29th Annual Performance of Perpetual Motion

This year, Perpetual Motion will feature 21 pieces of original student choreography, ranging in style from Afro-Caribbean to Irish to swing to hip hop. The performance will feature more than 60 university student dancers as well as a few high school students from St. Andrew's-Sewanee. Performances are free, and the public is invited to come cheer and enjoy the experience. The performances will be at 7 p.m., Friday-Saturday, April 7-8, in Guerry Auditorium.

Perpetual Motion is a student-led performing dance company started in 1989 and designed to give students an opportunity to perform for the Sewanee community in many forms and styles of dance. Perpetual Motion is also an adventure. It has elements of surprise. Some pieces are raw expressions of emotion. Others are playful forms of art. Previous styles have included belly dance, salsa, country, modern, Irish, classical and modern ballet, hip hop, lyrical, even disco.

Trails & Trilliums at MSSA on April 7-9

The 14th annual Trails and Trilliums Festival will be April 7-9 at the Monteagle Sunday School Assembly. This event is sponsored by the Friends of South Cumberland State Park.

The festival is noted for guided hikes, wildflowers, workshops, programs of interest to naturalists and gardeners, a garden tour and high-quality art. For more information go to <www.trailsandtrilliums.org>. Online registration closed on April 6, but you can still register on-site during the event at the Friends of South Cumberland tent, on the MSSA Mall.

Admission to the grounds of the Monteagle Sunday School Assembly is free. From 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, April 8, you can enjoy all the vendor displays, booths and exhibits, and visit Harton Hall to see all of the original works of art offered for sale. Proceeds from all ticket, artist and vendor sales benefit the Friends of South Cumberland State Park, supporting Tennessee's largest state park.

The Trails & Trilliums All-Access Pass ($75 per person) gives you admission to Friday evening's ART for the PARK gala; Saturday evening's Wine & Wildflowers celebration; and access to all scheduled hikes, programs and workshops on Saturday, April 8 and Sunday, April 9, including complimentary shuttle service to and from most hike trailheads.

Weekend Activity Pass ($20 per person) gives you access to all 22 guided hikes, programs and workshops being offered throughout the weekend, including complimentary shuttle service to and from most hike trailheads. This pass does not include evening events.

Friday evening's ART for the PARK preview event ($40 per person) gives you a first look at hundreds of original works by more than 40 outstanding artists, craft and antique vendors, plus a native plant sale garden, both in Harton Hall and in the MSSA Auditorium. This year's exhibition is themed "This Land is Your Land," and your admission includes a casual dinner with beer and wine bars.

Saturday evening's Wine & Wildflowers Celebration ($15 per person) gives you an opportunity to meet, greet and mingle over wine and appetizers and to honor the 2017 Trails and Trilliums Tribute Award winner, the Southeastern Climbers' Coalition, for their work in helping the Friends protect the new Denny Cove area of South Cumberland State Park. Tennessee State Naturalist Randy Hedgepath will keynote the evening's program with "Folk Tales & Nature Stories of the Fiery Gizzard and South Cumberland Plateau."

Tax Increase Needed for Middle Schools

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

"Unless the school system waits until 2021 to start building, there will need to be a property tax increase," said financial advisor Ashley McNulty addressing the Franklin County School Board at the April 3 work session. A senior vice president with the financial consulting firm, Stephens, Inc., McNulty presented funding data on the four remedies proposed for addressing the county's two aging middle schools.

Full repayment of the debt for the new high school will make additional funds available beginning in 2022, McNulty explained. The county

'Good Kids' Examines Difficult Topic

by Kevin Cummings
Messenger Staff Writer

Based on an infamous 2012 rape case in Steubenville, Ohio, the Sewanee Theatre Department will present the play "Good Kids" starting today (Friday), April 7, at 7:30 p.m., with five more shows to follow.

Naomi Iizuka, who teaches in the M.F.A. playwriting program at the University of California, San Diego, said she created "Good Kids"—which deals with rape in the age of social media—to generate discussion.

"It's very difficult," she said. "It's difficult to talk about. It's difficult to confront, and that's one of the reasons why I wrote the play—to begin and continue these difficult conversations. I think there's been an epidemic of silence around the issue of sexual assault on campuses.

"This play is part of an effort to say: 'Look, this happens. And everyone is, on some level, complicit. Everyone has a responsibility to step up and intervene,'" she added.

Iizuka also taught at last year's Sewanee Writers' Conference and will return this summer. The first performance of "Good Kids" was at the University of Michigan in 2014 as an initiative of the Big Ten Theatre Consortium's New Play Initiative, which commissions female playwrights with the idea of also creating more roles for women.

James Crawford, University of the South associate professor of theatre, is directing his first play in Sewanee. He noted that the rape, the horrific event at the center of the story, takes place offstage.

"Ultimately, the play turns its attention to the community. It encourages us to examine the ways in which all of us may be complicit in a culture in which this keeps happening," he said. "It asks us to examine the finger-pointing and victim-blaming that too often accompanies these incidents. It asks us to examine what the witnesses and bystanders could have done to prevent it."

Panel Tackles Fake News, State of Journalism

by Kevin Cummings, Messenger Staff Writer

As part of a complicated stew of media criticism and brazenly false claims, rampant sensationalism, partisan divides, and the challenges presented by volumes of fake news on social media, the Fourth Estate finds itself in challenging times.

Five journalists waded into this soup on March 26 at "Speaking Truth to Power: The Future of Journalism in a Post-Truth, Fake News World," a panel discussion at a crowded Convocation Hall in Sewanee.

Panelist Neil Shea, a writer for "National Geographic," "American Scholar" and the "Virginia Quarterly Review," said a U.S. audience that doesn't want both sides of a story or the nuances, results in the type of news being produced.

