May 6 Primary Election Results

The results of the May 6 primary elections are complete. Since this was a primary election, voters were choosing either Democrat or Republican candidates only. For the Aug. 7 election, these winners may face Independent candidates.

12th Judicial District

Franklin, Grundy and Marion counties are located in the 12th Judicial District of Tennessee; it also includes Bledsoe, Rhea and Sequatchie counties. There are three Circuit Judges that serve the 12th Judicial District.

In the race for Circuit Court Judge, 12th Judicial District Part III, Democrat Steve Blount will face Republican Justin C. Angel.

Unchallenged candidates in the District who have no opposition in August include: Thomas W. "Rusty" Graham for Circuit Judge, 12th Judicial District Part I; J. Curtis Smith, Circuit Judge, 12th Judicial District Part II; Jeff Stewart, chancellor, 12th Judicial District; Mike Taylor, district attorney general, 12th Judicial District; and Jeff Harmon, public defender, 12th Judicial District.

Franklin County

Bill Green won the Republican primary for Franklin County mayor. He will face incumbent Democrat Richard Stewart and independent Burt Brown on Aug. 7.

Incumbent Democrat Tim Fuller will face Republican Mike Foster in the race for county sheriff. Foster has been sheriff in the past.

Register of Deeds Lydia Curtis Johnson defeated a challenge from James R. Cantrell in the Democratic primary for the office. Johnson has no Republican opponent in August, so she will retain her position.

Helen Stapleton, a Democrat, will face Dan Ferguson and Art Hanson, who are running as Independents, in the August election for County Commissioner, District 5, Seat B (Sewanee/Sherwood/Keith Springs).

Highlander Folk School Preserved

"Hallowed Ground" in Grundy County Protected for the Future

It looked like a simple property transaction. Buyers and sellers were seated around a table, passing papers and pens around as they signed stacks of papers. Checks for large amounts of money were handed from one party to the other. People around the edges quietly made small talk as the transfer took place.

But this was no ordinary real estate deal.

On May 14 at the offices of Montegale Sewanee Realty, the future of the original Highlander Folk School site was secured by a group of people who care deeply about its importance, described by some as "hallowed ground."

The Tennessee Preservation Trust (TPT) purchased 4.2 acres of land and three buildings, including the original Highlander Folk School Library. The property is located in the Summerfield community between Montegale and Tracy City.

During the 1930s and 1940s, the Highlander Folk School's main focus was labor education and the training of labor organizers and organizations. In the 1950s, issues of civil rights and desegregation were addressed, and in the 1960s and 1970s, Highlander added worker health and safety in the coalfields of Appalachia to its agenda.

"It is our intention to piece this back together as a historic site for education and tourism," said David Currey, chairman of the TPT, which is based in Nashville.

"This is one of the first places where you see African-Americans and whites congregating to talk about social issues in a segregated South, to talk about the meaning of American democracy in the mid-20th century and give voice to the community of poor whites and blacks in the region," he said. Getting this piece of property, Currey said, will allow the story of Highlander to be told in its original setting.

"This site has national and international significance," he said. "We are delighted to have this come to fruition."

Easements and covenants will protect the property in perpetuity, he said.

The other key partners in this deal were Brenda and David Gordon, whose nonprofit organization Sports and Cultural Exchange International has owned the property since 1999; Madeline and Howell Adams of Beersheba Springs and Atlanta, who made a loan to help with the property's purchase; and Jeanette Banks and Ray Banks, who are realtors with a passion for preserving this historic piece of property.

"By putting this property in the hands of the Tennessee Preservation Trust, we are returning it to its original mission: to support economic and social justice for Appalachia," said Jeanette Banks. "And, it supports the ongoing redevelopment of the Plateau, especially with the history projects

A ROYAL SEND-OFF To the Editor:

A University village with a campus of beautiful buildings and scenic views stands proudly on the Mountain. It was my pleasure to be a part of that village serving as your postmaster for the last 10 years.

Thank you for a "royal send-off" into retirement. I will miss the smiling and patient customers.

I will miss the employees in the main post office, employees at the Student Post Office and St. Andrew's-Sewanee School employees who I saw everyday.

I will also miss the employees and customers from the Sherwood and Cowan post offices who I worked closely with every day.

