

Community Council Appoints New Members Considers Constitution Change

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

At the March 28 meeting, the Sewanee Community Council appointed two new council members, discussed changes to the constitution, and heard updates on the constructed wetlands project and Greenhaw quarry. The council also reviewed recommendations for allocating $11,000 in funds for Community Enhancement projects. [See related story below.]

The council approved the nominations of Kate Reed to serve as District One representative and Louise Irwin to serve as District Two representative through December 2016.

Irwin replaces Michael Hurst, who died recently. Vice-Chancellor John McCardell said of Hurst, "Michael was a highly valued council member whose presence will be missed." Among his other charges, Hurst served on the Community Relations Committee. Council representative Phil White will assume his duties in that role.

Revisiting a discussion that began two years ago, the council reviewed a change to the constitution that would reallocate council seats. At present, there are three council representatives from each of the four districts, 12 seats total. The reallocation of seats calls for four at-large seats and two seats from each district, maintaining a total of 12 seats.

Council members presently serve four-year terms. When the council decided to consider reallocation of seats in 2014, term lengths were adjusted so that all members' terms would end in December 2016 to allow for recalibrating district representation. Council member David Coe stressed that the purpose of the change was to increase involvement in the council. The council will vote on the proposal in May.

Sewanee biology professor Deborah McGrath updated the council on the constructed wetland project at the Sewanee Utility District (SUD) wastewater treatment plant, a research project undertaken jointly by the University of the South and the University of Georgia. Funded by a $590,000 water stewardship grant from Coca Cola, the project's goals are to study the effectiveness of wetlands in getting wastewater cleaner and to involve the

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

At the March 28 meeting, the Sewanee Community Council reviewed recommendations for allocating $11,000 in funds for Community Enhancement projects.

A committee led by Sarah Marhevsky considered 12 project proposals submitted by the community and narrowed down the list to seven, recommending the following Community Enhancement projects receive funding: $3,179 for sand and refurbishing the restrooms at the youth soccer field on Ball Park Road; $2,049 for mulch at the Elliott Park playground; $1,800 for a picnic table at the Elliott Park playground; $2,200 for electrical repairs at the American Legion Hall; $1,322 for lighting at Angel Park; $300 for soil and bulbs for planting by children in the Plateau Playground group; and $150 to help offset operating expenses for Community Poetry Night.

The Council will vote on the recommendations at the May meeting.

Commenting on the choices, Marhevsky said the committee wanted to continue to support Elliott Park, which received funding last year, and similarly, the soccer field was a community undertaking deserving of ongoing support.

All the projects submitted had substantial merit, Marhevsky said. The committee also received a number of suggestions not formally drafted as proposals. Marhevsky thanked committee members Pixie Dozier, Theresa Shackelford, and Megan Taylor for their commitment to making fair and carefully thought-out recommendations that would benefit a broad segment of the community.

The Community Enhancement program is in the second year of a two-year trial. In the summer of 2014, the Council approved increasing the municipal service fee paid by all leaseholders to generate $10,000 to be used for physical improvements and amenities on the Domain. Of the seven Community Enhancement projects funded in 2015, all are at or near completion. The total award for 2016 was increased because the dog park proposal funded in 2015 had

Exploring Easter Traditions Through Art

On the Saturday before Easter, college students, professors and community members joined together for a creative learning experience provided by the Mellon Globalization Forum and Otey Memorial Parish. Sewanee Dining generously provided 360 eggs for the event. Chef Rick Wright and his team steamed the eggs, and boiled several dozen in onion skins for Polish drapanki, an elaborate method of decoration that involves delicately scratching off the dye with a needle to reveal the white of the egg.

The Holy Saturday egg-decorating event was led by Jeannie Babb and Justyna Beinek. Babb works with children in the Godly Play program at Otey Parish, and Beinek serves at the University as the Mellon Globalization Forum director and visiting associate professor of international and global studies and Russian.

Babb, who studied church history at the School of Theology, wanted to help parish and community members reconnect the annual egg hunt to Christian tradition and theology. She and Beinek envisioned the event as a way for people with different cultural backgrounds to explore one another's Easter traditions while experiencing artistic expressions surrounding the egg.

Trails & Trilliums at MSSA on April 15-17

The 13th annual Trails and Trilliums Festival will be April 15-17 at the Monteagle Sunday School Assembly. This event is sponsored by the Friends of South Cumberland State Park.

The weekend opens on Friday afternoon, April 15, with hikes to Shakerag Hollow and Lost Cove. CUBA AND CHINA

To the Editor:

Did the letter writer (in the March 25 Messenger) who claims that Obama was "pandering to Cuba" feel the same when Nixon visited China?

Why shouldn't we trade with Cuba? We trade with lots of former enemies (Japan and Germany) and even communist countries such as Vietnam and China.

And while what happened in Belgium is tragic (to say the least), the last time I looked, Obama is charged with the security of the United States, not Belgium.

QUESTIONS ABOUT CENTER

To the Editor:

I was very interested to see in the March 18 issue of the Messenger that Vice-Chancellor John McCardell is moving forward with plans to build a strip mall on the site of the current Sewanee Community Center.

Some questions arise, however. I don't believe I am alone in wanting to know, "Who will be building this strip mall, and who is paying for it?"

Likewise, I noticed on the map there is a "Proposed Community Center" wedged in between the Legion Hall and Angel Park.

Who is proposing this new Community Center, and who is building it? Who is paying for it, and what are all the people currently using the existing center going to do in the meantime?

I look forward to hearing the answers.

Summer Meal Program Information Meeting

The South Cumberland Summer Meal Program will host a meeting at 5 p.m., Wednesday, April 6, in McClurg Dining Hall on the Sewanee campus, for people interested in helping with this year's program.

Through a collaboration of the University of the South, South Cumberland Community Fund, USDA, Americorps VISTA and local partner organizations, last year's summer meal program provided more than 8,000 meals to nearly 900 children and teens.