"Americans don't like complication and they don't like gray areas," he said. "The problem that we've run into with space constraints and time constraints

Sewanee Bonner Leaders Program to Present at ALLL

On Thursday, April 13, at noon, the Academy for Lifelong Learning (ALLL) at St. Mary's Sewanee will welcome Robin Hille-Michaels, Assistant Director of Civic Engagement, and senior members of the Sewanee Bonner Leaders Program. For four years, these students have spent 8 or more hours each week working with charitable, educational and governmental organizations to improve the lives of residents in the South Cumberland area. Come learn about their achievements and lessons learned.

As one of over 50 Bonners at Sewanee, they completed the Bonner Path to service, which started with establishing connections to community partners and ended with the students taking full leadership responsibility. Along the way, they served the South Cumberland area, engaged in meaningful, reflective discussions around their work, and collaborated with a supportive group of like-minded peers, mentors and community partners.

The Bonner Leaders Program is part of a national network of 60 colleges and universities coordinated by the Corella and Bertram F. Bonner Foundation. In addition to the personal growth and leadership development that occurs, the Program channels the energies of college students, faculty and staff to continue to improve and expand upon the quality and nature of services offered to the community. By engaging with local service organizations, the Program works to break down the barriers between town and gown, leading to improved communication and greater collaboration between the two.

The Academy for Lifelong Learning is a year-round program offering stimulating talks every month on a wide range of topics. The Membership fee to join the Academy is $12 annually or one may pay $2 per session. A box lunch can be ordered by calling Debbie at (931) 598-5342 or by emailing <reservations@stmaryssewanee.org>.

All Saints' Chapel

Growing in Grace, an informal worship service, will take place Sunday night, April 9, at 6:30 p.m. in All Saints' Chapel. The speaker will be David Rogers, president of the H. E. Butt Family Foundation. Growing in Grace features a student-led worship team, and a different speaker every week.

Catechumenate continues this Wednesday, April 12, at 7 p.m. in All Saints' Chapel. Desserts and coffee will be provided. Based around fellowship, study, openness, and conversation, the Catechumenate serves as a foundational piece for the Christian faith, as well as a forum for discussion for people of all backgrounds. All are welcome. For more information please contact Lay Chaplain Rob McAlister at <rob.mcalister@sewanee.edu>.

Easter Lily Offering—A wonderful way to honor a family member or friend is to make an offering towards the flowers that will adorn our Chapel at the Easter celebrations. If you would like to do so, and would like the name(s) noted in the Easter bulletin, please contact the chaplain's office at 598-1274 before 4:30 p.m., Monday, April 10.

A Gethsemane Watch—From the close of the Maundy Thursday service until the morning of Good Friday, the blessed sacrament will be in St. Augustine's Chapel. Members of the community are invited to take part in this watch, much in the same way as Jesus' disciples kept watch with him the night before his crucifixion. Volunteers are needed throughout the night. A sign up sheet is located on the wall near the chapel office door or you may call 598-1274 to have your name added. Time slots are an hour in length; these slots are not restricted to just one person. The watch will end at 8 a.m. Good Friday morning.

Decorators needed for Easter—On Saturday, April 15, beginning at 9 a.m., you are cordially invited to come and help the St. Augustine's Flower Guild decorate the chapel for the Great Vigil of Easter and the Festival Easter Eucharist to be celebrated the following morning. All levels of skill and talent are needed. Coffee and pastries will be provided.

Christ Church

Palm Sunday services will be at 10:30 a.m., Sunday, April 9. All are welcome. Lunch follows the 10:30 a.m. service and visitors are always expected and welcomed.

On Good Friday, our service is at noon. It is Tenebrae and lasts about an hour. On Holy Saturday there is a very brief service at noon. We welcome help with decorating the church for Easter Day after that service. The noon service also serves as a memorial service and we especially welcome the Higgins family who have come to be with us. Increasingly, families who have roots here are choosing to come to Monteagle for the Easter Weekend and we rejoice in the renewal of old friendships and reunions. Our Easter fire is lit at dark each year and we have a few fireworks. The service is not the Great Vigil, but does serve as a brief candlelight service, which reflects a little of what the early church did on this night.

Easter Day is called "the Queen of Feasts." We try to make it so with a full day starting around 10:30 a.m. and continuing with a festive meal and Easter egg hunt. Visitors are always welcomed and expected.

Cowan Churches

The churches of Cowan Ministerial Association invite the public to attend the special services planned for Holy Week and Easter Sunrise.

A Passover Seder Dinner will be hosted by the Abundant Life Assembly of God on Good Friday, April 14, at 6 p.m. The dinner includes a series of lessons explaining Old Testament prophesies. Reservations are required and can be made by visiting the church website at <www.abundantlifewin.org>.

There will be a Sunrise Service at 6:30 a.m., Easter Sunday, at Cowan Montgomery Cemetery. Rev. Elder Willie Bonner Jr. will be the speaker. This service recalls the discovery of the empty tomb. A Sunrise Service will also take place at 6:30 a.m. at Goshen Cemetery on Williams Cove Road behind the Goshen C.P. Church.

Cowan Ministerial Association is sponsored by eight congregations in the Cowan area. For more information on the Holy Week and Easter services please visit the Association website at <www.cowanchurches.org>.

has a fund earmarked for school debt service.

With the estimated cost the same, $35 million, renovating the middle schools or building a new consolidated middle school would require a 7 percent property tax increase for a 20-year bond and an 8 percent increase for a 25-year bond. "On the 25-year bond there is more interest because the term is longer," McAnulty said.

Because the amount borrowed would be larger, the interest effect is reversed for building two new middle schools, an estimated cost $55 million. A 20-year bond would require a 19 percent tax increase; the longer 25-year term bond would only require a 16 percent increase.

