

Trails & Trilliums Opens at Monteagle Assembly April 10–11

With author Richard Louv as keynote speaker for the April 10–12 Trails & Trilliums festival in Monteagle, the Friends of South Cumberland's (FSC) theme this year is saving our children from "nature-deficit disorder," a Louv-coined term. But there will be activities for people of all ages. Registration is now open at <www.trailsandtrilliums.org>, along with a schedule of the many offerings: over 20 guided hikes, speakers, workshops, family fun, Art for the Park, vendors, the Children's Choir and more.

The kickoff event is the Children's Choir Concert at 5:30 p.m., Friday, April 10, followed by the Art for the Park opening night party showcasing the works of 10 featured artists. This cocktail buffet, held at the Assembly dining hall and gardens, provides first choice for purchase of artwork, with great food and spirits and live music. Tickets ($40 per person) are available online or by calling (931)

924-4000. All proceeds from tickets and art sales go to the Friends of South Cumberland State Park.

The 2015 featured artists are Bob Askew, Birdie Boone, Janice N. Dean, Jim Ann Howard, G. Sanford McGee, Susan G. McGrew, Lendon Noe, Mary P. Priestley, Carolyn Tweedy and Brett Weaver. Each artist donated a piece of work to be sold Friday evening, and they will have additional work for sale Saturday and Sunday. Four additional artists donated art for the event:

Jamey Chernicky, Celia Delaney, Mitzi Roess and Carol Sampson.

"The Friends are thankful to all the generous artists taking part as featured artists or vendors. Art for the Park has been a great source of revenue for the FSC," said event chair Dede Clements. Clements offered thanks to Citizens State Bank, sponsor for the opening night party, and John Canale, Art for the Park sponsor.

The three-day Trails & Trilliums festival takes place at the historic Monteagle Sunday School Assembly. Louv will participate in a symposium for outdoor educators on April 10 at the University and give the keynote address on April 11, followed by a book signing. His talk, titled "A Nature-Rich Life," will highlight the Wine & Wildflowers reception.

Family fun, free events will be 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Saturday, April 11, including a ropes course with a giant swing, wildlife programs, making fairy houses, building shelters, nature walks and outdoor games.

The festival is noted for guided hikes, wildflowers, workshops, programs of interest to naturalists and gardeners, a garden tour and high-quality art.

SUD Ready to Move on Midway Improvements

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

"We hope we can go with the original plan," SUD manager Ben Beavers said, in discussing a pressure-boosting station for the Midway community at the March 24 meeting of the Board of Commissioners of the Sewanee Utility District of Franklin and Marion Counties. Beavers also updated the board on the high rate of meter failure for meters installed in conjunction with the automated meter reading (AMR) technology recently implemented by SUD.

Nearly three years ago, SUD set in motion plans to install a much-needed pressure-boosting station in the Midway community. Difficulty in acquiring the necessary easements stalled the project, but Beavers is now optimistic the project can go forward at the original site on Leaky Pond Road.

"We have the surveys, and the easements are drawn up," Beavers said. Once the easements are signed, the Tennessee Department of Environment and Conservation has 30 days to grant approval. Installation will take a week.

SUD did not budget for the pressure boosting station in 2015; the estimated cost is $40,000. Beavers suggested unused funds in the Constructed Wetlands budget could be used for the project.

If SUD cannot acquire the necessary easements for the Leaky Pond Road site, the University is willing to discuss an easement, Beavers said. "We're considering all options."

Updating the board on the AMR technology recently installed by SUD, Beavers said the number of residential meters not "communicating" properly had reached 45, which is 25 more than last month. If as many meters fail next month, "we'll have an issue with the [meter] company," Beavers said. If the failure rate exceeds 5 percent, the company bears labor and fitting-related replacement costs, in addition to supplying replacement meters. The current failure rate is 3.5 percent.

The faulty meters were read manually, and customers received a revised bill. Customers have up to one year to make catch-up payments if needed, with no interest or late fees.

The SUD board meets next on April 28.

SAS Board Announces Interim Head of School

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School's board of trustees announced on April 2 that Judith Chamberlain has been appointed as interim head of school for the 2015–16 academic year.

Chamberlain will lead SAS while a committee made up of trustees, alumni, faculty, parents and administrators conducts a national search for the permanent head, who will begin July 2016.

A lifelong educator and seasoned administrator, Chamberlain is the former head of Giffit Hill School in St. John, U.S. Virgin Islands; Calmont School in Topanga, Calif.; Ransom Everglades School in Miami, Fla.; and Winchester Thurston School in Pittsburgh, Pa. She has built her career on re-imagining K–12 learning, integrating experiential learning into a standards-based curriculum and managing enrollment.

Chamberlain began her career as a Latin teacher in the District of Columbia Public Schools, going on to serve for 13 years as a teacher and the International Leadership Topic for Sen. Corker

Sen. Bob Corker will be in Sewanee on Thursday, April 9, to speak on why U.S. leadership is needed around the globe. His talk will be at 2 p.m. in Gailor Auditorium.

The event is sponsored by the Babson Center for Global Commerce, the department of politics, and the department of international and global studies at the University.

Corker will invite questions on pressing international issues, including ISIS, Iran and the End Modern Slavery Initiative Act, a proposal he has offered to end slavery and human trafficking worldwide.

In 2012, Tennesseans elected Corker to his second term in the U.S. Senate. Prior to serving as senator, Corker was Tennessee's commissioner of finance and mayor of Chattanooga. He graduated from the University of Tennessee in 1974 with a degree in industrial management. He and his wife, Elizabeth, live in Chattanooga.

Corker is the chairman of the powerful Foreign Relations Committee in the senate. Since taking office in 2007, he has visited more than 60 countries to gain a deeper understanding of the strategic relationships between the United States and other nations. As the lead Republican on the committee, Corker works with colleagues to set the committee agenda and help carry out legislative and oversight responsibilities.

After Corker's brief lecture, he will open the floor for a question-and-answer session with students. A reception will follow.

John Lahr to Talk about Tennessee Williams

John Lahr, author of "Tennessee Williams: Mad Pilgrimage of the Flesh," will present the 2015 Stacey Allen Haines Lecture at 4:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 8, in the Tennessee Williams Theatre. The talk will be followed by a reception.

In his compelling, intelligent and unflinching biography of Williams, Lahr, the senior drama critic at The New Yorker magazine since 1992, reveals the tangled connection between Tennessee Williams's life and his artistic creations. Lahr wrote: "[Blanche's] turmoil [in A Streetcar Named Desire]—the promiscuity, the drinking, the fear behind the display of erudite charm—is a veiled admission of Williams's own delirium. She believes, we learn, that her words have inadvertently caused the suicide of her beloved husband, just as Williams feared that his had precipitated his sister's descent into madness."

Through his meticulous research, Lahr also recreates the personal dramas behind the theatrical ones and uncovers the complexities of Williams's most important relationships, with director Elia Kazan,

COMMUNITY HEALTH TALKS SUCCESSFUL To the Editor:

The South Cumberland Plateau Health Network (SCPHN) extends sincere thanks to the more than 80 community participants who attended Community Conversations on Health and shared their thoughtful and invaluable insights. Overall, community members across the Plateau responded positively to our “kitchen table conversations,” with 99 percent of the participants rating the conversations as “excellent” or “good” and agreeing that they would likely participate in future community conversations. University students will analyze the information to find common themes related to health resources, needs and perceptions on the Plateau. This information can guide planning for innovative and effective health care services throughout the Plateau.

SCPHN is grateful for the contributions of time and resources provided by so many, which ensured the success of the conversations, especially the Networks members; the South Cumberland Plateau VISTA volunteers; Nicky Hamilton, Julie Keel, Sarah Brown, Betsy Oliver, Jim Peterman, Daniel Crabtree, Larry Phipps, Cindy Day, Marilyn Campbell-Rodman, Angela Burnett, De Hennessy and Jana Barrett; the Smoke House Restaurant; the Grundy County Health Council, Volunteer Behavioral Health Care Services, Anna's Angels and the South Cumberland Community Fund.

The Community Conversations on Health supported collaborative dialogue and work within our communities to improve the health and quality of life for everyone on the South Cumberland Plateau. We want individuals and organizations in our communities to stay engaged in the work of SCPHN and be a part of this ongoing collaborative effort.

TRAIL SAFETY CONCERN To the Editor:

While walking on the Mountain Goat Trail towards Pearl's, I was startled by a bicycle rider passing me at a high rate of speed with no warning.

Upon his return, I flagged him down and told him he should give a warning when he was passing walkers. His reply was that I was wearing headphones and wouldn't have heard him.

It is my understanding that the trail is used for casual walking and casual bicycle riders. Other bicycle riders should use the highway and not endanger pedestrians on the trail. Common courtesy would be to give warning when passing a pedestrian. Other bicycle riders should use the highway and not endanger pedestrians on the trail.