This year the program hopes to increase those numbers by recruiting new partner meal sites, engaging more volunteers and making meals more accessible to the community. Partner meal sites must be within 60 minutes driving distance of the University and be located in Franklin, Grundy or Marion counties.

Anyone interested in organizing a site, being a volunteer or that just wants more information should attend the meeting on April 6.

For more information, please contact Americorps VISTA representative Liz Sirney at <sfpvista@gmail.com>.

Women's Fund of Chattanooga Taps Seavey

The Women's Fund of Greater Chattanooga board of directors is pleased to announce the appointment of longtime women's right advocate Kim Seavey as its new executive director.

Seavey is a visionary leader who brings deep experience in nonprofit administration, as well as working on issues that help ensure women and girls live healthy and secure lives. Prior to joining the Women's Fund, she served as the administrative director of Blue Monarch for nine years, which provides a long-term residential program for addicted women and their children. During her tenure, she successfully managed fund-raising campaigns, secured grant funding, expanded relationships with supporters and agencies, recruited and trained volunteers, and increased community awareness of addiction as it affects women and their children.

"We received an overwhelming response to the job opening and feel very fortunate to have had such a robust pool of applicants," said Lorie Runge, board co-chair of the Fund. "We are confident that Kim's experience, knowledge and integrity are an excellent match for the Women's Fund of Greater Chattanooga, and together we will continue to drive the positive work of improving the lives of women and girls in the Chattanooga region."

In her first week, Seavey and the advocacy committee of the Women's Fund of Greater Chattanooga met with state representatives to discuss key pieces of legislature which affect women's rights in Tennessee. Over the next few months, Seavey will oversee planning of VOICES, the annual fund-raising and public awareness event for the Women's Fund of Greater Chattanooga, which will be on Oct. 5 this year, as well as continue to meet with local officials and direct service providers to identify challenges which prevent women and girls from living their best lives.

"I am honored to join the Women's Fund of Greater Chattanooga, which has such a strong record of advocating for women and girls, not only in Chattanooga, but across the state of Tennessee," said Seavey. "My experience advocating for women at an individual level will inform my work with the Women's Fund of Greater Chattanooga, as we focus this year on decreasing violence against women in our communities."

A native of Cincinnati, Ohio, Seavey is a graduate of East Carolina University. She lives in Monteagle with her husband and two children.

Christ Church Monteagle

Bp. Millsaps reports: "Eastertide, or the Easter Season continues at Christ Church, as we welcome guests from all over" was a comment heard from a lay person on Easter Monday. It is often said that the real test of a church's vitality is not how many people come on Christmas to Easter Day, but how the church fares on the so-called "Low Sundays."

The Rev. Mike Agerton of St. Michael and All Angels, Gallatin, will be the preacher at 10:30 a.m., Sunday, April 3 service. He is a graduate of Vanderbilt and Nashotah House. Lunch will follow the service.

Otey Memorial Parish

On Sunday, April 3, Otey will celebrate Holy Eucharist at 8:50 a.m. and 11 a.m. At 10 a.m., there will be a Rector's Forum in St. Mark's Hall, and the Lectionary Class will meet. Children ages 3-11 can attend Godly Play at 10 a.m. Middle school and high school Sunday School will meet on the second floor of Brooks Hall. Nursery care is available for children 6 weeks to 4 years old.

The Women's Spirituality Group will reconvene at 3:30 p.m., Sunday April 3, in Thurmond Library. The next book they will read is by Frederick Buechner. "The Hungering Dark," is a beautifully written short book about doubt, faith and discovering the hidden face of God. Each chapter begins with Biblical scripture and prayer, followed by Buechner's reflections. For more information contact Carol Sampson at 598-9576. All women are welcome.

On Sunday, April 10, there will be a combined service at 10 a.m., on the occasion of Bishop John Bauerschmidt's visitation to Otey. A festive reception will follow. The undesignated offering on this Sunday will be for the Bishop's Discretionary Fund.

BOOKMARKED

A Column for Young Adult Readers and Adults Who Appreciate The Genre

by Margaret Stephens

Spring Magic

Have you ever walked into the kind of bakery so rich in appetizing smells it's hard to untangle them? That cinnamon-streusel aroma of warm coffee cake—the dense chocolate of brownies—the butter-sugar-vanilla heaven of just-out-of-the-oven sugar cookies—and, weaving them all together, the wholesome fragrance of baking bread?

That's what reading British author Eva Ibbotson reminds me of, so laden are her books with twisting plots, charming, unexpected characters and almost Keatsian atmosphere.

Born in pre-war Vienna to brilliant, non-practicing Jewish parents—her father pioneered in infertility treatment, her mother was a successful novelist who worked with Bertolt Brecht—she eventually ended up in England, in flight, as so many were, from the Nazi regime. Her many books reflect her yearning for a home and the rich culture that was Vienna before the war. Opera, art, zoology, ballet, Mozart: allusions to these are as frequent as flying broomsticks in J.K. Rowling (more on her in a moment).

I first stumbled on "Countess Below Stairs" last fall, and loved it so much I ordered several more copies for Christmas gifts. I can't possibly describe the plot, which makes "Downton Abbey" look staid in comparison. It centers around Anna, the incandescent daughter of Russian nobility whose fairy-tale lives are decimated by World War I and the 1919 Revolution. To help support her impoverished family, Anna decides that since she can't be a taxi driver or doorman like fellow expatriate princes, she will hire herself out as a servant in an English countryhouse. Toting a borrowed cardboard suitcase and a massive, 2,000-page tome, "The Domestic Servant's Compendium," which she memorizes in her determination to be the perfect British housemaid, she descends on the unsuspecting servants' hall ready to take on the duties of housemaid. The problem is—she isn't. Her background can't help leaking out, no matter how deeply she curtsies. That curtsy, in fact, is only the first of her many offenses in the horrified, fascinated, convention-bound eyes of the other domestic staff. When she curtsies, her employer

"instinctively looked around for the red roses that should have been raining down from the gallery, the bouquet which anyone not made of iron must surely bring in from the wings," for thus "had Pavlova folded her wings after her Dying Swan."

