2013 Senior Art Majors Show: an intrigue

Nine Students Display Work

The University Art Gallery presents "an intrigue," a selection of works by Sewanee's senior art majors Kathleen Catherall, Emily Duncan, Frank Hand, Cara Martin, Virginia McCall, Sally Mills, Meg O'Neill, Sarah Peacock and Sarah Grace Pendergrass.

The new show will open at 4:30 p.m., Friday, April 12, in Convocation Hall with introductory remarks by the artists and a reception. The artists will formally present their work in a series of talks, 1:30–4:30 p.m., Saturday, April 13, in Convocation Hall.

"To intrigue" implies attraction or arousal—the wakening of curiosity or fascination—in addition to plotting, scheming, deceit and even artifice. It implies an appeal to what interests people; it implies creation, though highly designed and manipulative. Still, intrigue maintains an elusive quality. This word proves, in many ways, applicable to the activity of the artist. An intrigue, a plot, a design, an artifice—is this the artist's objective? Is it the art object itself? Works selected for this exhibition participate in the multiplicity of implications carried by the word intrigue. The artists, led by curiosity, pose questions about human existence and begin to construct potential answers. In many cases, both the questions and answers remain elusive.

In the works presented as a part of this exhibition, the Sewanee art majors of 2013 investigate different aspects of the human experience. Several of the artists explore what it means to live in human society.

Frank Hand's drawings illustrate the social dynamics of sameness and distinctiveness as figures variously fade into and emerge from an intricate fabric, texture or network of other individuals. Sarah Peacock explores, through photography, what it is to inhabit particular social circles and their corresponding environments. Meg O'Neill's photography explores the tension between self-imposed isolation and the construction of barriers, and the simultaneous invitation of attention and appeal for emotional connection.

Works by several of the artists are concerned with the human body. Virginia McCall's garments treat body as a façade that might either assume or violate socially created gender expectations. Kathleen Catherall's drawings, paintings, sculptures, and videos call attention to the way in which the body is manipulated, brought under the control of outside forces and subjected to automatically triggered responses.

Others examine the human from philosophical perspectives. Emily Duncan's drawings and photographs explore existential questions as they relate to the interaction between personal experience, memory and time. The painted surfaces of Sarah Grace Pendergrass consider epistemological questions as derived from an understanding of the human body that relies on multiple (and contradictory) models.

Franklin County School Board Looks at Budget, Grant and Calendars

by K. G. Beavers, Messenger Staff Writer

The Franklin County school board met in a work session on April 1 to discuss the Telehealth Grant and the proposed 2013–14 budget. Under new business, the school board discussed revisions to the Section 4-Instructional Services policies and the school calendars.

Andra Mays from the Tennessee Education Association (TEA) appeared before the board to present a resolution for board approval. The TEA is supporting the Fair and Clear Teacher Evaluation Act (SB0838/ HB0537), which would make some common sense changes to the teacher evaluation system. The bill, sponsored by Senator Bill Ketron (R-Murfreesboro) and Representative Jim Coley (R-Bartlett) would require teachers be evaluated based on their own work as teachers and the success of their students. For teachers in non-tested grades and subjects, 50 percent of their evaluation comes from student academic achievement based on standardized testing. Teachers in non-tested grades and subject include art, librarians and physical education. They are evaluated on subjects they do not teach.

The bill is also proposing to use a pre- and post-test system that accurately gauges student learning. For more information on the bill, go to <www.legislature.state.tn.us/>.

Reporting on the Telehealth Grant, Bonita Nolan from the Coordinated School Health Office said a specific plan was still not in place. "Writing the protocol is a major undertaking and the doctor's office wants to have approval in place first," said Nolan. The school board will vote on this issue in the next meeting.

Concerning budget amendments, Director of Schools Rebecca Sharber

TDEC Hosts Hazardous Waste Disposal Saturday

The Tennessee Department of Environment and Conservation's mobile household hazardous waste (HHW) collection service will be in Winchester from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, April 6. Corrosive, flammable, toxic or reactive materials used in the home, car and truck or garden and lawn can be safely disposed of on this day.

"Our household hazardous waste mobile collection service provides the people of Tennessee with a safe, environmentally friendly way to dispose of unwanted household chemicals and other potentially hazardous wastes at no cost," said Bob Martineau, Environment And Conservation Commissioner.

"This service travels across the state holding collection events in local communities, and we encourage all Tennesseans to take advantage of the opportunity to utilize it."

The collection point in Franklin County is the Interlocal Solid Waste Authority (also known as the Joyce Lane Recycle Center), 487 Joyce Lane in Winchester. The local contact is John DeMoll at 967-1139.

Since the program's inception in 1993, households have properly disposed of more than 20 million pounds of material. HHW material is considered flammable, toxic, reactive and/or corrosive and should not be placed with regular garbage.

Items to dispose of include cleaning fluids, pesticides, mercury thermometers and thermostats, fluorescent bulbs, lithium and button batteries, aerosols, adhesives, medications, brake fluid, swimming pool chemicals and paint thinner.

When transporting materials to the site, place containers in sturdy boxes lined with newspaper to prevent spills and cross-contamination in the trunk of a car or back of a truck.

Be sure to keep materials away from children and pets.

Materials should be kept in the original container whenever possible. If not, place the waste in a plastic jug with a secure lid and label its contents.

Items that are not accepted are medical or infectious waste, ammunition, explosives, alkaline batteries, paint, electronics, radioactive waste, smoke detectors, any empty containers and waste from non-household sources such as businesses, schools, farms and churches.

