

Potter to Receive the Summa Cum Laude for Community Service Award

During the Wednesday, April 18, Sewanee Civic Association meeting at St. Mark's Hall, Cindy Potter will receive the Summa Cum Laude for Community Service Award for her continuing dedication to the outdoors, education and community.

Cindy moved to Sewanee in 1980 when her husband, Bran, joined the University's faculty. Much of her life has focused on serving area children. She taught at the Sewanee Children's Center and was the PTO sponsored librarian at Sewanee Elementary School. She then taught for 25 years in the Franklin County school system and was a finalist for Tennessee Teacher of the year. She joined the St. Andrew's-Sewanee School community and helped to begin the sixth grade program. She taught humanities and science courses, where she combined her love of nature, poetry, writing and song.

She initiated the "My Spot in the Woods" program, where each student revisited their own adopted place in the forest to make observations and write in their learning logs. That program was featured in an issue of The Tennessee Magazine.

She has served on the Duck River Board, and on the Lease Committee. She is currently a member of the Community Council, and serves as chair of the Community Action Committee.

In 2014, she was co-recipient of the The Harry Yeatman Environmental Education Award. This award honors a person who has made an impact on the South Cumberland Plateau through dedication to this place, and by educating others to appreciate it.

For years she organized the annual sixth grade holiday balsam wreath sale to help raise funds for a variety of outreach projects. Students used the opportunity to support organizations that promote causes that are important to them, such as the protection of animals, scientific research and the preservation of the environment. In some of their presentations, the students told moving stories of people they knew who had benefited from their chosen organization. Charities ran the gamut from large organizations such as Save the Children and the American Cancer Society to more local causes like Sewanee's Operation Noel or the Elephant Sanctuary in Hohenwald, Tenn.

15th Annual School Board Trails and Trilliums Festival Weighs Inadequate Teacher Salaries

The Trails and Trilliums Festival, being a celebration of Nature, is ready for whatever nature throws at us this weekend. This year's festival takes place April 13-15 in Monteagle, celebrating the peak of spring wildflower season in South Cumberland State Park, Tennessee's largest state park. Extra tents have been ordered, so just about every activity planned to take place at the South Cumberland State Park Visitor Center on Saturday, April 14, will stay dry if it rains. Programs and workshops will take place as planned. The full schedule of expert-guided hikes will also take place, rain or shine, unless severe weather threatens. Hikers are advised to dress for wet weather, and can check the Friends of South Cumberland website <https://www.trailsandtrilliums.org> or Friends Facebook Page on Saturday for weather-related hike schedule updates.

This year, the programs and activities associated with Trails and Trilliums moves to the South Cumberland State Park Visitor Center in Monteagle. From 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Saturday, April 14, rain or shine, the Visitor Center will come alive with a

At the April 9 meeting of the Franklin County School Board, Assistant Superintendent Linda Foster recommended a 2 percent increase for all certified employees, raising questions about whether the amount was adequate and whether the money would be available.

"We haven't made progress on our need to attract and retain quality teachers," said fifth district school board representative Adam Tucker. "We're having the same conversation we had last year, and I'm disappointed. Two percent barely covers the cost of living increase."

Eighth district school board member Sara Liechty noted teachers' salaries increased based on years of service, but that increase stopped at the 20-year mark.

"In other area school systems, teachers receive salary increases up to 25 years and in some systems up to 35 years," Foster acknowledged.

Pradip Malde

Malde Named a Guggenheim Fellow

Professor of Art Pradip Malde has been awarded a 2018 Guggenheim Fellowship. The John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation awarded Fellowships this spring to 175 U.S. and Canadian scholars, artists, and scientists who were appointed on the basis of prior achievement and exceptional promise, and were chosen from a group of 3,000 applicants.

Malde teaches classes at the University of the South in photography, documentary photography, and electronic media. He is currently working in rural communities in Haiti, Tanzania, and Tennessee, designing models for community development through photography. His work in Haiti will be shown at the RAY 2018 Photo Triennial this summer in Frankfurt, Germany. That forum calls his photos an "homage to the resilience of Haiti." Much of Malde's photography considers the experience of loss and how it serves as a catalyst for regeneration. The Guggenheim Fellowship will support work on a new book of photographs.

Malde's works are held in collections including the Museum of the Art Institute, Chicago; Princeton University Museum; Victoria & Albert Museum, London; Yale University Museum; and the Scottish National Portrait Gallery, Edinburgh.

Couple Weaves a Graceful Retirement

by Kevin Cummings, Messenger Staff Writer

The two best friends sip turmeric and ginger tea as they offer an extended lesson on weaving and aging with grace.

Will and Glyn Melnyk, married 32 years and both retired Episcopal priests, recently opened a studio in their Monteagle home to display and sell the handwoven creations of their hobby-turned-business, Ephods and Pomegranates.

The new studio also houses their two looms, where they weave together three or four days a week.

"Weaving is contemplative, creative and quiet. It's also fairly decent aerobic exercise, because you use both hands and both feet," Glyn said.

Glyn bought her first loom from the niece of folk music legend Pete Seeger in 1999 in Woodstock, N.Y. Glyn was a natural, so Seeger's niece, who believed in re-incarnation, thought she must have been a weaver at some point in a past life. What Glyn recalls is weaving pine needles together as a kid.

The name of the Melnyk's business comes from an Ephod, a garment or breastplate that the Old Testament says some priests wore in ancient Jewish culture, and the pomegranate, a prominent symbol of Israel. The Melnyks are co-founders of People of the Mountain, a local Jewish group.