I will miss the pear trees in front of the post office and the frozen yogurt in a waffle cone at the Blue Chair.

Thanks to everyone. I hope to see you again soon!

Heritage Center Launches Campaign to Eliminate Mortgage

Grundy County Historical Society acquired the First National Bank of Tracy City building and related facilities for a Heritage Center five years ago. Since then it has restored the facility to its 1904 original condition, developed a regional museum that portrays themes of history that have grown out of the plateau, and expanded the former "Root Cellar" that was housed in a closet at the Tracy City Library to a professional genealogical library with data and up-to-date equipment for study and research.

The Center has announced that it is beginning a Mortgage Sinking Fund Campaign to raise funds to retire the principal of the loans that were made by the USDA Rural Development program. The current balance on these mortgages is $223,899.

Ronald Buffington, treasurer and chairman of the finance committee of the Heritage Center, said, "The benefits the Heritage Center brings to Grundy County and the plateau are not without cost. $350,000 was raised from a capital fund campaign. In addition $230,000 was raised through two mortgage loans from USDA Rural Development. The annual payments on these mortgages are $12,345. The organization is at the point where all of its available fund-raising capacity must be directed to its mortgage principal reduction and retirement."

When the mortgage debt is retired, the fund-raising capacity of the organization, which has been demonstrated to be considerable, will be freed and become available for additional new program initiatives, according to Buffington.

"The Heritage Center is for the public and all the people of Grundy County and the South Cumberland Plateau. For it to endure it requires the support of the people it serves," said Oliver Jervis, chairman of the Heritage Center Development Committee.

A photograph from the Grundy County Heritage Center of the Wooten Mine in Tracy City that grew into the Tennessee coal and iron division of the U.S. Steel Corporation opment Committee.

"In addition the Heritage Center serves as a community hub where both students and adults come to learn, share information and stories, socialize and engage in community activities. Individuals and organizations regularly schedule the facility for receptions, events, seminars, board meetings and even as an election site for early voting. The Heritage Center is a place where people and communities of the South Cumberland Plateau are inspired to understand who they are and how they are connected in history."

For more information or to make a donation call (931) 592-6008 or email <history@blomand.net>. The center is located at 465 Railroad Ave., Tracy City.

School of Theology Appoints New Distinguished Visiting Professor

The Rt. Rev. J. Neil Alexander, dean of the University of the South's School of Theology, announced the appointment of the Rt. Rev. James Tengatenga as distinguished visiting professor of global Anglicanism. Tengatenga will begin on July 1. He will teach courses in missiology, contemporary global Anglicanism and related subjects.

"I am honored to be appointed to this position and it is my prayer that I will be able to share my knowledge and experience of the church, what God is doing with his people worldwide and the church's role in God's Mission," said Tengatenga. "It is always an honor to participate in the formation of leaders. It is an invitation to participate in the future."

In 2013, the School of Theology adopted a strategic plan that included a goal to establish shared programs and defined partnerships across the Anglican Communion. Commenting on this strategic initiative, the dean noted, "Dr. Tengatenga has few peers in his extensive experience in the leadership of the Anglican Communion and his understanding of the church's mission throughout the world. His leadership of the Standing Committee of the Anglican Communion and of the Anglican Consultative Council gives him a comprehensive knowledge of Anglican mission throughout the world that few can equal. Bringing this rich experience to our academic program is an enormous gift to our students, and his knowledge of the Anglican Communion will be vital to Sewanee's deeper engagement in the life of the worldwide church."

First as a priest, and later as bishop of Southern Malawi for 15 years, Tengatenga has been a tireless advocate for human rights, particularly for youth and women. Within the broader African context, he has contributed positively to the ongoing conversations with respect to the full inclusion of gay and lesbian persons in the life of the church. Tengatenga has been involved in HIV ministry as a member of the Malawi National AIDS Commission that coordinates the national response to HIV and AIDS.

Tengatenga resigned his position as bishop of Southern Malawi in order to accept a position as the dean of the William Jewett Tucker Foundation at Dartmouth College, a position for which he was eminently qualified as to his capabilities and character. Unfortunately, due to controversy created by third parties and persons, Dartmouth withdrew its offer. (The matter between Dartmouth and Tengatenga has since been amicably resolved.) He was soon thereafter appointed as a Presidential Fellow at the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge, Mass.

