

Council Sets Slower Speed for Ball Park Road

Hears Plans for Town Cleanup Day, Downtown Development and Community Block Party

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

The Sewanee Community Council approved reducing the speed limit on Ball Park Road to 15 mph at the March 24 meeting. The Council also heard updates on the town cleanup scheduled for April 19 and the town planning process.

The Sewanee Senior Citizens requested the speed limit be reduced on Ball Park Road and on the section of Lake O'Donnell Road from the Highway 41A caution light to Ball Park Road. The Senior Citizens' Center is located at the intersection of Ball Park Road and Lake O'Donnell Road.

A recent two-week vehicle survey by the Franklin County Highway Department recorded 1,900 vehicles traveling on Ball Park Road during the survey period. Although three months of radar monitoring by the Sewanee police found only a few motorists exceeding the speed limit, Sewanee police chief Marie Eldridge recommended reducing the speed limit from 25 mph to 15 mph given the heavy vehicle traffic that is expected to increase with use of the ball park in warm weather. The Community Council approved Eldridge's recommendation.

The reduced speed limit will go into effect as soon as signage is posted by the Franklin County Highway Department.

A Sewanee town cleanup is scheduled for 9–11 a.m., Saturday, April 19. For individuals wishing to join in the effort, bags for collecting trash will be available at the Angel Park and the University Book Store. Along with the Community Council, help with the cleanup is expected from many Sewanee-area organizations. Filled trash bags can be left at the roadside and will be picked up the following Monday afternoon. For more information contact Pam Byerly by phone at 598-5979 or email to <pbyerly@sewanee.edu>.

Reporting on the plans to revitalize the downtown area, Frank Gladu, vice president of administrative services, said the University has hired the architectural firm Ayers Saint Gross to produce an "action plan" for implementing ideas identified in the earlier town planning study and recent town

SAS Students Restore Historic Landmark in Jamaica

by Bude Van Dyke, Special to the Messenger

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School's Jamaica outreach trip has always been given meaningful projects to construct and relationships to develop. But, this year we were asked to restore a community treasure, the record of its sports heroes who achieved national and international status and acclaim. The Boys Town Schools and Football Club was named for the old Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney film "Boys Town." It was initiated by Father Sherlock, whose memory is revered in Trench Town, though Trench Town is more readily known worldwide for musician and peace activist Bob Marley.

In the historic building named Father Sherlock Hall, various groups, many from Sewanee, have helped create a recording studio, a radio station and an internet cafe in recent years. In a large room at the center of the complex where three classes of students share space, the two-story high walls have fallen prey to the ailments that come with lack of funds for maintenance. On these walls are a dozen or so painted plaques with names of football (soccer) greats such as coach Carl Brown.

Brown started playing soccer at Boys Town and went on to be the only coach to take the Jamaica team all the way to the World Cup in the late 1990s. Alongside sprinters Usain Bolt and Shelly-Ann Fraser, Brown is one of the most revered living sports heroes in Jamaica today.

Coach Brown did well enough in his career to spend his retirement just about any place he wants. And he spends his days mentoring football coaches and helping bring attention back to Boys Town with his daily presence. Brown is known by every person in Jamaica and is greeted like a rock star when he goes into a business or group of

Ramseur Recital Tonight

Carolyn Ramseur, C'14, will present her senior music recital at 7 p.m., today (Friday), March 28, in Guerry Auditorium, accompanied by Jason Farris, associate university organist and choirmaster.

Her program will include selections from Rossini, Brahms, Schubert, Bach and others. The recital is free and open to the public. A reception will follow at the McGriff Alumni House.

Carolyn has been a member of the University Choir for four years. In addition to a B.A. in music performance, she will also graduate with a B.S. in ecology/biodiversity. In the fall she will attend Wichita State University to study for the degree of Master of Music in Opera and Vocal Performance.

She is the daughter of Cynthia and George Ramseur of Ocean Springs, Miss., and the granddaughter of Ruth and George Ramseur of Sewanee.