Will and Glyn also both graduated from Sewanee's School of Theology, Will in 1981 and Glyn in 1992, and together there are eight Episcopal priests in their family.

In addition to sharing their clergy careers, they also share a number of other interests, including being students of string instruments, with Will playing the violin and Glyn playing the cello.

"We're each other's best friends, so if one of us does something, the other knows about it," Glyn said.

They are both writers and poets as well, and Glyn is a food blogger. She said they are thoroughly enjoying their interests during retirement, which started about four years ago after they moved to Monteagle after both serving

SUCCESSFUL RACE WEEKEND

To the Editor:

The Mountain Goat Trail Alliance and the South Cumberland Chamber of Commerce would like to thank everyone who made last weekend's Socumos Mountain Goat Trail Race Weekend a success.

More than 200 runners and walkers participated, with 84 finishing the first-ever MGT Half Marathon from Tracy City to Sewanee. Thanks to all who braved the cold and fog to take part!

Our corporate sponsors allowed us to add race timing and other amenities this year. Special thanks to Mountain Outfitters, who outdid themselves for the fifth year, and to Farmers Insurance, Lodge Manufacturing, Socumos, Coca-Cola, Blue Chair, Ben Lomand, Novacopy, the Town of Monteagle, Tower Community Bank, Dutch Maid Bakery, Shenanigans, the Sewanee Mountain Messenger, Monteagle Inn & Retreat Center, Sewanee Inn, Citizens Tri-County Bank, Mountain Goat Market, Mountain Valley Bank, Piggly-Wiggly, and Southern Tennessee Regional Health System.

Thanks also to our volunteers, including Joseph Sumpter, and MGTA and Chamber board members, as well as students from St. Andrew's-Sewanee School and the Healthy Hut at the University of the South. SAS also provided shuttle buses and drivers for the weekend. Spike Hosch, Sydney Masterson, and Will Priest shot great race photos. Mooney's Market & Emporium provided a water station for the fifth year. The Arts Inside program of the Grundy County Jail, via Hilda Vaughn and Spike Hosch, and Grundy Area Arts Council via Christi Teasley provided the handmade finishers' medals for the half-marathon.

Thanks to the police departments of Sewanee, Monteagle and Tracy City for keeping us and our runners and walkers safe on the roads.

Finally, thanks to all in the community who support the Mountain Goat Trail, and help make our communities healthier and happier. See you next year!

Patrick Dean, Executive Director, Mountain Goat Trail Alliance

Stoker-Stampfli Farm Work Days

The Stoker-Stampfli Farm Museum in Gruetli-Laager needs your help. On April 20 and 21, there will be work days to do some needed repairs on the farm, beginning at 9 a.m. These work days will help repair and preserve this 149-year-old farm that is in the care of the Grundy County Swiss Historical Society. The goal of the Society is to preserve this Swiss Farm for the children of the area so that they can see what farm life was like long ago.

This event is open to anyone who would graciously like to help. Come with hammer, shovel, paint brush, rake, power tools or cleaning equipment; whatever your skill is we can use your help. Some projects include: clean, sand and stain the outside of the caretaker cottage as well as lay plastic under the cottage; build a rail for the front porch and steps; replace a post and beam at the barn; and shave bark from pine logs for rebuilding the tiny log house.

Church News

All Saints’ Chapel

Growing in Grace will continue Sunday, April 15, at 6:30 p.m. in All Saints’ Chapel. Our speakers this semester will address significant gathering places in their lives. Christ assures us “where two or three are gathered in my name, I am there among them” (Matthew 18:20, NRSV). We return again and again to certain communities and physical spaces in the hope of also being in the presence of something divine. Where are those places for us? Who are the people we become our purest selves in? How do we experience Christ’s presence when only two or three stand with us? Tonight, Annie Adams, a member of the class of 2017 and an Editorial Assistant at the Sewanee Review, will share her perspective on these queries. For more information, email Lay Chaplain Kayla Deep at <kayla.deep@sewanee.edu>.

Catechumenate will conclude Wednesday, April 18, at 6:30 p.m. in the Women’s Center. A catered meal will be provided. Based around fellowship, study, openness, and conversation, the Catechumenate serves as a foundational piece for the Christian faith, as well as a forum for discussion for people of all backgrounds. This week we will conclude this academic year and reflect on our time together. All are welcome! For more information, email Lay Chaplain Kayla Deep at <kayla.deep@sewanee.edu>.

Compline will be sung by members of the University Choir on Wednesday night, April 25, at 9 p.m. in Guerry Garth. (In the event of rain, All Saints’ Chapel.) The brief, candle-lit service offers a peaceful conclusion to the day.

Otey Parish

How do we know what we know? Doubting Thomas wanted evidence, but can we really prove faith by empirical observation? What is the difference and relationship between how science “knows” or proves something and how we as faithful believers (or occasional doubters) can feel confident about our religious claims?

At the Adult Forum on Sunday, April 15, Cynthia Crysdale, professor at the School of Theology, will discuss the rise of modern science and how it impacted the way we understand religious faith and knowing.

Crysdale first worked on these questions while participating in a colloquium for more than 3 years with parents; and brother Larry Gambrell. He is survived by his wife of 47 years, Maggie Gambrell; children, David Gambrell of Murfreesboro, Krissy (Casey) Henley of Nashville, and Barbara (Isaac) King of Sewanee; brother Terry Gambrell of Clarksville, and four grandchildren.