Speeding should be prohibited before someone gets seriously hurt.

REBUTTAL ON IRAN VOTE To the Editor:

Tommy Hewitt is correct [in his March 27, 2015, letter to the editor]: the president can negotiate and sign agreements. The 47 senators are also correct: any such “agreement” will only bind Barack Obama, not his successors and not Congress. The Senate must concur with the ratification of all treaties by a two-thirds vote. This was designed to encourage the president to take counsel with Congress and discourage the executive branch's domination (a serious issue today).

Mr. Obama's disdain for the checks and balances of our system will not end well for either the United States or the rest of the world. This is a man who, upon winning office, said he didn't need to work with Republicans because “I won” (2009) and later (in 2012 and 2014) claimed that “elections matter.”

When his party suffered historic losses in the 2014 mid-term elections, he suddenly hears those who didn't vote (11/5/2014). Sadly, Barack Obama's idea of compromise seems to be when others agree with him.

An Iranian nuke agreement without the consent of the senate will be less than worthless. Barack Obama is making an unenforceable deal with the same Iranian leaders who chant “death to America” on a weekly basis and have sworn to wipe Israel from the map. “Smart power,” indeed.

HOSPITALITY SHOP GUIDE-LINES To the Editor:

This is to remind everyone about the Hospitality Shop policies regarding donations.

When bringing items left over from a yard sale, we should be notified in advance by calling 598-0136 to make the necessary arrangements. All donated items should be in good shape, and clothing and linens should be clean. Please do not leave loose items in the bin. Also, all clothing should be taken off hangers. Please remember, we are not a convenience center.

We do not accept furniture, electronic equipment or accessories, printers, computers, vacuum cleaners and other items that are on the list on the side of the bin. We do appreciate all donations and hope these guidelines will be helpful.

Lectures & Talks

Issues and Careers in the Environmental Movement

Davis Jones, C'87, will give a talk at 4 p.m., today (Friday), April 3, in Gailor Auditorium. Jones is the associate director at the Environmental Protection Agency's Headquarters for International Enforcement. He will discuss the environmental movement.

All are invited to this event sponsored by the University Lectures Committee, the department of environmental studies: environment and sustainability and environmental arts and humanities, the politics department, the Office of Career & Leadership Development, and the Beyond Sewanee Club.

Louv to Speak at SAS April 10

Author and journalist Richard Louv will be the Bishop Reynolds Forum speaker at St. Andrew's-Sewanee at 8 a.m., Friday, April 10, in McCrory Hall for the Performing Arts. The public is invited to attend. Louv is the author of eight books, including "Last Child in the Woods: Saving Our Children from Nature-Deficit Disorder" and "The Nature Principle: Reconnecting with Life in a Virtual Age." Louv's appearance is made possible by the support of The Friends of South Cumberland State Park. Louv will also be the keynote speaker at Trails & Trilliums on Saturday, April 11.

Sewanee Medieval Colloquium Begins on April 10

The 41st annual Sewanee Medieval Colloquium will take place Friday and Saturday, April 10–11. This year's theme is "Peace and War," and the Colloquium will draw scholars from across the country and the world. It will feature papers concerned with such topics as military history and the process of peace-making, allegorical warfare, the literature of the Hundred Years War, the culture of knighthood, Jerusalem as a symbol of peace and conquest, and the crusades.

Ardis Butterfield, the John M. Schiff Professor of English and professor of French and music at Yale University, will be the first plenary speaker of the Colloquium. She has written extensively on the works of Chaucer, as well as on 14th- and 15th-century French poetry, and medieval music. Her book, "The Familiar Enemy: Chaucer, Language and Nation in the Hundred Years War," (Oxford) won the 2010 R. H. Gapper Book Prize.

Butterfield will give a lecture at 6 p.m., Friday, April 10, in Gailor Auditorium on "Borderline Borderlines: French, English and Anglo-French in the Middle Ages" in St. Luke's Chapel.

Ardis Butterfield

Jonathan Phillips, professor of history at Royal Holloway, University of London, will be the second speaker. Phillips has written numerous books on the crusades, including "Holy Warriors: A Modern History of the Crusades" (Bodley Head) which was selected as one of the "History Books of 2009" by the Sunday Telegraph and BBC History Magazine.

He has appeared numerous times on British radio and television, and has recently completed a major six-part series on early Christianity, "The Road From Christ to Constantine," which he co-wrote and presents.

Phillips will give a lecture at 6 p.m., Saturday, April 11, in Gailor Auditorium, on "Trade, Crusade and Religious Debate: The Context of the Third Crusade."

Gessell Fellows Present St. Mark's Project on April 14

The recipients of the 2014–15 Gessell Fellowship for Social Ethics will present their project, "Can I Get a Witness? Sewanee's St. Mark's Community," at 4:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 14, in Hargrove Auditorium at Sewanee's School of Theology.

Sara Milford, T'15, and Katie Bradshaw, T'15, became interested in this topic on Ash Wednesday Quiet Day in 2014.

"This is the St. Mark's side of the cemetery," professor Jerry Smith told seminarians in the University Cemetery on that day. Bradshaw and Milford, now senior seminarians, were among those who listened, eager to hear about a church they did not know existed and the story of someone whose life was nearly forgotten. The search to learn more about the St. Mark's community led to learning about the history of a people in Sewanee, looking at both the joys and the disparity experienced in the past and in the present. Their research has been about listening: listening to what is said at funerals, listening to the connections between people and listening to the stories that yearn to be told.

The presentation, which includes Bradshaw and Milford's documentary film, captures some of the history of the African-American community in Sewanee: what it was and still is. The intention has been to preserve at least some of the rich history and valuable stories these families and individuals hold for and with Sewanee.

After the presentation, all are invited to enjoy refreshments and engage in conversation.

The Gessell Fellowship in Social Ethics, established by John M. "Jack" Gessell in 2006, provides funding for Sewanee students to do an independent research project in social theory or social ethics. The project may be an academic research paper or field experience. Awards alternate yearly between students from the College and the School of Theology.

Chemistry Show on April 16

The Sewanee chemistry department will present its 10th annual Chemistry Demonstration Show at 6 p.m., Thursday, April 16, in Blackman Auditorium. This event is free and all are welcome.

A VIEW FROM THE DUMP

by Francis Walter

From Ecclesiastes

Back then, living was so unadorned, things so meager, after most things served one purpose, they could serve another. They lived with what they had and used it. Nothing was considered disposable. Come to think of it, they excelled at "primitive recycling."

"A time to get, and a time to lose, a time to keep, and a time to cast away." —Ecclesiastes 3:6 KJV

It is instinctual human (and animal) behavior to shuck off unwanted things and put them out of our minds. In simpler times there was no reason to consider how to put to use things we were through with. Many shell mounds are found at the mouth of Mobile Bay. (Their number today has diminished under the assault of development.) The Original People living there around 1200 AD enjoyed the bounty of oysters and clams—so easy to harvest. The empty shells were garbage, as were the shards of broken pottery and fractured arrowheads. That was about all the garbage they produced.

The women at first complained, "These shells stink and cut the baby's feet. Can't you guys, for the Master of Life's sake, start cleaning up after yourselves?"

"We've got more important things to do—arrows to notch, gar-scale bird points to trade. We'll do it later."

We know how that came out. After a few centuries, the men's position turned out to be the better one. The top of the large shell mounds provided a safe place for the tribes to live when storms and flood tides came, sort of natural recycling born of the difficulty of getting rid of shells.

Today, the shell mound solution would not work. Our garbage is too voluminous, too poisonous, too dangerous, too varied, and also as recycling grows, too valuable.

Generalizations are never fair, but always tempting and fun to make, so at the Dump there are two kinds of people: First, there are the recyclers who realize the importance of recycling and also realize their unwanted stuff can be valuable. They have taken a momentous step. They have moved away from old behavior of casting off responsibility for what is thrown away. They see its re-use as one small step toward preserving decent lives for all living creatures. Then there are people who just want to get rid of things they no longer want, doing so as easily and quickly as possible. Devil, take the hindmost!

The Boy Scouts trained me to understand the difference between cleaning up and clearing out. When breaking up an overnight camp, our Scout Master would say, "I want this place to look exactly the way it did before we got here—gum wrappers, match ends—everything picked up; food scraps buried." We had fun seeing how clean we could get it.

Our convenience centers are not the best at recycling. Far from it. But as more good citizens in Franklin County see the mounting danger of our refuse and become recyclers, we must work politically and make our concerns known, to make convenience centers what we want them to be.

Youth Host Spaghetti Dinner Fund-Raiser

Fire on the Mountain (FOTM) is hosting a silent auction and spaghetti dinner to raise funds for its summer mission trip and other youth activities. Auction items include a dinner for eight, baked items, special stationery, meditation CD, tea party, pet sitting, yard work, child care/babysitting, a guided nature hike and more.