Shakerag Workshops Celebrate 10th Year

Shakerag Workshops will celebrate its 10th anniversary in June, with classes taught by returning and new faculty members. Held at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School, Shakerag Workshops, an adult arts workshop program, began in 2004 with six one-week-long classes in clay and digital arts during the middle weeks of June. Ten years later, Shakerag will offer 16 classes in a wide variety of media over two different sessions, June 9–15 and June 16–22, with about 150 participants coming from all over the country.

"It has been exciting to watch Shakerag Workshops grow from such a small program ten years ago," said director Claire Reishman. Founding staff members Merissa Tobler, Rachel Malde and Christi Teasley, along with Reishman, have expanded the program to include book arts, weaving, dyeing, felting, quilting, painting, photography, embroidery and paper-making. Teachers through the years have come from Australia, Scotland and France, in addition to all areas of the United States. Participants in 2013 include many local and returning students, as well as new students from throughout the United States.

Shakerag Workshops attracts a diverse group of participants who enjoy the social gatherings surrounding the classes and gourmet meals almost as much as they enjoy the workshops themselves.

Most classes are open to a wide range of participants, and beginners and professionals take classes together. The inclusive atmosphere of Shakerag is one of the hallmarks of the program, and teachers over the years have commented on the vitality of classes which include participants with a variety of experiences.

"Though the program has grown," Reishman said, "we have worked to retain the sense of closeness among faculty and students that we had as

PAINT ROCK RIVER PROPOSAL

The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service has developed a Draft Land Protection Plan and Environmental Assessment for the proposed establishment of the Paint Rock River National Wildlife Refuge. A public meeting to answer questions about the proposal for this National Wildlife Refuge will be 5:30–9 p.m., Wednesday, April 10, at the Franklin County High School Auditorium in Winchester.

In addition to Sewanee and Sherwood, District 5 of the Franklin County Commission includes the Keith Springs mountain community where this wildlife refuge would be located. Because we are the county commissioners representing District 5, we feel that we should report to our constituents some observations about this proposal.

First, this is a project of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, which is an agency of the Department of the Interior of the federal government. So, the Franklin County government is not in a position to decide whether or not this project should go forward.

However, we have the right as a local government to comment on this project and its effects on our community.

Many in the Keith Springs community are adamantly opposed to this project. We believe that the strongest factor in this opposition is that members of the local community believe that the federal government will resort to the use of eminent domain to obtain properties that include residences and properties that have been held by particular families for generations. The printed detailed proposal (a document that is 207 pages) includes this statement more than once: "It is the policy of the FWS to purchase lands only from willing sellers." The plan states that the proposal allows for FWS to either purchase land from owners outright or to purchase a conservation easement from a willing landowner.

We, as county commissioners, strongly agree with our constituents that the Fish and Wildlife Service should only obtain land by purchase from owners who are willing to sell or by the method of conservation easements from owners who are willing to enter into such agreements. We intend to ask the county commission to formally communicate a statement to this effect to the Fish and Wildlife Service.

Some constituents have raised the issue that land purchased by the FWS will be removed from the tax rolls of Franklin County. This raises the question of whether the establishment of the Paint Rock National Wildlife Refuge would have a negative effect on tax revenues for Franklin County. We believe that the effect on the finances of the Franklin County government would be minimal for these reasons: Wildlife refuge lands demand little in the way of expensive services or infrastructure from county government; there is an elaborate scheme of the Interior Department that would provide annual payments to the county government to compensate for the loss of tax revenue; and, land that is part of the refuge by means of a conservation easement would remain on the tax rolls of the county.

Finally, we will address the question of whether the establishment of the Paint Rock River Wildlife Refuge might benefit the larger Franklin County community. Communities on the Mountain have experienced benefits, both economically and recreationally, from the creation of the units of the South Cumberland State Park. We believe that the creation of the Paint Rock River Refuge might provide similar benefits for the wider Franklin County community. However, such benefits need to be weighed against possible adverse effects to the local Keith Springs community where many are strongly opposed to this project.

The full report of the draft proposal can be obtained by contacting Oliver van den Ende, Refuge Planner, Wheeler National Wildlife Refuge, 2700 Headquarters Road, Decatur, AL 35603, or you can download a copy from the website at: <www.fws.gov/southeast/paintrockriver>.

If you have concerns about this issue we encourage you to attend the public meeting April 10.

A WORD ON PARKING

Spring is upon us, and the events on campus are more frequent and draw more people. From Holy Week services to the Performing Arts Series, from events for prospective students to those for residents and community members, we see Sewanee becoming a less well-kept secret. Many people are finding their way to Sewanee, want to take part in the events we offer and seek the right place to park. This is a good opportunity to recall what the University wishes to accomplish with parking and to explain how we plan to achieve it.

Our goal is simple. We wish to have a campus that is safe for all, that is accessible to visitors (especially for those whose mobility is limited), that is accommodating to those who come to campus every day, that is friendly to those who are walking and biking, and that is visually attractive.

This goal is not new, and, over Sewanee's long history, it is a goal we have achieved in a variety of ways. When I was a student in the 1980s, the area just between Woods Lab and Carnegie was asphalt; now it is a lovely pedestrian walkway. When the University constructed Spencer Hall, a portion of Alabama Avenue was replaced with a similar path. More recently, the University asked students to park only in designated lots during the day.

Today we need to approach parking in new ways. We are enjoying a substantial increase in the number of visitors on campus. We also have, and will continue to have, additional students, faculty and staff here. These increases, together with the construction near Fulford Hall and at the Sewanee Inn, mean that we must manage parking more closely.

In addition to the increased number of people on campus, there are more people walking across University Avenue and Georgia Avenue, so we must consider parking there carefully. These two avenues provide access to the center of campus while also bearing the greatest pedestrian and bicycle traffic.

