seen on Interstate 24 below Monteagle) are running at full strength. The water table beneath Sewanee is recovering more slowly. It has risen about 3.5 feet since October of 2016, but is still 2 feet lower than it was at the same time last year. Likewise, the flow of Tremlett Spring in Abbo's Alley has increased about 1,000 gallons per day with the rains, but is still far below its average flow rate.

The year 2016 was only number 20 on the list of driest years in Sewanee since precipitation records were kept beginning in 1895. The reason the drought was so extreme is that March through November represented the nine driest consecutive months on record in Sewanee. This dry period was bookended by the relatively rainy months of January, February and December.

Globally, 2016 goes into the record books as the hottest year on Earth since temperature records have been kept, topping the previous record years of 2015 and 2014. Increased global temperatures have led to sea level rise and an increase in the severity of droughts and flooding. The 2007 and 2016 droughts may have been influenced by this global trend.

CHIROPRACTIC OUTLOOK

By
Dr. Kurt Shull

CHIROPRACTIC AND RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS

Rheumatoid arthritis is a chronic inflammatory disorder. It commonly affects the wrists and the small joints of the hand and the feet. In some cases, it can damage other body systems. The inflammation can cause pain, swelling and stiffness in joints. Though there is no cure for the disease, chiropractic treatment can help with its management.

An exercise program that your chiropractor can develop for you will help maintain range of motion in arthritic joints and, in some cases, restore part of the lost range. Moderate weight lifting may be part of the exercise regimen because it can strengthen muscles that support joints. Range of motion exercises might include dancing and stretching. The chiropractor might recommend aerobic or endurance activities like walking or swimming as ways to control weight and boost the cardiovascular system. Finally, the chiropractor might provide some nutritional and diet advice that could help with the inflammation.

Talk with your chiropractor for more information on rheumatoid arthritis.

Upcoming Herbarium Winter Events

Herbarium Tour and Mountathon, at the Sewanee Herbarium, Spencer Hall, Saturday, Jan. 28, 9:30-11:30 a.m., with Herbarium Curator Mary Priestley—This is your chance to see where and what the herbarium is and to help in the work. Spending a morning mounting pressed plants can be a satisfying and fun experience. The finished product is always useful and often quite beautiful. Come help us mount our backlog of specimens. Learn methods that have been passed down through generations and are still used today, and take home a guide to mounting pressed plants. Meet in the Herbarium on the first floor of Spencer Hall. The main entrance is across from duPont Library and there is parking behind the library.

Water Walk, Snowden Hall, Room TBA, Saturday, Feb. 4, 9:30-11:30 a.m.—This past summer's drought reminded us that the availability of water has always been a concern for Sewanee and other plateau communities. Join geology professor Martin Knoll and Mary Priestley for a walk to learn about water as a resource for inhabitants of the plateau—plants and animals, as well as the human population. Meet at Snowden Hall to caravan to the site of the walk, which will include Hodgson's Pond, Abbo's Alley, the ATO and Tremlett Springs. Wear comfortable shoes for this easy 1-mile walk. If weather is inclement, we will remain at Snowden.

Winter Botany, Shakerag Hollow, Sunday, Feb. 12, 1 p.m.—Herbarium Director Jon Evans will lead a walk to explore Shakerag Hollow as plants gear up for spring. Wintertime exposes the "bones" of the forest—the deciduous trees are leafless, and herbaceous plants are almost out of sight. In addition to woody plants, there will be hardy ferns and possibly the first signs of spring such as hepatica, toothwort, and pepper-and-salt, popping up trailside. Meet at Green's View for this moderate-to-strenuous walk that may include a steep rocky section of the trail. Come prepared for muddy, wet, icy, and/or rocky conditions.

Nature Journaling—A nature journaling group, sponsored by the Herbarium, meets Thursdays, 9–11 a.m. in the Herbarium. An informal gathering, participants share observations and writing, and sketch plants or other natural objects. Everyone is welcome.