Donations and services are still being accepted. Contact Neil Patterson at <fotmotey@gmail.com> or 598-9530 by April 10 and provide a detailed description, a minimum initial bid and phone or email.

Silent auction sheets will be put out for bids in St. Mark's Hall on April 12 and 19. On April 12, the bid sheets will be posted from 9:30 a.m. until noon. On April 19, the bid sheets will be available from 8:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. The winners of the silent auction will then be announced.

The spaghetti dinner will be held in conjunction with the silent auction on April 19, starting at noon, with spaghetti, bread, brownie and a drink for $6.

Members of Fire on the Mountain will be selling tickets for the spaghetti dinner in St. Mark's Hall and/or outside Otey Parish Church after Sunday services through April 12.

Marlon Brando, Frank Merlo, Lady Maria St. Just and most of the 20th century's leading actors, cultural celebrities and dramatists.

Many of the insights in "Tennessee Williams: Mad Pilgrimage of the Flesh" come from Lahr's deep roots in and knowledge of the world of theatre. J.D. McClatchy wrote in the Wall Street Journal that Lahr "knows his way around Broadway better than anyone. He is a witty and elegant stylist, a scrupulous researcher, a passionate yet canny advocate ... He brings us as close to Williams as we are ever likely to get."

In 2002 Lahr became the first drama critic to win a Tony Award. He has twice won the George Jean Nathan Award for Dramatic Criticism. His biography of Williams is a finalist for the 2014 National Book Award and was named one of the Best Books of 2014 by the Chicago Tribune, the Washington Post and Publisher's Weekly.

The Stacy Allen Haines Memorial Lectureship was established in memory of Stacy Haines, who became a Sewanee resident following his retirement from Sears, Roebuck and Co. in Chicago. It supports visiting lecturers and imaginative young writers, the subjects of whose readings are pertinent to the English literature program. The English department is also grateful for the collaboration and contribution of the theatre department.

Enrollment Open for Insurance Marketplace

For those who have not enrolled to buy private health care insurance, with possible tax credit support, the Health Insurance Marketplace will reopen for enrollment through April 30. This period is open only for those who recently became aware of the tax penalty they have been subject to for not having a qualified insurance plan.

The best way to enroll is to call the American Exchange, (888) 995-1674.

The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) announced a special enrollment period for individuals and families in Federally Facilitated Marketplace (FFM) states (including Tennessee) who did not have health coverage in 2014 and are subject to the penalty when they file their 2014 taxes.

CMS will provide consumers with an opportunity to purchase health insurance coverage through April 30. Consumers who qualify must select a plan by 11:59 p.m. EDT on April 30.

Those eligible for this special enrollment period live in FFM states and:

—are not currently enrolled in 2015 coverage (whether through the FFM, an employer or other source like the individual marketplace);

—attest that they are or will be subject to the fee for not having health coverage for all or part of 2014 when they file their 2014 taxes; and

—attest that they first became aware of, or understood the implications of the requirement to maintain minimum essential coverage (MEC) after the end of open enrollment (February 15, 2015) in connection with preparing their 2014 taxes.

For more information contact Jim Peterman at 598-1482.

Mountain Market Seeks Vendors

The Monteagle Chamber of Commerce is seeking vendors for the 56th annual Mountain Market for Arts and Crafts, which will be July 25–26 in Hannah Pickett Park. This juried market is open to hand-crafted or home-produced items.

Artist's applications can be found at <<http://monteaglechamber.com/arts.html>>. The application deadline is July 15, but there is a discount if you apply before July 1. For more information, go to <www.monteaglechamber.com> or call (931) 924-5353.

AVISITING VOICE

by Jill Carpenter

Free the Trees

In the winter, our naked deciduous trees are kept company by evergreen cedar, holly, hemlock and pine. However, there's another evergreen that is invisible in plain sight, because it is on the trees. If you look around your neighborhood and along roadways when you are out, you will see grand old trees groaning under thousands of pounds of English ivy vines. It's not unusual to see a copse of trees, with larger older ivy-covered trees still standing, and young trees weakened, pruned and broken, essentially turned into ivy candlesticks.

English ivy (Hedera helix) was introduced to the United States in the Colonial period. It must have reminded the English colonists of home. Seven of the eight colleges in the "Ivy League" were also created during this time, and the image of buildings covered with English ivy has become associated with education and learning.

However, when English ivy leaves a building and creeps silently over the ground and up trees, it creates a huge problem—for trees, for biodiversity, and for the health of a forest in general. In many areas of the United States, English ivy has invaded woodlands and deciduous forests to create thick mats of ivy vines where no other understory or ground cover can grow, and where the seeds of native plants can't germinate. These mats are called "ivy deserts."

English ivy has two forms. The tender juvenile form is a ground cover. When it reaches a tree and begins to climb skyward, it becomes the adult form, a thick-stemmed and thick-leaved shrub, able to produce small flowers and seeds. It uses the host trees' strength and stature to get an abundance of sunlight, especially in the winter when the deciduous trees are barren of leaves. Each winter it gains more advantage.

English ivy is not just in central campus and leaseholds, but is moving stealthily into Sewanee's forests. You will see it on some bluffs, and infesting trees on hiking trails. It's along the highways to Monteagle, Cowan and Decherd. Once you start noticing, English ivy is no longer invisible.

English ivy loves moist air and soil and is hardy to minus 10 degrees or more, so in our area it photosynthesizes and grows year-round. When deciduous trees leaf out in the spring, the ivy presents a physical barrier, and is already competing for water and soil nutrients. Imagine waking up from a long nap to find that while you were sleeping, you had been covered by a cage-like vine, and that vine insists on staying, to soak up your sunshine, grow, drink your water and eat your breakfast, lunch and dinner!

Trees can be freed of English ivy simply by sawing or cutting through the ivy's viny stems on the trunks of the trees. Pull up the small tendrils. No human climbing is necessary. The ivy will die, dry, loosen its hold, and eventually fall off, leaving only scars. Cutting through ivy vines will give trees instant relief that lasts for many years. The rooted parts of the ivy plants will continue to send out creeping shoots that have the potential to begin climbing trees again; they can be attacked at ground level.

In the past English ivy has been removed from University buildings such as All Saints Chapel and St. Luke's Chapel. You can see its scars on the stones. It was planted as a ground cover near the Fowler Sports Center years ago and later removed. It has been removed from a big specimen oak tree near the middle of the golf course, and from a tree near the sidewalk south of Thompson Union. Once its roots are present, it will grow back if it is not kept in check.

As we do spring cleanup and planting, I urge homeowners and landscapers who value native trees and biodiversity on the Domain to do what they can to stop or slow ivy infestation. I also urge homeowners to refrain from buying flats of innocuous-seeming juvenile ivy vines to plant in their yards. They may be labeled "easy grow" and have cute little tender leaves, but that's not the whole story.

An ivy-covered tree.

Walk to Eliminate Hunger on April 25

Concerned people and organizations across the Plateau work together to eliminate hunger and poverty in our community. Here on the Mountain, the Food Ministry of Morton Memorial United Methodist Church in Monteagle and the Community Action Committee (CAC) in Sewanee cooperate to provide food to families in need.

Monteagle Sewanee Rotary, in partnership with CAC, Morton Memorial and the Mountain Goat Trail, is sponsoring the first annual Hunger Walk. On Saturday, April 25, the walk will begin at the Sewanee Angel Park; registration is at 9 a.m., with the walk beginning at 10 a.m.

Participants will walk to Pearls Café on the Mountain Goat Trail and return to Otey Parish, a total of five miles. The Hunger Walk will end at Claiborne Parish House, where a complimentary lunch will be served to all registrants. Registration for the event is $10 per person.

"Morton distributes 8,000 pounds of food a month on the Mountain, and CAC distributes another 1,000 pounds a month. Rotary wants to help raise awareness of poverty and hunger in our communities. That's why we're so excited about this event," said John Goodson, president of Monteagle Sewanee Rotary. "We hope everyone will come out and join us."

George and Edwene Clay

Grundy County Man Named Tennessee Farmer of the Year

He first sold certified oat and wheat seeds some 57 years ago, and George Clay of Pelham has been farming ever since. This year, Clay has been named as the Tennessee Farmer of the Year by University of Tennessee Extension. The third-generation farmer, his wife, Edwene, and their sons, Eddie, Keith and Eric, currently oversee about 2,100 acres and 110 beef cows—a far cry from the 150 acres Clay first leased in 1958. Clay was able to expand this acreage over time by purchasing and renting more land.

Today the Clays raise corn, soybeans, wheat, hay and feeder cattle. The "boys" and grandson J.R. represent the fourth and fifth generations of Clays to work on the farm. As the elder Clay likes to proudly point out, theirs is a family farm.