For reasons of safety, of pedestrian and bicyclist accommodation and of visitor accommodation, we have removed regular parking on University Avenue. However, we opened up specific areas to designated groups when needed. It may seem counterintuitive that removing parking on University would be helpful in accommodating visitors. But a University Avenue regularly filled with the cars of those who live here offers nothing to those who wish to visit, requiring those visitors to park far away from the central campus.

Our approach is straightforward: the University will indicate with signs where, and for whom, parking is available on University Avenue. If there is an event at which we expect many participants, whether because of admissions, or All Saints' Chapel, or an alumni function, temporary signs will guide visitors and residents. For the largest weekends (such as Homecoming and Commencement) we will provide as much parking as we can within the constraints of safety.

We have some distance to go in organizing parking. We will be installing more visible signs to guide visitors. We are studying how to use our existing parking lots more efficiently.

FEELING UNWELCOME

To the Editor:

We have lived in Altamont for six years and have enjoyed numerous activities in Sewanee. For the most part, we have been impressed by the fashion in which Sewanee welcomed “outsiders” to the different activities, from 4th of July to religious services to lectures at the University.

Now, with the new parking ban, [on University Avenue] we may not attend as many of these activities, especially the lectures that often start at 4:30 p.m., before the ban is lifted for the evening.

Are the streets really “overcrowded” and “dangerous” to the students? We have the feeling that we are no longer welcomed.

Although this action is, of course, the right of the town and/or University, I must question whether the resulting isolationism is in the best interest of any of the affected parties.

APRIL & WORLD WAR II

To the Editor:

As we begin this new month, let's also remember April of 1945, when World War II in Europe was approaching its dramatic end.

On April 12, President Roosevelt died in Warm Springs, Ga., and his funeral train embarked on a three-day journey through Washington and eventually to Hyde Park. Churchill broke down as he reported the news to the House of Commons, while even Stalin praised the American leader and allowed Soviet newspapers to publish the news with a picture of FDR on their front pages. In Germany, Hitler greeted the president's death with a champagne toast; by the end of the month, Hitler would be dead with Soviet troops relentlessly closing in on Berlin. In the meantime, Mussolini also had been captured and executed by Italian partisans. As these momentous events took place, American and British forces continued to advance in Germany, liberating concentration camps and finally driving to the Elbe River to meet and shake hands with Soviet soldiers.

The war in Europe ended in early May 1945, but April 2013 is a great month to thank any World War II veterans you might know.

EASTER PARKING TICKETS?

To the Editor:

It is hard to express my shock and dismay to see our police department putting tickets on cars of the worshipers as we came out of the Easter service at All Saints' Chapel. I wonder how many of those who got tickets were from out of town? This was not a very nice welcome. A couple who sat behind us were from Atlanta and were here for their first time. As a friend of mine pointed out, “I wonder how many of the ticketed were donors or prospective donors?” I wonder how many were prospective students?

I understand the University officials want students to walk or bike to class. This was Easter Sunday, and they were in their best dress.

What is wrong with allowing parking on both sides of University Avenue when there is a church service, concert or event? Clearly there was not enough designated parking for the Easter service. I agree with another friend who said, “No cars on University Avenue makes Sewanee look deserted.” A little common sense would go a long way.

If this is the way it is going to be, I hope they put an island in the middle of University Avenue with attractive plantings, stretch it all the way to the Village, and then make a trip to Belmont University and see what they have done to handle their parking problem. The last two or three new buildings at Belmont have five floors of parking underneath them.

CAC Needs Paper Products on Pantry Sunday April 7

Paper products is the focus this month for the Community Action Committee's Pantry Sunday on Sunday, April 7.

CAC interim director Betty Carpenter asks that folks bring paper towels, toilet paper, Kleenex and other paper products to their local churches for collection.

"These items cannot be purchased with food stamps," Carpenter said, "and are often not available from Second Harvest Food Bank."

CAC Pantry Sunday collections are at participating churches: St. James, Otey, Cumberland Presbyterian and All Saints' Chapel. Items can also be dropped off at the CAC's temporary home, the Yellow House, 258 Lake O'Donnell Rd., Sewanee.

At the March 30 powder-puff football tournament hosted by the TKP sorority, more than 4,000 pounds of food were donated to CAC.

"We hope this is the start of something big," Carpenter said.

The CAC is an outreach ministry of Otey Parish, with generous support from the Sewanee Community Chest and individuals across the Mountain. For more than 35 years, the CAC has provided food, financial assistance and educational support for persons in the greater Sewanee community. For more information contact the CAC at 598-5927.

Grundy Co. Food Bank Vies for Major Grant from Walmart

This month, Walmart and 10 of the largest food companies in America embark on the third chapter of the Fighting Hunger Together initiative focused on reducing hunger across the United States. Walmart and major grocery suppliers, including Campbell's Soup, ConAgra Foods, Dr. Pepper Snapple Group, General Mills, Kraft Foods Group, Kellogg Company, Mondelez International, Nestlé USA, PepsiCo and Unilever, have joined forces to engage millions of customers and Walmart associates this spring and bring much-needed food and funding to nonprofit organizations that work to fight hunger.

Grundy County Food Bank is among the agencies that are part of this program.

In this new initiative, people can go to <www.walmart.com/hunger> and cast one vote per day for a Feeding America food bank or partner agency. The winning 100 organizations, which will be announced in May, will share $3 million in grants to fund hunger relief programs. Vote once a day through April 30.

