School Board Passes Revised School Clubs Policy; Considers More Lenient Dress Code

By Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

At the April 11 meeting of the Franklin County Board of Education, the board passed an aggressively revised school clubs policy. Fifth district school board member Adam Tucker voted against the revised policy.

The board also discussed proposed revisions to the dress code policy with a view to making the policy more lenient.

The revision of the school clubs policy was prompted by the strong community reaction to the formation of a Gay Straight Alliance club at Franklin County High School in January of this year. The board's review of the policy began in February.

Fourth district board member Chris Guess read from an email criticizing the board for its "violent attitude."

"Members of the board have been targeted and threatened," Guess said, "me in particular." At past meetings, Guess questioned the legitimacy of the GSA club under the existing student to participate in a club. policy and school club guidelines.

"Until the recent controversy, the policy existed unquestioned as an opt-out policy, as mandated by state law requiring schools to publish a list of clubs." –Adam Tucker

Under the revised policy, the director of schools has final approval of all clubs following recommendation by school principals. The policy also defines and distinguishes between academic clubs which "serve as an extension of the school's regular curriculum" and non-academic clubs which "the principal shall designate" as belonging to one of the following categories: service, honorary, interest, religious, political, and/or sports. Another major change requires a parent or guardian to give permission for a

Free Tours of the Highlander Folk School Offered

University of the South students enrolled in courses offered through the Collaborative for Southern Appalachian Studies are giving free historical tours of the Highlander Folk School site on Saturdays throughout April. Tours will be offered at 1 and 3 p.m. on Saturday, April 16, 23 and 30, weather permitting.

Tours last approximately one hour and leave from the Highlander Folk School Library on Old Highlander Lane in Monteagle. If you are interarrive 10 minutes before it is scheduled to begin.

Student tour guides will share the history of the site and the vision and ethos of its founders and staff. They will introduce the historic programs and work of the school and relay its contributions to United States labor, civil rights and social justice movements. They will highlight key figures who participated in Highlander's procontroversies led to the forced closure of the folk school. The continued work and legacies of Highlander and efforts to preserve the site in Summerfield will be included in the tour.

Margo Shea, a visiting fellow with the Collaborative, has worked with Sewanee students in two courses, Introduction to Public History and Place-Based Research Methods, to conduct research and find creative ways to interpret the site in partnership with the Tennessee Preservation Trust. Both courses are part of the University's community-engaged learning

In 2013, the Tennessee Preservation Trust purchased the buildings and land associated with the school, which closed in 1961 and has since relocated to New Market, Tenn.

COMMUNITY CHEST NEARS GOAL To the Editor:

To each and every one who has donated to this year's Sewanee Community Chest, we are exceedingly grateful for your support and thank you. However, we are still shy of reaching our goal. Every gift now has crucial impact as we hope to be able to fully fund all 25 area organizations. For those of you still considering a gift for this year, we implore you one last time to send it along —either in the mail to PO Box 99, Sewanee, or via Paypal at https://sewaneecivic.wordpress. com/>. Every gift matters. We hope to be able to push the green bar at

I would not be able to do it 37 million uninsured Americans, to vote to challenge the GOP agenda of an America perpetually at war, sacrificing lives and resources at the military/industrial complex altar. Government today serves corporations, not individuals. Not only do corporations fund our elections, but Congress signs into law bills that are actually written by lobbyists. River Compact, will offer a rain barrel construction workshop at 9 a.m., Friday, April 22, on the Spencer Quad. A second training will also be offered that day by local enthusiasts at 3 p.m. on the Spencer Quad.

Cherokee Purple is one of the heirloom

All community members are invited to celebrate Earth Day and learn about the importance and benefits of water conservation via rainwater harvesting. A rain barrel is a system that collects and stores rainwater that would otherwise be lost to runoff. Implementing a rain barrel system at home could save you money and potentially collect up to 2,000 gallons of water per year, as well as conserve energy resources, all while protecting the environment. It's an easy and effective way to have clean, fresh water, for gardening, flower pots, car washing or other outdoor chores. Participants will learn how to construct the barrel and where to place it for maximum collection. Many of the barrels will be given to school and community gardens in the region. Contact < farm@sewanee.com > if you want to paint a barrel.

Rain barrel kits were donated by Coca-Cola North America & River Network. Coke syrup ingredient drums were donated by Coca-Cola United Bottling Company. More rain barrels are available through the Cumberland River Compact. This event is sponsored by the Green House, Sustain Sewanee, University Farm and the Sewanee-UGA-SUD constructed wetland project, which is also sponsored by the The Coca-Cola Foundation and Coca-Cola Bottling United.

The permission requirement "prevents me from supporting the policy," Tucker said.

