Smith's Last Lecture

Beloved teacher, friend and mentor Jerry Smith, professor of religious studies, will deliver his last lecture as the semester ends at the University of the South. The campus community is welcome to attend the lecture at 10 a.m., Wednesday, April 27, on the Elliott Terrace of McGriff Alumni House. (Rain location is Convocation Hall.) Barton Davies, C'16, of Boy Named Banjo, will play and sing two of Smith's favorite songs to begin and end the lecture. A reception will follow Smith's talk.

Smith retires this year after teaching at the University for 47 years. He has served as marshal of the university faculties, Robert M. Ayres Jr. Distinguished University Chair, associate University historiographer and coeditor of the Sewanee History Project.

Charlie Rose to be Baccalaureate Speaker

"The Art of Conversation" Friday, May 6, with Rose and Jon Meacham

The University of the South has announced the baccalaureate speaker and honorary degree recipients who will be honored during commencement weekend, May 6-8.

Charlie Rose, anchor and executive editor of "Charlie Rose" and coanchor of "CBS This Morning," will receive an honorary degree and give the baccalaureate address during the service on Saturday, May 7. The service will be shown on closed-circuit TV in Guerry Auditorium.

While Rose is on the Mountain, he and Pulitzer Prize-winning author Jon Meacham, C'91, will discuss "The Art of Conversation: Charlie Rose on Politics, Culture, and the Way We Live Now" in a special event at 4:30 p.m., Friday, May 6, in Guerry Auditorium. All are welcome to attend what promises to be a lively and entertaining conversation between these two knowledgeable observers of politics and culture. A book signing with Meacham will follow in the lobby of Guerry Hall.

Charlie Rose

Since 1991, Charlie Rose has aired countless hours of interviews with Nobel laureates and other extraordinary men and women of science, politics, art, business, sports, technology, literature and entertainment. Some of his recent interviews include Russian President Vladimir Putin, Apple CEO Tim Cook, comedian Larry David and Broadway's Lin-Manuel Miranda. These conversations have made the broadcast a cultural and intellectual archive of our time.

Jon Meacham, C'91, H'10, is executive editor and executive vice president at Random House. He won the 2009 Pulitzer Prize for Biography or Autobiography for "American Lion: Andrew Jackson in the White House." His most recent book is "Destiny and Power, The American Odyssey of George Herbert

The Rt. Rev. James Russell Kendrick, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of the Central Gulf Coast, will receive an honorary degree and will preach during the School of Theology Commencement service on Friday, May 6.

Honorary degrees will also be presented during the weekend to John Churchill, secretary of the Phi Beta Kappa Society; Richard Davis, poet, translator and professor emeritus of Persian at the Ohio State University; Bruce Eldon Neswick, canon for cathedral music at Trinity Episcopal Cathedral in Portland, Ore.; Richard Webster, director of music and organist at Trinity Church in Boston; and Nashville historian and author William Ridley Wills II.

TINTINNABULATIONS

by John Bordley

Ultimate, penultimate, antepenultimate

For several years, one of my favorite words has been "penultimate." The word entered my vocabulary as Carolyn and I played dominoes on Saturday nights with some friends. In Mexican Train and Chicken Foot, players make a clicking sound with their dominoes to indicate they have just one domino left to play. Thus, as they play their penultimate domino in a round, they make a clicking sound so that the other players are warned. My new favorite word is "antepenultimate," and today I am announcing that this "Tintinnabulations" column is my antepenultimate column. The penultimate and ultimate columns will appear on May 6 and June 17.

In 2001, I started taking carillon lessons with Laura Hewitt Whipple. Laura had played the carillon in Sewanee since moving here in the early 1970s, but she had retired in 1999. When I came knocking on her door, she came out of retirement to teach me to play. Why? No one in Sewanee was playing on a regular basis, and she wanted someone to play her beloved instrument.

Laura had written a column for the Sewanee Siren and the Sewanee Messenger she called "Tower Tidings." It concentrated on carillon matters, but it was wide ranging and, in particular, covered all local musical events. One day she announced that I should take over writing the column and suggested the name "TinTinnabulations," tintinnabulation being a noun meaning the ringing or sounding of bells.

noun meaning the ringing or sounding of bells.

Starting on October 7, 2004, I produced the column when I had news to share. Sometime after becoming editor of the Messenger, Laura Willis developed a more formal schedule for the various columnists to follow, and I submitted about eight or nine columns each year. Topics have included information about all local carillon concerts, a multipart history of the Sewanee carillon, and just about anything that I thought readers might find interesting.

The penultimate, May 6, column will cover Commencement Weekend events, and the ultimate, June 17, column will outline the Sewanee Summer Carillon Series. Stay tuned.