In addition to the Grundy County Food Bank, Feeding America network food banks and partner agencies in Tennessee include: Boys & Girls Club of Jackson, Inc.; Chattanooga Area Food Bank; Claiborne Hunger Ministry; Hampshire First Baptist Church Food Ministry; Kids of the Community; Mid-South Food Bank; Morristown Hamblen Central Services, Inc.; Second Harvest Food Bank of East Tennessee; Second Harvest Food Bank of Middle Tennessee; Second Harvest Food Bank of Northeast Tennessee; Signal Crest United Methodist Church; S.O.S. Backpack Ministry; Storehouse Ministries; the Good Shepherd Center; TNKids Nutrition, Inc.; and Weakley County Backpack Program.

According to the latest data from the USDA, more than 50 million Americans live in food insecure households, and more than 16 million of those impacted are children. To address this issue, the Fighting Hunger Together initiative will partner with Feeding America, the nation's leading domestic hunger relief charity, to deliver $3 million in grants for hunger programs and generate more than 35 million meals for local Feeding America food banks and their partner agencies across the U.S.

"An astonishing one in five children in America are food insecure, not knowing, at some point during the year, where their next meal will come from, and as the nation's largest grocer, we have a responsibility to help change this reality," said Julie Gehrki, senior director of the Walmart Foundation. "With this initiative, we are working to help families across the United States by generating meals and awarding grants to local food banks and agencies to support hunger relief programs, including backpack programs providing vital meals to children when they are out of school, and community gardens teaching families how to grow their own healthy foods."

In addition to the voting for grant recipients, from April 1 through August 31, Walmart associates can volunteer at food banks and other hunger relief organizations and compete for a chance to select an organization in their community to receive a $5,000 grant, as part of Volunteerism Goes Viral.

"The Fighting Hunger Together initiative is a truly unique program that ignites support for our nationwide network of food banks and their partner feeding agencies at a time when the need is great," said Bob Aiken, president and CEO of Feeding America. "The spring months can be an especially challenging time for our food banks, when food donations can be very low. Walmart's Fighting Hunger Together initiative creates an easy, yet effective, way for people around the country to help those in need. Last year, for example, the April and September initiatives generated meals for key programs like after-school and summer feeding programs and classes that teach families how to prepare healthy meals at home."

In local communities this April, Walmart alongside key suppliers will host 'Stuff the Truck' food drive events to create an immediate impact to combat hunger. The Fighting Hunger Together initiative is part of Walmart's $2 billion commitment through 2015 to fight hunger. As a part of this commitment, Walmart pledged to donate more than 1.1 billion pounds of food, valued at $1.75 billion, as well as $250 million in grants from the Walmart Foundation to support hunger relief organizations. To participate or to learn more about the commitment, visit <www.walmart.com/hunger>.

Eliza Gooding

Lachlan Hassman

Students to Present Physics Research at Academy of Sciences

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School students Eliza Gooding and Lachlan Hassman have been selected to present their research at the Tennessee Jr. Academy of Sciences (TJAS) annual meeting on April 19 at Belmont University. Their work, conducted as part of the freshmen conceptual physics course, was one of about 20 papers selected by the reading committee from research conducted by high school students across Tennessee.

"This is a particularly remarkable achievement in that they are a freshmen team competing against upperclassmen," said SAS physics teacher Luke Diamond.

Eliza and Lachlan will present their research to a panel of university professors. Eight papers will be selected for publication in the TJAS Handbook, based on the quality of the presentations. The authors of published papers will also receive cash prizes.

Both Eliza and Lachlan are boarding students from North Carolina. Eliza is from Fayetteville, and Lachlan is from Charlotte.

TJAS is designed to further the cause of science education in high schools by providing an annual program of scientific atmosphere and stimulation for capable students. It is comparable to scientific meetings of adult scientists. The academy supplements other efforts in the encouragement of able students of science by providing an avenue of stimulation and expression.

Frank Stitt, Chef and Author, to Speak April 27

Noted chef and author Frank Stitt, owner and executive chef of Highlands Bar and Grill, Bottega, and Chez Fon Fon in Birmingham, will speak at the first public event of Rivendell Writers' Colony in Sewanee at 10 a.m., Saturday, April 27.

"We're proud to kick things off with such a world-famous chef as Frank Stitt. His cookbooks are not just cookbooks—they're part of the literature of food," said Carmen Thompson, director of Rivendell.

This event is free, but reservations are required because of limited seating. Call 598-5555 or email <carmen@rivendellwriterscolony.org> to make a reservation.

Stitt will discuss the writing of his cookbooks and the literary tradition of culinary writing. There will be a question-and-answer session after his talk. The University Bookstore will be at the event with Stitt's books available for purchase, and he will be available to sign them after the talk. Light refreshments will be served.

Author Pat Conroy has written, "I think that Frank Stitt is one of the best chefs in America and America is coming around to my position."

Stitt has told Garden & Gun magazine, "Reading is valuable and important to me. Young people come to me and ask if they should go to culinary school, but I think the first thing is to get a liberal arts education, to study history, art history, philosophy."

Stitt was inducted into the James Beard Foundation's "Who's Who of Food and Beverage" in 2011. He is a founding member of the Southern Foodways Alliance and has been recognized with a Lifetime Achievement Award from the Alliance for his elevation of Southern cuisine and his early advocacy of locally-grown food.

Rivendell Writers' Colony is developing a nonprofit entity to inspire the imagination by providing educational opportunities for aspiring writers through programs, workshops and residencies.

reported some changes in the reinstatement of capital outlay inflationary funds from the BEP. The state had stopped giving those funds three years ago. "We can use the $232,000 in any manner we want," said Sharber.

There is also a change from the state to the Adult Education Program, where the program moves to regional. Franklin County did not receive the grant to have the regional supervisor.

"The county which received the grant had to pledge how they will operate and run our program," said Sharber. "This means the supervisor position is eliminated, and we would use that money to pay the adult education teachers."