Gift Provides New Name, Support for School of Theology Programs Center

The University of the South announced on March 26 that a gift made by David and Kitty Beecken will support the School of Theology's programs center. This significant and generous gift gives the programs center a new name, the Beecken Center, and provides funding for its continued revitalization, allowing for renewed facilities and new program development.

"The Beecken Center will expand its reach to become the Church's primary center for lifelong theological education for all the baptized, offering residential and non-residential programs, short courses and retreats for persons of all ages," explained the Rt. Rev. J. Neil Alexander, dean of the School of Theology. "The Beecken Center is committed to providing the tools for transformation that enable disciples of Jesus to shape their faith into action."

Beecken, a 1968 graduate of the University, is a founding partner of the University's Petty O'Keefe & Company, a private equity firm based in Chicago. He is a former chair and current member of the University's Board of Regents and received an honorary degree in 2011. Longtime Episcopalians, the Beeckens are members of St. James Cathedral in Chicago. They are also active in diocesan programs, especially Kitty Beecken with Episcopal Charities and Community Services.

"As alumni of the programs center's Education for Ministry (EfM) program, we have been impacted by its transformational power," said Kitty Beecken, who will join the Beecken Center's board of advisors. "We hope that this gift leverages the capability of the center beyond EfM, and we view this as a gift to both the Church and the University."

The revitalization of the programs center began in the spring of 2013 when Alexander appointed Courtney Cowart as associate dean and director. Cowart brought with her a vision to actively recruit and develop programs to attract and train the laity, focusing on younger, more diverse leaders in the Church and the world.

"With this wonderful gift that establishes the Beecken Center, we can engage disciples to fully realize the ministries God has given us," said Cowart. "Through partnerships and by drawing on the legacy and resources of EfM, Sewanee's seminary and college, and the Church, we can create an inter-generational learning community like no other for those who seek greater authenticity in the living of their faith."

Sowing Seeds of St. Benedict

by Michael Trent Thompson, Special to the Messenger

From August of 2013 until the end of this month, two young adults —interns of the Organic Prayer Project—have been providing "radical hospitality" in every sense of the phrase.

From the weekly Tuesday night dinners that they prepare by hand with local and organic produce to their weekly volunteer work at the convent of the Sisters of the Community of St. Mary and with the University Farm; to their efforts in forming a partnership between Thistle Farms and the convent, Eileen Schaeffer and Nathan Bourne (both graduates of the College) have been living their lives in a form of ora et labora (prayer and work) in an intentional community. Not one wrought with theory, but one in practice, formed as Thomas Merton described, with "active contemplation."

In addition to their significant year of volunteer efforts, and their radical hospitality dinners (that have included many from the local community, as well as the University), these two have been examples of living an intentional life. Indeed they have lived a Benedictine way of life under the guidance of the Sisters of St. Mary's.

From these "two seeds," others are following their example. Two summer interns who have been "cultivated" by Eileen and Nathan will be spending this summer living at the convent and participating in the gardens and prayer life. Two more Sewanee students who are scheduled to

Sewanee Police and Fire Reports

Armed Robbery on March 17

At 6:25 a.m. on Monday, March 17, the Franklin County Communications Center contacted the Sewanee Police Department because it had received a silent "hold up" alarm from the Sewanee Market. Sewanee Police arrived on the scene and found an employee of the market safe, but shaken.

The employee had arrived at the Market around 6:15 a.m., and was walking through the dark store to turn on the lights when a man wearing a dark mask and dark clothes ran inside the store. He was carrying a handgun and demanded cash and a carton of cigarettes before the employee was able to turn on the lights. The employee gave the man approximately $500 and a carton of Marlboro cigarettes. The armed man told the employee to lay on the floor and then left the store in an unknown direction. The employee then activated the alarm.

The Franklin County Sheriff's Department is leading the ongoing investigation; SPD is cooperating with the Sheriff's office in this effort. If you have any information regarding this incident please call the Sewanee Police Department at 598-1111 or the Franklin County Sheriff at 962-0123.