He wished for his ashes to be spread at their lakeside home in Coalmont, at Twin Creeks Marina, and beside his dad’s grave in Cookeville. In lieu of flowers, the family requests making a donation in honor and memory of Danny Gambrell to: The Hope Lodge, American Cancer Society, 2008 Charlotte Avenue, Nashville, TN 37203.

Special thanks to New Beginnings Church, Monteagle, Amedysis Health Care, and Layne’s Funeral Home. For complete obituary go to <www.layne-funearlhome.com>.

Williams said there were “rumors about a 2 percent raise for all county employees,” but expressed concern the county commission might not approve the increase. Likewise, the amount of state Basic Education Program (BEP) funding remains unknown.

Foster anticipates having BEP estimates next week. “We can move backward if we need to,” Foster said, if funding amounts came in below expected levels.

The board approved an across the board 2 percent increase for all certified employees for budgeting purposes.

Turning to the pay scale for classified and support employees, Foster recommended category-based increases for maintenance employees and a 2 percent increase for all others.

Foster proposed a starting wage of $15.50 per hour for employees experienced in carpentry, flooring, painting, and plumbing and $18 per hour for licensed HVAC technicians and electricians. “We need skilled maintenance people most of the time, and we won’t get them for $11 per hour,” Foster said, citing last year’s budget.

Seventh district board member Gary Hanger called attention to the shortage of substitute teachers at the high school level and speculated raising the wage might help.

Non-certified substitutes earn $62.50 per day and certified substitutes earn $67.50 per day.

Williams said increasing certified substitutes pay could result in substitutes making more than assistants who earned $69 per day.

Liechty and Hanger stressed substitutes had far more responsibility than assistants and that certified substitutes did a far better job of managing a class and keeping order than non-certified substitutes.

Hanger said Tullahoma City Schools paid certified substitutes $100 day.

The board approved Foster’s recommended classified and support employees pay scale amended to increase the certified substitutes’ wage to $80 per day to help alleviate the substitute shortage.

In other businesses the board voted to sell a vacant 5.2 acre tract adjacent to the Townsend School property. Nearby property recently sold for $5,000 per acre. The board set the minimum bid on the vacant tract at $15,000.

Director of Schools Stanley Bean asked the board to increase his contract from two years to four years, citing ongoing issues confronting the school system, notably the new middle school initiative. Bean will meet individually with board members to discuss the request.

School system safety specialist Mark Montoye provided the board with an overview of the Interquest Detection Canines program, which uses dogs in unannounced searches to detect illegal and prescription drugs, alcohol, weapons, and ammunition. Searches by law enforcement canines only detected illegal items, Montoye noted.

Montoye stressed the dogs were “not aggressive” and trained to sit to signal a “hit.” The school principal and school resource officers then dealt with the issue.

The program would cost $550 per visit, with both high schools and both middle schools inspected.

Tucker asked to postpone a vote on the program to confirm law enforcement’s approval and to investigate whether it violated 4th amendment rights prohibiting unreasonable search.

Two parents addressed the board. Joanne Hammer asked the board to adopt a foreign exchange student policy. Hammer said her daughter was not eligible for the Beta Club and National Honor Society in her senior year because she was not considered enrolled during her junior year in Japan. Chris Ball asked the board to adopt a student protest policy requiring board and parent approval for a student to protest and forbidding protests by students below the high school level.

The board meets next May 14.

Middle School Funding Unresolved: County Commission Wants Out-the-Door Price

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

On April 10, the Franklin County School Board and Franklin County Commission met in a joint session to discuss funding options for addressing the problem of the county’s two aging middle schools.

In 2016, the engineering firm Oliver, Little, and Gipson (OLG) presented the board with three possible solutions: renovate (cost $35–$37 million); build two new schools (cost $48–$55 million); build a single consolidated school (cost $32–$37 million).

In May of 2017, the school board passed a resolution requesting the County Commission authorize a $37.5 million bond to fund construction of a single consolidated school. The board rejected renovation due to structural issues with the buildings and disruption of students during the 15–20 month renovation process.

“If money were not an issue the board would want two new schools,” said fifth district school board representative Adam Tucker, “but we decided it was not a realistic ask, so we set that option aside.”

“I’ve talked to parents, and nobody wants one big school,” said commissioner Angie Fuller, seventh district seat B, speaking in favor of renovation.

Commissioners Iris Rudder, first district seat B, and Barbara Finney, sixth district seat A, concurred.

Commissioner Lisa Mason, second district seat A, said the people in her district favored one school and strongly objected to children being in the buildings during renovation due to mold issues.

Commissioner David Eldridge, seventh district seat A, suggested the construction cost figures were “inflated” and that the schools were told to “ask for everything you’d like to have.”

Board member Lance Williams, third district, insisted, “We’re not asking for anything but the basics, library, cafeteria, and auditorium.”

Tucker pointed out the cost figures did not include furnishings, computers, and other amenities and were engineering estimates, not actual design plans. “We haven’t engaged an architect,” he said.

Engineer Tim Little with OLG estimated an architectural design would cost $1.8 million.

“The actual cost could be $45 million,” said commissioner Dave Van Buskirk, third district seat A, citing the new jail where the cost greatly exceeded estimates.

Commissioner Gene Snead, first district seat A, said he wanted a comparison of operating costs for the three options over 50 years. “There’s a lot of efficiency in one building,” Snead said.

“We don’t want to spend thousands of dollars on studies,” Williams said.

“Or engage an architect when we don’t know we have funding for the project,” Tucker added.