Anna, in short, is not your typical maid.

Nor are the other heroines of Ibbotson's award-winning books, who are each as spirited, high-principled and recklessly generous as Anna.

In "The Morning Gift," Ibbotson again draws on her own past as a refugee. Ruth Berger is left behind by accident when her academic family flees Vienna for London. The grim reality facing her as the Nazis move in flickers in and out of the plot, but what shapes the story is the unique plan a friend devises for getting her out of Austria. Though not as exciting as Ruth's preferred notion of hiking over the Alps and swimming across a border river with her rucksack over her head (as she read a famous musician did with his cello), the plan contains risks which threaten to undermine her future.

I also loved "The Reluctant Heiress," whose plot revolves around a penniless Austrian princess who escapes the confines of the crumbling family castle to work in a struggling opera company. Like Ibbotson's other YA books, the only magic in the novel is itself. But some of you may be more familiar with the supernatural worlds of her children's books. "Which Witch," for example. Or her 1994 "Secret of Platform 13," which has so many overlaps with Rowling's Harry Potter (published in 1997), that one journalist wondered why she didn't sue for plagiarism. Instead, Ibbotson commented that she'd "like to shake her [Rowling] by the hand. I think we all borrow from each other as writers," thus revealing the same generosity of spirit she depicts in her heroines.

You'll have to do interlibrary loan or buy, but find an Ibbotson and discover the magic for yourself.

Trustees Community Relations on April 21

The Trustee Community Relations Committee will be in Sewanee on Thursday, April 21. It will meet with the Sewanee Community Council, who will update the trustees on topics of interest and concern to our community. If you have items that you would like the council to consider, please contact a council member. There will be a casual supper catered by Shenanigans and time for conversation with both groups at 5:30 p.m. at the American Legion Hall in Sewanee. Please RSVP by calling 598-1718 with your last name and the number in your party, by Friday, April 15.

there will be an opportunity to learn about and build Fairy Houses. Artists, vendors, food and music will be available throughout the day.

The final event of the weekend is the Cumberland Wild Hike into History program. An all-star panel of historians, naturalists and local experts, including State Naturalist Emeritus Mack Prichard and original Savage Gulf Preservation League President Wally Bigbee, will discuss the amazing history of the South Cumberland, including Native Americans, pioneers, sawmills, coal mines and old growth forests. For more information or registration go to <www.trailsandtrilliums.org>.

$1,000 left after purchasing a fence, and the unspent amount was added to the 2016 fund basis.

Two proposals calling for construction of sidewalks on Brakefield Road and Tennessee Avenue were not recommended for funding. Marhevsky said, because they would have cost $10,000 or more each, using up the full amount of resources available in 2016.

Council member Phil White supported the need for sidewalks and asked the council to discuss this in May.

A visitor asked if the amount of funding could be increased, since there were many worthy projects. Provost John Swallow said increasing funding would require increasing the municipal service fee. The council will consider putting the question before the community in the November elections.

and planned activities for all ages, including standard American dip-dyeing, egg painting with local artist Carol Sampson and a tie-dye table employing whipped topping.

Beinek, who is originally from Wroclaw, Poland, brought her mother, Eulalia, and her young daughter, Karolinka, to help with traditional pysanka decorating, which was displayed and practiced in many styles at the event. Beinek enlisted the help of Yuliya Ladygina, a colleague from the Russian department at the University.

Ladygina, who is from Kyiv, Ukraine, provided instruction in the intricate wax-resist method known as batik. This method involves several repetitions of drawing designs with melted wax using a special stylus, then dipping the egg in a successively richer dye. The wax designs eventually melt away from the egg to reveal the colors beneath the wax.

"Decorating the eggs was a fun and meditative way to spend my Holy Saturday," said Taylor Yost, a Sewanee senior majoring in Russian, International and Global Studies, and politics, who spent time at all the tables. "The event fostered an environment where many community members could come together and learn from each other. I had a fun conversation with an international student about Easter egg hunts, which were new to her. She told me about Easter practices in her culture. It also brought a lot of different people across campus together. I saw at least three of my professors with their children and many other families, too."

At the batik table, participants worked on the same egg for an hour or longer, instructing newcomers how to scoop black beeswax into the special stylus. Even as parish members broke down the other tables and prepared for the upcoming Easter reception, artists at the batik table were still wiping the melted wax from their final creations and making plans for another event.

"We can continue this," Ladygina offered. "We have the kits now. We can make more eggs."

In Orthodox tradition, there are still five weeks until Easter.

community in wastewater issues.

With a view to community involvement, there will be a workshop to construct rain barrels at 8 a.m. and 3 p.m., on Friday, April 22, in Spencer Hall. A donation from the Coca-Cola Sustainability Fund provided financial support for the workshops, McGrath said. For more information email McGrath at <dmcgrath@sewanee.edu>. The researchers are also considering inviting the community to help with planting at the wetlands, scheduled to begin on May 1.

Updating the council on Tinsley Asphalt's proposal for a quarry in the Greenhaw community, council member Annie Armour said the Tennessee legislature passed an act allowing the proposed site to be annexed by Decherd so the project could move forward. Since then, opponents sought and received a court-ordered injunction, putting a temporary halt to the project.

Council representative Theresa Shackelford asked if the University could boycott Tinsley as a show of support for the opposition.

"The consequences of such an action would need to be considered carefully," said McCardell. He advised against a boycott at the present, since the project was stalled. University Director of Physical Plant Services Michael Gardner said Tinsley Asphalt was "a prominent asphalt and pavement supplier for the University and the county."

Commenting on proposed changes to downtown Sewanee depicted on a map in a recent issue of the Messenger, Irwin said community residents had expressed concern "Sewanee would lose its uniqueness." Gardner stressed the renovation was still in the planning stages.

Council member Barbara Schlichting reminded community residents to notify their council representative if they have issues they want brought to the table at the April 21 meeting between the Trustees and the Community Relations Committee.