MESSENGER BREAK AHEAD

The newspaper will take a break after Friday, May 20, and will not publish on Friday, May 27.

The staff will return to the office on Tuesday, May 31 (after Memorial Day), and will be back in print on Friday, June 3. The display advertising and classified advertising deadline for the June 3 issue is noon, Tuesday, May 31; and the news deadline is 5 p.m., Tuesday, May 31.

During the summer, a number of clubs do not meet, and churches often change their schedules.

Please let us know by phone or email before 5 p.m. on Tuesday, May 31, if your organization's schedule will differ from the one we publish regularly in our calendars.

1903 Domain map. The plan is still in circulation and can be viewed for free as an ebook or bought in hard copy on Amazon.

By 1900 the Domain was so decimated by unregulated cutting that in 1896 a timber company offered the trustees only $2,000 to clear-cut the forest remaining on the Domain. This paltry offer prompted Vice Chancellor Benjamin Wiggins to seek professional guidance from the newly formed U.S. Bureau of Forestry (now the U.S. Forest Service). Gifford Pinchot, only one month after being named the first head of the Bureau of Forestry, visited the Domain to provide advice to Wiggins. Pinchot and the University began one of the earliest examples of public-private cooperative management, culminating in "Forestry Bulletin No. 39, Conservative Lumbering at Sewanee, Tennessee."

During the last 100 years, the societal value of forests changed dramatically, both at Sewanee and across the country. Domain plans evolved away from their purely utilitarian ethic toward recreation, research, water conservation and ecology. By 2003, 100 years after conservative lumbering was released, the top focus of domain planning was research and teaching, along with the recreational resources of the Domain.

The Demonstration Forest Initiative builds on this idea of a teaching laboratory and also tackles the challenges facing managers today in balancing many competing goals and objectives. While it is recognized that much of the Domain is most suitable for non-consumptive uses, there is an opportunity for a portion of the property to be managed in a way that balances the objectives of aesthetics, timber investments, biodiversity and restoration of lost habitats. This could eventually be replicated outside the Domain on private lands.

The Demonstration Forest Initiative establishes a structured program to experientially teach basic concepts in land management while maintaining and enhancing a suite of specific ecological forestry goals. The Demonstration Forest combines activities such as carbon sequestration, ecosystem restoration, fire management and timber harvesting focused on a roughly 2,500-acre portion of the landscape. This area will have a distinct forest plan and discrete set of management goals to effectively showcase exemplary land management to classes and visitors. Management will occur on a scale similar to private landowners in the region, making it an ideal outreach platform to promote sustainable forestry practices on the Cumberland Plateau. The organizing themes of the Demonstration Forest are carbon sequestration, biodiversity conservation and non-timber forest products, all within a context of revenue generation. These organizing themes will necessarily translate into a diversity of actions that will vary by location and land use history, but will be unified by a single goal: to demonstrate how financial revenues can accrue in a forest managed for ecological function.

Sewante COMMUNITY COMUNITY COMMUNITY COMMUNITY COMMUNITY COMMUNITY COMMUNITY COMMUNITY

2015–16 Sewanee Community Chest Stewards Elizabeth and Rick Duncan celebrate another successful campaign.

Reporting on the Community Chest, Beavers said the fund-raising effort exceeded the $100,000 goal by $1,000, making it possible to fund all 25 organizations who applied for assistance

Significant among the by-laws changes, the director of Sewanee Classifieds and the director of Parks were included as board members; email voting is now allowed; and the presidential succession process was altered. The vice-president does not automatically advance to the position of president.

Beavers thanked the Sewanee Community Council for the additional $2,000 award to the Elliott Park playground project for mulch. "Through the generous support of the entire community and grants from a number of sources, including the South Cumberland Community Fund, Monteagle Sewanee Rotary and the Walmart Community Fund, we were able to raise $60,000 for the playground project," said Beavers. Volunteers are needed to make routine maintenance inspections at the park to ensure the playground remains for decades to come. To volunteer, contact Stephen Burnett at <fortheparks@ gmail.com>.

Past president Susan Holmes thanked Beavers for her commitment to the organization and wise oversight. "Kiki guided the Civic Association through the negotiation and fundraising hurdles that culminated in the successful completion of the Elliott Park playground, a much-appreciated gift to the community," said Holmes.

The next SCA meeting will be in September.

Senior Center News

Volunteers Needed

Volunteer help is desperately needed in the kitchen! Call the Center at 598-0771 or Connie Kelley at 598-0915.

Lunch Menus

The Sewanee Senior Center serves lunch at noon Monday through Friday. The suggested donation is $3 (50 or older) or $5 (under 50). Please call by 9 a.m. to order lunch.