County Commission Chair Eddie Clark, fourth district seat A, observed if the cost of the consolidated school held at $37.5 million, the county could fund the project without a tax increase once the new high school was paid off in 2022.

Tucker confirmed that was correct, but if construction began now, an 8 percent tax increase would be needed “to get us through the first few years.”

“As a county commissioner I can’t support funding for ‘ifs.’ It’s the boards call about the school, but our call about funding,” said Rudder. “Dr. Lonas [former director of schools] did a good job of selling the consolidated school idea to the community. That’s what the board and commission need to do, but we need an ‘out the door price.’”

“Do we want to do what’s cheaper or what people want?” asked commissioner Helen Stapleton, fifth district seat B.

Commissioner Johnny Hughes, fifth district seat A, suggested letting the public decide by a referendum and funding the project with a wheel tax.

County Finance Director Andrea Smith said the county couldn’t afford the $1.8 million for the architectural design without issuing a bond.

“There’s a risk the commission won’t approve the design if the cost is too high,” Van Buskirk said.

Eldridge concurred. “We may need to eat the $1.8 million.”

“Will the commission even discuss two new schools?” asked school board member Linda Jones, second district.

“If you want two schools, bring us the facts,” Rudder said.

Summing up the evenings discussion, Board Chair Cleijo Walker, sixth district, said, “We can’t give you exact figures without making an expenditure of money.”

as rectors in the Philadelphia area.

Their weaving studio is adorned with unique prayer shawls, altar cloths, scarves, table runners and other items that they have created as the business expanded during retirement. But weaving is an art for them and they try to avoid production weaving, preferring unique pieces for people.

This year they will display their work at Wildflowers and Wine at the Monteagle Inn, from 5:30 to 7 p.m., Saturday, April 14, as part of Trails and Trilliums.

Will, who is Jewish, has a Judaica line of wovens. He said Judaism is as varied as Christianity, but there are some Orthodox Jewish pieces that have highly detailed requirements, including specific fibers and knots.

The prayer shawls or stoles at Ephods, no matter the tradition and culture, are popular items.

“The idea with that kind of garment is to create a personal prayer space,” Will said. “You may not have your own little chapel to go in but you can sit down in front of the fireplace and put your prayer stole on and it puts you in the mood for meditation and prayer.”

Spirituality and contemplation is something the Melnyk’s incorporate into the weaving and patterns, often using Fibonacci sequences. Will has also woven music into prayer shawls. By assigning colors to notes and using varying widths to indicate lengths of notes, he has incorporated musical scores into the garments, including Mozart’s Piano Sonata No. 11 and a Bach piece as a present for his violin teacher.

Glyn also does overshot weaving, which is essentially weaving two patterns at once. She said the process is very labor intensive and depending on the fiber, can be extremely delicate. Will is learning how to overshot weave and it brings out his philosophical side.

“It’s kind of like life, there are fundamental foundations and then there are all kinds of embellishments,” he said. “Another way of looking at it is there are ways that people are all the same, but then there are fantastic variations.”

In October, the Melnyks will take their spiritual weaving lessons on the road to Mississippi for the Liturgical Arts Conference. Their class is called “Weaving the Soul’s Warp and Weft,” with warp being lengthwise and weft being crosswise.

“The metaphor of weaving is not just one for construction of life, but construction of one’s spiritual path and philosophy of life,” Glyn said.

Ephods and Pomegranates offers local classes in weaving and would like to expand what they do for the community. Glyn said she wants to start teaching weaving to grade school students and the Melnyks also would like to help recent graduates of the School of Theology by selling vestment items at or below cost.

Amidst a lesson on sleigh hooks, sequencing and threading the heddles—and the challenge of big feet to treading, the Melnyks say weaving can be broken down into simple steps, but requires coordination and plenty of focus.

“The only thing you can’t fix in weaving is if you cut it too short,” Glyn said. “You can’t put the threads back together again, but virtually everything else can be repaired.”

Ephods and Pomegranates can be found on Amazon and Etsy. The studio is open to the public, but the Melnyks ask that customers call ahead at (610) 357-6813. For more information, visit <ephodsandpomegranates.com>.

The Family Fun activities will take a 30-minute break for lunch at 12:30 p.m., but the newly-renovated Visitor Center exhibit area, featuring a pioneer cabin, plant and animal exhibits, a hands-on video microscope, and the State Park's Gift Shop, will be open all day.

The fabulous Wine and Wildflowers celebration will be at the Monteaegle Inn on Saturday, April 14, from 5:30 to 7 p.m. A terrific selection of wines and hors d'oeuvres will be highlighted by the presentation of this year's Trails and Trilliums Tribute Award to longtime Friends supporter and outdoor journalist Bob Butters, whose many articles about the outdoor wonders of the Southern Cumberland Plateau and South Cumberland State Park appear on his blog <www.Nickajack-Naturalist.com>. Tickets for Wine and Wildflowers, an important fundraiser for the Friends of South Cumberland, can be purchased online at <TrailsAndTrilliums.org>.

Proceeds from all ticket sales, as well as art and craft sales, support South Cumberland State Park through the work of the Friends of South Cumberland. Learn more about how the Friends are making a difference in the park at <friendsofsouthcumberland.org>.

This year's Trails and Trilliums festival is made possible with support from Lodge Cast Iron. Saturday evening's Wine and Wildflowers celebration is presented by Toner Community Bank, and the new Family Fun activities are made possible through the generosity of Doug Ferris and John D. Canale.