'Until the recent controversy, the policy existed unquestioned as an opt-out policy, as mandated by state law requiring schools to publish a list of clubs," Tucker pointed out. Under the opt-out system, parents may refuse to allow their children to participate in a club, but permission to participate is not required, as in the opt-in system.

"The argument that an opt-in policy reduces legal risk is not supported," Tucker said. "The schools are obligated to provide for the protection and safety of students regardless of whether parents have given permission for a student to participate in an activity."

Tucker also stressed, "The first amendment right to freedom of expression applies to children, as well as adults. An opt-in policy enlists parents to limit student rights. An opt-out policy does not limit the rights of parents or students. I will vote against the policy for these reasons."

The board passed the revised policy with Tucker casting the only nav vote.

Revisiting the April 4 working session discussion about the dress code, the board reviewed the revised policy presented by Director of Schools Amie Lonas.

At the working session, South Middle School student Paul McCray presented a petition from his classmates asking the board to allow students to wear shorts, mid-knee length, during warm weather.

Lonas consulted with school principals. The revised dress code allows shorts and also allows patterned shirts and tops. The current dress code says shirts, tops, pants and skirts must all be a solid color.

Board President Kevin Caroland from the 2nd district said he received one email objecting to students wearing shorts. On Caroland's suggestion, Lonas will survey teachers on the shorts' issue.

Tucker proposed patterned shorts, pants and skirts also be allowed. Lonas will add the question to the survey.

Tucker also proposed clarification of the provision allowing "logos on spirit wear." Tucker asked if this referred only to sports-related logos or if other logos such as club insignia were allowed.

Lonas will consult with school principals about the current practice regarding spirit wear logos.

The board is also in the process of revising the attendance policy and alternative school drug testing policy. Lonas said, "legal review of the language" was still underway, as well as a review of the attendance and drug testing policies at other schools.

Lonas will present revised dress code, attendance and the alternative school drug testing policies for the board's review at the Monday, May 2, working session.

Reception Honoring Jon Evans on April 18

Sewanee professor of biology onathan Evans announced earlier his spring his decision to return to his full-time faculty position in the department of biology. Evans' fouryear engagement with environmental stewardship and sustainability has led to the University receiving national recognition in January from the Association for the Advancement of Sustainability in Higher Education, and to the University's recent ranking as 16th among the most affordable small sustainable colleges (College Values Online).

Evans is resigning from his parttime administrative position as assistant provost for environmental stewardship and sustainability. He continues on his sabbatical this spring and will take up full-time teaching again in the fall to focus his energies on expanding his research program on the Domain with his biology students. In his current sabbatical, Evans is leading a number of projects that involve collaborations with biology faculty and scientists from around the country.

The community is invited to join the University in thanking Evans for his service in this unique capacity and in celebrating his many successes. A reception will be held 4:30–5:30 p.m., Monday, April 18, in the Harris Commons of Spencer Hall on the Sewanee campus.

Scholarship Sewanee Announces Peterson as the McCrady Lecturer

Dale Peterson has authored many fascinating novels about anthropology, art, computers, literature, psychiatry and travel, but his primary subject is animals: their lives, meaning and fate. He has traveled the world—from South America to Africa and Southeast Asia—looking for wild animals. His books have been translated into nine different languages and have won multiple awards. Originally from Corning, N.Y., he now resides in Arlington, Mass., with his wife, Wyn Kelley.

He is perhaps most well-known for his collaboration and friendship with one of the world's great pioneers in primatology, Jane Goodall. Their collaboration resulted in three books from 1993 to 2001, and in 2006 came the long-awaited and definitive biography, "Jane Goodall: The Woman Who Redefined Man."

Peterson will be giving his talk during Scholarship Sewanee at 1 p.m., Friday, April 22, in Blackman Auditorium, located in Woods Labs. For more informaion on Peterson, visit his website at <www.dalepetersonauthor.com>.

Financial support through an endowment created by Walter E. Nance, C'54, & Mayna Avent Nance in recognition of Edward McCrady Jr. allows for both the McCrady Lecture, a keynote address given by a prominent scholar from beyond Sewanee, and the McCrady Prizes.

Sewanee Police Say Thumbs Down to Texting and Driving

The Sewanee Police Department will be partnering with the Tennessee Highway Safety Office (THSO) to promote the second annual Thumbs Down to Texting and Driving campaign during the month of April.

April is nationally recognized as Distracted Driving Awareness Month. Agencies participate in the campaign by providing information and increasing awareness in their communities about the dangers of distracted driving.

"Texting and driving requires motorists to take their eyes off the road, hands off the wheel and mind off the task of driving. This is a recipe for a crash, and that's a scary thought. It's arrogant and selfish to think that your dangerous and illegal behavior is acceptable. No one has the right to put another person's life at risk like that," said SPD Chief Marie Eldridge.