A fourth option, building two new schools, but not concurrently, would cost an estimated $25 million each. A single $25 million bond with a 20-year term would require a 2.6 percent tax increase," McAnulty said.

McAnulty stressed the importance of keeping the fund balance the school system holds in reserve at an amount equal to 6 percent of the annual budget in order to maintain its AA bond rating. A lower rating could result in higher interest rates.

In addition to the bond funding the new high school, the county has two other bonds, McAnulty said. "I would propose grouping the three bonds together to minimize reissue costs."

"Property tax doesn't go just to the schools," pointed out Franklin County Commissioner Dave Van Buskirk. In addition to the middle schools, the county has two other capital projects under review, solid waste management and the jail. "The appetite for a combined property tax increase is not good," Buskirk said.

In her ongoing commitment to keeping the middle schools separate, board member Linda Jones countered opponents to renovation arguing, "Renovation means more than a new roof. It would include new heating and air conditioning, new wiring and new plumbing." Jones also suggested the board revisit the two-new schools option. "Are there overlooked considerations that could reduce the cost of building new schools on the existing sites?" she asked.

"Regardless of our decision, we need to do an extremely good job in explaining to the county commission not just the need for facilities but the need for programs and personnel," said Sewanee school board representative Adam Tucker, revisiting a concern that funding for programming would suffer if the county built two new schools. "The needs will be different depending on whether we recommend one or two schools."

"I find it troubling that the number of proficient and advanced students at the middle schools is in the low 40 percent range," Tucker said, highlighting the need for improved programming.

"What are these new programs we keep hearing about?" Jones asked.

"The bottom line is we need to guide students to learn to think critically and make sound judgments for themselves," insisted Board Chairman Cleijo Walker.

In other business, the board discussed the possibility of losing funding for the Pre-K program at several schools. "New grant requirements give preference to schools where 90 percent of the students qualify for free lunch," said Elementary Supervisor Jenny Crabtree.

The school system should receive a grant decision by May 26. "That won't leave us much time to adjust the budget" said Director of Schools Amie Lonas. "We're required to approve the final draft in June. Without funding, it would mean letting a couple employees go."

The board's regular meeting is scheduled for April 10.

Grant Awarded to Blue Monarch for Parenting Sober Program

For the past 14 years, Blue Monarch has been serving mothers across Tennessee and beyond who are recovering from abuse and addiction. Not only do they focus on the mothers, but Blue Monarch is one of few recovery programs where the mother and her children can walk through this difficult journey together. The organization's staff will often share about their mission of "breaking the cycle and rebuilding the family." Blue Monarch's unique parenting program plays a critical role in accomplishing this mission. Founder, Susan Binkley, said, "Many of our mothers have never parented their children sober. If they don't gain the skills to do so, then the pressures of being a single parent will potentially lead to relapse and land them right back at the beginning of their recovery. And the children will also get hurt in the process."

Blue Monarch's Parenting Sober Program offers a rich opportunity for the mother to receive hands-on, individual coaching for her specific parenting challenges. In addition, the program provides on-site counseling, which is available to the mother and child as a family unit. "We have seen this program develop loving, nurturing relationships between mothers and children, often for the very first time," says Binkley.

The nonprofit organization is thrilled with a recent generous grant of $20,873 from the Presbyterian Women in the Presbyterian Church (USA), Inc. that will enable them to further enhance their Parenting Sober program. A current resident, Marie, along with her two sons, are experiencing the tangible benefits of the Program. This growing mother had an abundance of grateful comments to share as she reflected on their progress together as a family during the last six months at Blue Monarch. She said, "When we arrived, both of my boys were very angry and aggressive due to the chaos of our lives, and I was clueless about how to discipline them. I've since learned how to communicate with them and discipline in healthy ways while still affirming positive things. I've learned their interests and how to spend quality time with them doing creative and fun activities together. My oldest went from a failing student when we came to now making B's and C's. We have all learned about God and how to build our lives on a stronger foundation with Him. I've learned to believe in myself and also believe in the best about my children." ## 'Good Kids' from page 1)

Crawford said he chose "Good Kids" to spark a conversation on campus and because there are so many female roles.

Lydia Klaus, a sophomore theater major who plays "Skyler," a loner and misfit, said the message of the story is universal.

"The play is incredibly relevant to Sewanee's hookup culture, which as everyone knows has its dark side, but the true power of the play stems from its universality," she said. "Good Kids" presents the prevalence of sexual assault and rape culture that surrounds everyone every day. Our production certainly keeps that at the forefront of its vision."

Cindy Cruz, a junior psychology major, plays "Deidre," a girl who calls attention to the rape and challenges those involved. She said many students shy away from the issue of sexual assault and this play is blunt.

"The public may not even be educated on what happens in Sewanee behind closed doors and it is time to open the doors and let the people know that this is real and cannot go away if everyone isn't on the same page to stop it," she said.

The play is timely in that April is Sexual Assault Awareness Month.

Karissa Wheeler, a sophomore majoring in theater and English, agrees with her castmates on the show's significance. Wheeler plays the role of "Amber," an overachiever and manipulator.

"This cast is a really eclectic group of people, not just the typical 'theater kids' who always do the shows," Wheeler noted. "I'm so grateful I've had the opportunity to bring such an important story to life with this specific group of people. It's been an emotional rollercoaster...but one worth riding."

Alena Kochinski, stage manager for the production, said recording audio for a section of the play was particularly challenging.

"The direction Jim gave for the delivering of the lines combined with Huntress Woolwine's sound designing talents, I continue to be shaken to the core every time we play it. Hearing the audio is almost a million times worse than any physical staging of it," Kochinski said.

"I am excited to be able to finally discuss, criticize and praise this show with others," she added. "This show demands your attention. It demands to be felt and learned from."