Dallas Manning, UT Extension area specialist in farm management, agrees. He's seen the Clays engage in planning and brainstorming activities for their farm while the family is gathered around the kitchen table at lunch. Manning nominated Clay for the statewide award.

Farmers from all across Tennessee were nominated for the honor by their county extension agents or by area farm management specialists. Clay was introduced as the Tennessee Farmer of the Year in March.

Clay says he and Edwene have been true partners on the farm and in life. The two have been married more than 60 years — longer than they have been on the farm. Edwene keeps the books, while Clay, Eddie and Eric mostly work the land. Keith, their middle son, is a regional supervisor for the Farm Service Agency, but he still enjoys returning to the farm to help out his parents and brothers. Grandson J.R. (Eric's son) returns to the farm when he's on break from his studies in agriculture at the University of Tennessee-Knoxville.

Manning described Clay as a good steward of his land and resources. He practices no-till and minimum tillage production practices to preserve his soil and reduce his use of chemical treatments like pesticides. His farm was recognized as the 2013 Grundy County Soil Conservation Farm of the Year.

As Tennessee Farmer of the Year, Clay will compete in the Southeastern Farmer of the Year competition at the Sunbelt Ag Expo in Moultrie, Ga.

GOODFOOD MATTERS

"G&G"— Garlic-Ginger Pork and Cashew Confetti Rice

Last month, my friend Irene Emory, owner of Crossroads Cafe in Sewanee, was planning a Chinese New Year Celebration Dinner in eight courses, to be served Friday and Saturday evening. She needed some more hands in the kitchen. We talked, and I decided I could—for the weekend—come out of catering retirement. I packed up my favorite knives and motored south to Monteagle Mountain.

She had designed an ambitious menu: a vegetarian Eight Treasures soup; steamed shrimp dumplings—beguiling in their shiny almost translucent wraps; tender pork dumplings; fish steamed in ginger, scallions and mirin; the ever-favorite vegetable stir-fry, Buddha's Delight; Longevity noodles topped with exotic mushroom-bok choy; garlic chive-ginger shrimp; roast duck in hoisin plum sauce, and finally, pineapple tarts with fresh fruit salad.

Irene has a fabulous gas wok stove. We could stand, side by side, each with our own huge wok to prepare our dishes. While I stir-fried vegetables, Irene simmered pork dumplings. We both prepared batches of garlic chive shrimp. The kitchen filled with heady aromatics. More wok-work: Irene made luscious bok choy. I tended to the soba noodles, in this case a quick boil, then plunge into ice water: the trick to keep them from getting sticky.

There's a faucet connected to the stove. The long spigot can swing across the top, which makes refilling vessels a breeze, as water boils and evaporates. Adding a splash of water to the stir-fry created a beneficial sizzle and steam. When the cooking was complete, we could dump the water right onto the range top, which was at a slight angle. All the liquid disappeared down a drain. So cool!

It was fun to cook on that stove—a new experience for me. But what impressed me more was Irene's cooking: her use of fresh garlic and ginger. Several stir-fries began with a squirt of oil and generous dollops of each ingredient, finely minced. Together, the two pungent tastes imparted this marvelous depth of flavor. G&G, I thought. I'd put that to use.

Weather that weekend was berserk. The day was overcast for my Friday morning drive and a moderate 40 degrees. Most of the ice and snow from the storm earlier in the week had vanished. Things shifted later in the day. Right before our first dinner service, fat snowflakes began to cloak the mountain in white—3 inches! Late into the night, the snow turned into freezing rain.

By morning, everything was covered in a deceptive icy glaze. I hadn't seen this since I was a child in New York—it stirred a memory of my siblings and me lacing up our ice skates, and gliding from neighboring yard to yard over ice-glazed snow.

Despite the wintery precip, both dinners proceeded as planned, with surprisingly few cancellations. Guests enjoyed all of the courses, and appreciated Irene's gifts of mandarins and gold coins for abundance and good luck in the new year.

After a weekend of so much cooking, it was time to drive back home. On Sunday morning, the temperature had warmed again. The treacherous ice-glazed snow had melted. It was replaced by a blanket of fog, so thick I could barely see a few feet of the road in front of me. It was spooky. I drove onto the wrong highway ramp. After a panicked moment, I turned around, and got behind a big truck. I used him as my guide to descend the mountain.

Soon, the fog was above me. The world cleared. I'd be home soon, armed with new cooking inspiration.

DREMC and SVEC Honor Electric Linemen

On April 13, Duck River Electric Membership Corporation and Sequachee Valley Electric Cooperative will honor the hard-working men and women who often work in challenging conditions to keep the lights on.

We proudly recognize all electric linemen for the services they perform around the clock in dangerous conditions to keep power flowing and protect the public's safety.

"Electric linemen do not often receive the recognition they deserve," said Duck River EMC President/CEO Michael Watson. "They work all hours of the day, often in hazardous conditions far from their families, going above and beyond to restore power to their communities. Our linemen, as well as linemen from across the nation, truly deserve this special day of recognition."

Electric cooperatives across America have designated the second Monday of April as National Lineman Appreciation Day.

To honor the DREMC linemen, each district office will have an internal Lineman Appreciation Day breakfast or lunch on April 13. Cards are at the local offices for members to sign in appreciation of the DREMC linemen. The cards will be presented at each district. During the month of March, DREMC held a Lineman Appreciation Day Art Contest for students. The artwork will be given to the linemen to hang in their break rooms.

SVEC has 30 linemen who work across the co-op's four-county service area.

"Today we honor the dedicated service of these courageous workers and recognize the critical role they play in keeping the lights on," said David Callis, executive vice president and general manager of the Tennessee Electric Cooperative Association. "Our communities depend on reliable energy, and Tennessee's electric linemen place themselves in harm's way to power our everyday lives."

"These are special people who are passionate about their jobs and the communities they serve," said Callis. "They go above and beyond, and all of us in this industry are honored to work with them."

Pre-K and Kindergarten Registration

Registration for kindergarten and pre-kindergarten in Franklin County will be on Thursday, April 9, at the school the child will attend. Pre-K registration is 7:30 a.m.–2:30 p.m. Kindergarten registration is 1–5 p.m.

For the 2015–16 school year, Tennessee students entering kindergarten must be 5 years old by Aug. 15. To enroll in the pre-K program, a child must be 4 years old by Aug. 15.

The following documents are required to register a child for public school: the child's certified birth certificate, the child's Social Security card, the child's immunization record and a completed physician's physical report.

In addition, for registration in the pre-K program, proof of income is required. For more information contact Patti Limbaugh at 967-0626.

Students at Sewanee Elementary participated recently in the annual 4-H Clover Bowl. Fifth-grade students (from left) Riley Burnette, Dallan Marshall, Sage Pool and Eli Thompson will be representing SES at the county-level competition. Clover Bowl is an opportunity for young people to develop leadership, teamwork and communication skills. Students answer questions about Tennessee (history, geography and government), agriculture, and family and consumer sciences.

Students at Sewanee Elementary are spending their Friday afternoons in special classes ranging from ballroom dancing to wrestling. The wide range of activities is made possible by the many volunteers in the community who visit the school on Friday afternoons for four weeks to instruct the students on a subject they have a particular interest in learning more about. Mountain bikers (above) were led on a ride by SES staff member Adam Cowan and longtime Friday School volunteer Woody Deutsch.

Pre-Swim Begins in April

The following swim opportunities are being offered by coach Max Obermiller and the University at the Fowler Center. Pre-registration is April 13–16 from 3:15 to 6 p.m. The classes are for five weeks, Monday through Thursday, April 13 through May 14.

3:15–4 p.m., Rookie: $160. Must be able to swim at least 15 feet on their own, and can swim freestyle and backstroke. This class is for beginning swimmers, and is not a learn-to-swim class. Primary ages are 4–7.

4–4:45 p.m., Silver: $160. Can swim the length of the pool easily. Teaching will focus on learning butterfly and breaststroke and conditioning to increase strength. Primary ages are 5–10.

4:45–6 p.m., Gold: $130. Focus will be on training and further stroke development. Primary ages are 7–18.

For questions contact coach Max Obermiller at (931) 598-1546 or <mobermil@sewanee.edu>.

Judith Chamberlain

director of the middle school at National Cathedral School in Washington, DC.

SAS board president Richard Westling said, "Judy's leadership experience, her insight and her demonstrated knowledge of school operations and governance will serve us well as we prepare the school for new leadership." In announcing the appointment, Westling noted Chamberlain's accomplishments in increasing both enrollment and faculty compensation at her last two schools.

Chamberlain holds a bachelor of arts in Latin from George Washington University and a master of arts in Latin from the Catholic University of America. She has done coursework in education at District of Columbia Teachers College and Columbia University, where she was a Klingenstein Fellow.