During the announcement, White put out a call for someone to mow the dog park. He estimated the job would take about 30 minutes with a large mower. Contact White by email to <pwhite@sewanee.edu>.

The council next meets on May 23.

Huber-Feely Writes App for Huntsville Transit

by Lucy Berry
AL.com/The Huntsville Times
Special to the Messenger

Downtown Huntsville visitors no longer have to wait outside in the cold for the city trolley, thanks to a new application developed by Code for Huntsville.

Hop Around Huntsville, a free web, tablet and mobile app available for all devices, provides real-time tracking of the trolley during weekend activities. The technology was created last year by Code for Huntsville co-founder Larry Mason and 17-year-old Tennessee student Noah Huber-Feely.

It is the first completed project for Code for Huntsville, a group of civic volunteer software engineers that began meeting nearly a year ago in downtown Huntsville. Chris Beaman, co-founder of Code for Huntsville and principal of Archer Sparrows, said the app has the capability to track a variety of vehicles, not just the trolley.

"It can work with any moving object," he said. "We've been talking about working on a bike-tracking project where we could understand the flow of cyclists in the city of Huntsville."

Mason said the idea began last summer when Huntsville Parking and Public Transit Director Tommy Brown approached Dennis Madsen, the city's long-range planner, about whether Code for Huntsville would be interested in creating an app for the trolley system.

The process of developing Hop Around Huntsville was "embarrassingly simple," Mason said, adding it took only two or three weeks to finish. With the trolley tracker in Huntsville, more people will be able to utilize public transportation on weekends.

"You can see where the trolley is, you can stay inside wherever you are and be out at the bus stop when the trolley arrives," he said. "It should take some of the waiting out of catching the trolley, because you know where it's at."

Huber-Feely met Mason and Beaman last fall during Coworking Night, a weekly gathering at the AL.com office in downtown Huntsville, when he was 16 years old. Since attending the initial meeting in September, he has driven to Huntsville from Winchester every Wednesday to attend.

Huber-Feely, who is homeschooled and lives on an all-organic farm with his family, now runs the meetings, which have expanded to include coders, designers, photographers, writers, entrepreneurs and everyone in between.

"We've appointed Noah as leader, and Noah's done a great job of helping us to get a bunch of events scheduled during Coworking Night," Beaman said.

As more people begin using Hop Around Huntsville, Mason believes it will transform the way residents experience and use public transportation.

"From a city planning perspective, it's really important we start maximizing transit," he said. "Time and time again, they have shown that by building more roads and making more room for cars, all you really do is increase congestion. You cannot build your way with roads and wide lanes into a more orderly way and more efficient way of moving around."

Mason hopes to gain sponsors for Code for Huntsville to offer internships and fellowships for young programmers like Huber-Feely, so they can earn money while they work on projects.

ANGELWITH AN ATTITUDE

by Virginia Craighill

Dear Angel,

It's finally springtime and everyone I see has a Fitbit™ on his or her wrist. What is this fad, and do I need to get one if I want to "fit" in with the crowd and fit into my bikini come summer?

Herd-follower

Dear Anxious Exercise Sheep,

Since no one wears watches anymore, I suspect the inventor of the Fitbit™ is actually a former watch-band manufacturer who suddenly realized he had to find another way to market warehouses full of these obsolete things: thus, the Fitbit™ Genius. You can no longer walk anywhere without knowing how many steps it's taken to get there: 25 to the copy machine from the office and back, 39 to the vending machine at the bottom of the stairs for a bag of Doritos, 12–18 to find the TV remote.

People are obsessing over how many steps they take in a day, with goals of 10,000, 15,000 and climbing. The Fitbit™ has become the new athletic TCAPs and SATs; instead of measuring our intelligence against others, we're measuring our fitness. The parents who used to humble-brag about their child only reaching the 93rd percentile on the _____ (fill in your preferred testing mechanism) are now the ones who manage to fit in the number of steps they've taken into conversations about Trump or ISIS.

And worse, the Fitbit™ allows you to have "companions" who can monitor the number of steps you've taken in any given day and compare them to their own goals. They will be like those coaches who humiliated you for being the first girl out in Dodgeball, or the brawny bullies who were forever making you feel inferior because you didn't make the team, or like you were one of the B-team candidates at a Republican debate. "You only took 18,000 steps today? Loser!"

If there's a way to take the joy out of walking, the Fitbit™ is it. I'll probably be ordering mine from Amazon before April.

Meeting Set to Consider Montessori Education

A group of parents is considering starting a Montessori school this fall. Rebecca Allred and Lucie Carlson are spearheading the work. The group will have an organizational and information meeting at 4 p.m., Saturday, April 2, in the Roots and Wings Yoga Studio, on the square in Winchester.

They would like to see an affordable alternative to traditional education that would foster self-expression, independence and a joy of learning in the children of our community. Montessori schools are made up of mixed-age classes that allow for freedom of movement and peaceful community-building within a thoughtfully prepared classroom. A typical day is structured in uninterrupted blocks of time that allow students to learn concepts at their own pace through hands-on work with a myriad of materials, rather than by direct instruction.

Started in 1907 by Maria Montessori, there are now about 4,500 schools in the U.S. and 20,000 worldwide.

During the Saturday meeting, those attending will watch a brief film on Montessori education, brainstorm ideas, talk about costs/budget, finding teachers, location and more. While the intent is to begin with a class for children ages 3–6, those with older children are welcome, too, to see if there is enough interest for an additional class.

Children are, of course, welcome.

If you are interested in a Montessori school for your children, if you have experience with or training in this kind of education (or with running a school, etc.) that you would be willing to share, or if you would like to financially or otherwise support this wonderful project, please come.

For more information contact Allred at (615) 406-5720 or email <rebeccaallred@gmail.com> or Carlson at <lucie.carlson@gmail.com>.