Crawford praised the troupe for its dedication, working over spring break and sometimes late at night.

"The students in the cast have been terrific," he said. "Their work has been passionate and they seem excited about the possibility of having a real impact on the world around them."

"Like most good plays, 'Good Kids' asks more questions than it does provide answers," he added. "Nothing is more boring than watching a play put on by people who think they have everything figured out, and who are going to teach you all about it. This cast has been actively wrestling with the material, and that usually makes for a more engaging experience for the audience."

"Good Kids" is at the Tennessee Williams Center April 7–8 at 7:30 p.m., and April 9 at 2 p.m. The following week the show runs April 13–15 at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are free, but reservations are recommended at <sewanee.edu/resources/arts-at-sewanee/tickets>. The play is not recommended for children under 15.

High on the Hog Festival April 18–22

Winchester's 30th annual High on the Hog Barbecue Festival is April 18–22 at Winchester City Park. The event will include barbecue contests, activities for all ages, music and a carnival.

The first High on the Hog started in downtown Winchester with five teams and has grown to a Premier KCBS Barbeque Contest of more than 60 professional and 30 backyard teams. More than 100 certified judges are needed to sample and score some of the best barbeque for appearance, taste and tenderness. Teams and judges travel from all over the United States at their own expense to cook, judge and be a part of a large barbeque family of friends.

The Kiwanis Club of Franklin County has organized this event the past 14 years. Proceeds raised by the Kiwanis Club of Franklin County are used to help families and improve the community throughout the year. The Club provides scholarships for Franklin County students and assists other local charities in projects and donations of funds raised by this event.

The Franklin County Kiwanis Club will again be participating in the KCBS 250,000 Meals Mission to provide world class pork barbeque to needy families. Two years ago, the program began with a goal of feeding 100,000 families. It was such a great success that it expanded last year to 250,000 families. Last year, teams were asked to cook extra barbeque and it was donated to Good Samaritan. The goal was to feed 200 families but fed 473 families in Franklin County.

A large crowd gathered at Convocation Hall on March 26 for the discussion on fake news, political lies and the future of journalism. Photo by Kevin Cummings is that we're forced into this dichotomy where we want it to be black and white, but it never is. Some stories are easier to represent in paper or on television, but there's never a black and white story, and yet our society continues to try to support this easy explanation."

Paul Reyes, another panelist and editor of the "Virginia Quarterly Review," noted that the Internet is blameless for the spread of fake and scandalous stories.

"We kind of forget that the Internet is neutral; it's just there," he said. "It's not guilty of why we're here and having this discussion. In some ways it reflects our own impulses. Because there's as much solid, accurate, truth-based, boring information out there as there is sensationalist nonsense."

Generating news that draws the most consumers is tied to keeping advertisers happy and that's a problem, said panelist Allan Holmes, project manager for Business in Politics at the Center for Public Integrity. The Center is a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization funded by donations and grants, which recently received a $3 million grant from the Democracy Fund and First Look Media.

Holmes said moving toward more publicly-funded media outlets not beholden to advertisers and ratings is a way to increase the credibility of news agencies.

"Then they don't have to write to make sure they are writing with the algorithms of Facebook, or making sure they have the right keywords in headlines, or that things go to the top of a list...You basically don't have to worry about getting the most number of clicks, the most number of likes, that drive traffic back to your site."

Other panelists agreed with Holmes.

"Journalism is so linked to capitalism and the two 'isms' don't work very well together," Shea said. "Until we uncouple them, I don't think we're going to have an easy solution to this."

Sewanee professor Virginia Craighill, who teaches American Literary Journalism, was one of the primary organizers of the panel discussion.

"Before this semester began, I was in despair about even teaching the class, given what had been happening to the media during the campaign and the election. Then I thought this would be a particularly significant time to have professional journalists speak about the problems of fake news and the future of the media, as well as the importance of the First Amendment. I started asking around for funding and suggestions about panelists," she said.

The presidential campaign has shone a light on the state of journalism and honesty in the country and challenged reporters, panelists said. Holmes, who grew up in Sewanee and now lives in Washington, D.C., said journalists find it hard not to be biased when they are called "the enemy," or "evil," or pointed out at rallies right after the speaker talks about the Second Amendment.

"I think everybody up here has at one point been threatened, I know I have. It's very difficult, but you have to keep coming back to the center," he said. "We're in a different environment now, it's very dystopian; it's just really strange."

On the topic of media bias, panelist Emily Siner, assistant news director and enterprise reporter for WPLN/NPR in Nashville, said everyone has biases and newsrooms need diversity among reporters to balance coverage.

"Objectivity is not attainable, we all know that," she said. "I didn't notice bias quite as much until the election. Up until that point, at least in my relatively short career, there weren't quite as many stories that one reasonable journalist in the room would think was appropriate and another journalist in the room would think was deeply offensive."

Sewanee graduate and panelist Michael Cass, a former reporter and current speech writer and communications advisor for Nashville Mayor Megan Barry, discussed the media's role in fact-checking false information and statements.

"Often the truth is murky but that's the role of the journalist to try to bring it out," he said. "Usually falsehood is not on the surface as much as it's been in the past couple of months. There's always been that role for journalists, and now there's just more opportunity than ever for the challenge."

Most of the controversy over false claims from the Trump administration has been from TV news sound bites, Reyes said. He suggested that perhaps a tape delay would help, where news programs could flash an "X" or sound a buzzer to indicate when someone said something false.

Social media is a unique category, Shea added.

"You can't fact check it, because it's too late and once it's out there it's out there," he said. "Many people will believe the first thing they hear and not wait or investigate to see what happens next. As soon as someone tweets something that's a lie, it's too late."