April 25: Philly steak sandwich, chips, dessert.

April 26: Barbecue chicken, hash brown casserole, bean salad,

April 27: Fish, baked potato, slaw, hush puppies, dessert. April 28: Fried cabbage, sausage, pinto beans, cornbread, April 29:Pork chop, mashed potatoes, broccoli, roll, dessert. Menus may vary.

Center Participation

The Sewanee Senior Center does not charge any membership fee. All persons 50 or older who take part in any of the activities are considered members. The center is located at 5 Ball Park Rd., behind the Sewanee Market.

To reserve a meal or for more information, call 598-0771.

Scholarship Sewanee Celebration

Sewanee's annual celebration of student scholarship, research, and creativity this year will be held today (Friday), April 22.

Scholarship Sewanee 2016 will feature 66 posters and almost 40 oral presentations representing not only biology and chemistry, but also politics, economics, history, philosophy, visual arts and more.

The McCrady Lecture, begun in 2013, will bring author and biographer Dale Peterson to Sewanee. He is perhaps most well-known for his collaboration and friendship with one of the world's great pioneers in primatology, Jane Goodall. Their collaboration resulted in three books from 1993 to 2001, and in 2006 came the definitive biography, "Jane Goodall: The Woman Who Redefined Man." Peterson will give his talk at 1 p.m., today (Friday), April 22, in Blackman Auditorium in Woods Labs.

A performance of the Sewanee Symphony Orchestra and the University Choir, in honor of Robert Delcamp and Susan Rupert upon their retirement, will conclude the day's events. "Gloria in Spring" will be presented at 7:30 p.m., today (Friday), April 22, in All Saints' Chapel.

CPR Class Offered

A free CPR class will be held 7 p.m., Monday, May 23, at Otey Parish. Bruce Baird will lead the instruction on basic CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation), AED (automated external defibrillator) use and emergency treatment for choking victims.

The class will give video-based instruction on the basics of CPR, so participants will be able to react as first responders until professional help arrives. Mannequins and AEDs will be provided for demonstration and practice.

The class is not a certification class, no completion cards will be issued, and it will not satisfy CPR requirements for employment.

For more information, contact Baird at <230cbbaird@gmail.com>.

Area Charities Benefit from "Big Payback"

Several area nonprofit organizations will be raising much-needed funds in May during a 24-hour online charitable giving event sponsored by the Community Foundation of Middle Tennessee and the Kharis Foundation.

Beginning at midnight on Tuesday, May 3, donors can make secure, taxdeductible gifts of $10 or more to any of the participating Middle Tennessee nonprofits online at <TheBigPayback.

In Franklin County, participating organizations include Almost Home Transitional Housing Program, Animal Harbor, Mountain Goat Trail Alliance and St. Andrew's-Sewanee

ANGELWIT

by Virginia Craighill

Dear Angel, I noticed that the Golf Lodge is coming along and looking rather swell. Will it only be available to golfers, or can anyone go there? Will other buildings on campus get the same kind of facelift?

Danny Noonan

Dear Danny,

Since the new building on the golf course is called a "lodge" and not a "clubhouse," let's assume it will be available to everyone, not just those wearing green jackets and brightly colored pants. The burning question on old-timers' minds is "will they serve hush puppies?" Although the Golf Lodge seems a rather frivolous addition to a campus in much need of repairs and upgrades in other places, the money to pay for it was specifically raised by a group of alumni, and every dollar is accounted for.

Still, alumni with deep pockets need to be given a fuller tour of the University's facilities the next time they feel a burning itch to fund a project. Perhaps chaining a few of them, along with some members of the Board of Regents, to the torturous seats of Guerry Auditorium, the homely, unloved stepchild of the Advancement office, for a few hours might make them realize where their dollars could do more good, or maybe taking them on a tour of faculty offices formerly used as toilet stalls might inspire further philanthropy.

Anyone attending Perpetual Motion or the recent Jeremy Denk concert knows that Sewanee loves the performing arts, but anyone leaving the Sewanee Inn or Golf Lodge to look at Guerry with the lights on can only feel despair and shame akin to leaving Bushwood to tour greenskeeper Carl's abode. We all want our hush puppies and cocktails with a nice view after an arduous back nine, but hopefully we'll pay more attention to Sewanee's underprivileged buildings in the future.

To celebrate the 60th anniversary of the Sewanee Summer Music Festival, special season tickets are available for only $60 until May 13.

SSMF Offers Special Season Ticket

On June 18, approximately 200 student musicians and artist faculty will arrive in Sewanee to unite their talents in the presentation of more than 30 concerts during the four-week Sewanee Summer Music Festival (SSMF).