Chamberlain will begin her tenure at SAS on July 1.

Committee Named for Head of School Search

In anticipation of the departure of the current head of school, the board of trustees of St. Andrew's-Sewanee School has named a committee to conduct a thorough search for a qualified administrator to be the next leader of the 148-year-old school.

Led by Eunice Colmore, former SAS trustee and former chair of the school's buildings and grounds committee, the 10 members of the search committee represent the trustees, faculty, alumni and parents. The committee will work with consultants Marguerite Lloyd and Marlene Shaw of Carney Sandoe & Associates to evaluate candidates and hire a new head to assume leadership of the school in June 2016. As the search progresses, there will be numerous opportunities for the school community to participate in the process. To allow for a thorough search, an interim head of school, Judith Chamberlain, will be in place for the 2015-16 academic year.

"I am grateful to all the individuals who have agreed to serve," said Colmore. "I am very pleased by how well the membership represents the various constituencies at the school."

In addition to Colmore, the committee members include David Allen, StA '77, trustee and president of the SAS Alumni Council; Lee Ann Backlund, dean of admissions and financial aid at Sewanee; Merritt Dyke, SA '80, former board president and trustee; Lisa Hartman, trustee and vice president of the SAS Parents' Council; Osei Hill '07, faculty member; Martha Rhodes McClendon, '93, trustee; George Myers, SMA '74, board secretary, trustee and chair of the development committee; Allison Paterson, SAS dean of students; and Rondal Richardson, trustee.

Information about the position and continuous updates on the search are available at <www.sasweb.org/headsearch>.

A College for Each SAS Senior

With offers still coming in, the 44 seniors at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School each have received at least one college acceptance. Some seniors have received as many as eight college admissions offers. Offers have come from California to Maine and everywhere in between.

"It is great to see our students' hard work recognized," said Christine Asmussen, St. Andrew's-Sewanee director of college counseling. "SAS graduates are an asset in the classroom and in our community. Their success has built our school a strong reputation in admissions offices across the country."

As the full-time college counselor, Asmussen works with students to help them identify the best fit for their interests, abilities and family finances. Representatives from more than 50 colleges and universities visit St. Andrew's-Sewanee School during the school year. The college representatives travel from as far away as the University of Puget Sound and St. Andrew's, Scotland. Their visits are an opportunity for the students to learn more about the colleges and for the representatives to learn more about St. Andrew's-Sewanee.

"We encourage our students to visit the colleges and universities they are considering, but it's tremendously valuable to have representatives from these schools visit us," said Asmussen. "When a college representative comes to our campus, they get a better sense of what goes on here. They see the quality of the school and its facilities. It is a real benefit to our students to have someone at the college who can put their application into context."

Each year, SAS seniors are accepted into some of the country's most selective institutions. Last year, the Class of 2014 matriculated to such schools as Boston University, Carleton College, Davidson College, George Mason University, Oberlin College, Pratt Institute, Sewanee and Wellesley College.

Reflections on a Spring Break Trip to Jamaica

by Casey Willis, Messenger Intern

March 7-16 were perhaps the most sobering, fulfilling and meaningful days of my life. I traveled to Kingston, Jamaica, where I, along with 13 other people from St. Andrew's-Sewanee School, helped the people of Trenchtown make repairs to their Boys' Town school area and public space. We repainted the majority of the buildings in Boys' Town, as well as helped the teachers and children in the Boys' Town basic school.

The first day we were there, I learned that Trenchtown is one of the poorest regions of Kingston. I knew ahead of time that we were going to an impoverished area, but the lifestyle in Trenchtown is something for which no one can truly prepare themselves. Between houses in Trenchtown, for instance, space is provided by giant sheets of rusty metal, with small walkways between them. Many of the houses do not look or function much better than the metal sheets. For many children, the school provides two meals per day; without this charity, the children would be lucky to get one per day.

I saw much that made me sad, but there were some recurring positive themes that I observed. First, everyone there was enjoying life, more than I see most people in the United States enjoying theirs. Despite their hardship, Jamaicans seem genuinely happy. Also, I noticed how a sport such as soccer can bring people together. On game days, the majority of Trenchtown is at the soccer field cheering and yelling. But they are not only brought together by watching the games. The kids are kept together and out of harm's way by playing soccer. By our second day in Jamaica, I had seen the influence of soccer on those kids. We watched the Boys' Town club team play their match, and then we started playing. Immediately we were swarmed by kids. I became more aware of the impact that soccer has on their lives with every passing minute of that game.

The things that I saw on my trip are easy to describe, however the feelings that arose in me because of those sights are not. After my second day of work, I realized that what we were doing seemed insignificant compared to all that desperately needed to be done in Trenchtown. And in the rest of the world. I quickly became aware, however, that no amount of help ever goes unappreciated.

Since being in Kingston, I have struggled with the understanding that I am far more fortunate than the majority of the world. My natural response when I don't want to deal with something is to complain about it. This is true for most people. We gripe about school, work, cleaning, you name it. If it involves anything except fun, people often complain. And sometimes people even complain about fun because the activity they are doing is not the way they like to have fun.

I have come to find that I have no excuse to complain. Whatever my plight may be, it pales in comparison to the things that the people of Trenchtown encounter every single day. I am slowly coming to terms with this. Having one's perspective on life turned upside down and then shaken has been a powerful experience for me, and one for which I will forever be thankful. I have always considered myself an upbeat, positive person. Since coming home from Jamaica, I have become all the more thankful for the things I am fortunate to have and "fortunate enough to not realize I have," as my friend and participant on the trip Cooper Nickels said. The circumstances in which most people in this country live is something that goes vastly underappreciated. We have wonderful lives. Be thankful for them.

Soccer campers, their coaches and the staff have a great time each summer playing on the fields at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School.

Day Camps this Summer at SAS

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School is offering a variety of summer camp opportunities on the campus of SAS, beginning in June. Registration is now open.

SAS Basketball Camp will be held June 1–5, from 9 a.m. to noon. This day camp is for boys and girls in grades one–eight. The cost is $90. Players will work on fundamentals, participate in dribbling and shooting contests and play full-court games. The philosophy of the camp is to build a solid foundation of the fundamentals of the game, along with an emphasis on teamwork. SAS director of athletics and basketball coach Rob Zeitler will direct the camp.

SAS Soccer Camp will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., June 8–12. The cost is $200 for Junior (rising third–fifth-graders) and Youth (rising sixth–eighth-graders). Soccer Camp offers players instruction and drills to promote better ball-handling skills and game strategy. The camp also includes the opportunity to swim at the DuBose Conference Center pool in the afternoons. The camp fee includes a camp T-shirt. Campers are expected to bring their own ball. Coach Margot Burns and coach Harrison Camp may place children in camp divisions by skill level rather than strictly by grade level.

SAS Wrestling Camp is a half-day camp intended for inexperienced wrestlers in grades one through eight. The purpose of the camp is to teach these young athletes dependable wrestling techniques and inspire curiosity in the sport. Wrestlers will learn new moves, and camp will end with a take-down tournament. The camp will run June 15–19 from 9 a.m. to noon and costs $90. The camp is directed by SAS wrestling coach McLain Still.

SAS Arts and Outdoors Camp is a full-day camp for boys and girls in grades four through seven. The camp will run June 15–19 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Combining art, education and the outdoors, this camp will engage students in the expansive natural environment of the SAS campus. Students will explore, imagine and create by working with a variety of techniques and materials, including traditional art media, found objects and natural fibers. Cost is $250. SAS faculty and artists Natasha Brunton and Molly Schaefer direct the camp.

To register for any of these camps or for more information, go to <www.sasweb.org/summer>.

Shakerag Workshops is a group of one-week arts classes for adults held in June each year on the SAS campus. Session one will be June 14–20; session two, June 21–27. For more information, go to <www.shakerag.org>.

University's May Honorary Degree Recipients

The University has announced its baccalaureate speaker and honorary degree recipients who will be honored during Commencement weekend, May 8–10. Robert M. Gates, former secretary of defense and former president of Texas A&M University, will receive an honorary degree and will give the baccalaureate address during the service on Saturday, May 9.

The Most Rev. Dr. Thabo Cecil Makgoba, Anglican archbishop of Cape Town, South Africa, will receive an honorary degree and will preach during the School of Theology commencement.

Honorary degrees will also be presented to Mary Moore Dwyer, president and CEO of Institute for the International Education of Students; Frantz Robertson Hershey, headmaster of Episcopal High School in Alexandria, Va.; Jefferson Allen McMahan, C'76, White's Professor of Moral Philosophy at the University of Oxford; and the Rt. Rev. Robert Skirving, bishop of the Diocese of East Carolina.