Upon hearing news of this appointment, Ian Douglas, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Connecticut, said, "Bishop James Tengatenga is one of the most significant Christian leaders in the worldwide Anglican Communion. He is passionate about and dedicated to God's mission to restore all people to unity with God and each other in Christ. Sewanee will find in Bp. James a caring and pastoral presence committed to forming global Christian leaders. The University of the South will be blessed to have him on the Mountain."

Tengatenga was born in Kwekwe, Zimbabwe, on April 7, 1958. In 1979 he began theological training and priestly formation at Zomba Theological College in Malawi. He continued theological training at the Seminary of the Southwest in Austin, Texas, where he earned a master of divinity degree and was ordained a priest in 1985. He has done graduate work at the University of Birmingham in the United Kingdom and holds a Ph.D. from the University of Malawi, as well as honorary degrees from Seminary of the Southwest and General Theological Seminary.

"The University is committed to serious scholarship and to the preparation of an educated ministry," said John M. McCardell Jr., vice-chancellor of the University of the South. "As part of our broader, long-range vision, we want to see students matriculating here from across the Anglican Communion. Dr. Tengatenga's appointment underscores this global orientation as we seek to increase Sewanee's diversity in both the College and the School of Theology."

in Grundy County, the recreational opportunities such as the Mountain Goat Trail, and the many other exciting things happening around us.”

The Gordons’ nonprofit organization used the space as a retreat center for its sports evangelism missionaries. As their work has become more focused on Central and Latin America, they are moving their headquarters to South Florida. They also lived on the property for some time.

“For years we have had busloads of people drive up to the old library to come see where Myles Horton and Rosa Parks learned about non-violence,” Brenda Gordon said. “Others would come alone and tell us about the time they spent at Highlander Folk School as young people. It is a very special place, and we are delighted that it is going to be preserved.”

Ray Banks said he was grateful to the Gordons for seeing the vision of the property as a protected historic site. “They could have sold it years ago to people who might have torn the buildings down,” he said. “Their commitment to this project has been key.”

During the closing, Currey turned to Mr. and Mrs. Adams and offered his expression of appreciation.

“We could not have done this without you. Thank you so much,” he said.

“This money is a gift from God,” Howell Adams said. “We just share it with others. It is so fun to be a part of this project. People who have means should learn to give to others. It is such a joyous experience.” The Adamses brought along their dog, Wilhelmina, who roamed the conference room so people could pet her between swapping folders and papers.

“This site is hallowed ground,” Adams said. “We can now be sure that it is protected for the future.”

The Highlander Folk School was begun in 1932 by Myles Horton. Horton’s plan was to open a place for training for Appalachian people to confront forces that oppressed them. In its early days, Highlander worked on teaching life skills to rural residents, then moved to helping miners in the area secure safer working conditions and better pay.

In 1952 Highlander’s focus expanded to include civil rights issues. Martin Luther King Jr. and Ralph Abernathy were among the many leaders who came to Highlander.

The late Scott Bates of Sewanee began attending Highlander workshops in 1956, and he worked with Septima Clark and Horton to bring an NAACP chapter to Franklin County, an eight-year struggle that eventually led to a lawsuit desegregating Franklin County public schools.

The school moved to its current location in New Market, Tenn., east of Knoxville, in 1971. Known today as the Highlander Research and Education Center, officials at the school are in close conversation with Currey and TPT about the future of the site.

TPT will now evaluate the property and develop plans for a capital campaign to restore the site, not as a museum, but as a place of learning and education. Currey said he has been in contact with labor and civil rights attorney George Barrett, John Seigenthaler (chairman emeritus of the Tennessean, founding editorial director of USA Today and founder of the First Amendment Center at Vanderbilt University), former director of the National Endowment for the Arts Bill Ivey and music producer Dub Cornett.

The Tennessee Preservation Trust is the state’s only statewide partner of the National Trust for Historic Preservation. It is a membership-based organization that focuses on promoting preservation across Tennessee through education and advocacy. It supports individuals and communities across Tennessee who want to protect, restore and promote their historic and cultural resources.

Headquartered in Nashville, TPT works to monitor and promote preservation-friendly legislation at the local, state and federal levels, and assist Tennesseans with advocacy issues pertaining to specific historic sites, historic districts and pertinent zoning issues.