Ranger Jessie McNeil (above) announced that the name of South Cumberland State Park's recently acquired barred owl is "Bard the Bowman" (from "The Hobbit"). The rescued owl, which cannot fly because of an injured wing, arrived last week and is getting accustomed to the aviary built for him at the Visitors' Center. The owl, being trained by Ranger Jessie, will be used for educational programs. A grand opening for the new aviary will take place on April 16.

SCA Needs Help With Playground

The Sewanee Civic Association is seeking community volunteers to help with maintenance inspection of the Elliott Park Playground.

The high-frequency inspection is a 5–10 minute visual inspection of three main areas of the playground elements and surfaces.

High-frequency inspections can vary with the observed level of usage. When there are long, cold or rainy periods, the interval should be every two weeks. In nice weather, the inspection should be done weekly.

Training will be provided, as necessary.

For more information or to volunteer contact Stephen Burnett by email to <fortheparks@gmail.com>.

THE INSATIABLE CRITIC

by Elizabeth Ellis

Stars are so overused, and there's nothing on the planet more critical than cats, so one feature each week is rated from one to five Tobys. The more Tobys there are, the better it is!

Sir Toby

Star Wars Episode VII: The Force Awakens

NOTE SPECIAL TIMES:

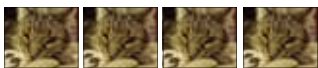

7:30 p.m. • Friday–Saturday • April 1–2

2 p.m. • Saturday and Sunday • April 2–3

9:30 p.m. • Sunday, April 3

2015 • Rated PG-13 • 135 minutes

The unstoppable galactic "Force" known as the Star Wars franchise is back, this time with a better plot and new, intriguing characters to enliven old friends like R2-D2 and Chewbacca. Taking place 30 years after the defeat of the Empire, the galaxy is still seeing its share of unrest, as new agents of the Dark Side emerge, calling themselves the First Order (an allusion to Hitler's Nazi Army). Harrison Ford and Carrie Fisher reprise their roles as Han Solo and Princess Leia, separated by sorrow and anger after their son, Ben, turned to the Dark Side to become Kylo Ren and continue his grandfather Darth Vader's evil legacy. Luke Skywalker has gone into exile, and all seems lost until two very different characters cross paths on the desolate desert planet Jakku: a loveable droid called BB-8 carrying a critical piece of information to Luke's whereabouts, and Rey (Daisy Ridley), a scavenger and mechanic barely scraping by. Joined by Finn (John Boyega), a Storm Trooper gone rogue, this trio may be able to pull the galaxy from the brink of desolation. J.J. Abrams, a self-professed "fan boy" of Star Wars, directs the latest installment of this space epic with high-paced action balanced with witty and meaningful dialogue, making it a treat visually and cerebrally. Abrams opted to steer clear of glutting the screen with computer-generated graphics (for instance building a real, remote-controlled BB-8 robot), creating a sense of authenticity to the original trilogy. There are plenty of "Easter Egg" references sprinkled throughout to satisfy the most die-hard of fans, but it is accessible enough so the uninitiated can follow along without the context of the previous films. Though rated PG-13 for violence, the film remains enjoyable for families of young children, as well as adults. The zeal of newcomers Boyega and Ridley ushers in a new era for this most venerable of American sci-fi film series.

Godzilla!

7:30 p.m. • Wednesday, April 6

1954 • Unrated • 96 minutes

Come see the film that started it all! The original creature feature is brought back to life on the big screen, eating Tokyo in his full glory in glorious black and white. With innovative special effects for its time, Godzilla heralds his arrival from the depths of the sea to Japan by sinking several ships near Odo Island. The local authorities at first believe the ships succumbed to underwater volcanic activity, but realize they are in for a much bigger world of trouble—all 164 feet of it. It is classic, campy good fun that spawned a generation of sequels, the latest reboot in 2014 directed by Gareth Edwards to generally favorable reviews. Godzilla has been fought against us and for us, but one thing is for sure—he'll never fail to deliver big fun. Though unrated, it does feature scenes of violence and peril that may be intense for very little ones, but otherwise, it is enjoyable for adults and families alike.

Carol

7:30 p.m., • Thursday through Sunday, April 7-10

2015 • Rated R • 120 minutes

Love knows no race, no gender, no societal structure, and no bounds. Cate Blanchett and Rooney Mara co-star as two women who begin a romantic relationship in 1950s New York despite the conventional restrictions of the era. Carol (Blanchett) finds her escape from a marriage gone cold in the younger and creative Therese, a clerk in a department store with dreams of becoming a photographer. Set against the backdrop of the Christmas season in the sparkling Big Apple, it is a tale of tenacity in the face of change and a deep exploration of the complexities of the human heart and our own sexuality. The film is adapted from Patricia Highsmith's critically acclaimed novel, "The Price of Salt," and was nominated for six Oscars, including Best Adapted Screenplay and Best Performance by an Actress in a Leading and Supporting Role. Exquisitely shot, there is a bright optimism underlying the serious confrontational tones that buoys the plot along and successfully immerses the audience into another time and place. Rated R due to a scene of sexuality/nudity and brief language, this feature is appropriate for teens as well as adults, and the message of being true to one's own heart is one that few other films state more effectively or beautifully.

Actors to Read "The Gaba Girl"

Professional actors will read Tennessee Williams Playwright-in-Residence Cheri Magid's play "The Gaba Girl" on April 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the Tennessee Williams Center's black box theatre on the campus of the University of the South. The event is free and open to the public.

The play will be directed by T. Ryder Smith and read by actors Nigel De Friez and Libby Matthews. It is based on the fantastic but true story of Lester Gaba and his famous mannequin, Cynthia.

In 1937, Lester, a young soap carver, meets an infamous socialite and finds himself attracted to her best friend, an androgynous and closeted theatre director with dreams of going to Hollywood.

To avoid his growing homosexual feelings for the director, Lester creates a life-sized mannequin that looks exactly like the socialite. Questions of what is real and what is not reach

Lucy McMahon's "Back No. 5," an acrylic on canvas with magazine collage, is part of the "Redefine" show.