Sewanee Elementary School students raised $4,500 in this year's Jump Rope For Heart, an annual fund-raiser for the American Heart Association. Eighty students collected donations. First-grade student Eliza Griffey was the top fund-raiser in SES. This is the 19th year SES has participated in the program, raising more than $64,000 over the years. Pictured with this year's check are (back row, from left) PE teacher David Gilliam, Robbie Philipp, Eliza Griffey and Morgan Jackson; (front row, from left) Griff Wilson, Sam Weintraub and Noah Barnes.

THE INSATIABLE CRITIC

by Elizabeth Ellis

Sir Toby, The Critic's valiant sidekick: Every good critic needs a good rating system, and there's nothing on the planet more critical than cats, so one movie each week is rated from one to five Tobys. The more Tobys there are, the better it is!

Sir Toby

Unbroken

7:30 p.m. • Friday–Monday, April 3–6
2014 • Rated PG-13 • 137 minutes

Directed by Angelina Jolie and screenplay by the Coen Brothers, this powerhouse of a true story was nominated for three Oscars this year and won Outstanding Action Performance by a Stunt Ensemble in a Motion Picture at the Screen Actors Guild Awards. It follows the life of Olympic athlete Louis "Louie" Zamperini, who joined the armed forces during World War II. When his plane is shot down over the open Pacific, he and two other crewmen survive in a raft for 47 days, only to be captured by the Japanese Navy and sent to a POW camp. While the noble heroism angle of the tale has been criticized as overdone, it still sheds the spotlight on a relatively unknown hero of WWII. Rated PG-13 for war violence, including intense sequences of brutality, parents should take caution with smaller children.

The Passion of Joan of Arc

7:30 p.m. • Tuesday, April 7
1928 • Unrated • 114 minutes

This historic French silent film focuses on the doomed life of the martyr Jeanne d'Arc. Forced in front of a troop of sour-faced priests who act as jurists, it chronicles the horrific trial of Joan as the church tries to make her recant her claims of holy visions. Actress Maria Falconetti's luminous eyes filmed in stark black-and-white wordlessly tell endless tales of strength and resolve. One of the first films directed by Carl Theodor Dreyer, he would go on to direct films well into the 1950s, making the transition from silent films to "talkies." It is an interesting experience for anyone who has never seen a silent movie to see how much more expressive actors and actresses had to be; and Dreyer makes the most of close-ups and intricate editing despite the limitations of the time. Though unrated, it does feature heavy themes such as interrogation and torture that may be too heavy for the very young to witness.

Braveheart

7:30 p.m. • Wednesday, April 8
1995 • Rated R • 177 minutes

One of Mel Gibson's finest turns as an actor and director, he plays Scotsman William Wallace, a man who wishes no ill on anyone until violence comes to his door. "Braveheart" won no less than five Oscars in the 1996 Oscar race, including Best Picture and Best Director. Referenced and spoofed time and again in varying aspects of pop culture, "Braveheart" made an indelible print on American cinematic history. Wallace rises up against the British crown seeking to take Scotland for itself, teaming up with the historical figure Sir Robert the Bruce. While not always historically accurate, the film still succeeds almost 20 years later. Rated R for brutal medieval warfare and attempted rape, combined with the three-hour running time, this film is best suited for older teens and adults.

Into the Woods

7:30 p.m. • Thursday–Monday, April 9–13
2014 • Rated PG • 125 minutes

Turning a musical into a movie is never an easy transition, particularly when it comes to musicals as complicated as the ones Stephen Sondheim likes to write. Disney takes a valiant stab at bringing this one to the big screen in all its gothic glory, but ultimately falls short of its own expectations. Meryl Streep does her usual phenomenal job portraying a witch who puts a curse on a hapless baker and his wife so they cannot conceive a child until the wife gets four items that will reverse the curse. This launches the interweaving of four Brothers Grimm tales (Jack and the Beanstalk, Cinderella, Rapunzel and Little Red Riding Hood) into a unique storyline where happy endings aren't necessarily a given. This is where the plotline starts to get muddled. The original Broadway musical runs a solid three hours, and director Rob Marshall has slashed it down to a touch over two. For the audience, this means several things happen in an awful rush, an inordinate number of people die suddenly without much explanation, and those of us not privy to the intricacies of the original material are left to scratch our heads and wonder what just happened. While some adult nuances will go over little one's heads, adults and children alike can enjoy the tuneful melodies of Sondheim, which are well-performed and a pleasure to hear in any context. Rated PG for fantasy action and peril and some suggestive material.

Art Workshops on April 25 at SAS Gallery

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School is hosting a day-long celebration of art by eighth- through 12th-grade students from across the region on Saturday, April 25. Mira Gerard, a 1986 graduate of SAS, will offer the event's keynote address at 9:15 a.m., in McCrory Hall for the Performing Arts.

Workshops on Saturday, April 25, will be from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Reservations are required to attend the workshops. The cost is $10 for lunch. The classes include Paul Ward, Composition in Photography; Kimerlen Moore, STEAM and Art Education; Jim Ann Howard, Redefining the Portrait; Judy Condon, Mask Making in Clay; and Greg Pond, Introduction to 3D Printing.

The day will conclude with a gallery reception from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Gerard is a professor in the department of art and design at East Tennessee State University. In 2014, she received an artist's residency and fellowship at the Vermont Studio Center, presented at the Southeastern College Art Conference, curated the online exhibition "Remote Viewing," and had work included in multiple group and solo exhibitions.

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School invited teachers and students of area schools to submit up to 20 pieces of eight–12 grade art. Both two-dimensional and three-dimensional works were eligible. Gerard selected 44 works from 77 entries to be exhibited. She will announce the Merit awards during the Celebration.

The public is invited to view the exhibit in the SAS Gallery weekdays through April 25 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. This is free and open to the public. Contact Gallery Director Molly Schaefer at (931) 598-5651 extension 3151, or <sasgallery@sasweb.org> for more information.

Easter Term Organ Recital Series

The Easter Term Organ Recital Series concludes at 7 p.m., Friday, April 10, in All Saints' Chapel, with a concert by Bruce Neswic.

Neswic is the interim canon for music at Trinity Episcopal Cathedral, Portland, Ore. He was recently associate professor of music in organ and sacred music at the Jacobs School of Music at Indiana University and assistant organist of St. Francis in the Fields Episcopal Church, Louisville, Ky. Prior to joining the Indiana faculty, he was the director of music at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City, where he directed the Cathedral Choir and had oversight of the musical life of that historic Cathedral.

As a recitalist, Neswick has performed extensively throughout the United States and Europe and has been a frequent performer at national and regional conventions of the American Guild of Organists.

Neswick's program includes works by Gerre Hancock, J. S. Bach, Ugo Sforza and Louis Vierne. Also a celebrated improviser, Neswick will conclude the program with an improvisation on submitted themes.

The concert is free and open to the public.

SAS Spring Concert

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee School Spring Concert will be at 7 p.m., Wednesday, April 15, in McCrory Hall for the Performing Arts on the school's campus. The middle school and upper school choirs will perform an evening of orchestral music, rock and old standards. Admission is free and open to the public.

The concert offers a wide selection of music, including tunes from Lennon and McCartney, Sondheim, Brahms and more. The choirs are under the direction of Katherine Anderson. For more information about St. Andrew's-Sewanee School, visit www.sasweb.org.

Franklin County Arts Guild Hosts Microbrewery Tasting on April 18

Franklin County Arts Guild presents Arts & Ales, a tasting celebration of the art of brewing, on Saturday, April 18, at Monterey Station in Cowan. More than a dozen microbreweries will be at the event, as well as art exhibits, live music and brewing demonstrations. Festivities will begin at noon and run until 4:30 p.m.

Microbrew samples will be available from Sierra Nevada, Leinenkugel's, the Black Abby Brewing Company, Blue Moon, Straight to Ale of Huntsville, Old Shed Down South Brewing of Tullahoma, Samuel Adams, Fat Bottom Brewing, Wooden Skiff of Hilton Head, Singing River Brewing Company, Lagunitas Brewing Company, Blackstone Brewing Company of Nashville and Tennessee Brew Works "Finely Tuned Beer." IDs will be checked at the door; you must be 21 to attend.

Tickets for the event are $20 per person in advance or $25 at the door. A "designated driver's ticket" is available for $10 at the door (no tasting). Tickets can be purchased online at www.artsandales.com.

Songwriter and musician Dana Rogers will perform at the event. Her musical style is an American mosaic of acoustic finger-style jazz, funk, soul, pop and rock. She has been performing professionally since 1997.

Among artists exhibiting their work is Nancy Wallace, an award-winning creator of artist's books using the methods of monks in the fourth century, including binding with exposed Coptic stitching. G. Dwain Adams will exhibit both his bird carvings and bird watercolors. He says the art of seeing a bird emerge from a wood block keeps him carving. He carves decorative decoys, as well as smaller songbirds. He also works in watercolor.