“This is a dream come true,” Ray Banks said. “We’ve known the importance of this property for a very long time, and it has finally found its way to the right owners. We are all delighted.”

Honor Flight Takes Sewanee Veteran to D.C.

Honor Flight

Of Middle Tennessee

Fifty World War II and Korean War veterans traveled to Washington, D.C., on May 10 to visit their war memorials and observe the Changing of the Guard at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldiers at Arlington National Cemetery. Numerous escorts assisted with the trip.

Among those making this trip were U.S. Navy veteran David Kearley of Sewanee. Bob Askew traveled with the group as a volunteer escort.

Arnold Air Force Base commander Col. Raymond Toth, Coffee County Mayor David Pennington and Manchester Mayor Lonnie Norman were some of the local officials, along with local National Guard officers, including two Tennessee National Guard generals seeing the veterans off around 3 a.m., May 10, in Winchester, Tullahoma and Manchester. Local police and sheriff’s departments from Coffee and Franklin counties escorted the chartered bus, along with National Guard vehicles and the American Legion (motorcycle) riders.

At Nashville International Airport, members of the Patriot Guard Riders welcomed the veterans with two lines of American flags. Once onboard the first Southwest Airlines flight to Washington for the day, the flight crew and other passengers recognized the veterans.

Arriving at Baltimore/Washington International Airport, active duty military personnel from Ft. Gordon, Ga., and Ft. Meade, Md., as well as a couple hundred civilians gave the group a hero’s welcome at the airport.

The veterans got to meet retired U.S. senators Bob Dole and Elizabeth Dole at the World War II Memorial. They also talked with veterans from eight other Honor Flights from across the United States at the World War II Memorial.

After a short lunch break they visited the Korean War Memorial, and then it was on to Arlington National Cemetery, where the veterans observed the Changing of the Guard at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldiers.

Following that the group drove by the Marine Corps Two Jima Memorial, the Air Force Memorial and the Pentagon. The group then stopped at Ft. Meade, Md., for a military demonstration and supper in the base dining hall.

A large group of soldiers from Ft. Gordon, Ga., greeted the veterans at BWI and spent time with them before they boarded their flight back to Nashville. In Nashville the Patriot Guard Riders welcomed them back with another avenue of American flags.

The Honor Flight of Middle Tennessee is part of the national Honor Flight network. The group’s goal is take all local World War II and Korean War veterans who have not seen their war memorials to Washington, D.C. The trip is free to qualified veterans.

Planning and fund raising is currently underway for a fall Honor Flight from Middle Tennessee. Each flight costs around $20,000. Special thanks to all who donated to make this weekend’s flight happen.

The Honor Flight of Middle Tennessee, formerly the Southern Middle Tennessee Honor Flight, is a Tennessee nonprofit organization and has filed application with the IRS for 501(c)(3) nonprofit status.

The Southern Middle Tennessee Honor Flight flew its first group of veterans to Washington, D.C., in 2008. Its founder and original chairman is Milton Schaefer of Winchester. For more information about the Honor Flight of Middle Tennessee, contact Claude Morse at (931) 247-5151.

“Mind Your Health” for Mental Health Month

Mind Your Health—this year’s theme for May is Mental Health Month—calls attention to the importance of mental health to overall health and wellness.

“We know that mental health is integral to overall health,” said Dr. David L. Shern, CEO of Mental Health America. “People need to care for their mental health so they can respond to the stress of daily life and the challenges it presents. This Mental Health Month, we are encouraging everyone to learn about steps they can take to protect their mental health and balance both mind and body.”

Mental Health America has developed a series of fact sheets available on its website, <www.mentalhealthamerica.net>, with steps anyone can take to improve their overall mental health and well-being and on how to get help when needed.

May is Mental Health Month was started 65 years ago by Mental Health America to raise awareness about mental health conditions and the importance of good mental health for everyone.

“When a person has ‘good’ mental health, they deal better with what comes their way,” Shern said. “By contrast, ‘poor’ mental health—such as feeling overwhelmed by stress—can make even day-to-day life difficult.

“The good news is there are many healthy choices and steps that individuals can adopt to promote and strengthen mental health—and overall health and well-being,” he said. “Building social support, eating with mental health in mind, and stress management are important steps that promote good mental health.