University Art Gallery Presents "Redefine"

Sewanee's University Art Gallery presents "Redefine," an exhibition of work by graduating art majors Annie Bagay, Adrian Bowie, Lucy McMahon, Mimi Middlebrooks, Colton Treadwell and Yunxin Xing. In "Redefine," the artists seek new perspectives. The pieces presented in the show engage the audience in re-evaluation and transformation—of experiences of the human body, of memory, of powerful emotions.

A series of special events are scheduled in association with the show, which runs April 15 through May 7.

The opening reception will be in the Gallery on April 15 from 4:30 to 6 p.m. On April 22, artists will present their work in Convocation Hall at 1 p.m., as part of Scholarship Sewanee. On May 7 from noon to 3 p.m., the Gallery will host a baccalaureate reception, celebrating the graduating seniors and the success of the 2015-2016 season.

In painting, drawing and video, Annie Bagay explores the intersection where normal meets strange and mysterious. Her work, invoking the grotesque and the bizarre, elicits uncomfortable, even unpleasant, sensations in the viewer.

Inspired to make art by the memory of his troubled past, Adrian Bowie explores memories of traumatic events and how those memories affect a person with the passage of time. He seeks to bring new meaning to commonplace objects, and to create a sense of "brokenness" in his depictions of objects associated with childhood. Bowie's works in charcoal exploit the hands-on tactility of the medium to reinforce his connection to the work in the face of its difficult subject matter.

Lucy McMahon's painted nude female figures, larger than life, dominate her canvases. The painted bodies, built with loose brush strokes resembling collage, remain headless and anonymous. These bodies challenge the viewer, eliciting appreciation and celebration, as well as critique and judgment.

Mimi Middlebrooks explores transformations of the human form and an understanding of the body as a place. Disembodiment and fragmentation speak to feelings of being lost or incomplete, while maps symbolize the transformation that derives from discovering a place of belonging within one's own body.

Colton Treadwell's work explores the tactile components of self-destructive experiences. Instead of depicting or acting upon a physical body, his work makes manifest the actions and thoughts that lead to self-harm.

Fascinated by the psychological battles of mental and emotional landscapes, Yunxin Xing translates complex experience into the abstract language of art. Inspired by both the Abstract Expressionists and Chinese long scroll ink painting, her large scale drawings embrace improvisation. The artist regards the painting surface as a stage, and her entire body as her means of expression.

Honoring World Poets

Community Poetry Night (CPN) opens National Poetry Month in fine bardic style with guest host Judyth Hill. Editor, writing teacher, author and arts activist, Judyth has published nine books of poetry, including "Hardwired for Love," "Men Need Space," "Dazzling Wobble" and "Tzimzum."

Her poem, "Wage Peace," written as a response to the Twin Towers tragedy, has joined the ranks of modern classics and has been set to music and performed by the Cincinnati Women's Choir, St. Olaf's College Choir and the Southwestern Symphony.

The theme for April 5's CPN is "Celebrating World Poets and Freedom of Expression." As president of PEN (Poets, Essayists and Novelists) San Miguel, Judyth created the first ever Modern Kurdish poetry International Poetry for Peace event, in support of the Kurds in Turkey. In addition to her own new work, she will read recently translated Kurdish poems.

The community is encouraged to help celebrate freedom of expression by joining the roster of readers. Email <fogpoets@gmail.com> for more information. Community Poetry Night is from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday, April 5, at the Blue Chair Cafe on University Avenue in Sewanee.

Music Department to Host "Splendor Before the Storm"

Sewanee's Department of Music will present a recital, "The Splendor Before the Storm," featuring works composed during the first decade of the 20th century. The concert is at 3 p.m. on Sunday, April 10, in St. Luke's Chapel and is free and open to public. This particular period was awash with a diversity of musical styles.

This recital, featuring Sewanee faculty member Bernadette Lo and guests Liza Kelly and Andy Braddock of Western Kentucky University, will highlight this vast array of musical styles. The works on the program are: Maurice Ravel's song cycle "Scheherazade," Frank Bridge's Three Songs for viola, voice and piano, a movement from Schoenberg's expressionist masterpiece "Pierrot Lunaire," and Bridge's Two Pieces for viola and piano.

Bernadette Lo is the visiting assistant professor of piano at Sewanee and has been on the faculty since 2011. She has concertized across the United States as a collaborative pianist and recently premiered several new piano trios with members of the Waldland Ensemble in Carnegie Hall.

Bernadette Lo

Kelly is assistant professor of music at Western Kentucky University, where she teaches voice and language diction. Kelly actively performs opera, musical theater, oratorio, concert works and recitals. She has been a featured performer with companies such as Cincinnati Opera, Glimmerglass Opera, Opera Theater and Festival of Lucca, and has collaborated in recitals with prestigious venues such as the New York Festival of Song and Caramoor Festival.

Kelly can also be heard on Telarc's world premiere recording of Liszt's St. Stanislaus and Hal Leonard Publication's Opera Anthology of Gian Carlo Menotti. Violist Andrew Braddock is also on the faculty of Western Kentucky University and the WKU Pre-College Strings Program. He teaches viola at the university and maintains a full pre-college studio of young violinists and violists. Recently, Andrew gave master classes at the Xi'an Conservatory (China), the Da'an School (Taiwan) and the Indiana University Summer String Academy. In Oct. 2013, he taught master classes and performed at the University of Tennessee Viola Celebration. Andrew has presented pedagogy sessions at the Kentucky and Tennessee Music Educators Association conferences.

SAS Varsity Track Team Launches New Season

On March 23, the St. Andrew's-Sewanee School varsity track and field team traveled to Baylor School in Chattanooga to open the season.

"The team showed grit and determination today," said coach Molly Schaefer. "This meet was a good start to our season, and I look forward to seeing these athletes improve over the course of the next few months."

There were several strong showings. Sarah Johnson (sophomore, Gruetli-Laager) placed fourth in shot put against stiff competition. Kate Butler (freshman, Sewanee) fearlessly took to the high jump in her very first meet, in addition to placing fourth in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles.