Anna Kathryn Anderson will exhibit a number of pieces that include work in pen-and-ink wash drawings, acrylics, oil on linen, charcoal and figure studies in charcoal. In addition, she will be demonstrating a number of mixed media techniques for interested attendees.

Frances Perea will be demonstrating Artist Trading Card techniques. Margie Gallagher will also be exhibiting watercolor and pen-and-ink drawings inspired by her scanning and transmission electron microscopy work research work on rockfish. Marsha Carnahan will be showing her plein air work in acrylic. Jennie Platt will demonstrate block printing. Joe Butler will demonstrate bottle cork crafting.

Franklin County Lawn and Landscaping and Merrill/Rigsby Properties are sponsors of the event, which is a fund-raiser for Franklin County Arts Guild. Proceeds will be used to promote visual and performing arts in Franklin County. For more information go to <http://facebook.com/artsandales> or call (931) 308-4130.

Lecture on War, Plastic Surgery & the Modern Beauty Revolution

David Lubin, the Charlotte C. Weber Professor of Art at Wake Forest University, will speak on campus at 6 p.m., Thursday, April 9, in Gailor Auditorium. His talk, "Behind the Mask: World War I, Plastic Surgery and the Modern Beauty Revolution," will consider the impact of the first World War on modern art and commercial culture. A reception will follow.

Many soldiers returned from World War I with severe injuries. Faces were particularly vulnerable during trench warfare, and many soldiers were terribly disfigured. Their injuries prompted diverse responses. Surgeons worked to restore obliterated faces, while artists like Anna Coleman Ladd made facial prostheses to help soldiers with mutilated faces rejoin society. Pacifists used the otherness of the severely disfigured to shock the public, modern artists embraced the mask aesthetic, and entrepreneurs capitalized on a cult of physical beauty that arose in reaction to wartime ugliness.

Lubin's research brings together art history, film and cultural studies. As an undergraduate, he studied filmmaking at the University of Southern California's School of Cinema while reviewing music for Rolling Stone. He went on to receive his Ph.D. in American Studies at Yale. His books include "Act of Portrayal," "Picturing a Nation," "Titanic" and "Shooting Kennedy." In 2004 Lubin was awarded the Smithsonian Institution's Charles Eldredge Prize for "outstanding scholarship in American art."

SAS Boys' MS Soccer Team Ties One, Loses Two

On March 24, the St. Andrew's-Sewanee School boys' middle school soccer team tied South Middle School, 1-1, in their second match of the season.

Both teams were scoreless in the first half of the match.

Ten minutes into the second half, SAS seventh-grader Evan Fox scored his first goal of the season off a free kick.

With five minutes remaining in the match, South scored the equalizer.

"It was another hard-fought duel," said SAS coach Margot Burns. "We are seeing improvement in our level of play each time we take the field."

On March 26, the SAS boys' middle school soccer team lost a tough match to Fayetteville City Middle School, 2-1.

Both teams went scoreless during the first half of the match. Fayetteville then scored two quick goals in the first 10 minutes of the second half. However, SAS continued to battle.

Seventh-grader Aidan Smith scored his first goal of the season with eight minutes remaining in the match.

SAS was not able to find the equalizer, but had strong play from midfielders Porter Neubauer and Sean Willis.

On March 31, a skilled Westwood Middle School team defeated the SAS boys' middle school soccer team, 4-1.

Westwood outshot SAS 12 to four and scored all four goals in the first half. Aidan Smith scored for SAS, his second goal of the season.

Tenacity Makes MMA Debut

Camp Jordan Arena on March 28 hosted the first Mixed Martial Arts (MMA) event that the Chattanooga area has seen in the last five years. Amateur kickboxing, amateur MMA and Pro MMA made up the card with 11 fights.

Casey Pratt of Skyline, Ala., represented Tenacity Adventure Fitness of Tracy City in the sixth fight of the night and knocked out his opponent 58 seconds into the first round.

It was the first knockout of the night, and Casey ended up taking home "KO of the Night" honors. Casey makes the drive to Tenacity three days a week and trains under the instruction of Jon Haskew, who is a Brazilian jiu-jitsu purple belt, former MMA fighter and manager at Tenacity.

SAS MS Volleyball Drops Two

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee middle school volleyball team played in a tri-match at Coalmont on March 26.

The Mountain Lions lost to Tracy City Elementary, 25-22 and 25-21. SAS lost to Coalmont Elementary in the second match, 25-10, 16-25 and 15-9.

Morgan Phares led in scoring with 11 points, including four aces; Mary B. Smith had three aces; Cate Bachman had three digs; Katie Finn Hurst had three aces; and Kendale James had two assists and four points.

Saje Mangru played her best match of the year, and the SAS junior varsity team defeated Tracy City, 25-10, with outstanding serving games turned in by Lauren Wockasen, Zoe Wallace and Wardie Cammack.

Mottern leads Sewanee Golf Team at Wynlakes

Featuring a new lineup, the Sewanee men's golf team finished 10th at the Wynlakes Intercollegiate on March 31 at the Wynlakes Golf and Country Club in Montgomery, Ala.

As a team, the Tigers fired a two-day 668. LaGrange College topped the 10-team field with a 36-hole 577.

Panther No. 1 golfer Cory Howard won individual medalist honors with a 139 total.

Sewanee was led by Taylor Mottern, who finished tied for 39th. Mottern fired a first-round 86, then improved by shooting a 74 the second day.

Teammate Trevor Loeb finished 44th with a 163, while Jackson Rogers finished 48th with a 166.

Court Settle rounded out the Tiger lineup with a 179 for 55th place.

Sewanee Men's Lacrosse Earns Home Win Over BSC

Four goals in the fourth period helped the Sewanee men's lacrosse team to a 10-6 win over Southern Athletic Association (SAA) rival Birmingham-Southern College on March 29 at Sewanee's Hardee-McGee Field at Harris Stadium.

The Tigers are now 7-2 overall, 3-0 in SAA action and 7-0 at home this season. Back-to-back goals by Robbie Berndt helped Sewanee to a 2-0 lead to start the match. BSC would get on the board late in the first period, as Evan Lalande scored.

It was again Berndt and Lalande who scored to open the second, which made the tally 3-2 in favor of the Tigers. Sewanee extended its advantage with 4:40 left in the second, as Matthew Stiefel scored an unassisted goal.

BSC would outscore the Tigers 3-2 in the third, with Sewanee's goals coming from Cotter Brown and Jimmy Parker. However, the momentum swung back in favor of Sewanee to start the fourth. Goals from Berndt, Peter Brown and Jake Pesetsky gave the Tigers a 9-5 advantage.

After a goal by BSC, senior captain Hal Smith ripped in a goal with less than a minute remaining. Berndt continued his hot streak on offense. The freshman has now scored four goals in each of the past three games. In the past five home games, Berndt has scored 20 goals and has five assists.

In goal, sophomore Selby Austin earned the win with 15 saves. Sewanee will now begin a three-match conference road trip with a match on April 4.

Maryville's Home Runs Topple Sewanee Tigers

Behind a strong offensive performance, including two home runs by Michael Hawks, in-state rival Maryville College topped the Sewanee baseball team, 10-1, on March 31 at Sewanee's historic Montgomery Field.

Maryville got on the board in the top of the second, when Hawks ripped a deep two-run home run to right.

The Scots then added two more runs, when Nick Dean drove in Logan Jenkins with an RBI single to left an inning later.

Hawks would go on and hammer another two-run blast in the top of the sixth. The visiting Scots then added a single run in the seventh before breaking open the contest with four runs on three hits in the eighth.

Sewanee's lone run came in the bottom of the seventh, as lead-off hitter Tyler Minkinen drove in Ben Clune with a sacrifice fly.

Sewanee was undone by leaving 10 runners on base. Tiger starter Drew Mancuso was charged with the loss, after he gave up five runs (three earned) in 5.2 innings.

Maryville starter Jerod Dickey earned the win after giving up only three hits in 4.0 innings.

Sewanee was led at the plate by Blake Bays, who came in and finished 2-for-2.

Sewanee will open a three-game weekend series against Southern Athletic Association (SAA) foe Oglethorpe today (Friday), April 3.

Great Singles Play Helps Sewanee Defeat Rhodes

Five wins in singles helped the No. 30 Sewanee men's tennis team to a 6-3 win over rival Rhodes College on March 29 in Sewanee.

The Tigers are now 11-4 overall and 3-0 in league play.

After dropping two early doubles matches, Sewanee rallied in singles. The Tigers' lone win in doubles came at No. 1, as Eric Roddy and Alex Cooper won, 8-4.

In singles, Connor Winkler opened with a victory at No. 4 with a 6-1, 6-1 score. Rand Jackson then gave the Tigers the lead with a 6-2, 6-1 win at No. 3.