February Activity Reports

The Sewanee Police Department recently issued its report on its activities for the month of February 2014. Last month, the SPD patrolled 5,224 miles, investigated six vehicle accidents and issued 21 moving violations. It also issued 562 non-moving traffic violations and 14 warnings. It issued citations for 19 drug law violations, 20 for liquor law violations, and filed 10 theft reports. SPD offered mutual aid once last month. SPD physically checked buildings on 568 occasions and assisted with locking or unlocking buildings 57 times.

In the month of February, the Sewanee Volunteer Fire Department answered 26 calls: 21 to University dorms, fraternity or sorority houses (all with no apparent cause, burnt food or trivial; one to a University building (pull station activated); one to a community residence (small electrical fire in a crawlspace); one to community property (blocking Hwy. 41A at Sherwood Crossing due to multiple accidents because of ice). SPD was called to one extrication that was later canceled because the patient was removed from the vehicle. One call was for a helicopter landing at Emerald-Hodgson Hospital. The total number of calls in 2014 through Feb. 28 was 39.

Plant Lavender at St. Mary's

The sisters of St. Mary and the women of Thistle Farms will come together for a lavender-planting day on Saturday, April 5. Last year at this time, these women planted the first half-acre of lavender on the convent grounds for use in the natural body products made at Thistle Farm Studios in Nashville. The planting will begin at 10 a.m. with a blessing to follow. The projected finish time is between noon and 1 p.m., depending on the number of people who help. Volunteers are free to come anytime during the day.

The lavender farm is located adjacent to the convent. Travel to 1100 St. Mary's Lane, turn left and follow the road to the end of the drive.

prominent Jamaicans, yet he watches the Boys Town teams practice, plays dominoes on the porch of the Father Sherlock Hall with Trench Town elders and then finishes off the day by encouraging them by example with a workout just after the heat of the day.

When our group of 12 students arrived at Boys Town, we thought we might build a concrete block wall or something like that. Instead, the elders asked us if we would restore their century-old plaques, which meant meticulously painting black background around hundreds of white letter names, then painting the names with fresh white paint.

Maybe it is because I saw the film "Monuments Men" before leaving for Jamaica that this assignment hit me so hard. The Boys Town elders, who believe the school and sports program they help operate is vital to the future of their community, honored us by trusting us to restore this historical treasure. One of the powerful messages I learned from the movie was how essential the preservation of a people's accomplishments are to the continuation of that community and culture. My initial response was hesitant because of the historical gravity of those plaques. But SAS teacher Rachel Malde and several of our students are accomplished artisans, so they excitedly said "Yes."

So, along with students helping in preschool classrooms, working with students at an upper school to put on presentations and skits in the "No Witness, No Justice" program (which we were invited to do by the U.S. Embassy) and meeting all kinds of folks from Trench Town, we repainted the interior of Father Sherlock Hall and restored their Century Legends plaques. Our students got to paint alongside Coach Brown.

I went to Jamaica expecting to be taken in by the laid-back culture of the island. I was blessed by meeting some wonderful people in a country that seems to have a perpetual unemployment rate of 30 percent. What I either took for granted or did not anticipate is how honorably and enthusiastically our students would take to the tasks they have been asked to meet. They went above and beyond expectations. If the world can stay together a couple more decades until these young folks can take over, the world will be a much better place to live.

graduate this May are considering carrying on the work Eileen and Nathan have started, which is based at and managed by the Sisters. Perhaps their example has captured some imaginations.

The combination of the agrarian life they have shared in, as well as the monastic way of life they have participated in, shows the community perhaps what "new monasticism/agrarianism" really is: a new way of expressing an ancient way of living. They have learned to read scripture, literature and nature in sacred manner, while being formed and tethered to an ancient order and living community of Benedictines. They have become fruit of a sacramental, organic, intentional life.

Nathan is on his way to divinity school and Eileen on her way to study permaculture. Both have touched many here in Sewanee, and we are all better and grateful for their example, indeed for their lives. They will continue to sow seeds of St. Benedict wherever they go and take a little Sewanee with them, as well. Their lives have become a prayer for all of us to encounter. "Be Thankful and repay growth with good work and care. Work done in gratitude, kindly, and well, is prayer." – Wendell Berry, "The Farm."