Texting and driving in Tennessee can result in a $50 fine for a driver of any age. For young drivers who have learner's permits or intermediate restricted licenses, cell phone use of any kind while driving is illegal.

Preliminary data reveal that in 2015, Tennessee experienced its highest number of known distracted driving crashes (22,964). These crashes resulted in the deaths of 51 people. Each day, 25 individuals on average are injured in a crash caused by a distracted driver. Nearly 12 percent of all crashes in Tennessee in 2015 were caused by someone who was driving distracted.

"Crashes caused by distracted drivers have more than doubled in the last decade," said THSO Public Information Officer Amanda Brown. "Each day, nearly 63 people in Tennessee are distracted by something in their vehicle, whether it is a phone, food, the radio or something else, and they hit someone. We all have to start taking responsibility for our actions and make the choice to focus on one thing: the road."

For more information about the Thumbs Down campaign or to learn more about texting and driving, visit <www.thumbsdowntn.com>.

THE INSATIABLE CRITIC by Elizabeth Ellis

Stars are so overused, and there's nothing on the planet more critical than cats, so one feature each week is rated from one to five Tobys. The more Tobys there are, the better it is!

Sir Toby

Sisters

7:30 p.m., Friday through Sunday, April 15-17 2015, Rated R, 118 minutes

The modern queens of comedy and reallife BFFs Tina Fey and Amy Poehler team up for a raucous trip down memory lane, as these middle-aged beauties come to grips with their parents selling their childhood home. Total opposites, they manage to bring out the best in one another despite the curveballs life has dealt them. Commissioned to clean out their childhood bedrooms, they decide to have one last big house party to relive their glory days of youth that ends up being part nostalgia and part rage against the societal conventions of American adulthood. Directed by Jason Moore, "Sisters" carries over some of the high-energy fizz of his wildly successful "Pitch Perfect" franchise, but it never successfully translates to the older age demographic. A lot of awkward jokes fall flat, but the ever-buoyant performances of Fey and Poehler save this no-brainer comedy from falling through the cracks of bargain bin obscurity. Rated R for crude sexual content and language, as well as drug use, this one is best reserved for older teens accompanied by parents and adults.

The Skin I Live In

7:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 19 2011, Rated R, 120 minutes

The latest film presentation in the "About the Body" World Film Series sponsored by the Mellon Globalization Forum focuses on a brilliant plastic surgeon, Dr. Robert Ledgard (Antonio Banderas), a man with a tragic past that is obsessed with creating the perfect skin that withstands any kind of damage. The flawless woman who is the subject of his experiments, Vera Cruz, is also a victim of past horrors in her life. Ledgard's obsession with his experiment is driven by his grief over the loss of his late wife, who died in a flaming car accident, but obsession can turn dangerous when not kept in check. An intimate, unsettling portrayal of human psychology and how we view our physical selves, this film will be presented in the original Spanish with an introduction and Q&A with Dr. Arturo Marquez-Gomez from the University of the South's Spanish department. It is rated R for disturbing violent content, including sexual assault, nudity, drug use and language, and is geared mainly toward older teens and adults.

Seven Samurai

7:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 20 1954, Unrated, 204 minutes

Famed Japanese director Akira Kurosawa's arguably greatest cinematic triumph, this sweeping epic spared no expense in detail and cultural attention to historic 16th-century Japan. The stark blackand-white footage effectively shows the desperation of a poor village that has been frequently looted by bandits. They find a warm-hearted samurai war veteran named Kambei Shimada, who accepts the villager's offering of food and housing in lieu of money. After studying their situation, Shimada determines that another six samurai will be needed to properly rebuild the defenses of the city. Through grit and determination, Shimada recruits these extra warriors, and they begin to teach the residents to properly protect themselves, which comes in handy when the bandits return. Kurosawa was so invested in creating an authentic film experience that he drew up fictional family trees for all 101 residents of the village, which could help build their characters and their relationships to one another. Though unrated, parents should take caution with very young children given the lengthy running time and battlefield violence.

Spotlight

7:30 p.m., Thursday through Sunday, April 21-24 2015, Rated R, 128 minutes

Sometimes a story needs to be told, no matter the cost. Based on true events, a small team of reporters writing for the Boston Globe in the early 2000s decide to delve into allegations of child abuse within the Catholic Church for "Spotlight," a special investigative reporting unit of the paper. What they found would rock the foundations of the city and America for years. The film follows the progress of the reporters over the course of a year, as they talk to officials and victims and slowly, painfully uncover the names of 20 pedophile priests in the city and gather proof that Cardinal Bernard Law, the Archdiocese of Boston, had prior knowledge of these incidents. Directed by Tom McCarthy, this film swept up Best Motion Picture of the Year in this year's Oscar race, as well as for Best Original Screenplay—appropriate for a movie about journalists! Rated R for subject content, language and some sexual references, it is an emotional tour deforce that is best suited toward older teens and adults, or younger teens accompanied by parents.