The state is also proposing a 1.5 percent salary increase. Sharber said they would receive some guidance this month on how to use the money. Other changes to the budget include a one-time technology grant in order to get ready for the Partnership for Assessment of Readiness for College and Careers testing.

For the resolution amending the general-purpose school budget for disposal fees, the board decided to disregard this resolution. Sharber reported in an August 8, 1994, Solid Waste Management board meeting, the board voted to charge a disposal fee to county departments and that those departments "shall be notified in time to make adjustments to their budgets."

"No notification has been found to budget this line item and pay," said Sharber. "Disposal fees have been paid for Franklin County High School and the board of education office, but the other schools have never received a bill. A contract has not yet been found," Sharber reported. The Franklin County Solid Waste department is only going back three years to collect the disposal fee of $92,000 from this year's budget. Disposal fees have been added to the 2013-14 budget.

Sharber reported the biggest change to the budget was the 8 percent increase in medical insurance.

The school board is proposing $42,386,658 in revenue with an estimated $44,105,362 in expenditures. The estimated undesignated fund balance would be $1,979,631 on June 30. The proposed 2013-14 school board budget will be voted on in the next school board meeting and presented to the Finance Department on April 15.

The school board discussed changes to the Section 4 Policies, Instructional Services. The biggest change is to Policy 4.600, Grading System, where grades K-2 move toward the common core transitional grading scale. This consists of numerical grades of 4, 3, 2 and 1 to be used in ELA (English, Language Arts) and math. For grades 3-12, students will still receive grades of A through F.

The 2013-14 and 2014-15 school calendars have gone through the calendar committee and been approved by the teachers. The school board has since received a request from the Franklin County Fair Board to allow students, teachers and faculty a day off from school in order to attend the county fair. Proposed dates are August 23, 2013, and August 22, 2014. If passed, May 23, 2014, would become the abbreviated day, and May 27 would be the administration day. For 2014-15, May 28 would become the abbreviated day, and May 29 would be the administrative day. The school board will vote on the changes in the next meeting.

The next school board meeting will be held at 6:30 p.m., Monday, April 8, at the board office, 215 S. College St., Winchester.

Even those works that do not deal directly with human subject matter contemplate the objects that attract human fascination—objects cared for, preserved, loved and played with by people. Cara Martin, through the craft of crochet, performs simultaneously protective and suffocating gestures upon collected natural objects and forms. Sally Mills, driven by her own fascination with paint and the painted surface, renders the shiny and alluring surfaces of beloved childhood toys.

All of these works participate—through drawing, painting, sculpture, photography and video—in an activity in which humans become both the subject and object of intrigue.

Sewanee's University Art Gallery is located on Georgia Avenue. It is free, accessible and open to the public.

Hours are 10 a.m.–5 p.m., Tuesday through Friday; and 12–4 p.m., Saturday and Sunday.

AT THE MOVIES

SEWANEE UNION THEATRE

Friday–Sunday, April 5–7, 7:30 p.m.

Les Misérables

Rated PG-13 • 158 minutes • $3

One of last year's most beloved and popular films, "Les Misérables" is a two-and-a-half hour musical extravaganza with big-name actors and live (not dubbed) singing that is old-fashioned entertainment. Hugh Jackman, Russell Crowe, Amanda Seyfried and Oscar-winner Anne Hathaway pour themselves into their roles. Folks either love or hate this movie—count me among those who enjoyed it—so take a hanky for strong emotions on either side. Directed by Tom Hooper ("The King's Speech"). Rated PG-13 for suggestive and sexual material, violence and thematic elements.

CINEMA GUILD

Wednesday, April 10, 7:30 p.m.

To Kill a Mockingbird (1962)

Unrated • 129 minutes • Free

Harper Lee's Pulitzer Prize-winning book was turned into one of the greatest movies of the 20th century. Gregory Peck stars as Atticus Finch, a man who abides by his principles at the risk of public humiliation and retribution to his family. A young Robert Duvall plays Boo Radley. This is one of those rare times when the movie adaptation (by Horton Foote) is as perfect as the novel. Unrated; contains racist language, mild threat and mild sex references.

SEWANEE UNION THEATRE

Thursday–Sunday, April 11–14, 7:30 p.m.

Silver Linings Playbook

Rated R • 122 minutes • $3

As he struggles with his mental illness, he lives with his parents (Robert DeNiro and Jackie Weaver) and meets an amazing young widow (Jennifer Lawrence) who changes his life. Lawrence earned an Oscar for her great performance. Rated R for language and some sexual content/nudity.—LW

Sewanee Union Theatre is changing its ticket prices beginning on June 1. Students (through college) will be $3, but non-students will be $4. (Concession prices will remain the same, though, with popcorn still only $1!) Once SUT has changed its ticket prices, it will introduce new passes. After June 1, SUT will not accept any passes currently in circulation.

Civil War License Plate Now Available at No Charge

The Tennessee Civil War Preservation Association has announced for those who want an Official Tennessee Civil War Sesquicentennial license plate, the specialty fee of $35 has been waived. The plate is now free to those who sign up for the remaining 120 needed orders.

The state requires 1,000 people to pre-order and pay the fees for new specialty plates before production begins. If a plate fails to reach the needed pre-orders it will not be produced. TCWPA is 120 orders short of this mark, even after receiving extensions on the deadline.

The TCWPA, a nonprofit partnering organization with the Tennessee Civil War Sesquicentennial Commission, is the sponsor of the proposed plate designed to honor the memory of the 230,000 Tennesseans who fought in the Civil War. The proceeds will support Civil War battlefield preservation in Tennessee and the Tennessee Civil War Trails Program.