Godspeed to you both.

SUD Offers Data About Connections and Backflow

The Sewanee Utility District of Franklin and Marion Counties offers this information to customers about cross-connection and backflow prevention.

What is a cross-connection?

A cross-connection is any temporary or permanent connection between a public water system or consumer's potable (i.e., drinking) water system and any source or system containing non-potable water or other substances. An example is the piping between a public water system or consumer's potable water system and an auxiliary water system (including wells), cooling system or irrigation system.

What is backflow?

Backflow is the undesirable reversal of flow of non-potable water or other substances through a cross-connection and into the piping of a public water system or consumer's potable water system. There are two types of backflow: back-pressure backflow and back-siphonage. Back-pressure backflow is caused by a downstream pressure that is greater than the upstream or supply pressure in a public water system or consumer's potable water system. Back-siphonage is backflow caused by a negative pressure in the water mains, causing water to flow from a customer's water system back into the public water mains.

What is a backflow preventer?

A backflow preventer is a method or device to prevent backflow. One method of preventing backflow is an air gap, which is a physical separation of the public water mains and the customer's plumbing equal to twice the diameter of the two pipes (this gap must be at least 1 inch). This eliminates a cross-connection by providing a physical barrier to backflow. Another mechanism for preventing backflow is a mechanical backflow preventer, which provides a physical barrier to backflow.

What types of backflow assemblies, devices and methods are permitted?

The following are types of permitted assemblies, devices and methods: air gap, atmospheric vacuum breaker, double-check valve assembly, pressure vacuum breaker assembly and reduced pressure principle backflow prevention assembly. The choice of device or method depends on the type of cross-connection hazard that is present.

Why do backflow preventers have to be tested periodically?

Mechanical backflow preventers have internal seals, springs and moving parts that are subject to fouling, wear or fatigue. Also, mechanical backflow preventers and air gaps can be bypassed. Therefore, all backflow preventers have to be tested annually to ensure that they are functioning properly.

Specific Information about a Hose Bib Atmospheric Vacuum Breaker

A hose bib vacuum breaker should be attached to all threaded hose bibs to which a hose can be connected (unless it has a built-in vacuum breaker); Cross-connections with hoses are probably the most prevalent cause of backflow and the contamination of the water system. These devices do not protect against back pressure, only siphonage. They should be installed above the level of the hose being used on it and not put under continuous pressure (more than 12 hours at a time).

For more information view SUD's cross connection policy at <www.sewaneeutility.org> or contact SUD general manager Ben Beavers at 598-5611.

Timebank Update

The South Cumberland Plateau Timebank is a program of Folks at Home (F@H). The inaugural grant from the South Cumberland Community Fund in 2012 allowed F@H to launch the timebank as a new program in 2013. Now that the initial grant has ended, Susan B. Holmes, who worked as coordinator to launch the program, is moving on to new ventures.

"We thank Susan for her efforts and successes. In 2014, we will focus on timebanking as an integral program that increases the capacity of individuals, organizations, and the community," said Kathleen O'Donohue, executive director of Folks at Home.

The timebank now has 90 members, eight of which are organizations. This has doubled its capacity to coordinate access to services and collaborate with others on the Plateau. Timebanking—service exchange—is now integral to the functioning of F@H in coordinating access to services.

A regional pastor contacted F@H to assist a person with many needs post-surgery. F@H suggested the client could participate in the timebank after her recovery. The timebank has assisted this client with multiple rides for appointments.

The CAC referred a client to the timebank who was in need of rides for medical appointments; the timebank has helped with transportation.

The F@H board of directors recently voted to support the development of the timebank in its second year of existence, and they have committed to continue the program.

"Our established organization has the stability and infrastructure necessary to support this new startup," O'Donohue said.

To join the South Cumberland Plateau Timebank, go to <www.hourworld.org>. There is no fee to participate. For more information call 598-0303, email <plateautimebank@gmail.com> or stop by the Folks at Home office at 400 University Ave.

Madeline and Howell Adams at the newly named Blue Monarch campus.