As an incentive to attend multiple concerts, SSMF is offering a special preseason opportunity to purchase a season ticket for only $60 until May 13. After May 13, the price will be $90. Season tickets are available for purchase through May 20. Tickets may be purchased through the website, <ssmf.sewanee.edu> or in person at the SSMF office, Guerry Hall room 203. (A phone call in advance is advised.)

The SSMF offers a month of rigorous music study, rehearsal and performance opportunities in two orchestras and chamber ensembles to advanced music students in high school through graduate school. The piano program involves both solo and chamber repertoire.

Bachman to Present at TAIS Workshop

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School chemistry teacher Jennifer Bachman will be leading a workshop at the Tennessee Association of Independent School's Tech Institute on April 25 at the Ensworth School in Nashville

Bachman's workshop is titled "Using Socrative to Engage Students During Test Review." She will teach participants how to use the Socrative app/website to create quizzes and practice tests that can be accessed with students' devices, in order to answer review questions on-screen and see results in real time. Bachman currently uses the app to teach science and chemistry, but she will be showing participants how it can be adapted for use in other disciplines.

Bachman joined the SAS faculty in 2013. Prior to teaching at SAS, she was a forensic chemist with the United States Drug Enforcement Agency and the chemistry laboratory coordinator for the University of the South.

Educataclysm

Standing on a hillside yelling at a train to try and stop it from wrecking is not known to be effective, and yet, silence would be equal to uncaringness. And sometimes the crew, as a whole, fails to comprehend the physics of a speeding train as the increased chuffing of the wheels and the shrieking of their own whistle instead fascinate them. One crew member reminds the others of imminent danger, and that the railroad is bigger than this one train, engineered to safely bring many different trains home in all kinds of conditions

With a helpless knowing, I yell at several crew members of this train known as the Franklin County Board of Education, as this train heads full steam into the crash that shall become known as the GSA Federal Lawsuit. The crew members are the Safety Officer, whose duty is the safe arrival of all cargo; the Chief Engineer, whose duty is to be entrusted to smoothly operate all trains for the good of the railroad; and the Switch/Signal Master, who has the ability (if authorized) to switch the train to a less dangerous section of track.

I yell, via email:

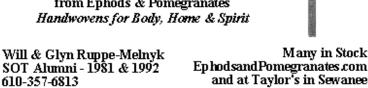

"To the Safety Officer, as you well know, I am in the business of sticking up for kids, all kids. Some of the tools I use are the rule of law and the rules of procedure. For this reason, I must raise the following concern: you as a Franklin County Sheriff's Office Deputy supervising School Resource Officers are either in conflict or appear to be in conflict when you take a political stand against a student club whose members have reported numerous bullying-based assaults, only to find no law enforcement action taken. Legally this is called Deliberate Indifference and makes our county vulnerable to a federal lawsuit. I ask you rediscover your integrity and resolve your conflicted status by either resigning your political post or requesting that SRO supervision be transferred to another capable officer. Please be advised that this communication shall also go to Sheriff Fuller and local news agencies. Thank you."

"To the Chief Engineer, thank you for your clear recognition of law and procedure at the last BOE meeting. Your demeanor and the positive response to your leadership was a great comfort to many of us in attendance. Laws and procedures are pertinent to every action the board must consider. It is for this reason that I request that you revert to the status quo regarding the formation and perpetuation of school clubs. The BOE approach of considering changes out of the ordinary review sequence and as a direct response to the formation of one specific club, the Gay Straight Alliance, is a clear violation of the Equal Access Act. Administrative actions regarding the wearing of club logos are creating free speech liabilities. Based upon the still unresolved Civil Rights lawsuit from the 1960s, Franklin County BOE can ill afford another such loss. Thank you."

"To the Switch/Signal Master, I have apprised the BOE as to their very real legal liabilities. Perhaps you can better explain the recent Giles County litigation loss. The prevailing attorney is, no doubt, now well versed on what seem to be identical issues. As we both know, Federal Litigation is a serious matter. I would also ask that you continue to enhance the understanding of the board that a change from opt-out to opt-in will make it virtually impossible for those marginalized children who are also marginalized by their parents to have access to the very club that could serve to save their life and give them at least one safe place to be. From what you have conveyed to me, these members are by no means heartless, they just need to understand that all of the battles about rightness or wrongness should move to the adult side of life, and the BOE should concentrate on getting every child there safe and sound. Thank you!"

Stapleton Honored for Holocaust Essay

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School senior Anna Stapleton received an honorable mention in the annual Holocaust essay competition sponsored by the Jewish Federation of Memphis.