The No. 28-ranked Sewanee men's tennis team had a historic victory on April 9, as the Tigers defeated Southern Athletic Association rival Birmingham-Southern, 7-2, at the Bruton-Guerry Tennis Courts in Sewanee.

The Tigers won their eighth straight match and are now 12-5 overall and 4-0 in conference play. Additionally, longtime Sewanee head coach John Shackelford earned career win number 500. Shackelford has a 500-280 record in his 31-year career.

In doubles action, Sewanee opened the match, as No. 2-ranked Jack Gray and Eric Roddy defeated Makarenko and Hire, 8-4, at No. 1. At the No. 2 position, Avery Schober and Fletcher Kerr defeated Weinacker and Aellegrini by the same score, while at No. 3, Scott Gallimore and Davis Owen topped Goodloe and Crosby, 8-6.

As singles play opened, Sewanee took a 4-0 lead, after Kerr won at No. 6 in straight sets (6-4, 6-3) against Thompson.

BSC finally got on the board, when Hire outlasted Connor Winkler at No. 3 6 1 6 3

However, Sewanee answered right back, when Gray rolled over Chunn at No. 4, 6-3, 6-1. Sewanee then went ahead 6-1, when Roddy stayed unbeaten on the day with a 6-4, 7-5 win against Weinacker at No. 2.

BSC added its final point, when Allegrini defeated Owen at No. 5, 6-4, 6-2. In the final match of the day, Schober, the reigning two-time SAA Player of the Year, rallied back for a 6-4, 4-6, 6-0 win against Makarenko at No. 1.

Pierson New Basketball Coach

Sewanee athletic director Mark Webb has named Bradley Pierson, C'09, as Sewanee's new men's basketball coach.

Pierson takes over after former head coach Bubba Smith resigned to take the head coaching position at NCAA Division II Lee University in Cleveland, Tenn.

"I could not be more excited to be the next head men's basketball coach at Sewanee. I look forward to leading this special group of student-athletes and building on the momentum Coach Smith has created over the past eight years," Pierson said.

During the last five seasons, Pierson has played a huge role as an assistant coach, lead recruiting coordinator and basketball strength and conditioning coach. During that stretch, Sewanee won 79 games. That includes a record of 50-11 at home.

During his eight seasons at Sewanee, Bubba Smith led the Tigers to 99 wins. Smith was a two-time Southern Athletic Association Coach of the Year (2012–13 and 2014–15), while guiding his players to numerous all-conference awards.

Additionally, in 2015–16, the Tigers ended one of the most winning seasons in school history with a 20-8 overall record. That record was the best since Sewanee finished 20-6 in 1997–98. The Tigers also made their first conference championship game appearance since 2005, while sweeping the season series from rival Rhodes for the first time since 2008–09.

Mayapple leaves

Mayapples

Mayapples are one of our most distinctive spring wildflowers. Though they are called mayapples, it is the flower that appears in May (or April, depending on latitude), nodding beneath the umbrella-like leaf. The fruit or "apple" matures in late summer. All parts of this plant are poisonous, sometimes even causing a contact rash in those who are sensitive. In fact, some Native Americans are reported to have used it to commit suicide.

Mayapples are usually found in large colonies. The above-ground shoots arise from rhizomes or underground stems, which spread and branch, producing numerous shoots. The whole colony may be one or perhaps only a few genetic individuals. Colonies grow from 4 to 6 inches a year. Very large ones may be more than 100 years old and contain 1,000 shoots. This species may put five times more energy into vegetative reproduction through the spread of rhizomes than it does into sexual reproduction through flowers. It takes a plant grown from seed five years to produce a rhizome and twelve years to bloom.

A favorite factoid of wildflower walk leaders is that when the mayapple does flower, the shoot always has two leaves. I haven't been able to learn why, but perhaps it is to provide more energy for the production of the fruit, since the shoot would have almost twice as much leaf surface for photosynthesis. In fact, leaves persist in shoots with maturing fruit, while the others die back in early summer.

Sinking of the Titanic, April 15, 1912

Oh, they built the ship Titanic, to sail the ocean blue. For they thought it was a ship that the water would never go through. It was on its maiden trip, that an iceberg hit the ship, It was sad when that great ship went down.

Chorus: It was sad, it was sad.

It was sad when that great ship went down Husbands and wives, little children lost their lives. It was sad when that great ship went down . . .

Oh, the heroes saved the weak, as the ship began to leak And the band on deck played on. With "Nearer my God to Thee" they were swept into the sea. It was sad when that great ship went down...

I was sad, it was sad. It was sad when that great ship went down