On the boys' side, James Hudson (sophomore, Jasper) took on a wide array of events including the discus throw, triple jump and 800 meter, and performed well in each one. Sophomore Justin Elgouhary (Manchester) threw both the discus and the shot put, and is set to have an exceptional season.

Middle School Volleyball Wins

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee middle school volleyball team defeated Jasper Middle School on March 24 to open the season for both teams.

SAS won, 2-0, with scores of 25-22 and 25-20. The Mountain Lions were led on offense by Katie Finn Hurst, Saje Mangru, Morgan Phares, Anna Post and Mary B. Smith, with strong service performances.

Smith also led the charge on defense with an outstanding effort. The two schools also had a junior varsity match that SAS won, 25-16. The JV team was led by the strong serve of Sophia Carlos.

SAS Tennis Earns Victory

Although it was raining, the St. Andrew's-Sewanee School tennis teams opened their competitive season on March 24. SAS is grateful to the Shackelford family and the University tennis teams for adjusting their schedules to allow SAS to play indoors.

The varsity girls enjoyed a 7-0 win over Zion Christian Academy to kick off the season.

The SAS girls earned singles wins from No. 1 Ester Yang, No. 2 Tessa Shackelford, No. 3 Mason Goodson, No. 4 Lea Schiemann and No. 5 Fey Shen.

Securing wins at doubles were the teams of Yang and Goodson, and Shackelford and Schiemann.

The SAS boys fell to Zion. Sewanee's Michael Hubona (No. 4) and Isaac Tang (No. 5) both won matches.

Middle School Soccer 1-1-1

On March 22, St. Andrew's-Sewanee's middle school soccer team fell to Webb School, 3-1.

SAS struck first in the 20th minute of the match, when captain Aidan Smith volleyed the ball into the back of the net off a free kick from Sean Willis. Two minutes later, Webb's Jake Zhu scored the equalizer.

In the second half, the game remained tied until the last 15 minutes, when Zhu struck again. Five minutes later Grayson Rone scored the last goal of the match for Webb.

On March 29, the team defeated South Middle School, 3-1. Five minutes into the match, Willis scored for the Mountain Lions off an assist from Porter Neubauer.

At the 26th minute, Neubauer, on his way to the goal, was taken down in the box. Smith calmly placed the penalty kick into the net, giving SAS a 2-0 lead.

In the second half, both teams fought hard for possession of the ball. South scored with six minutes remaining in the game, but SAS wasn't done. Neubauer scored the last goal of the match with 30 seconds remaining.

Team captain Evan Fox and classmate Thomas Stapleton contributed strong defensive play to shut down South's offense. SAS is 1-1-1 on the season after these two games.

The SAS varsity soccer team (in white) played against Ezell-Harding Christian School on March 29 at SAS.

SAS Soccer Team Trumps Ezell-Harding

On March 29, the St. Andrew's-Sewanee School boys' varsity soccer team defeated Ezell-Harding Christian School of Antioch, 3-1, at home in the first match of the season.

"We won that game. It was payback for last season," said SAS head coach Harrison Camp. "But the real question," he added, "is can we play quicker, with more intensity?"

Quili Pena, a sophomore boarding student from Madrid, Spain, capitalized on service from Jake Wiley, a senior from Sewanee, to get the Mountain Lions on the scoreboard early in the first half. Wiley also provided confident leadership to the back line throughout play.

Tommy Oliver, a senior from Sewanee, executed a smooth finish for the second SAS goal.

In the second half, Ezell-Harding found the back of the net on a rebound. Steven Zhu, a sophomore boarding student from Shanghai, China, retaliated with a strong finish for a third goal for the Mountain Lions.

"We can take advantage of mistakes," Camp said, "but we also have tons of room for growth."

Multiple yellow cards for both sides and one red for the Eagles characterized some emotional play until the final minute of action.

Larson Heitzenrater, a ninth-grade student from Sewanee, was goalkeeper for the Mountain Lions. SAS hosts Webb School of Bell Buckle on April 5 at 5 p.m.

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School students support the varsity soccer team on March 29 against Ezell-Harding.

Hendrix Sweeps Sewanee on the Diamond

Hendrix College finished off a three-game sweep of the Sewanee baseball team on March 26 at Montgomery Field, after winning the opener the day before, 3-2.

In the second game, the Warriors jumped out in front early. Drew Judson gave Hendrix an early 1-0 lead, when he scored on a fielder's choice by Justin Robison in the top of the first. The Warriors added another run an inning later.

Sewanee took a 3-2 lead in the bottom of the fourth, as Trey Akins had an RBI triple and Jackson Cooper and Ryan Poole both drove in runs.

Unfortunately, Hendrix tied the game at 3-3 in the top of the fifth, when Wyatt Hogan singled, and Judson scored on an error by the Tigers. In the top of the sixth, Judson doubled in Leon with two outs. Hendrix then added a late insurance run in the top of the eighth.

The game ended with the score Hendrix 6, Sewanee 3.

Overall, Akins led Sewanee, going 2-for-4 with a run scored and an RBI.

In game three, after both teams scored a run in the third, Sewanee took a one-run lead in the bottom of the fourth, when Cooper scored on a wild pitch.

An inning later, Akins continued his outstanding day with another triple, this time scoring both Josh Roberts and Beau Allen.

Sewanee continued to lead 4-1 until the top of the seventh. In the inning, Hendrix's offense came alive with three hits and five runs. From there, Hendrix starter Will Nichol closed the door on any Sewanee comeback by getting three straight groundouts to end the game. The game ended with Hendrix 6, Sewanee 4.

Tigers Post Top 10 Finishes at Emory

The Sewanee track and field teams had a number of top-10 finishes at the Emory Classic the weekend of March 26 in Atlanta.

Tyler Fishback finished third in the men's high jump behind two athletes from Tiffin. Fishback's best attempt was his third leap that cleared 1.85 meters.