“Just as Americans have learned there are things they can do to reduce their risk of heart disease and chronic illnesses, we want to help people learn what they can do both to protect their mental health in tough times and also to improve their mental well-being throughout their lives.”

Ohler Places First in State on National French Exam

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School sophomore Amelie Ohler was recently recognized for outstanding performance in the Grand Concours de Français (the National French Contest). The event is sponsored by the American Association of Teachers of French for students studying French in American schools in the United States and around the world. In Level 4C, Amelie's score earned her first place in Tennessee and the rank of fifth on the national level.

Amelie is the daughter of Rainer and Eva Ohler of Gruenwald Bayern, Germany. She is one of 42 international students at SAS and is attending the school under the auspices of ASSIST, a nonprofit, international educational and cultural exchange organization based in the United States and active in more than 20 countries.

Each year, SAS welcomes five to six European students placed by ASSIST for a one-year opportunity for academic enrichment. Amelie has enjoyed participating on the school's volleyball, swim, and track and field teams during the year. In Germany, she attends a French-German school and will continue her French studies under the tutelage of Barbara Carden.

"Shrimp Boats" by John McLean

Watercraft in Watercolor at In-Town Gallery in June

Just in time for summer activities such as boating on Tennessee waterways, John McLean brings his collection of "Watercraft in Watercolor" to In-Town Gallery in Chattanooga for the month of June. This retrospective of his work is a fresh look at his favorite subjects, water and boats, rendered in the most appropriate medium of watercolor.

The opening reception is 5–8 p.m. EDT, Friday, June 6, and is an opportunity to meet the artist and be inspired by his views of watercraft in their natural settings.

"I strive to work so that the result appears to have been painted with a happy and relaxed brush. I want the painting to appear as if it was quick and easy to execute, and just fell naturally onto the paper," he said. "The painting should convey my overall emotion about the subject: peace, joy, excitement, sadness or whatever—a lot is suggested, and the details I try to leave to the viewer to supply from the wealth of their own experiences," the artist explains.

A native of Ireland, McLean was introduced to watercolor painting by a high-school teacher. He dabbled with it for the next 40 years or so, while pursuing a career in consulting engineering. After retiring, painting took over, and he now strives to paint watercolors that will involve the viewer. His objective is to convey the message with as few brush strokes as possible, saying more with less.

In-Town Gallery, founded in 1974, is celebrating its 40th anniversary this year and is one of the oldest cooperative galleries in the nation. It presents the original work of more than 30 regional studio artists. Located at 26A Frazier Avenue, between the Market Street and Walnut Street bridges, it is adjacent to Coolidge Park on the North Shore of the Tennessee River. The gallery is open every day year-round except major holidays. Hours are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday–Saturday, 1–5 p.m., Sunday, and until 8 p.m. on first Fridays. For more information call (423) 267-9214 or go to <www.intowngallery.com>.

Graduation, and Remembrance of Books Past

It's a moment as inevitable as the blooming of the first peony on Mother's Day.

Graduation.

Or rather, its flip side, the infamous empty nest.

Not that I haven't had warnings. My eldest, married last summer, moved to Texas a few years ago. My second, two years out of college, has lived in Lexington ever since. I kind of got the point awhile back that the kids were moving out and on, and are supposed to.

But I have to admit that when son Tommy comes home to visit, it still startles me that he leaves. In my mind, he should be running around our woods with his older brother and the rest of their gang. Probably still wearing the cowboy hat and pink rain boots he lived in at age three.

That's how stubborn the mother-mind is.

I need to make that mind adjust to the fact that my last is leaving in early August for college. And to face as well the reality that as a veteran homeschooler, I'm not only losing my children, but for the first time in 25 years, I'm going to be without a job.

Not that mothering isn't a job. But homeschooling has been an all-consuming occupation since we decided back in those long-ago cloth diaper days that we were going to "raise our kids ourselves" rather than turn the task over to someone else. Homeschoolers were so rare that when we walked into a store during school hours, we were guaranteed at least one person asking if it was some holiday they'd forgotten. That was well before the wealth of resources now available online (well before "online," for that matter, and a good decade before we could afford a computer). I created a curriculum for each child from scratch each year, a habit I continued even after packaged plans came available. Every moment we weren't actually doing school, I was planning what we'd be studying the next year, and how.