Holmes said it is important that when a politician says something vague, that reporter's dig into their statements. He cited an example of Vice President Mike Pence talking about regulations being bad for business and suggested the reporter should have asked for specifics.

"Instead of talking at 40,000 feet, I think reporters need to start pushing back, saying 'What are you talking about? What do you mean?'" Holmes said.

One of the final topics, introduced by moderator Melody Crowder-Meyer, assistant professor in Sewanee's Department of Politics, was how people could help with responsible journalism. Siner said the public should be skeptical and good stewards of information. Reyes said donating to news organization and subscribing will support quality news sources.

People must challenge their personal bubble and learn about how others think, Shea added.

"Right now emotion stands in for reason in a lot of cases," he said.

Beavers Chosen for Congress-Bundestag Youth Exchange

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School sophomore John Beavers has been accepted to participate in the Congress-Bundestag Youth Exchange Scholarship Program (CBYX). John is one of 50 students chosen from the Southeast United States and Puerto Rico for the 2017-2018 program year.

As a Congress-Bundestag scholar, John will attend a German high school and live with a German host family. His year will include language lessons, meetings with government officials, and cultural excursions to the German Bundestag and select German cities. During his year abroad, John will have the opportunity to gain new perspectives on global current affairs and German social, economic and political life.

John is the third SAS student to be chosen for the CBYX in recent years. Past participants included Lisa Zachau and Diana Rinck.

Initiated in 1983, Congress-Bundestag Youth Exchange was created to strengthen ties between Germany and the United States through citizen diplomacy. The program was founded in celebration of the 300th year anniversary of the first German immigration to the United States. CBYX is jointly funded by the U.S. Congress and the German Bundestag, and in the U.S. is overseen by the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs.

John is the son of Kiki and Ben Beavers of Sewanee.

AT THE MOVIES

SEWANEE UNION THEATRE

Friday–Sunday, April 7–9, 7:30 p.m.

Special matinee at 2 p.m., Sunday, April 9

PG • 119 minutes

The combination of popular music covers and cute talking animals forms the expected, but nonetheless entertaining, animated feature “Sing.” Mr. Moon the Koala (Matthew McConaughey) is the enthusiastic yet unsuccessful owner of a local theatre. Dauntless to his money troubles, Mr. Moon hosts a singing competition in an attempt to save the theatre. Scarlett Johansson, Reese Witherspoon and Seth McFarlane join the cast as a punk porcupine, a sincere sow, and a mischievous mouse. As much about the highs and lows of the entertainment industry as it is about singing animals, the movie relies heavily on a series of vignettes strung together by the competition’s rocky road to production. The constant character shifts unfailingly accompanied by musical numbers can be disorienting, but the film remains good old animation fun.

CINEMA GUILD

Wednesday, April 12, 7:30 p.m.

Life of Brian (1979)

R • 94 minutes

“Life of Brian” is a religious satire from sketch comedy group Monty Python that follows Brian (Graham Chapman), a man born next to Jesus on the same day and mistakenly exalted as the Messiah. Hapless Brian accidentally sparks a movement that leaves him hanging on a cross to the chorus of “Always look on the bright side of life.” A parody of Christian scripture and culture with what is perhaps a particular grudge for Irish Catholics, this masterpiece of mockery employs a particular brand of British comedy. A combination of slapstick, crude irony and pure silliness, this movie will induce laughs for most, and fans of its brand to rolling on the floor.

SEWANEE UNION THEATRE

Thursday–Sunday, April 13–16, 7:30 p.m.

Special matinee at 2 p.m., Sunday, April 16

Star Wars: Rogue One

PG-13 • 133 minutes

While Daisy Ridley set an unmistakably high bar for female Star Wars leads in “The Force Awakens,” Felicity Jones hits the ground running in the new installment: “Rogue One.” The script follows Jyn Urso, whose father, Galen Urso, is taken from her at a young age by the Empire, requiring his skills in the design of the Death Star, dubbed “Planet Destroyer.” Pushed by circumstance and revenge, Jyn joins the rebels’ attempt to steal the plans, within which her father has hidden the key to the weapon’s destruction. Jyn joins a duty-bound rebel pilot (Diego Luna) and his walking dry humor machine, K-2SO (Alan Tudyk). Revamped design and CGI remains faithful to the source and even to the unfortunate penchant for massive indifferent space battles. While Disney makes its new influence palpable in the script, “Rogue One” is the beautiful and exciting space adventure we have come to expect from the Star Wars franchise.

SPECIAL FUN BEFORE THE ROGUE ONE SHOWS!

Environmental Arts & Humanities Capstone Project and Art Minor Exhibition

The Carlos Gallery in the Nabit Art Building at University of the South is pleased to present a collection of work by two graduating seniors of the class of 2017, Jessie Hook and L’Or Puymartin. Hook will display the capstone project for her Environmental Arts & Humanities Major, and Puymartin will be presenting work for her Art Minor. The collection will be on display April 11–24.

As a part of the Environmental Arts & Humanities Major capstone, Jessie Hook will present a series of paintings and photographs. Together, these mediums examine the importance of journey, exploration and connection to place in developing a sustainable environmental ethic. The oil paintings, landscapes on canvas, are derived completely from imagination and are inspired by both western and Appalachian aesthetics. Gestural brush strokes and muted color palettes give an ethereal perspective to her expansive landscapes that simultaneously seem tangible and distant.

Hook’s photographs, platinum palladium prints made with digital negatives, provide nuances in detail that the paintings do not. Western and Appalachian atmospheres persist in the photographs as well, featuring both landscapes and object-defined compositions that explore the importance of light and shadow. Hook will also be speaking about her work as part of Scholarship Sewanee on Friday, April 28.