Blue Monarch Celebrates 10 Years

Blue Monarch commemorated its 10-year anniversary on March 9 by celebrating the elimination of its property debt and honoring four cornerstone families who helped the organization get started in 2003. Blue Monarch is a local long-term residential recovery program for women and their children who are overcoming abuse and addictions.

"We wanted to take this opportunity to recognize the four pioneer families who made significant contributions that helped us get started when we were nothing but an ambitious plan on paper," said Susan Binkley, founder and executive director. The Blue Monarch campus now bears the names of Madeline and Howell Adams of Beersheba Springs, whose generosity allowed the property to be obtained in 2003. The two residential houses were named for Emily and Libby DeJuan of San Francisco and the Cartinhour-Woods Foundation of Chattanooga. And a special outside sanctuary now bears the names of Paul and Joyce Walker of Pulaski.

Residents of the Blue Monarch program participated in the event. Binkley, described the powerful journey as the nonprofit has developed and grown over the past ten years.

"It was such a rich experience to tell the story of Blue Monarch with so many of the key figures in the room," she said. To a crowd of supporters, Howell Adams gave a moving testimony of his personal involvement and why he and Madeline felt such a strong commitment to the vision and mission of Blue Monarch. Former resident Jeannie Driver also told of the powerful impact Blue Monarch had on her and her three children 10 years ago.

"We enjoyed celebrating God's tremendous blessings over the past 10 years and look forward to what he has in store for us as we enter our second decade," she said. Binkley was presented with a beautiful photograph of the Blue Monarch property, which also listed the 509 first names of each woman and child served by Blue Monarch since it opened in 2003.

AT THE MOVIES

SEWANEE UNION THEATRE

Frozen—Sunday, March 28–30, 7:30 p.m.

Frozen

Rated PG • 102 minutes

Winner of Best Animated Picture, "Frozen" is the story of a plucky young woman, Anna, who is trying to find her sister, Elsa, while traversing someplace like Mt. Everest. The movie stars the voice talent of Kristen Bell, Idina Menzel and Johnathan Groff. With smart writing, beautiful animation and toe-tapping songs, "Frozen" has been a huge hit with kids, parents and critics. As one wrote, "Frozen" may be a nod to the pleasures of vintage Disney and old fairy tales, but there's nothing outdated about it." Rated PG for some action and mild rude humor.

CINEMA GUILD

Willy Wonka & the Chocolate Factory

Rated G • 100 minutes

Author Roald Dahl adapted his book "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" for this 1971 movie starring Gene Wilder as Willy Wonka. When sweet, poor Charlie Bucket wins one of the golden tickets, he and his grandfather embark on a magical mystery tour of the Wonka Chocolate Factory, along with some despicable other children and their creepy parents. Part musical, part fantasy, part whimsy, this version has an entirely different vibe than the 2005 Tim Burton/Johnny Depp version. Everyone should at least see where the dreadful "CandyMan" song began. Rated G.

SEWANEE UNION THEATRE

Thursday–Sunday April 3–6, 7:30 p.m.

Hunger Games 2: Catching Fire

Rated PG-13 • 146 minutes

Katniss Everdeen (Jennifer Lawrence) is back, and she is not happy about being manipulated by President Snow (Donald Sutherland) in the latest installment of this popular series. I'm not sure this movie will make sense if you haven't seen the first "Hunger Games," but it is full of adventure, excitement and the most interesting costuming on film in 2013. There are outstanding performances by Elizabeth Banks, Lenny Kravitz, Stanley Tucci and Philip Seymour Hoffman. Rated PG-13 for intense sequences of violence and action, some frightening images, thematic elements, a suggestive situation and language. —LW

TINTINNABULATIONS

by John Bordley
The "Big City"

When we go to Winchester, we sometimes joke that we are going to the "Big City." We usually refer to going to Nashville as going to the "Big City." But two weekends ago we did go to the "Big City" of Chicago. The trip started out as a way to hear a recital by a pianist whom Carolyn has kept up with since he won the Gilmore International Keyboard Festival in Kalamazoo, Mich., about 20 years ago. We also heard the Israeli Symphony play Bruckner's 8th Symphony and attended a stunning performance by Hubbard Street Dance.