High school students were asked to write an essay of no more than 600 words on "Holocaust Denial & Distortion: Confronting the Assault on Memory and History." Anna, a senior from Sewanee, is currently enrolled in the SAS history elective "Night Will Fall: Advanced Topics in Holocaust and Genocide Studies," taught by Geoffrey Smith. Smith received this year's Belz-Lipman Holocaust Educator Award sponsored by the Tennessee Holocaust

Anna Stapleton

Anna's essay reads, in part, "Holocaust denial and distortion are damaging, and can be expressed in many ways, but with education and empathy, humankind can fight ignorance and prevent events such as the Holocaust from occurring ever again." Her full essay is available at <www.sasweb.org/student_voices>.

Grundy Schools Awarded Grant

The Grundy County school system was awarded a $7,500 grant from the South Cumberland Community Fund (SCCF) for the schools' summer Reading Initiative. The program will take place at Coalmont and North elementary schools in June.

"We are looking forward to this summer's Reading Initiative, because it will provide students a time to enjoy creative outlets related to reading and enhance heir love of reading," said Director of Schools Jessie Kinsey.

"South Cumberland Community Fund is delighted to work with the Grundy County School system on this exciting summer program," said Laura Willis, SCCF executive director. "We want to support efforts to instill a love of learning and the joy of reading to all young people, and this summer project will do that."

The South Cumberland Community Fund works to improve the quality of life across the Plateau by increasing philanthropy and supporting leadership of the area's communities, schools and nonprofit organizations. Established in 2012, SCCF has reinvested more than $500,000 in projects that benefit the tri-county area; it will make another round of grants in 2016.

For more information contact Kinsey at <jkinsey@grundyk12.com> or Willis at sura@southcumberlandcommunityfund.org.

At the award presentation were (from left) Laura Willis, SCCF executive director; David Dickerson, supervisor of K–8; Jessie Kinsey, director of schools; and Nicky Hamilton, SCCF capacity-building director.

THE INSATIABLE CRITIC

Stars are so overused, and there's nothing on the planet more critical than cats, so one feature each week is rated from one to five Tobys. The more Tobys there are, the better it is!

Sir Toby

Spotlight

7:30 p.m., Thursday through Sunday, April 21–24 2015, Rated R, 128 minutes

Sometimes a story needs to be told, no matter the cost. Based on true events, a small team of reporters writing for the Boston Globe in the early 2000s decide to delve into allegations of child abuse within the Catholic Church for "Spotlight," a special investigative reporting unit of the paper. What they found would rock the foundations of the city and America for years. The film follows the progress of the reporters over the course of a year, as they talk to officials and victims and slowly, painfully uncover the names of 20 pedophile priests in the city and gather proof that Cardinal Bernard Law of the Archdiocese of Boston had prior knowledge of these incidents. Directed by Tom McCarthy, this film swept up Best Motion Picture of the Year in this year's Oscar race, as well as Best Original Screenplay—appropriate for a movie about journalists! Rated R for subject content, language and some sexual references, it is an emotional tour de force that is best suited toward older teens and adults, or younger teens accompanied by parents.

Son of Saul

7:30 p.m., Monday, April 25 2015, Rated R, 107 minutes

The final feature in the "About the Body" World Film Series sponsored by the Mellon Globalization Forum is a Hungarian film that takes audiences into the heart of Auschwitz during World War II. The year is 1944, and Saul Auslander is a Jewish Hungarian prisoner who is forced to burn the corpses of his people. When he comes upon the body of a young boy he believes to be his son, he seeks to defy the odds by salvaging the body and having it properly buried by a rabbi. Deeply moving, it is the story of one man's repentance to care for his son in death the way he never cared for him in life. Starkly filmed in the washed-out greys and browns of war, it is director Lázló Nemes' directorial debut of a full-length feature to much critical acclaim, taking home Best Foreign Language Film of the Year in this year's Oscar race. Mellon Globalization Forum director Justyna Beinek will present an introduction and host a Q&A afterwards. Rated R for disturbing violent content and some graphic nudity, it is best reserved for older teens accompanied by parents and adults.

The Shawshank Redemption

7:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 27 1994, Rated R, 142 minutes

This film, based on the classic by horror/suspense master Stephen King, is the ultimate story of the unshakable force that is the human soul. Andy Dufresne (Tim Robbins) is a successful banker whose life is drastically altered when he is sentenced to prison for two lifetimes for a crime he did not commit. While there, he befriends Ellis Boyd "Red" Redding (Morgan Freeman), and the story is told mainly from Red's perspective. As Andy's optimism begins to empower other inmates, Warden Norton (Bob Gunton) locks in on bringing him down—but little does he know what tricks Andy has up his sleeves. Rated number 1 on imdb.com's Top Rated Movies, its lasting message of hope against all odds continues to echo down the decades, whether one is viewing it for the first or 10th time. Rated R for language and prison violence, it is appropriate for older children accompanied by parents, as well as teens and adults.