SAS Celebrates 37th Annual Earth Day

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School will celebrate its 37th annual Earth Day on Wednesday, April 18. Since 1982, the school has suspended regular classes for one full day each year of learning and fun in celebration of the environment.

The morning of Earth Day begins with a bike-in from Sewanee to the SAS campus. Students can join the convoy at the Fowler Center at 7:20 a.m. or at Shenanigans at 7:25 a.m. The school community will convene in McCrory Hall for the Performing Arts at 8 a.m. to hear Mark Keranen of Stony Creek Colors. Workshops will begin at 9 a.m. followed by an Earth Day-inspired picnic feast prepared by students. Following lunch the entire SAS community will gather in McCrory Hall for an Earth Day-inspired Creative Expression Assembly and Chapel service, an opportunity to share music, poetry and skits. The day's celebrations end with House Cup Games at the Varsity Field.

Workshops this year focus on environmentally conscious consumer choices, mountain biking and various hikes, campus trail and orchard maintenance, campus clean-up, and environmentally-inspired art and art activism. Students will explore the history of science denial in America, aquaponics, nature writing, water treatment, yoga, the human journey, natural disasters, and local environmental history. A theme of several of this year's workshops is the opportunity to unplug from electronic devices.

The Earth Day guest lecturer, Mark Keranen is a chemist at Stony Creek Colors, a Tennessee company dedicated to creating environmentally-friendly dyes for the fashion industry. His talk will be "To Indigo and Beyond: A Modern Chemical Company's Sustainable Approach to Natural Colorants." Keranen holds a doctorate in organic chemistry from TU Dortmund University in North Rhine-Westphalia, Germany. He is a synthetic organic and natural products chemist with extensive expertise in botanical extraction and process optimization. The public is welcome to attend the talk.

Boy Scout Worm Casting Fundraiser

Sewanee Boy Scout Troop 14 is again selling locally sourced, premium worm castings for the troop's annual fundraiser. The Scouts are working hard to help fund a National High Adventure Camp at Sea Base in Florida, in December 2018. Worm castings are extremely rich in organic matter and make an excellent soil amendment for vegetable gardens and flower beds as well as container plants. Each bag is 1 cubic foot and weighs approximately 25-28 pounds. Bags are priced at $15 each. A cubic yard is priced at $200, with a 1 yard minimum purchase, although half yard increments above the minimum purchase are welcome. Bulk price is approximately half the cost of the bagged equivalent, and the troop is also offering bulk delivery this year. Please call Alex Neubauer at (931) 308-9343, email <tanagherhill@gmail.com>, or contact a Scout to place orders and arrange pick-up.

The Boy Scout Troop 14 is also supported with funds from the Sewanee Community Chest.

Diane Nash Lecture

Diane Nash, an icon of the American Civil Rights movement, will speak on "The Movements of the '60s: A Legacy for Today," at 7 p.m., Tuesday, April 17, at Convocation Hall. Nash was prominently involved with integrating lunch counters through sit-ins, the Freedom Riders, the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee, and King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and was part of a committee that promoted the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Nash's presentation is sponsored by the Sewanee Project on Slavery, Race, and Reconciliation, Bairnwick Women's Center, Women's and Gender Studies, and the Center for Speaking and Listening.

Memory and History Symposium

The liberal arts frequently enrich each other, as two recent books by Sewanee authors show. William E. Engel's book, edited with two other scholars, "The Memory Arts in Renaissance England: A Critical Anthology" (Cambridge University Press, 2016), and W. Brown Patterson's book, "Thomas Fuller: Discovering England's Religious Past" (Oxford University Press, 2018), intersect at many points. They will be featured in a symposium entitled "The Art of Memory and the New History in Early Modern England." It will be held on Wednesday, April 18, in Gailor Auditorium, 4:30-5:30 p.m., followed by refreshments and a book signing.

William E. Engel is Nick B. Williams Professor of English at Sewanee. Engel's talk will focus on the memory arts with reference to the history of ideas and ideas of history in early modern England. The memory palace will be shown to be a means by which the past was preserved. His presentation will attest to the way in which the memory arts helped to construct nationhood at the level of the subject's imagination.

W. Brown Patterson is Francis S. Houghteling Professor of History Emeritus. Patterson will show how concern to preserve a memory of the past was fundamental to the work of Thomas Fuller (1608-61), an essayist, theologian, and historian who was the first Protestant to write a critical narrative of the Church in Britain from antiquity to the revolutionary Civil Wars of Fuller's own time. Both authors will analyze Fuller's history of the "worthies," notable persons past and present.

Susan J. Ridyard, Professor of History, will preside and J. Ross MacDonald, Assistant Professor of English, will provide a commentary. The symposium is co-sponsored by the Friends of the Library, the Department of English, and the Department of History. It is free and open to the public.

More information about the Friends of the Library can be found at their website <<http://library.sewanee.edu/FOL>>. If you have questions about the symposium or joining the Friends, please contact Tim Garner at 931-598-1265 or <tegarner@sewanee.edu>.

Gessell Social Ethics Lecture

In December 2015, students of Franklin County High School in Winchester, Tenn., founded a local chapter of the Gay-Straight Alliance (GSA), igniting a debate about the organization's efficacy that ultimately reached a national stage. While some community members actively supported the GSA's formation as a safe space for LGBTQIA+ individuals and allied students, others compared it to the Islamic State and appealed to nationally-recognized hate groups to assist in their anti-GSA campaign.