However, since big cities can be impersonal, we made contact with three carillonneurs whom I know from the carillon guild. We had brunch with one of them, and while working out arrangements to meet for dinner, the university carillonneur at the University of Chicago invited me to "be in the tower with him" at the carillon concert following the Sunday morning service at Rockefeller Chapel. I didn't know if he meant for me to stand there and watch him or to play, so I suggested we play a duet. It turned out he doesn't play many duets and that, in any case, his assistant was going to play the day I was there. The assistant knew the duet I had suggested, and so we played it.

The Rockefeller Chapel carillon is the second heaviest in the world — "heaviest" refers to the total mass of all the bells. By comparison, Sewanee's is 36th heaviest of the 119 traditional carillons in the U. S. and Canada. The Rockefeller Chapel's almost-twin at Riverside Church in New York City, is slightly heavier. The bourdon (the name given to the largest bell in a carillon) is a C at Riverside and weighs 41,000 pounds; at Chicago it is a C# and weighs 38,000. At Sewanee, the bourdon is a B-flat almost an octave higher and weighs a mere 7,500 pounds. At the time Sewanee's carillon was installed in 1958, it was classified as something like the fifth "largest" in the U. S. and Canada. This is quite misleading, since "large" refers to the number of bells. Sewanee's carillon has 56 bells (Chicago's and New York's have 72), but the highest/lightest eight bells at Sewanee are rarely used. Chicago's carillon has almost a whole octave of bells smaller/higher than Sewanee's, and they too are rarely used.

Sewanee has had a connection with the University of Chicago and Rockefeller Chapel for many years. Albert Bonholzer, Sewanee's first university carillonneur, studied with Chicago's university carillonneur in the 1950s, just before our carillon was planned and built. At the 2010 meeting of the Guild of Carillonneurs in North America in the Chicago area, I heard the Rockefeller Chapel's six-bell peal and immediately came back to Sewanee and began the process to install the mechanisms so that our carillon could play an automatic, four-bell peal. Both are grand sounds and make you think you are in a European city on a Sunday morning when the various bells around town are all playing at the same time.

There are two kinds of carillonneurs: those who must play every carillon they come anywhere near and those who are happy to visit and listen but not necessarily play. I am in the latter category, but I must say it was fun to play the carillon in the "Big City."

NATURENOTES

By Jean Yeatman

Eagles!

Jean Yeatman reports, "The Ides of March presented me with a wonderful view of two mature Bald Eagles over my pasture, diving and soaring and bumping each other in play. They flew out over the cove, where they spiraled up and up until they were just specks in the sky, finally disappearing into the clouds.

"These are huge birds," she continued. "They can be 37 inches in length, and can have a 90-inch wingspan! The adults are easy to identify because they are dark brown in color, with white heads, white tails and large yellow beaks. The females are indistinguishable from the males. The juveniles are mostly dark in color, and can take four to five years to get their adult plumage. Eagles eat mostly fish, but will eat road kill and other carrion in the winter. Joshua Milner, who lives in my neighborhood, sees them fishing in his lake quite often. Phoebe Bates saw one on March 22 over Eva Road. Jeff Havner took this picture of one sitting in a tree by his lake, eating a bass.

"Today," she concluded, "there is a male Cardinal in my yard, eating the blossoms off my Oregon Grape 'Mahonia' plant. Usually they wait until there is ripe fruit to eat."

White Pine Harvest Helps Sustainability, New Projects

The University is partnering with a local sawmill to produce Domain-sourced locally manufactured building products, reported Nate Wilson, University domain manager. As part of this partnership, a crew will be thinning two white pine plantations in the coming weeks: one is at the intersection of Missouri and University avenues; the other is across from the University entrance. There may be increased truck traffic on Airport Road and Missouri Avenue during this time, Wilson said.