How to Be Single

7:30 p.m., Thursday through Sunday, April 28–May 1 2016, Rated R, 110 minutes

There are scads of movies about falling in love and finding "the one" in New York City. This is not one of those. Curvy comedienne Rebel Wilson teams up with demure Dakota Johnson in a female version of "The Odd Couple"—total extremes of the spectrum that nevertheless bring out the best in each other. When Alice (Johnson) gets dumped, Robin (Wilson) encourages her to embrace her inner wild child, hit the streets and skip the light fantastic under NYC's gleaming skyscrapers. Based on the novel by Liz Tuccillo and produced by Drew Barrymore, it positively radiates girl power, but its over-the-top crude humor and ultimate caving to well-worn rom-com tropes holds it back from reaching its true potential. Still, the heartfelt takeaway of learning to love yourself before you can love another fully makes it worth the watch. Rated R for sexual content and strong language throughout, this one is best reserved for teens and adults.

A Column for Young Adult Readers and Adults Who Appreciate The Genre by Margaret Stephens

Last night I finished watching the 2012 British film "Unfinished Song," about a curmudgeonly old man devoted to his dying wife, Marion, and unwilling to share her with the rowdy, close-knit choir of senior citizens she adores and who adore her back.

"She looks just like your mom," my husband said when we first saw Vanessa Redgrave (Marion) with the gaunt face and head scarf of a terminal cancer patient.

Which remark sent me right back to our move, decades ago, to Sewanee. I confess I would have been less willing to leave my North Carolina community to come here if I hadn't needed to take care of my mother, then dying of cancer in Knoxville, whose spouse, unlike the film's husband, Arthur, was not exactly a devoted caregiver. My first year here was forever colored by those long drives with a newborn and three-year-old back and forth from grim homeplace to a village where I knew nobody and had scant prospects of doing so. The comment that seemed to sum up those early years in Sewanee was when someone asked, on learning I was neither town, gown, seminary or mountain, "So why ARE you here?"

Those were lonely days.

In "Unfinished Song," the "OAPz"—"Old-Age Pensioners"—are convinced by their enthusiastic young director to enter a singing competition with a combination of rock and rap. Early on in the process, Marion sings a solo to Arthur, "True Colors," in which it's clear that she, unlike everyone else, has been allowed to see his caring, kinder side. Spoiler alert: at the end of the film, Arthur sings a solo back, a version of Billy Joel's "Lullabye (Goodnight My Angel)" which can just about break your heart. Perhaps less because of the obvious pathos of a widower paying belated tribute to his wife as because Arthur has, with enormous effort, broken out of his silent, reclusive self and allowed his feelings to show. Rewarded (of course: this is a film) with a group of actual friends and a reconciliation with an estranged son.

I loved this film. It doesn't romanticize dying of cancer or the loneliness of those left behind, but it does allow for the shift that can happen when people are enticed out of their accustomed niches to expand their community.

Which brings me to event two.

Over the weekend, James and I drove up to Lexington to see our daughter play an evil cheerleader in the Transylvania University production of Qui Nguyen's play, "She Kills Monsters." I can't possibly summarize this play, but imagine a life-size Dungeons and Dragons game which reveals the fantasy world a persecuted gay teenage girl created so she and her equally-geeky and "unpopular" friends can take revenge on their tormentors. The tormentors included a team of horrifyingly-perfect cheerleaders complete with flirty skirts, tossing hair, pom-poms and saccharine-sweet, smilingly delivered barbs which are truly homicidal.

The play is a comedy, mostly, but it reveals with stunning clarity what it feels like to be the unaccepted "other." I heartily recommend it, if you get the chance, as well as the above film.

Which brings me to the third thing. The Sewanee Mountain Messenger has remained a constant in helping forge some needed bridges between the various groups that make up our community. As we say goodbye to editor Laura Willis and welcome the new regime, I want to say a personal "thank you" for letting me be a part of that effort.

SAS Track & Field Athletes Breaking Personal Records

 $The \,St. \,And rew \'s-Sewanee \,middle$ school track and field season is moving forward to the sound of records breaking.

"I'm so proud of these athletes," said head coach Molly Schaefer. "They are working hard to get what they want, and they're achieving their goals!"

On April 2 at the University School Sarah Grace Burns raised the bar for record, too. her high jump record.

Harding Academy, North Middle School and South Middle School, Burns reset her record by jumping 4 feet and 7 inches.