"This 'sign-up-for-free' opportunity will help us put this plate on the road," said Joe Smyth, TCWPA president. "Our June deadline is fast approaching. We hope Tennesseans will sign up for the plate and help promote Tennessee's rich Civil War heritage and the preservation of our state's endangered battlefields."

To sign up for the plate, go to <www.tcwpa.org/license-plate> or email <info@tcwpa.org>.

Local Authors Share Book News

David Haskell's "The Forest Unseen" has been named the winner of the 2013 Reed Environmental Writing Award. It was earlier announced as the winner of the 2012 National Outdoor Book Award for Natural History Literature. The book is now available in paperback.

Using a one-square-meter patch of old-growth Tennessee forest in Shakerag Hollow as a window onto the entire natural world, Haskell writes about visiting the place daily for one year to trace nature's path through the seasons.

Luann Landon's memoir-cookbook, "Dinner at Miss Lady's" (published by Algonquin in 1999), has recently been published in paperback.

The book looks at a time when people spent their whole lives in one place, and life was all about family and family rituals. It was about the whole clan gathering at dinner time over meals to be remembered forever.

Reviewer Barbara Jacobs wrote in Booklist: "It breathes, smells, and tastes like the South—an air of ultimate gentility pervades poet Landon's account of her summers spent in Greensboro, Georgia, with grandmother Miss Lady. Nearly a dozen stories act as levers for the same number of menus—64 recipes in total."

The book is available from Parnassus Books in Nashville and online book sellers.

Weldon Payne's new book, "Alone," has just been released by Florida Academic Press. It tells the story about a paraplegic artist who awakens one day to find himself all alone in a snowy world of silence.

The book is "different than anything I've written before," Payne said. In the story, Jim Todd, an artist, makes his way off the sparsely settled mountain village into a valley, only to find the small town there also abandoned. The novel includes some religious views beyond Payne's own faith, adding, "I've long thought there is more to this mysterious existence than we can even imagine."

Payne's first novel, "Mister Malone," is about the Great Depression. His books are available for purchase directly from him, (931) 728-7609 or <vw.payne30@gmail.com> and through online book sellers.

"Why Water Plants Don't Drown," a new book by Victoria Sullivan, will be the topic of a talk at 4:30 pm Thursday, April 11, in the Torian Room of duPont Library, sponsored by the Sewanee Herbarium.

The book, complete with wonderful illustrations, discusses the unique challenges that plants face living in aquatic environments and the different strategies those plants employ in meeting those challenges. Currently splitting her time between Sewanee and Louisiana, Sullivan taught biology and botany at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette and biology, environmental studies and physical science to students at the high school level. She was also a naturalist with the U.S. National Park Service in the Everglades National Park, worked in Fairchild Tropical Garden in Miami, and has authored at least 25 papers about Eupatorium, thistles and other plants.

Copies of Sullivan's book, as well as notecards by the book's illustrator, will be available for purchase at the talk; the book is also available at online retailers.

KILLINGTHYME

by Buck Gorrell

As I am writing on April 1, I pray the fair weather is not an April Fool's joke, another tease. Has spring finally sprung? That seems to be the prevailing question among those paying attention. The redbuds in the valley seem to think that is the case, a sure sign.

One thing for sure about this year, that cusp of winter/spring was extended longer than in recent memory. When I looked back to my article from this time last year, I reported azaleas in full bloom and irises ready to go. Not so this year. All the better, in my opinion. From my experience, these conditions can lead to exceptional explosions of bloom in the coming weeks as some plants hold off on flowering and others put on their regularly scheduled show. This overlap is a rarity.

The saddest casualty of the season is always the Japanese Magnolia, specifically the Saucer Magnolia. These spectacular small trees excel in the landscape, with a wonderful color around now. However, on the Mountain and anywhere much north of here, they are susceptible to cold just as they open. Rarely do they get to show their potential on the Mountain as they so often get zapped. I did notice some in Cowan last week that were in great shape.

Right now, my greatest challenge in the garden is what to do with a shrub and perennial border I started my first summer on Prince Lane five years ago. The bulk of the shrubs are Doublefile Viburnum (Viburnum plicatum var. tomentosum), beautiful plants whose horizontal branches are smothered with white blooms in late spring. These shrubs can grow to 12 feet wide by 8 feet tall, perfect for the hedge application.

However, as with any woody plant, growth and maturity lead to changes in sunlight for the surrounding plants. One should always consider semi-mature size when siting a larger plant and its neighbors. If these plants will grow beyond transplanting size, making sure they will each have room and proper conditions requires some homework and some guesswork.

This particular border is fronted, to the east, by mostly sun-loving perennials which are now reaching for the light and running away from the shrubs' base. The self-seeders in the crowd (Brazilian Verbena, Lychnis, Dame's Rocket) have migrated to the front of the border as well, not the best spot for taller plants. My solution is two-fold: first, expand the bed away from the shrubs and second, exchange the extreme sun lovers for more shade-tolerant species. For instance, the Autumn Joy Sedum has to go somewhere else, but there will be lots of room for hellebores.

I hope everyone has a glorious spring, and I want to hear from you. Please contact me at <buckgorrell@gmail.com> with any questions or comments.

Homegrown Talent in Concert at McCrory

A host of talented local musicians will be in concert together at 7 p.m., tonight (Friday), April 5, at the McCrory Hall for the Performing Arts. This is part of a series of fund-raising events to help send the SAS Theatre performers to the Edinburgh Fringe Festival. Performing will be Slandered Banshees, Luke Finney, Tom Gladstone, Claudia Rinck, the Swallow Family Band, Bea Troxel, Geoff Roehm, Bude Van Dyke, Kevin Willis and Fritsl Butler. Admission is $10. Because of the generous support of the musicians, all proceeds support the Fringe Festival fund-raising efforts.