Back then, my brain never really switched off from its planning/teaching mode.

Now, for the first time since the 1980s, I'm not pouring over book lists for the coming year. My head is starting to feel as light and airy as the Scarecrow's before he gets his brains.

For someone who thrives on the security of routine, this is terrifying, though I expect my panic of "now what?" will probably transform to exhilaration around the time my youngest unrolls her posters and meets her freshman roommate.

Meanwhile, I'm ducking any sadness by wondering which of the many, many books that flowed through our house over the years (most of them taking up permanent residence) stand out for each child.

Their answers came instantaneously. "The Iliad," says my eldest, Marshall, whose job designing and managing the online presence for a TV news station has taken him furthest from reading lengthy literature, let alone the classics of ancient Greece.

A self-proclaimed historian since the age of five, son Tommy's book is Paul Fussell's classic, "The Great War and Modern Memory." It introduced him to the tragic young battle poets of World War I, and started him on an exploration of the way societies celebrate their war dead, leading to a college grant to the Normandy beaches and other battle sites in France and Belgium. And now, he hopes, to graduate school and a Ph.D.

Charlotte's choice? "Jane Eyre." Which she and we read, watched, listened to, reread, watched and watched. (There are a lot of filmed versions).

It also just happens to be probably my favorite book of all time.

I must have done something right.

My homeschool confession? I didn't re-read "Moby Dick" the last student around. (Well, I may have skimmed some the time before that as well.)

From now on, I'll just be choosing books I want to read.

Though—another homeschool confession—that's pretty much what I've been doing all along.

What are you reading these days? Email me at <mgtstep@gmail.com>.

Civil War History Tour of West Tennessee Raid

Historian Michael Bradley will lead a day-long tour of Nathan Bedford Forrest's West Tennessee Raid of December 1862 on May 30.

Bradley is a retired professor of American history who taught at Motlow College for more than 30 years. He has published several books about the Civil War and Middle Tennessee.

This tour will focus on a raid that was the first extensive push made by Forrest, a lieutenant general in the Confederate Army during the American Civil War, and it was part of a coordinated series of strikes at Union logistics lines.

The tour will visit Clifton, where Forrest crossed the Tennessee River, going in and coming out of West Tennessee. In Clifton they will tour the Presbyterian Church that was constructed in 1854 and was a hospital for men too sick to continue on the raid. They will also visit the ferry landing where Forrest swam his horses across the river.

Parker's Cross Roads is considered by students of military history to be one of the better examples of small battles, showing skillful use of cavalry, infantry and artillery. At the battlefield, tour participants will view an orientation film, visit the museum and tour the field utilizing a local guide.

The tour will depart from Winchester at 7 a.m.; the group will travel on an air-conditioned bus and return about 5:30 p.m.

The cost of the trip is $100 per person; lunch, drinks and snacks are included.

Profits from the tour will help to support local historical sites such as the Beechgrove Confederate Cemetery, Matt Martin Confederate Cemetery, the Battle of Farmington burial site and the John Wiley Temple War Memorial Cemetery.

For more information contact Bradley at (931) 808-1941 or email <michaelrbradley@lighttube.net>.

SAS Spring Athletics Award Night

Athletes at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School were recently honored at the Spring Athletic Awards. After individual teams met with coaches prior to the event, all athletes and families gathered in McCrory Hall for presentation of the Most Improved Player (MIP), the Most Valuable Player (MVP) and the Coaches Award winners. MIP and MVP are selected by the players of the team.

SAS celebrated the achievements of the varsity spring teams, including baseball, soccer, softball, tennis, and track and field.

SAS varsity baseball player Levi Higgins, '15, was named to the 2014 TSSAA Class A, Division II, All Region Team. Higgins and Casey Willis, '15, led the team in hitting this season. Co-captains Higgins and Riley Rhoton, '15, led the team defensively. Higgins also led the team in stolen bases. Willis, Rhoton and Briar Sain, '15, had a three-way tie for the lead in pitching wins this season.

SAS varsity boys' soccer ended the regular season fourth in the district. The team won their first playoff game, beating Ezell-Harding 5-2 in the first round and made it to the semifinal of the district tournament. Sam Smith, '17, and Ethan Brand, '15, were named to the All-District Team.