Sewanee then closed out the win, as Roddy won at No. 2 by a margin of 6-1, 6-4. Avery Schober won at No. 1, 7-5, 7-6, and Alex Cooper, who clinched the match at No. 6, earned a 7-5, 6-3 victory.

Women's Tennis Team Shuts Out Rhodes College

Like the men's team, the No. 12-ranked Sewanee women's tennis team rolled past Rhodes College at home on March 29.

The Tigers, who won 9-0, are now 12-3 overall and have won seven straight matches. Overall, Sewanee did not drop a set while winning in doubles by a combined score of 16-3.

On the day, Lindsey Liles and Bronte Goodhue, Kate Johnston and Clementina Davila, and Christina Merchant and Maggie Crumbliss all won in doubles.

The Tigers then dominated in singles as Liles, Merchant, Crumbliss, Davila, Taylor Childress and Elske Parker all swept.

OVERTIME

by John Shackelford

In the coming weeks many high school seniors will make their final decision about where they will spend the next four years. For most of them considering this particular college experience, the question becomes "What can Sewanee do for me?" Perhaps the better query may be "As a Sewanee student, what will I be able to do for others?"

Earlier this week, many of us in Sewanee attended the "All Around the Nations: Back to Convocation" dinner presented by the Community Engagement House and the Outreach office. Student leaders with a wide variety of interests and backgrounds presented their experiences from outreach trips to Jamaica, Miami, New Orleans, Costa Rica, New York, Ecuador and Haiti. Those of us gathered heard stories of tutoring in schools, agricultural re-forestation projects, assisting in soup kitchens for the homeless, construction projects, in-home food delivery, ecological biodiversity efforts, health service, disaster relief efforts, working with the elderly and film projects to help further educate others about the needs in impoverished areas like Trenchtown, Jamaica.

Dixon Myers and Callie Sadler lead the Sewanee Outreach office and coordinate these seven major trips and many other smaller weekly projects that require fund-raising, planning, recruiting, training, educating and motivating our student body. These students don't consider missing a week on the beach at Panama City as a sacrifice. Spending a week in Haiti sleeping on a hard floor, working amidst unimaginable poverty and giving their time to the needs of others is instead a unique and fulfilling opportunity that gives back through the relationships built with others who face these challenges with dignity and an amazing optimism.

Community members such as Bill Mauzy have consistently contributed to the Jamaica efforts, and he has as many friends in Trenchtown as he does sitting on the stools in Shenanigans. Rob McAlister leads the group of 15 students to Costa Rica, while Barbara Banks takes 12 others to Miami. Hagi Bradley leads a group of 12 to New Orleans, while Danielle Larsen goes to the five boroughs of New York with a dozen more. While Callie is in Ecuador, Dixon is in Haiti, and in every situation, Sewanee students are giving time, energy and love to those less fortunate.

We saw photos of kids in classrooms, beaches with beautiful mountain backdrops, smiles from the residents of nursing homes and elbows deep in mud. We heard stories of carrying lumber down mountain trails and opportunities to interact with others whose lives do not mirror daily experiences that we often take for granted. Every story talked of preparation, travel, adventure, unexpected trials and the triumph of collaboration. One student put up a quote from Gandhi: "The best way to find yourself is to lose yourself in the service of others." These 100 or so Sewanee students and staff lost themselves across the globe during a time when many are seeking fun and relaxation. Listening to their stories and feeling their contribution to the lives of others, I know that they found something we all need. Sewanee knows how to give. Education is not always something provided for you. It is often earned by what you give away.

NATURENOTES

A fairy house at the base of a tree in Abbo's Alley.

Fairy Houses in Abbo's Alley

Look carefully between the roots of the massive trees, beneath the rock overhangs, and down by the creek banks in Abbo's Alley. If you're lucky, you just might spy one of the fairy houses that have popped up in the ravine garden. There are a couple of fairy swings, too.

Made totally of natural materials including wood, bark, leaves and acorns, they're so well camouflaged that only the most careful observer will see them. Please leave them be—the fairies do not like to be disturbed.

Louis Rice, Abbo's Alley head gardener, says that if you would like to add a fairy house to the growing assortment, find a place that's off the beaten path and use only natural materials, which, in addition to the aforementioned, may include shells, feathers, lichen, dried flowers, pine cones, pebbles and twigs. Do not pick anything that is living, and do not use any man-made materials except cotton thread or twine to help hold things together.

Margie Gallagher, who helped the Girl Scouts create the first of these delightful little houses, will be on hand at Trails and Trilliums to help children make fairy houses there, as well.

Herbarium Hikes in Shakerag Hollow

This is a great time to visit Shakerag Hollow and look for its abundant wildflowers, which might include bloodroot, trout lily, Dutchman's breeches and spring beauties. The Sewanee Herbarium is leading a number of walks in the coming days.

Mary Priestley will lead a walk in Shakerag Hollow starting at 10 a.m., Saturday, April 4. As part of Trails & Trilliums, Yolande and Robin Gottfried will lead hikes at 1:30 p.m., Friday, April 10, and at 10:30 a.m., Saturday, April 11.

These hikes will meet at the Green's View parking lot (past the golf course). The hike is a moderate-to-strenuous two miles, with one fairly challenging incline. For more information call Yolande Gottfried at the Sewanee Herbarium, (931) 598-3346, or email <ygottfri@sewanee.edu>.

Directions are available on the Herbarium website, <lal.sewanee.edu/herbarium/>, under the calendar of events.

Abandoned Mine Lands Fund Meeting

A coalition of public service agencies are hosting a meeting at 6 p.m., Monday, April 6, at the DuBose Conference Center in Monteagle. The event is intended to inform area citizens about the federal Abandoned Mine Lands (AML) fund and the economic potential it could bring to communities in Franklin, Grundy and Marion counties.

Abandoned mine lands present serious threats to human health and the environment. Addressing AML impacts is becoming increasingly important due to continued exposure to people and risks of accidents, injuries, and tort claims. There are estimates of as many as 500,000 abandoned mines in our nation.

Current AML maps show a total of 29 abandoned mines in Marion County, 24 in Grundy County and none in Franklin County. This inventory reflects surveys that were done in the 1980s and need to be updated.

Kendall Billbrey of the Alliance for Appalachia and Eric Dixon of Appalachian Citizens' Law Center are leading this project. They intend to recommend policy changes that are necessary for leveraging AML funds into communities.

Abandoned mine lands are lands, waters and surrounding watersheds where extraction, beneficiation or processing of ores and minerals has occurred. AMLs can pose serious threats to human health and the environment.

The AML program was established to help clean up mines that had not been reclaimed before the passing of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977. States with an approved program (including Tennessee) are eligible for AML grants to help clean up lands that have abandoned mines on them. This includes lands owned by private citizens. The funds come from fees paid by active coal mine operators on each ton of coal mined. The more members of Tennessee communities affected by AMLs know about the fund, the more they can call on the Office of Surface Mining and the state of Tennessee to invest in cleaning up and supporting their land and their communities.

State Park Offerings

Call for Volunteers in April

South Cumberland State Park is in need of volunteer help. With more than 500,000 visitors a year, the park's trails take a beating from all the two- and four-legged users of the over 90 miles of trail. Switchbacks become eroded, lakeside trails fall into the water, and the creeks are choked with rubbish. We also want to build new trails and make the Buggytop Trail into a loop trail. During this month, there will be many opportunities to participate.

Saturday, April 4

Grundy Lakes Cleanup (Reservation required)—Join Ranger Park at 1 p.m. at Grundy Lakes parking lot to help clean up the difficult-to-access parts of the lake by canoe and hiking along the edge. Bring a change of clothes, and waders would be welcome. Bring a snack and water. Call Park Greer at (931) 924-2980 to RSVP.

Grundy Lakes Night Hike—Join Ranger Jessie at 8 p.m. at Grundy Lakes parking lot to experience the night sounds along the lake's edge. Bring flashlight or headlamp, water and sturdy shoes.

Sunday, April 5

Grundy Lakes Treasure Hunt/Trash Cleanup—Before the Lakes were a park, they were a dump. Help collect the glass and metal that accumulated during the 1950s–70s. Bring heavy gloves and wear sturdy shoes; bring water and a snack.

The South Cumberland State Park Visitors' Center is located on Highway 41 South between Monteagle and Tracy City and is open 8 a.m.–4:30 p.m. seven days a week. For more information call (931) 924-2980.

BARDTOVERSE

by Phoebe Bates

I got me flowers to strew Thy way,
I got me boughs off many a tree;
But 'Thou wast up by break of day,
And brought'st Thy sweets along with Thee.

The sun arising in the East,
Though he give light and th'Eaſt perfume,
If they ſhould offer to conteſt
With Thy ariſing, they preſume.

Can there be any day but this,
Though many ſuns to ſhine endeavor?
We count three hundred, but we miſs:
There is but one, and that one ever.