For more information on these or other Sewanee Herbarium events, contact Mary Priestley at <marypriestley@bellsouth.net>.

Hickory

Brandy

Pets of the Week Meet Hickory & Brandy

Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption.

Hickory is a sweet, gentle pot-bellied pig. Pigs are great companions in the right environment, but it's important to remember they are extremely intelligent, active animals that will weigh at least 60 pounds if healthy. Hickory is an older gentleman with pretty good piggy manners, and he's just a little mischievous.

Brandy is an 11-month-old German Shepherd. This beautiful young dog is sweet as can be and smart as a whip. She is house-broken and she even knows the commands sit and lie down! She is a little nervous with new people, but she is extremely affectionate with everyone who takes the time to get to know her. Brandy is heartworm-negative, up-to-date on shots, and microchipped, and she will be spayed before adoption.

Animal Harbor offers substantial adoption fee discounts for veterans and seniors. Every Friday is Black Friday at Animal Harbor. On Fridays, adoption fees will be reduced 50 percent for black or mostly black pets more than 4 months old who have been at Animal Harbor for more than a month. Pets adopted from Animal Harbor qualify for a free post-adoption wellness exam by local veterinarians.

Animal Harbor is located at 56 Nor-Nan Road, off AEDC Road, in Winchester. Call Animal Harbor at 962-4472 for information and check out the other pets at <www.animalharbor.org>. Enter the drawing on this site for a free spay or neuter for one of your pets. Help Animal Harbor continue to save abandoned pets by sending donations to Animal Harbor, P.O. Box 187, Winchester, TN 37398.

State Park Offerings

Saturday, Jan. 28

New Moon Astronomy (weather dependent)—Join Ranger Park at 7 p.m. at the Visitor Center, 11745 US 41, Monteagle, for an opportunity to gaze into the night sky. If it is rainy or cloudy the program will be rescheduled, but if not, then come prepared to study the stars, planets and other heavenly bodies. Dress for the weather and bring a flashlight (preferably one with a red light).

Sunday, Jan. 29

Grundy Forest Ecology—Join Ranger Park at Grundy Forest parking lot, 131 Fiery Gizzard Rd., Tracy City, at 1 p.m. for a moderate 2-mile walk around Grundy Day Loop to investigate the regional winter ecology. Surprisingly, many forms of life not only survive, but thrive in the colder temperatures. Wear sturdy footwear and bring water.

The South Cumberland State Park Visitors' Center is located on Highway 41 South between Monteagle and Tracy City and is open 8 a.m.–4:30 p.m. seven days a week. For more information call (931) 924-2980.

BARDTOVERSE

by Phoebe Bates

Birthday of Lewis Carroll

"You are old, Father William," the young man said,
"And your hair has become very white;
And yet you incessantly stand on your head –
Do you think, at your age, it is right?"

"In my youth," Father William replied to his son,
"I feared it might injure the brain;
But, now that I'm perfectly sure I have none,
Why, I do it again and again."

"You are old," said the youth, "as I mentioned before,
And have grown most uncommonly fat;
Yet you turned a back-somersault in at the door –
Pray, what is the reason of that?"

"In my youth," said the sage, as he shook his grey locks,
"I kept all my limbs very supple
By the use of this ointment – one shilling the box –
Allow me to sell you a couple?"

"You are old," said the youth, "and your jaws are too weak
For anything tougher than suet;
Yet you finished the goose, with the bones and the beak –
Pray, how did you manage to do it?"

"In my youth," said his father, "I took to the law,
And argued each case with my wife;
And the muscular strength, which it gave to my jaw,
Has lasted the rest of my life."

"You are old," said the youth, "one would hardly suppose
That your eye was as steady as ever;
Yet you balanced an eel on the end of your nose –
What made you so awfully clever?"

"I have answered three questions, and that is enough,"
Said his father; "don't give yourself airs!
Do you think I can listen all day to such stuff?
Be off, or I'll kick you downstairs!"

You Are Old, Father William, by Lewis Carroll (1832-1888)