On April 12 at Baylor School, seventh-grader Caroline Hiers broke her 100-meter record with a time of 13.8 seconds, achieving a goal that she's had for more than a year.

Sixth-grader Elijah Seavey obliterated his personal record in the 1600m, and while he was at it, also put his name in the record books with a run of 6:05. of Nashville, eighth-grader Sarah Beth He decided that one record just wasn't Hobby earned her long sought-after enough for one day, however, so he long jump record, and seventh-grader turned around and got the 800m

The middle school team's final On April 9 at a home meet against meet is today (Friday), April 22, at Chattanooga Christian School. There are several more records these athletes have in their sights, so come out to support the Mountain Lions.

Mainzer Signs to Wrestle for OCU

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School senior wrestler Abby Mainzer recently signed her letter of commitment to wrestle for Oklahoma City University (OCU), a national powerhouse in women's collegiate wrestling.

Athree-year MVP in wrestling, Mainzer placed first in the 185-pound weight class in the 2014 and 2015 TSSAA State Wrestling Championships. After moving to the more competitive weight class of 148 pounds this year, she qualified for the state championship by placing third at the regional tournament. She placed third at the state championship and helped propel her team to a fifth-place finish.

Mainzer is the daughter of Jim and Robin Mainzer of Monteagle. She is an outstanding student who is consistently on the Honor Roll. In addition to her wrestling accolades, Mainzer is a four-year varsity starter on the basketball team, a former MVP in mountain biking and a former Most Improved Player

She has served SAS in a variety of leadership roles including student ambassador, member of the Honor Council and proctor. Mainzer is also a member of the Civil Air Patrol (CAP) and is first lieutenant of the Tullahoma Cadet Squadron and cadet commander. In 2015, she received the General Billy Mitchell Award, awarded to only five percent of CAP cadets nationwide. She will attend OCU on an Army ROTC scholarship.

"We are really excited to have Abby in the fall," said OCU assistant wrestling coach Matthew Stevens. "OCU is a very prestigious program athletically and academically; Abby fits both of these. We look forward for the opportunity to further her wrestling career and help her obtain her goals."

Shackelford Earns Wins for Middlebury

The Middlebury College women's tennis team recently earned three home victories, and Sadie Shackelford, former St. Andrew's-Sewanee School standout, was part of that success.

Shackelford and partner Kaysee Orozco lost in doubles against Emory University on April 15, but bounced back against Bowdoin for a 9-7 victory on April 16.

Shackelford lost in singles to her Bowdoin opponent, but rallied again on April 17 against Skidmore College, when she and Orozco won 8-6 in doubles. Shackelford clinched the match with a 6-0, 6-1 win in singles.

Sewanee Soccer Adds Six New Players

 $Sewanee\,women's\,soccer\,coach\,Patrick\,Johnston\,recently\,announced\,that$ six athletes will join the Tigers in the fall.

They will be part of the reigning Southern Athletic Association regular season champions and 2015 NCAA Tournament team.

Samantĥa Bourgeois, New Orleans—Bourgeois has had a very decorated prep career. Her high school team, Mt. Carmel, was the 2016 state champion. She was recognized as the Defensive Player of the Year by the New Orleans Times-Picayune and the state high school athletic association. Her classroom credentials mirror her on-field recognition, with accolades including membership in the National Honors Society and Principal's Honor Roll.

"I first saw Sam a couple years ago in club ball and recruited a couple of players from her very successful LA Fire team and got to know her through watching them. When she expressed an interest in us, I was all over it and am delighted to have her tending goal for us next year. Our only starter not returning was Liv (Glascoe), and that was our pressing need. Frankly, I don't think we could have done any better; Sam's as good as they get," said Johnston.

Katarina Gilmour, Mahwah, N.J.—Gilmour has been recognized with all-league honors all four years at Millbrook School. She was the captain of the soccer, squash and tennis teams her senior year. She came to the coaches' attention attending two summer prospect camps.

"She is a very skillful and capable midfielder that really caught mine and Kaitlyn's (previous assistant Geddings) attention the first night of our camp in 2014. She is very tricky, full of guile, and I think will be a creative force that will help us unlock opposing defenses. I look forward to seeing her play with our group," said Johnston.

Mena Kerrison, Charleston, S.C.— Kerrison came to the attention of the Sewanee staff while playing for the USAMP Region 3 Premier League group at the 2015 CASL event. She had a decorated prep career at Ashley Hall, hile also being an AP scholar and member of the National Honor Society.

"I have no doubt Mena will carry on the Charleston tradition of making reat contributions like her fellow home-towners. She is technical and active and will fit into my style of play smoothly," said Johnston.