Davie Ashley Sawmill in Huntland has been milling Domain lumber for the past several years. Domain-sourced lumber can be found in Smith Hall, the Sewanee Inn and in the new housing units being built on Georgia and Mississippi avenues. Locally sourced lumber ensures that the wood used on campus is grown and harvested sustainably, and keeps more of the University's construction dollars circulating in the local economy, Wilson said.

Some of the white pine currently being harvested may be available to the community for use in construction projects. If you are interested in adding some of this Domain-sourced lumber to a building project, contact Davie Ashley Sawmill at (931) 937-8581.

Romeo

Parker

Pets of the Week

Meet Romeo & Parker

The Franklin County Humane Society's Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption.

Romeo is a handsome, flirtatious young adult orange and white Tabby kitty. Young enough to still behave like a kitten sometimes, he is starting to learn that it is time to grow up. His foster family called him Romeo because he is such a love. Romeo is negative for FeLV and FIV, house-trained, up-to-date on shots and neutered.

Parker is an active, but not hyper, adult Jack Russell who would make a good secret agent. He can be stealthy when he needs to be or sounding the alert when required. He will make a wonderful friend and companion. Parker is up-to-date on shots and neutered.

Call Animal Harbor at 962-4472 for information and check out the other pets at <www.animalharbor.com>.

Winterim Class Spends Week With Animal Harbor

Thirteen St. Andrew's-Sewanee School students worked on animal welfare issues for SAS's Winterim earlier this year. Throughout the week they visited Franklin County's elementary schools, presenting an educational skit emphasizing the importance of being kind, helpful, responsible, diligent, respectful, honest and neat, with respect to animals. The Animal Harbor "dog" and "cat" joined them.

During their visits, the SAS students gave animal-themed books to the schools' libraries. All the books presented were donated on behalf of the Templeton Foundation. At the end of the week, the students went to Tracy City to meet the staff of and see the office and operations of Animal Alliance-South Cumberland.

Gail Castle, development officer for Animal Harbor, said, "Thank you to Katherine Anderson, Animal Harbor Directors Susan Rupert and Cecelia Brodoui, and all of the 13 students for being so helpful in assisting with the organization's cause and spreading the message of animal welfare across Franklin County and the South Cumberland Plateau."

HEARING HEALTH NEWS

by Debbie Gamache,
M.S. CCC-A Audiologist

CAUSES OF HEARING LOSS

Hearing loss can be caused by a number of different factors. The most common cause of hearing loss in the United States is exposure to noise. In addition, other common causes of hearing loss include family history of hearing loss, history of heart disease or high blood pressure, diabetes and the normal aging process. Other possible causes of hearing loss can also include accumulation of ear wax or chronic ear infections.

Hearing loss varies by type and degree. In order to determine amount, type and degree of hearing loss, you will need to have a diagnostic hearing evaluation by a certified licensed audiologist. If you have questions about hearing loss for yourself, a family member or friend, or to schedule an appointment to have your hearing tested, please contact us at Debbie Gamache's The Hearing Center LLC. The first step in identification and treatment of hearing loss is a medical diagnostic hearing evaluation. We are located at 705 NW Atlantic St., Suite B, Tullahoma. We can be reached at (931) 393-2051. You can also visit our website at <www.thehearingcenterllc.com>.

BARD TOVERSE

by Phoebe Bates

The Feast of St. Patrick, March 17

St. Patrick was a gentleman,
And he came from decent people;
In Dublin town he built a church
And on it put a steeple;
His father was a Gallagher,
His mother was a Brady,
His aunt was an O'Shaughnessy,
And his uncle was a Grady

*Then success to bold St. Patrick's fist
He was a saint so clever,
He gave the snakes and toads a twist
And banished them forever!...*

We wonder that our Irish boys
Should be so free and frisky,
For good Saint Patrick taught them first
The joys of tippling whiskey;
No wonder that the saint himself
To taste it should be willin',
For his mother kept a small shebeen
In the town of Inniskillen.

*Then success to bold Saint Patrick's fist,
He was a saint so clever,
He gave the snakes and toads a twist
And banished them forever!...*

*—from an Old Irish Bagpipe tune with words by Henry Bennet
and Mr. Toleken*