Last weekend's rummage sale raised approximately $1,400 for the August trip to Edinburgh.

On Friday, April 12, at 7 pm, SAS parent and Teddy Roosevelt repriser Joe Wiegand will offer a benefit performance of "Teddy Roosevelt Live!" at McCrory Hall. Suggested donations are $15 per person or $25 per family. Wiegand entertains audiences nationwide with his one-man show that brings to life the former president and Rough Rider.

SAS performing arts coordinator Robie Jackson said she is delighted with the outpouring of support from the community.

"Being chosen to perform at the 2013 Edinburgh Fringe Festival is a great honor and will be a life-changing event for the students," Jackson said. "I am thrilled that the community is making this experience more affordable for the SAS theatre ensemble." The group's online Indiegogo campaign resulted in close to $7,000 in donations from near and far.

SAS Theatre will take its original production, "The Ants," to Edinburgh. In May, community members will have the opportunity to see the production on the McCrory stage. "The Ants" will be one of more than 1,800 performances of theatre, dance, and comedy at the 2013 Fringe Festival and will be showcased at the American High School Theatre Festival venue in Edinburgh.

SAS Baseball Drops Doubleheader

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee baseball team could only muster two base runners and one run in a 14-1 loss in the first game of a doubleheader versus Mt. Juliet Christian Academy (MJCA) on April 2.

MJCA scored an unearned run in the first inning against starting pitcher Edwin Ashcraft and added four runs in the second inning. MJCA's catcher, E. Lee, hit an opposite-field two-run home run in the fourth inning, as the lead extended to 10-0. SAS finally tallied a run as Levi Higgins walked and advanced to second on a wild pitch. Casey Willis advanced Higgins to third, and Ashcraft hit a sacrifice fly to score the lone SAS run. MJCA added four runs in the fifth inning to end the contest.

MJCA completed the sweep of SAS with a 12-6 victory in the nightcap. SAS opened the scoring in the first inning as Higgins doubled to lead off the game. Willis walked, and Ashcraft doubled to score Higgins.

After two outs, Addison Beene walked, and Riley Rhoton singled Willis for a two-run first. MJCA scored two unearned runs in the first inning, as SAS committed two costly errors.

SAS scored four runs in the second inning to take a 6-2 lead. JR Clay opened the inning with a walk and advanced to second on a wild pitch. Higgins singled to score Clay and advanced to second on the throw. Willis followed with a single, and Ashcraft doubled to score Higgins. Russell Mays followed with a double to score Willis and Ashcraft.

With two outs, SAS committed a couple of costly errors, and MJCA scored five unearned runs to take a 7-6 lead. MJCA went on to score five more before darkness ended the contest.

Ashcraft had three hits, and Higgins added two hits to lead SAS in hitting. Willis, Mays and Rhoton had singles for SAS. Beene, Sam Thomas and Clay also contributed in the scoring, as they each coaxed walks.

Women's Lacrosse Earns Top Seed

The Sewanee women's lacrosse team blew out Southern Athletic Association (SAA) rival Berry, 21-6, on March 29.

With the win, Sewanee is now 9-4 overall and 3-0 in league play. The Tigers locked up the No. 1 seed in the upcoming SAA tournament, which Sewanee will host April 27-28.

The Tigers wasted little time jumping out front after Mallory Grimm, Molly Arnold, Sally Anne Greenwood, Olivia Vietor and Ellie Murphy gave Sewanee a quick 7-0 advantage with less than six minutes off the clock. An additional goal by Arnold, followed by scores from Caitlin-Jean Juricic, Lillie Belle Viebranz and Wittney Reed, pushed the lead to 14-2 with 12:56 left.

Sewanee then closed the half with another goal by Juricic and a score by Vietor off a pass from Greenwood.

In the second half, Greenwood continued her five-point match with two more goals, while Janie Hannon and Payton Fields netted their first scores of the season.

Katie Riddle then closed the match with a pair of goals. Brita Brudvig finished with one assist, while Anna Morrow grabbed three key draw controls that helped start the early offensive run.

Track and Field at Emory

Led by strong finishes in a number of field and distance events, the Sewanee track and field team wrapped up the Emory Classic on March 30.

In the distance events, Amiel Emerson finished in seventh in the men's 1500-meter unseeded race. Clay Bond finished 12th.

Cate Hargrove did well in the women's 5000 meters. After winning the Section 1 prelims, Hargrove finished 13th in the finals. Arden Jones and Amelia Gray finished in fourth and fifth place in the women's pole vault, with marks of 2.30m and 2.15m, respectively. Justin Taylor placed eighth in the men's discus throw. Taylor's best throw was at a distance of 40.48m. Taylor had another top-10 finish when he again placed eighth in the men's shot put.

OVERTIME

by John Shackelford

There is a story of the young student who climbs the mountain in search of enlightenment. He asks the teacher, "Master, what is the meaning of life?" The wise old man says, "Have you eaten your rice?" "Yes" is the reply. "Then wash your bowl."

When I share this story with my players, they are certain that my retirement years are drawing very close. But I find it to be a very simple reminder of immediacy and the necessity to live in the moment. A few years ago I was sitting on the beach with my brother-in-law, who likes to probe everyone he engages with deep questions of the universe. He proposed the same question asked by the student in the story. Although I lack the long white beard, the lotus position and the mountaintop, I decided to play along. I took a discarded plastic soda bottle and filled it half-full of sand and then added ocean water. Shaking the bottle vigorously, I said, "If you watch this long enough, you will discover your answer."

Athletics are really just another method of problem-solving. We compete to discover not only who will win, but how. Who throws faster, jumps higher and tackles harder are only half of the equation. An athlete must also analyze what works and what doesn't. The simplest coaching advice is to always stick with a winning plan and always change one that isn't working.