Kate Davenport, the 2017-18 Gessell Fellow, researched the conversations and issues that arose during the formation of the GSA in 2015. She will present her research that delves into the club's history, explores the realities of the Franklin County GSA today, and builds on social theory that supports the need for such organizations. Her presentation "Fighting for Safe Spaces: Clashes, Controversy, and the Franklin County High School Gay-Straight Alliance" will be 4:30-5:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 24, at the McGriff Alumni House.

The Gessell Fellowship in Social Ethics, established by John M. "Jack" Gessell in 2006, provides funding for Sewanee students to do an independent research project in social theory or social ethics. The project may be an academic research paper or field experience. Awards alternate yearly between students from the College and the School of Theology. For more information, please contact Career & Leadership Development at 931-598-1121 or <careers@sewanee.edu>.

Parini on 'The Way Of Jesus'

Writer Jay Parini will return to Sewanee this month to speak about his new book, "The Way of Jesus: Living a Spiritual and Ethical Life." His talk will be at 4:30 p.m., Monday, April 16, in Convocation Hall, with a reception and book-signing to follow. The community is invited to Parini's talk.

Parini, who last visited Sewanee in 2015, is a prolific poet, novelist, and biographer, and is the D. E. Axinn Professor of English and Creative Writing at Middlebury College. He is the author of six books of poetry; eight novels, including "The Last Station," which was made into an Academy Award-nominated film in 2009; and biographies of John Steinbeck, Robert Frost, William Faulkner, and Gore Vidal. He writes for various publications, including The New York Times, The Guardian, and The Chronicle of Higher Education.

"The Way of Jesus" has been described as a book for progressive Christians and spiritual seekers who struggle with some of the basic questions about human existence: its limits and sadnesses, and its possibilities for awareness and understanding.

Muchemi, C'19, Receives 2018 Newman Civic Fellow Award

Eunice Muchemi, C'19, has been named a recipient of the 2018 Newman Civic Fellows Award. The award is presented by Campus Compact, a Boston-based nonprofit organization working to advance the public purposes of higher education. Muchemi was nominated by Vice-Chancellor John McCardell.

An International and Global Studies major with a minor in Women's and Gender Studies, Muchemi has worked actively in multiple capacities to address the global issue of gender violence. In 2017, she served as a research, policy, and advocacy intern at the Center for Domestic Violence Prevention in Kampala, Uganda, and as an intern with A Ban Against Neglect in Accra, Ghana, which supports underserved women and children. Inspired by her academic and engaged work on-campus and abroad, she has become a Leadership Fellow at Sewanee. In that capacity, she is living and working in Bairnwick Women's Center to raise awareness about domestic violence and issues related to intersectionality.

"The liberal arts curriculum and experiences abroad helped me to locate my focus within my passion, the intersection of development and gender-based violence," Muchemi says.

As president of the African Caribbean Student Association, she promotes awareness and celebration of African and Caribbean cultures while also fostering a welcoming environment for Sewanee's students, faculty, and staff. As a Posse Scholar, Muchemi has been involved in the facilitation of numerous workshops and the planning of two retreats that provide a platform for the Sewanee students, staff, and faculty to discuss the nature of linguistic micro-aggressions and challenge of identity to inclusivity.

"I am committed to finding ways to collaborate in our rural setting to create spaces for women to mentor and lift up the next generation of women's rights advocates," Muchemi says. As a Leadership Fellow, she is also working on a team of cross-campus leaders charged with designing a sustainable solution for addressing negative features of undergraduate drinking culture.

As a Newman Civic Fellow, Muchemi will participate in virtual and in-person learning opportunities, including a national conference of Fellows. The Newman Civic Fellowship, named for Campus Compact co-founder Frank Newman, is a one-year experience emphasizing personal, professional, and civic growth. The Newman Civic Fellowship supports the next generation of public problem solvers in their personal, professional, and civic growth.

This year, the Newman Civic Fellowship was awarded to 268 community-committed students representing Campus Compact member colleges and universities. Eliana Perozo, C'18, and Gabby Valentine, C'17, were Sewanee's last two Newman Civic Fellows.

The Sewanee Elementary fifth grade class taught by Lauren Godfrey won the latest Reusable Bag Draw at the Piggly Wiggly.

Tigers Don't Leave Tracks

Lauren Godfrey's fifth grade class has won the latest Reusable Bag Draw at the Piggly Wiggly. Thank you to everyone who participated by using reusable bags, and by nominating a class!

Sewanee Elementary's Tigers Don't Leave Tracks! project is aimed at reducing use of single-use plastics and other waste, from plastic shopping bags to single-use water bottles to straws. Little changes make a big difference.

Through the Reusable Bag Draw, and thanks to the support of our participating local businesses, TDLT has given sturdy reusable Klean Kanteen water bottles to all the children in three different classes at Sewanee Elementary this year.

Show your support by continuing to bring your reusable bags to local businesses. Mooney's, The Lemon Fair, Village Wine and Spirits and Monteagle Wine and Spirits are all making donations to the school every time you do. When you bring your own bags to the Piggly Wiggly, write the name of a teacher or a class on the back of your receipt (grade 2, Mrs. Camp's class, Principal's Choice) and put it in the TDLT jar at the front of the store. Together we can get reusable water bottles to all the kids in the school, and together we can reduce our use.

Thank you for supporting Tigers Don't Leave Tracks! and Sewanee Elementary.

‘A Tear in the Veil:’ 2018 Senior Art Major Exhibition

The University Art Gallery proudly presents “A Tear in the Veil,” an exhibition of work by the University of the South’s graduating senior art majors: Aidan Bliss, Caney Hummon, Relly King, Maria Monterde, Charles Pappas, Hunter Swenson and Brook Vann.