L’Or Puymartin will display photographs of an eclectic mix of individuals in their environments in Los Angeles, Paris and Beirut, the three cities she considers her homes. By photographing people in their environments, she depicts a story about the individual through their surroundings and their expressions; just as each city is unique, so is each individual’s story. With this work, Puymartin hopes that people will question, relate, believe and imagine someone else’s world.

Staged Reading of Edith Freni’s Play ‘The Mystic’

Professional actors will read Tennessee Williams Playwright-in-Residence Edith Freni’s play “The Mystic” at 6:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 11, in Guerry Garth (rain location Convocation Hall). The event is free and open to the public. A reception and talk back will follow.

The staged reading will be directed by Jessica Holt, a freelance theater director based in New York, and read by actors Eliana Marianes, Christopher Hampton, and Lee Osorio. Joining the cast will be Sewanee theater professor emeritus Marcia Mary Cook and St. Andrew’s-Sewanee School student Lucy Carroll. Elizabeth Stern, Literary Assistant at Playwrights Horizons in New York City, is the workshop dramaturg.

The play is inspired by the life of 12 century German Benedictine abbess and visionary Christian mystic Hildegard von Bingen. Little Hildy is 12 years old and might be experiencing religious visions, or maybe she just suffers from bad migraines. Either way, she’s becoming a nuisance. If she can’t keep her visions a secret, her parents may send her away to live in a convent. Anima is a senior citizen living in an American suburb. She might be channeling the spirit of Hildegard von Bingen, but if she can’t convince her two adult children that she’s not succumbing to dementia, they may have to place her in a senior living community. “The Mystic” follows Little Hildy and Anima on interconnected journeys toward enlightenment and immortality via a fragmented narrative that is equal parts morality play, dance-hall Vaudeville, and post-modern family drama.

Edith Freni is the current Tennessee Williams Playwright-in-Residence at the University of the South. She holds her B.F.A. and M.F.A. from NYU’s Department of Dramatic Writing, and her work has been produced and developed in New York and nationally at theaters including Steppenwolf, LAByrnith Theater Company, the Williamstown Theater Festival, Ensemble Studio Theater, New York Theater Workshop, Profile Theatre in Portland, OR; City Theater in Miami, and Actor’s Express in Atlanta. Edith is a three-time nominee for the prestigious PONY Award and a two-time finalist for the Jerome Fellowship. She was a Kilroy’s List Honorable Mention in 2014 and 2015. Her work is published by Playscripts, DPS, Smith & Krauss, and Applause. Edith was a 2015–16 Ingram New Works Lab resident playwright at Nashville Repertory Theater, and she received a New Territories Playwriting Residency at Serenbe Playhouse in 2015. She is the inaugural recipient of Emory University’s Playwriting Fellowship and has taught playwriting at Emory, the University of Miami, Perry Mansfield Performing Arts Camp, and the University of the South.

This event is sponsored by the Sewanee Writers’ Conference in conjunction with the “A Sense of Space and Place: Global and Local Perspectives” conference.

SSMF 2017 Season Conductors

Sewanee Summer Music Festival (SSMF) announces the eight conductors for its 61st season, June 17–July 16. Each conductor directs one of the two full symphony orchestras (the Cumberland Orchestra or Sewanee Symphony Orchestra) for a week, with performances taking place Sunday afternoons. This year's roster includes familiar favorites returning to Sewanee and several who bring an international flavor to this year's festival.

The Cumberland Orchestra opens the festival under the direction of Allan Dennis, conductor of the Kankakee Valley Symphony Orchestra and director of Midwest Young Artists. César Leal, conductor of the Sewanee Symphony Orchestra and assistant professor of music at the University of the South, will conduct in the second week of the festival. Leal has also been appointed to the SSMF artistic advisory committee. Gene H. Moon returns for a second year to conduct the Cumberland Orchestra in the third week. Moon joined the faculty at Stephen F. Austin State University in 2006 as director of orchestras and musical director of opera. Oriol San, who began his musical career as a boy chorister at the Escolania de Montserrat, will conduct the Cumberland Orchestra in the final week of the festival. San studied orchestral and choral conducting at the Barcelona Conservatory and then received a master's and D.M.A. in conducting from the University of Michigan.

The Sewanee Symphony Orchestra opens the festival under the direction of Karina Canellakis, winner of the 2016 Sir George Solti Conducting Award. Canellakis made her European conducting debut last June with the Chamber Orchestra of Europe at the Styriarte Festival in Graz, Austria, and recently completed a two-year tenure as assistant conductor of the Dallas Symphony. Yaniv Dinur returns to the Guerry podium to conduct the second week. Assistant conductor of the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra since 2016, Dinur was born in Jerusalem and has performed with orchestras in Israel, Europe and North America. Robert Moody, music director of the Winston-Salem Symphony since 2005, will conduct the final week of the festival. Moody began his tenure in September 2017 as principal conductor of the Memphis Symphony.

The Sewanee Summer Music Festival, a program of the Music Department of the University of the South, offers music students in high school through graduate school a month of rigorous music study, rehearsal, and performance opportunities in two orchestras and chamber ensembles. For more information about the Sewanee Summer Music Festival visit ssmf.sewanee.edu.

Desjarlais Announces 2017 Congressional Art Competition

Congressman Scott Desjarlais, M.D., has announced the kickoff to his 2017 Congressional Art Competition. The U.S. House of Representatives sponsors the nationwide contest each spring. Since 1982, when the program first began, more than 650,000 high school students across the country have participated.

"Every year, I'm amazed at the level of talent Tennessee students display, as well as their range of subject material and tools. I enjoy looking at the world through their eyes," said Rep. Desjarlais. "I can't wait to see this year's entries and to meet the artists in person."

The Congressional Art Competition is open to all high school students in Tennessee's Fourth District. The submission deadline is Monday, April 17. A Middle Tennessee State University Art Department faculty member will judge the contest. Rep. Desjarlais will host a reception for the top 10 entrants, and the winning artist's work will hang in the U.S. Capitol for one year.