The SAS softball team, in its final year as a varsity team sport, was led by four strong seniors: Alyson Barry, Ashley Barry, Margarita Parris and Michiah Posey.

The SAS varsity girls' tennis team was led by four returning varsity players: seniors Julia Cammack, Lucy Howick, Kelly Hsu and sophomore Mason Goodson. The team finished the season 5-8, and 5-5 in the region, including a win over rival Webb-Bell Buckle. The team was aptly led by co-captains Cammack and Katjia Sievert.

The SAS varsity boys' tennis team finished the season with a region win over Ezell Harding Christian School, improving its region record to 3-6. Captain and No. 1 singles player sophomore Till Liesner boasted the best win-loss record on the boys' team. Senior newcomer Licheng Shen contributed a number of key wins for the Mountain Lions.

The SAS track team broke four school records this year. James Beasley, '15, had a hand in three of these, breaking his own 100-meter high hurdle record, capturing the 300-meter intermediate hurdle record and running the anchor leg of the record-setting 4x400 meter relay team that included Lucas Lu, '15; Burton Dorough, '16; and Eric Baynard, '15. Baynard placed second in the regional decathlon with a score of 4,131, a mere 37 points behind first place. By competing in this grueling event, he established a school record in the decathlon.

On the girls' side, Sarah Beavers, '14, was consistently the high-scorer for her team. Beavers, Baynard, Beasley, Jake Mallory, '15, and Christian Taylor, '17, competed in regional meets this week.

Lacrosse Season Ends With Trip to NCAA Tournament

A fast start helped Old Dominion Athletic Conference champion Lynchburg Hornets to a 25-4 NCAA tournament first-round win over the Sewanee men's lacrosse team on May 7. The Hornets scored 10 goals on 15 shots in the first period en route to taking a 18-3 lead by halftime. The three goals in the first half by Sewanee were by George Bukawyn, Michael Morris and Matthew Stiefel.

Out of the locker room, Lynchburg continued to roll with seven more goals. The Tigers did add one final score to open the fourth period, as Morris netted the final goal of his storied career. Overall, the two-time conference Offensive Player of the Year finished his career with two goals and two assists.

The biggest reason behind the score was Lynchburg's ability to hold possession. The Hornets won 21 face-offs, which helped lead to 52 shots. After winning its second conference regular season championship, the Tigers finished their season with a 12-5 overall record and their second straight trip to the NCAA tournament.

Women's Tennis Ends Season Against W&L

The 19th-ranked Washington and Lee University Generals advanced to the third round of the 2014 NCAA Division III Women's Tennis Championships with a 5-0 win over the 20th-ranked Sewanee women's tennis on May 10. Sewanee closed out its season with an overall record of 21-4.

Washington and Lee's third doubles pairing of Brooke Donnelly and Claire Cahill struck the opening blow with an 8-1 win over Sewanee's Kate Johnston and Elske Parker.

Meghan Buell and Chelsea Mixson followed with an 8-0 win over Annie Veron and Mary Taylor Tepper at second doubles. Sonja Meighan and Patricia Kirkland rounded out the sweep with an 8-1 victory at first doubles over Bronte Goodhue and Lindsey Liles.

Washington and Lee's Mary Elizabeth Shutley earned a flawless 6-0, 6-0 win at sixth singles over Sewanee's Parker to put the Generals a match away from clinching.

At the fourth singles match, Donnelly would complete the victory for Washington and Lee with a 6-2, 6-0 win over the Tigers' Tepper. Four singles matches were unfinished at the time of decision, with Meighan leading at first singles 6-2, 2-3 over Goodhue; Liles up a set over Buell at second singles, 6-3, 3-4; Kirkland leading 6-3, 3-2 at third singles over Veron; and Mixson holding a 7-5, 1-0 advantage over Johnston.

Women's Lacrosse Members Earn All-Region Honors

Four Sewanee women's lacrosse student-athletes were recognized with 2014 Intercollegiate Women's Lacrosse Coaches Association All-Region honors. Alexis Crittenden and Sally Anne Greenwood earned All-West Region first-team honors, while Katie Riddle and Dori Wilson earned second-team accolades.