With “A Tear in the Veil,” the University of the South’s graduating senior art majors ask viewers to look beyond the immediacy of surface appearances and first encounters to consider broader implications and deeper truths. Their work, from multimedia portraits to photographs, questions meaning and how it is made. The power and associations of different media and materials are questioned, as are the meanings given to repeating forms.

Please join us for a series of special events in association with the exhibition: an opening reception at 4:30 p.m., Friday, April 20, artist talks on Friday, April 27, from 9 to 11 a.m. and 11:30 to 1:30 p.m. in Convocation Hall, and a Baccalaureate reception on Saturday, May 12, from 1 to 3 p.m., celebrating the graduating artists and the close of a successful exhibition season.

Sewanee’s University Art Gallery is located on Georgia Avenue. The gallery is free, accessible, and open to the public. Hours are 10 a.m.–5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and noon–4 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Please note that the UAG is closed during academic breaks. Call (931) 598-1968 for more information, visit the website at <gallery.sewanee.edu>, or follow us on Facebook.

Hunter Swenson is an Art Honors candidate, majoring in both art and philosophy from Sewanee. Hunter is a photographer and sculptor, whose work deals with experiences, spaces and language. Hunter has done photographic work in Grundy County, Colorado, Haiti, Jamaica and Tanzania. See more at <http://www.hunterswenson.com>.

‘Conversations in a Plastic Room’

The Carlos Gallery in the Nabit Art Building at the University of the South is pleased to present “Conversations in a Plastic Room,” an exhibition of projections, sculpture and sound by Art Honors candidate (2018), Brook Vann. On Friday, April 27, 12:30–1:30 p.m., Convocation Hall, there will be an artist talk, which is open to the public.

“Conversations in a Plastic Room” brings deeply personal experiences onto a broader backdrop about different types of human interaction. Brook Vann is an Art Honors candidate (2018), majoring in Art with a minor in Spanish. She uses lens-based media, sound and sculptural works to understand her personal experience of being a triplet against the broader backdrop of different types of human interaction. She has worked in rural Tennessee, North Carolina, Haiti, Uganda and Tanzania.

The Carlos Gallery, Nabit Art Building, is located on 105 Kennerly Rd., Sewanee. Gallery hours are Monday–Friday, 8 a.m.–5 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday 1–5 p.m. For more information contact Jessica Wohl at 598–1256 or <jewohl@sewanee.edu>.

Graffiti Gallery at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School.

Graffiti Gallery at SAS

This spring, the students and faculty of St. Andrew's-Sewanee School are undertaking a new creative endeavor. They are spending a month creating a series of graffiti-inspired murals across the walls, floor and ceiling of the SAS Gallery using only black electrical tape.

Graffiti Gallery originated in a desire to host a project which can involve the entire community. The SAS Art Department was inspired further by the vibrant culture springing up globally around tape art and murals through projects such as the city-wide Tape Over Berlin in Germany and the enormous tape mural on the exterior of The Brooks Museum in Memphis. They have chosen to use electrical tape exclusively at SAS as it is recyclable and easy to work with.

The public is invited to come by and watch the work in progress. Artists will be working Monday–Friday, between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. through April 26. The 10:30 a.m. work periods are proving especially exciting. Additionally, there will be a public reception at 10 a.m., Thursday, April 19.

The SAS Gallery is located on the campus of St. Andrew's-Sewanee School, in the center of Simmonds Building, at 290 Quintard Road. For more information contact Gallery Director Julie Jones <jjones@sasweb.org>.

On April 3, the St. Andrew's-Sewanee School varsity girls' and boys' tennis teams opened the season with a home district match against Grace Baptist Academy (Chattanooga).

Crawford teamed with Alex Brewster (Sewanee) to win at No. 2 doubles and tie the overall match at 3-3. The No. 1 doubles team of Tanner King (Sewanee) and Eli Thompson (Belvidere) had a hard-fought battle that came down to a tiebreaker, and they clinched the team victory by winning

Mountain Lions Stomp Feet

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee School boys' varsity soccer team defeated rival Webb School of Bell Buckle, Tenn., 4-1, in front of a supportive home crowd on April 10. The Mountain Lions moved to 3-3 with the win.

Webb got on the score board first and led 1-0 at halftime.

"We had multiple opportunities," said SAS head coach Harrison Camp, "but we couldn't score."

In the second half, SAS capitalized on constant pressure with a strong strike to the back of the net from the top of the box by Joe McDonough, a senior day student from Sewanee.

Gabe Stevens, a junior boarding student from Jacmel, Haiti, was a reliable playmaker, and he provided service for three additional goals for the Mountain Lions. Will Bongard, a senior boarding student from Bloomington, Ind., finished for SAS, as did Aidan Smith, a sophomore day student from Sewanee, who brought a volley under control into goal. Porter Neubauer, a ninth-grade day student from Belvidere, scored the fourth SAS goal.

Smith directed a strong back line that included Myers Gorrell, a ninth-grade day student from Sewanee, Gabriel Bartolomeo, a sophomore boarding student from Munich, Germany, and Laurenz Schumacher, a sophomore boarding student from Cologne, Germany.

Cailan McLean, a sophomore day student from Sewanee, was in goal for SAS.

SAS Track and Field Already Breaking Records

On April 5, St. Andrew's-Sewanee School hosted Sequatchie County High School for SAS's first track meet of the year. SAS lost a nailbiter, 122-121, but broke two school records in the loss.