Southwest Airlines will fly the winning artist and a guest to Washington, D.C., for a national reception this summer.

Upcoming Lectures

'Thinking with Fuels'

Karen Pinkus, professor of Italian and Comparative Literature at Cornell University will present a lecture "Thinking with Fuels: Toward Postcarbon and Other Futures" at 6 p.m., Monday, April 10, in Gailor Auditorium. The community is invited to attend.

In recent years, many in the humanities have turned their attention to climate change justice, the Anthropocene, and the carbon economy, among other topics. This talk is particularly interested in undoing the common sense and rhetorical knot that ties together "fuel" and "energy" (not to mention "electricity"). If we separate out and rigorously examine fuels, could they serve as critical tools to help confront the unfathomable temporal problems posed by accelerated greenhouse gas concentrations? Can they help us think—beyond the bad faith dream of merely substituting renewable for fossil-based substances—of different futures?

Pinkus is the author of "Fuel: A Speculative Dictionary" (Minnesota, 2016), "Alchemical Mercury: A Theory of Ambivalence" (Stanford, 2009), "The Montesi Scandal: The Death of Wilma Montesi and the Birth of the Paparazzi in Fellini's Rome" (Chicago, 2003), and "Bodily Regimes: Italian Advertising Under Fascism" (Minnesota, 1995).

'Might We Benefit Animals By Eating Them?'

Jefferson Allen McMahan C'76, White's Professor of Moral Philosophy at the University of Oxford, will give a public lecture at 4.30 p.m., Tuesday April 11, in Gailor Auditorium on "Might We Benefit Animals By Eating Them?" A Sewanee alumnus and Rhodes Scholar, McMahan is the author of numerous books and articles on practical ethics, including the widely acclaimed "Killing in War" (Oxford University Press, 2009). All members of the Sewanee community are warmly invited to attend this talk by one of the University's most distinguished alumni.

Leslie Stephen once wrote that "The pig has a stronger interest than anyone in the demand for bacon. If all the world were Jewish, there would be no pigs at all." In recent debates about the ethics of eating animals, some have advanced the related claim that if people cause animals to exist and give them good lives in order to be able to eat them, then even if the animals are killed prematurely, the practice is permissible because it is good for the animals overall, as well as being good for the human beings who eat them. This argument raises deep issues in ethical theory such as issues about rights and issues in population ethics.

'Lemon Project' for Reconciliation

The University of the South is pleased to welcome Jody Allen, Lemon Project co-chair and managing director at the College of William and Mary, to speak on her institution's multifaceted and dynamic attempt to rectify wrongs perpetrated against African Americans by the College. She will speak on "The Lemon Project: A Journey of Reconciliation" at 4:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 19, in Gailor Auditorium. (This event was rescheduled from an earlier date.)

In 2009, after student and faculty resolutions calling for a full investigation of the College's past, the William and Mary Board of Visitors acknowledged that the College had "owned and exploited slave labor from its founding to the Civil War; and that it had failed to take a stand against segregation during the Jim Crow Era." As a result, the Board offered its support for the establishment of The Lemon Project: A Journey of Reconciliation. The Project is named for Lemon, a man who was once enslaved by the College of William & Mary. The full dimensions of Lemon's life and his relationship with the College are unknown. In many ways, Lemon stands in the place of the known and unknown African Americans who helped to build, maintain, and move the College forward.

Jody L. Allen, a native of Hampton, Va., earned a doctorate in U.S. history at William and Mary (Williamsburg, Virginia) in 2007. African American history is her area of specialization, including Reconstruction, the Jim Crow Era, school desegregation, and women and gender. Her dissertation considers the consequences of and responses to the 1902 Virginia constitution revisions that disfranchised most African Americans and some whites. She is also working with a colleague to produce The Green Light, a documentary film on the school desegregation case Charles C. Green v. the School Board of New Kent County, Virginia. This little-known 1968 Supreme Court decision led to the integration of public schools throughout the South. She co-authored "Recovering a Lost Story Using Oral History: The United States Supreme Court's Historic Green v. New Kent County, Virginia, Decision," which appeared in The Oral History Review. Currently, Allen is a visiting assistant professor at William and Mary and the co-chair and managing director of The Lemon Project: A Journey of Reconciliation. Through her work on The Lemon Project, she is exploring the history of William and Mary's role as slaveholder and proponent of Jim Crow.

More detailed results can be found on milesplit.com.

Overall, the SAS boys' team placed 11th out of 19 teams and the girls placed 15th out of 16 teams.

"We have many new runners this season and we are proud of the personal benchmarks they have set today," said coach Jake Miller. "Coach Cooper and I are both excited for what the future holds for this group of athletes."

SAS varsity team will compete next at home on April 13.

Women's Lacrosse Keeps SAA Title Hopes Alive

The Sewanee women's lacrosse team defeated rival Centre 12-6 at home on April 2, to remain close to Rhodes College in the conference chase.

Sewanee is now 10-3 overall and 3-1 in Southern Athletic Association play, one game back in the loss column to undefeated Rhodes College, which stands at 5-0 in conference games.

The Tigers have league games against Millsaps, Oglethorpe and Rhodes remaining.

Sewanee opened on April 2 with two straight goals from Brooke Winfield. After a goal from Centre's Hannah Bellamah, Mary Kate Myers ripped a shot in off a great pass from behind the goal from Grace Zechman. Less than a minute later, Zechman tossed another assist when she found Winfield, who scored her third goal.

Zechman then scored a goal of her own with 1:35 left in the first half off a great pass from Molly Elkins.

Sewanee took a 6-1 lead into half-time when Anna Comer scored with 11 seconds left.