Often when we try to solve problems as simple as, "Why did my foul shot miss its intended target?" or "Why didn't I catch that pass?" we work even harder to be perfect. "Perfect practice makes perfect" is a line repeated by many coaches. My good friend and teacher Bob Short reminds me that if we are seeking perfection, the journey will be filled with many disappointments. Those misses and mistakes are just a part of the percentages. When we can accept them, learn from them, and move toward washing our bowl, the game becomes much easier and much more satisfying.

My wife showed me an interesting article the other day that commented on how today's youth are living a "torpedo" lifestyle—all takeoffs and landings with a hard-shell layer of insulation protecting them from the bumps in flight. So many of us are in search of the perfect grade, the perfect score, the perfect job that we reach inside that bottle of swirling sand and water and attempt to rearrange it. Usually you end up with either dirty hands or your finger stuck in the bottle.

Nature has a beautiful way of reminding us that the sand will settle. The colorful shells will float to that visible layer that separates all of those grains of sand from the water that continues to become increasingly clear. When my athletes are certain that I have lost my marbles I end up with a personal favorite. "Joy for the raindrop is entering the river." That one is not so difficult to understand when you work and live on a team or a community where so many offer so much.

SAS Varsity Soccer Update

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee varsity boys' soccer team took on Lincoln County High School in its third match of the season on March 28. Nick Fletcher was able to bend a free kick into the net untouched after some confusion in the box. In the second half, the SAS defense was broken down and let in an uncontested, counter-attacking goal. The score ended in a tie, 1-1.

SAS took on Tullahoma High School on March 30. It was a tense, defensive match with very few scoring opportunities. After a scoreless first half, both teams came out looking to score quickly. Tullahoma broke the deadlock 10 minutes into the second half. SAS quickly answered. The ball was worked down the left flank beautifully and then sent across by Takumi Morozumi for Tinashe Zimbwa to head home. Tullahoma kept up the pressure and was able to score off of mistakes to end the contest 3-1.

SAS Tennis

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee middle school team opened its season with a win against Riverside Christian Academy, 6-4, on March 27. The middle school team of Ryan Toomey, Fritz Stine, Aubrey Black, John Grammer, Blake Drinen and Ashton Milford played well in their first match, showing promise for the season. Junior varsity players Edward Kang, Yudong Yin and Diana Rinck got some experience in match play and also contributed wins.

The SAS varsity boys' tennis team added one more to the win column on March 28 against Warren County High School. The boys had no trouble after getting ahead early, with three doubles wins from Justin Stubblefield and Patrick Toomey, Slater Goodson and Joel Lee, and William Zhang and Owen Wright. The Mountain Lions continued the sweep in singles play to cruise to an 8-0 victory. The SAS boys' record is now 3-0. The SAS girls' team came out a little flat, dropping every match to Warren County.

SAS Sports Briefs

Middle School Volleyball

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee middle school volleyball team defeated Coalmont Elementary School on April 1, 25-9, 25-10 and 25-13. Lexie Laurendine led the Mountain Lions with five aces and four assists; Mary Katherine Jolly had three blocks and two kills; Hannah True added two kills; Carolyn Bruce had two kills and one dig; Erin Berner-Coe had six aces and one kill; Madison Gilliam added one kill. SAS is 2-0.

Middle School Boys' Soccer

On March 28, the St. Andrew's-Sewanee middle school boy's team tied South Lincoln, 1-1. Sam Smith scored the lone goal for the Mountain Lions.

SAS Softball

The SAS varsity softball team showed great improvement on April 2 against Mount Juliet Christian Academy (MJCA). Abby Mainzer and Britni Nunley scored the first two runs of the season in the third inning. MJCA was held to two runs in the first inning but struggled defensively during the second and third innings, resulting in a final score of 18-2.

NATURENOTES

By Harry and Jean Yeatman

Golden-crowned Kinglet, illustration by R. Bruce Horsfall from "Birds of the South."

Golden-crowned Kinglet

Jean Yeatman reports, "On a very snowy day this past week Harry and I had a Golden-crowned Kinglet come to our suet feeder. This is a diminutive bird, the smallest of all except for the hummers. In the winter they are a greenish-brown color with a yellow crown and some yellow on their shoulders. They are hard to spot in the tops of trees as they flit about looking for insects and their eggs and larvae. In times past, I have only heard them as I rode my horse in a pine forest."

Kinglets belong to a family of Old World warblers, and there are only two species found in the New World, the Golden-crowned and the Ruby-crowned. They breed mainly north of the United States but spend their winter from Virginia southward.

Pets of the Week

Meet Acacia & Sadie

The Franklin County Humane Society's Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption.

Acacia is a sweetheart of a kitten, about 4 months old. She's a real lover and craves a lap of her own to sit on. Sadie is negative for FeLV and FIV, house-trained, up-to-date on shots and spayed.

Sadie is a medium-size 6-month-old Lab-Collie mix. She's very playful, but she also enjoys plenty of cuddle time, as well. Sadie is up-to-date on shots and spayed.

Every Friday is Black Friday at Animal Harbor. On Fridays, adoption fees will be reduced 50 percent for black or mostly black pets more than 4 months old who have been at Animal Harbor for more than a month. Pets adopted from Animal Harbor qualify for a free post-adoption wellness exam by local veterinarians.

Call Animal Harbor at 962-4472 for information and check out their other pets at <www.animalharbor.com>. Enter their drawing on this site for a free spay or neuter for one of your pets. Please help the Humane Society continue to save abandoned pets by sending your donations to the Franklin County Humane Society, P. O. Box 187, Winchester, TN 37398.

And the woods are up and doing,