Junior Ridge Davis finished second in the javelin throw with a toss of 46.84 meters.

Also in the field events, Lonnie Scott finished eighth in the shot put. Scott's best toss of 11.98 meters ranked third for all non-scholarship programs.

In the team events, the Tiger men's 4x800 meter relay team was just behind Emory's A team for a second-place finish. Amiel Emerson, Alec Hill, Jackson Goodwin and Bradford Lepik combined for a time of 8 minutes, 10.07 seconds.

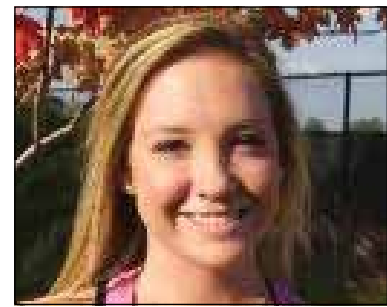

Also in the men's relays, the Tiger 4x400 squad of Emerson, Hill, Ky-Edward Anderson and Couch finished fourth with a time of 3:30.93. The time of 3:30.93 was just behind Birmingham Southern's top time in the league this season.

Along with his great time in the relay, Couch earned a top-10 finish in the men's 400-meter hurdles. Couch was just under a minute with a time of 59.18 seconds.

The Tigers had a few top 10 finishes in the distance events, with junior Logan Stockton grabbing a second-place finish in the 5,000-meter run in a time of 15:32.91. In the men's 10,000 meters, junior Mark McAlister finished fifth with a time of 34:06.69. McAlister's time was the fifth fastest in the Southern Athletic Association this spring.

Also in the men's distance races, Goodwin finished fourth in the men's 1,500 meters with a time of 4:06.37. Additionally, in the men's 800, Emerson finished ahead of 40-plus runners with a third-place time of 1:58.61.

Finally, in the women's 3000-meter steeplechase, junior L'Or Puymartin finished fourth with a time of 13:12.87.

Maggie Crumbliss

Tigers Tennis Victorious

The No. 10 ranked Sewanee women's tennis team kept rolling on March 26, with a 5-1 win over No. 15-ranked DePauw at the Fab 5 Tournament at Emory University.

The win moved the Tigers to 11-5 this season. Sewanee opened by winning two of three doubles matches. At No. 1, Lindsey Liles and Clementina Davila defeated Maddie Lee and Gretchen Wilder, 8-2. Then at No. 3, Annie Veron and Maggie Crumbliss topped Collen Morris and Megan Gallie, 8-5.

With a 2-1 lead heading into singles, Sewanee won three straight individual matches in straight sets. At No. 1, Liles rolled over Lee 6-3, 6-4, while at No. 3, Christina Merchant topped Wilder 6-0, 6-2. Finally, Crumbliss stayed unbeaten on the day with a 6-0, 6-4 win against Morris at No. 4.

Shackelford Earns Wins

Sadie Shackelford of Sewanee earned two wins for Middlebury College on March 25. The women's tennis team won 9-0 over Babson College at the Boston Sports Club. In doubles, junior Lily Bondy and Shackelford, a senior, eased to an 8-4 win. Shackelford also won in singles, 6-0, 6-0.

Bluebells on the island.
Photos by Yolande Gottfried

Bluebell Island

The annual tour of Bluebell Island sponsored by the South Cumberland Regional Land Trust last Saturday, March 26, was an outstanding success. The weather was gorgeous, the bluebells were at peak bloom, and about 60 folks came out for the event.

The winter floods had moved the usual log used to access the island, so the Sewanee Boy Scouts and Sewanee senior Duncan Connelly assisted Nate Wilson to laboriously construct another access. Joseph Bordley loaned rope and helped with disassembly.

Nearly as impressive as the bluebells were the trout lilies and the Virginia spring beauties in profuse flower all over the island. Also in bloom were toadshade trillium (little sweet Betsy), toothwort, rue anemone, star chickweed, meadow parsnip, spicebush, several violet species and, notably, allegheny spurge, a native pachysandra, which is usually only found in rich moist areas with basic soils, such as Bluebell Island. One plant was missing, the uncommon least or dwarf trillium, which Harry and Jean Yeatman had consistently located in past years. The hope is that the floods had relocated it and that it will show up next year.

Pets of the Week

Meet Layla and Mac

Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption.

Layla is a 6-year-old couch potato who wants to snuggle or sit on your lap. This laid-back kitty is declawed in the front, so she must be an indoor cat, but she prefers lounging indoors anyway. Layla is negative for FeLV and FIV, house-trained, up-to-date on shots, microchipped and spayed.

Mac is a delicate little 8-month-old Miniature Pinscher who doesn't want to sit still unless he's being cuddled. Don't let his tiny size fool you, because he has a big personality. Mac is heartworm-negative, up-to-date on shots, microchipped and neutered.

Every Friday is Black Friday at Animal Harbor. On Fridays, adoption fees will be reduced 50 percent for black or mostly black pets over 4 months old who have been at Animal Harbor for more than a month. Pets adopted from Animal Harbor qualify for a free post-adoption wellness exam by local veterinarians.

Animal Harbor is now in its new shelter at 56 Nor-Nan Road, off AEDC Road in Winchester. Call Animal Harbor at 962-4472 for information, and check out their other pets at <www.animalharbor.com>. Enter the drawing on this site for a free spay or neuter for one of your pets. Please help Animal Harbor continue to save abandoned pets by sending your donations to Animal Harbor, P. O. BARDTOVERSE

by Phoebe Bates

Hold on to April; never let her pass!
Another year before she comes again
To bring us wind as clear as polished glass
And apple blossoms in soft, silver rain.
Hold April when there's music in the air
When life is resurrected like a dream
When wild birds sing up flights of windy stair
And bees love alder blossoms by the stream.
Hold April's face close to yours land look afar
Hold April in your arms in dear romance;
While holding her look to the sun and star
And with her in her faerie dreamland dance,
Do not let April go but hold her tight,
Month of eternal beauty and delight.

— "Hold April" by Jesse Stuart