Carly Levin, Glencoe, Ill.—Levin was her Lake Forest team's MVP during sophomore and junior seasons, while also being the leading goal scorer. If form holds, she will do it again this year as the high school season in Illinois is currently still in competition. Levin was her club team's captain

"She wrote me to come watch her play in the CASL tourney, and I was very impressed with her; she is my kind of player. Very active in the midfield and committed to giving 100 percent, while displaying keen technique and a very capable left foot. She will see lots of minutes for us this year and strengthen an already very powerful midfield," said Johnston.

Olivia Marlowe, Murfreesboro—Marlowe had to sit out her senior season with an ACL injury and despite this, was named the Siegel High School team captain. She has played for the Murfreesboro Soccer Club and Tennessee Soccer Club. She is a member of National Honors Society, Beta Club and is an AP Scholar.

"Olivia came to our attention in the fall, when despite her inability to participate, attended our ID Camp. She is about ready to take the field after a ong, hard road of recovery, and I'm looking forward to seeing her on the field and enjoying her soccer again," said Johnston.

Sofia Olenchek, Chattanooga—Olencheck's prep career at Notre had impressive straight set victories.

Dame in Chattanooga is full of accolades, including the Times-Free Press Best of Preps 2015 and 2016 and a Tennessee Secondary School Athletic Association Division II First-Team honor in 2015. Additionally, she is serving as team captain in her senior season. Olenchek is also a member of the National Honor Society.

"She, like Sam, caught my attention in a club game. She blew by one of the most athletic players on my team and scored a brilliant left-footer. I approached her after that game and stated it was my intention to see her play for me, and she seemed to agree. The more I saw of her, the more I knew I was right about her being a player

Christina Merchant

Tigers Sweep Berry and Oglethorpe

The No. 10 ranked Sewanee women's tennis team won its 12th straight match on April 17, as the Tigers blanked both Berry and Oglethorpe, 9-0.

Sewanee is now 18-5 overall and finished the regular season with a perfect 7-0 mark in league action.

Against Berry, Clementina Davila and Lindsey Liles defeated Lauren Byrket and Heidi Seabaugh, 8-0. Maggie Crumbliss and Annie Veron then topped Mary Cerny and Kaleigh Carpenter, 8-4, while Christina Merchant and Maura McCrary defeated Kelsey McCray and Emmie Cornell, 8-0.

In singles action, Davila won 6-0, 6-1, while Merchant topped Byrket, 6-3, 6-1. Sewanee won the remaining four matches in straight sets. That includes wins by Crumbliss, Taylor Childress, Haley Tucker and Mary Jane McCaghren.

Against Oglethorpe, Liles and Davila won in doubles, 8-1. Crumbliss and Veron then earned an 8-4 win, while McCaghren and Merchant won 8-1. In singles, Liles, Childress, Veron, Tucker, McCaghren, and McCrary all

Squaw Root

Betsy Grant reports seeing Squaw Root off the old stagecoach trail on the Monteagle Assembly grounds. This is indeed a flowering plant, although it lacks chlorophyll and is parasitic on the roots of oak trees. It is also called Cancer Root, probably because of its parasitic nature. Another name is Indian Corn, indicating its appearance, resembling a small ear of corn, and its use by Native Americans. It is a food of black bears and other woodland animals. In the photo one can see the two-lipped corolla of the flower and the scaly yellowish-brown bracts and leaves. There are two other species in the same family that also lack chlorophyll.

Beechdrops

Beechdrops are parasitic on the roots of beech trees. They are slender, brown-purple plants around a foot tall that bloom in the fall and blend in well with the leaf litter, making them hard to spot. One-Flowered Cancer Root has a more conspicuous, white or pale lavender flower at the tip of a stalk a few inches high and may be found blooming in the spring in rich woods and on stream banks. Sometimes this one is seen during the Smokies Wildflower Pilgrimage taking place this weekend.

Anual Garlic Mustard Pull

The Sewanee Herbarium is sponsoring its annual garlic mustard pull on Sunday, April 24, at 1:30 p.m. Meet at Morgan's Steep. No tools are necessary, but you may want to wear work gloves.

Garlic mustard, one of the most pernicious invasive weeds in the area, is blooming these days. Glossy heartshaped leaves are topped with clusters of white four-petaled flowers that develop into thin fruits that produce many tiny seeds. The seeds can remain viable in the soil for years.

When garlic mustard is found, pull up the whole plant. Then put it on a rock to dry out or in a plastic bag

Unlike less invasive roadside weeds, garlic mustard does invade the forest, outcompeting beautiful spring wildflowers, as well as tree seedlings. It produces chemicals that suppress mycorrhizal fungi, decreasing trees' ability to uptake water and nutrients. It is edible; there are recipes on the