In the second half, Centre played better. However, every time the Colonels made a run, Sewanee answered back. The Tigers outscored the Colonels 6-5, in the final 30 minutes.

During that stretch, Kelly Thomson, Kit Sommi, Catherine Crigler and Comer all scored.

Overall, Sewanee outshot Centre 33-22. The Tigers were also better with possession. Sewanee finished 23-for-28 on clears and won 11 draws.

Individually, Crigler and Winfield both finished with three goals. Comer also played well with two goals, an assist, six groundballs, and three caused turnovers.

Additionally, Farrell Guest, Zechman, and Grace Fulton all had multiple caused turnovers.

Behind the defense, goalkeeper Brianna Young continued her great season. Young stopped 14 saves in 60 minutes. She still ranks among the nation's best in save percentage (64.7).

Hannah Gibbons led Centre with three goals, eight shots, three groundballs, one draw and one caused turnover.

Sewanee returns to action with a noon match at Millsaps on April 8

Sewanee Claims Game Three in Rome

Despite dropping both games in a doubleheader on April 1, the Sewanee baseball team closed out the three-game series in Rome, Ga., on April 2 with a 7-5 win over Berry College.

The Tigers sit with an even 14-14 overall record. Sewanee is 6-5 in conference action. The six conference wins are the most for the Tigers since 2006.

Relief pitching rescued Sewanee in the first inning as freshman Jackson Cook came out of the bullpen to pitch five quality innings and earn his third win this season. Cook allowed only four hits over his five frames, yielding just two runs while striking out four.

Back-to-back hits by Jared Demkowicz and Chris McNulty led to three runs with two outs in the first inning. Another single by Max Murray in the fourth, along with sacrifice flies from Jackson Cooper and Trey Akins, accounted for the final runs tallied by the Tigers.

Sewanee will battle conference rival Rhodes on April 8 in the first two games of three-game set at Sewanee's Montgomery Field.

SAA Honors Young for Defense

Sewanee women's lacrosse player Brianna Young has been named the Southern Athletic Association (SAA) Defensive Player of the Week, the league announced April 3.

Young continued to play as one of the top goalkeepers in the nation. The previous week, she went 1-1 with a 65.1 save percentage. Young also allowed only 7.50 goals per game and made 28 saves.

First, against DePauw, Young finished with 14 saves and a 60.9 save percentage.

Then against Centre, she posted 14 saves and stopped 70 percent of the Colonels' shots.

Young now leads all NCAA Division III women's lacrosse players with a 64.7 save percentage.

Bea Benavides hits a shot in recent action. The women's tennis team turned back Oglethorpe University 9-0 on April 1 and then swept Berry College 9-0 on April 2 in two home matches. The team improved to 12-4 this season with the wins. Photo by Lyn Hutchinson

Opossum and Other Sightings

Margaret Matens reports, "Last week a dead opossum (really dead, not just 'playing possum') was delivered to the State Park Visitors' Center by an observant man who noticed that she had live babies in her pouch. After the rangers called me, I removed the six two-inch long babies from the fur-lined pouch. The marsupial babies, which begin life the size of a honey bee, spend the first three months nursing and developing in the pouch. Just like kangaroos! The opossum is America's only marsupial—an amazing, unique creature. Unfortunately these tiny babies were too young to survive. But more are arriving weekly. I am one of those who believes in 'opossum opower.' I stop to check any roadkill possums I see for viable young."

Pets of the Week

Meet Diogee & Ross

Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption.

Diogee is a young, robust American Bulldog. He loves to play and be with his person, but he needs to be the only dog. Diogee is house trained and walks well on leash. He is heartworm-negative, up-to-date on shots, microchipped and neutered.

Ross is a sweet Orange and White Tabby. He tends to be shy at first, but after he warms up he is quite vocal and talks to you with his happy meows. Ross does not like to be held, but he will curl up right next to you for as long as you want to pet him. He is negative for FeLV and FIV, house-trained, up-to-date on shots and neutered.

Animal Harbor offers substantial adoption fee discounts for veterans and seniors. Every Friday is Black Friday at Animal Harbor. ## Power Bill Scam Making the Rounds

The Duck River Electric Membership Corporation (DREMC) and the Sequachee Valley Electric Cooperative (SVEC) have been made aware of several attempts to scam customers in their service areas.

This fraud in the DREMC area appears to be aimed at small businesses, especially gas stations, small markets, and convenience stores. Owners and employees are informed by the caller that their DREMC bill is overdue, and the service is subject to immediate disconnection unless they pay via credit or debit card over the phone. A business in Maury County was told that the check used to make electric payment was unsigned and that this needed to be paid by other means to avoid disconnection.

For SVEC, a customer receives an unsolicited phone call from an individual who falsely claims to be a Sequachee Valley Electric Cooperative representative. The scammer warns that SVEC will disconnect the customer's electric service if the customer fails to make a payment, usually within a short time frame.

Scammers have even duplicated the Sequachee Valley Electric Cooperative customer call center greeting so when customers call back phone numbers provided by the scammer, it sounds like a legitimate SVEC phone number. Some of these criminals also use caller ID spoofing to replicate SVEC's customer service number or our after-hours answering and dispatch service, Cooperative Response Center (CRC).

All members should be wary of anyone purporting to be a co-op representative who demands an over-the-phone bill payment to prevent service disconnection.

For more information go to <www.dremc.com> or <www.svalleyec.com>.

BARDTOVERSE

by Phoebe Bates

Beneath these fruit-tree boughs that shed
Their snow-white blossoms on my head,
With brightest sunshine round me spread
Of Spring's unclouded weather,
In this sequester'd nook how sweet
To sit upon my orchard-seat!
And flowers and birds once more to greet,
My last year's friends together...