Senior Emmanuel Thombs (Raleigh, N.C.) cleared 6 feet on the high jump, beating the SAS record from 2003 of 5'11".

Junior Jalen Tillman (Parkville, Md.) threw the shot 46 feet 7 inches, beating the previous record from 2012 of 45'1.5".

"When you see two records shattered in the very first meet of the season, you know it's going to be an exciting year," said head coach Sam Montgomery.

St. Andrew's-Sewanee had top three finishes in the following boys' events: 4x200, third place; junior Ryan Val (Tracy City), junior Georgi Georgiev (Bulgaria), freshman Curtis Gill (South Pittsburg) and senior Bailey McLean (Sewanee); 4x100, second

Sewanee's Symonds Wins Golf Tourney

For the second time this season, Sewanee's Meghan Symonds won a tournament, as the Sewanee women's golf team concluded the regular season on April 9 by hosting the Sewanee Spring Invitational.

The Tigers finished third out of 12 teams at the Greystone Golf Club in Dickson, Tenn., firing a 640, five strokes behind tournament winner Berry College.

Individually, Symonds shot a three-over-par, 151. The junior chipped in two birdies, and of the 36 holes she played in the two-day tournament, the Cary, N.C., native only bogeyed seven times.

After 18 holes on April 8, Sewanee was tied for second with Oglethorpe, scoring a 321, and one stroke ahead of Berry College. Despite a 319 final

Roark's Cove

The Sewanee Herbarium sponsored a walk on a property in Roark's Cove on April 8, somewhat later than in past years. The toothwort, hepatica, and trout lilies were already past flowering, but the bluebells were still in good shape and the shooting star was outstanding. Also noted in flower were numerous windflowers (rue anemone), woodland phlox, Virginia spring beauties, fire pink, smooth yellow violet, early blue violet, false garlic, little sweet Betsy trillium, violet wood sorrel, and the occasional mayapple. The trifoliolate-orange flowers were fading—this Chinese native of the citrus family was cultivated in the South as a living hedge due to its formidable thorns. It produces a bitter fruit. Among native woody plants, two buckeyes were in bloom—the red buckeye, which can be seen planted in Abbo's Alley, and Ohio buckeye, a shrub or small tree with yellowish flowers.

Pets of the Week

Meet Bailey & Punkin

Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption.

Bailey is a bouncy Beagle mix, all energy and ready to play. He is about two years old and has an ear-to-ear smile that will invite you to join him in an adventure. If you need some exercise, Bailey is your man. He is also quite a singer! Bailey is heartworm-negative, up-to-date on shots, microchipped, and neutered.

Punkin is an elegant little black and white lady with a white scarf and matching mittens on all four feet. She is 11 years old, affectionate, and playful as a kitten. She came to us at the Harbor because sadly, her person passed away recently. Discover the joys of adopting an older cat (she already knows how to "cat") and honor Punkin and the woman who loved her by making her your very own kitty. Punkin is spayed, microchipped, FeLV/FIV negative and up-to-date on her shots.

Animal Harbor offers substantial adoption fee discounts for seniors and veterans. Pets adopted from Animal Harbor qualify for a free post-adoption wellness exam by local veterinarians.

Animal Harbor is located at 56 Nor-Nan Road, off AEDC Road, in Winchester. Call Animal Harbor at (931) 962-4472 for information and check out the other pets at <animalharbor.org>. Thursday, April 19

Intro to Birding—(Free) Come to the Visitors' Center, 11745 U.S. Hwy. 41, Monteagle, at 8:30 a.m. to join Ranger John Ball on the meadow trail for an introduction to the world of birding. It will be a learning experience for everyone, unless you are a birding guru (in which case, you're in charge!). If you have binoculars be sure to bring them. The program will last 30-45 minutes, and you might walk up to 1.5 miles. Email: <John.Ball@tn.gov> more info.

Saturday, April 21

Savage Gulf History Hike ($10 fee)—Join Ranger Aaron Reid at 8:30 a.m. at Stone Door parking lot, 1183 Stone Door Rd., Beersheba Springs, to learn how early settlers survived in what is now Savage Gulf State Natural Area. This is a difficult 8-mile hike including The Great Stone Door, boulder fields, river crossings, and over 1,500 ft. of elevation change, and will take approximately 6-8 hours. Please come prepared: hiking boots, backpack, extra layers of clothing, lunch, snacks, and plenty of water. Email: <aaron.reid@tn.gov> to register.

Sunday, April 22

Natural Teas from Forest and Field (Free)—Meet up with Ranger James Holland at 4 p.m. at the Stone Door fire ring, 1183 Stone Door Rd., Beersheba Springs, to prepare and sample a variety of natural teas found in the forest and field. Savage Gulf tea parties tend to be less formal than those given in Britain so casual dress will be allowed. Bring your favorite tea cup (and the odd cucumber sandwich or scone if you have one lying around) and sip a nice natural tea around the campfire. Email: <James.Holland@tn.gov>.

The South Cumberland State Park Visitors' Center is located on Highway 41 South between Monteagle and Tracy City and is open 8 a.m.–4:30 p.m. seven days a week. For more information call (931) 924-2980.

Friday, thirteenth, is a date bewitched:
So be not born or hanged or hitched
Or hired or fired on that day;
Cut not they nails, nor mow the hay,
Or wash the clothes, or visit sick
Or turn the bed, or take a trip,
Or spill the salt, or burn the bread--
Better thou shouldst stay in bed!