Greenwood finished the year as one of the most versatile players in the region. After winning the Southern Athletic Association Offensive Player of the Year award, the junior midfielder finished with 71 points, 47 goals, 24 assists, 78 shots, a 60.3 shooting percentage, 49 ground balls and 82 draw controls. Additionally, Greenwood had 16 multiple-point matches and finished with at least three draw controls 15 times.

Riddle also had career highs in every statistical category. The second-year attacker finished with 32 assists, 75 points, 43 goals and 80 shots.

Additionally, Riddle had a career-high seven goals and three assists against Birmingham-Southern.

Because of her position as the Tigers' best match-up defender, Crittenden had 47 ground balls and 18 caused turnovers. Her ability to completely isolate the opponents' top offensive player made Crittenden a standout.

Wilson finished with 25 caused turnovers, 47 ground balls and 33 draw controls.

Escobar and Morris Named Senior Athlete of the Year Winners

Senior women's swimming student-athlete Astrid Escobar and senior men's lacrosse student-athlete Michael Morris were named the 2013-14 Sewanee Senior Athletes of the Year.

Escobar wrapped up her outstanding career as the most dominant breaststroker in the conference. In three seasons, the Panama City Beach, Fla., native never lost an in-conference race in the 100-yard or 200-yard breaststroke events.

Additionally, Escobar leaves Sewanee as the school and Southern Athletic Association (SAA) record holder in both events. On the national stage, Escobar qualified for three straight NCAA Division III Swimming Championships, where she earned All-American honors in 2012 (100) and 2013 (100 and 200).

Outside the pool, the Sewanee captain held a 2.87 GPA in biochemistry. As part of her environmental physiology requirements, she also did research with collaborators from Miami University of Ohio.

In the community, Escobar volunteered at the Blue Monarch, helped prepare and delivered meals to missionaries serving in Florida, and collected children's books and toys for the El Paso Rescue Mission.

Morris made his mark at Sewanee as the best-ever offensive player in program history.

After setting career school records in shots, points, goals, and assists, Morris led Sewanee to its second straight

Michael Morris

NCAA Tournament.

Along with being named the SAA Men's Lacrosse Offensive Player of the Year in 2013 and 2014, Morris helped Sewanee win back-to-back SAA Regular Season titles the past two years.

This past season, Morris earned a record four SAA Player of the Week awards and ranked second in the league in assists, eighth in goals and fifth in shots. Additionally, Morris ranked in the league's top 15 in man-up goals, ground balls, and shots on goal. Finally, in the 2013 SAA Championship match, Morris scored the game-winning goal in double overtime.

Off the field, Morris served the community in a number of ways including as a high-ranking assistant with the Sewanee Volunteer Fire Department.

Shackelford Honored as Coach of the Year

Sewanee women's tennis head coach Conchie Shackelford and student-athlete Bronte Goodhue earned Intercollegiate Tennis Association Atlantic South Region awards.

After leading Sewanee to another national ranking and its second straight N C A A tournament berth, Shackelford, the two-time conference Coach of the Year, was named the Atlantic South Wilson/Intercollegiate Tennis Association Coach of the Year.

Goodhue, who will be competing in the NCAA singles and doubles championships next week, was named the Arthur Ashe Leadership and Sportsmanship winner and also was the Atlantic South Player to Watch.

The Tigers finished the season with a 21-4 record and earned an NCAA tournament victory over Hanover.

Sewanee has now won an NCAA tournament contest for the second straight season and is the reigning back-to-back conference regular season and tournament champions.

Sewanee finished the season ranked fifth in the Atlantic South.

OUTSIDEIN

by Patrick Dean

It's lunchtime on a weekday, and my schedule is such that there's just enough time for getting outside. The dog's tired, so I can head out solo on my bike if I want to...

I hesitate.

Am I sure I want to go? The sandwich stuff is already out on the table. My inbox is full, and my to-do list is fuller. I'll get hot and sweaty. And what if that approaching rainstorm hits while I'm out?

Next thing I know, though, I'm heading upstairs for my cycling stuff. Five minutes later I'm on my mountain bike for a basic out-and-back. Ten miles, 45 minutes. The route is mainly gravel road; I know every pothole, every low-hanging branch, every long uphill. This is not about testing my riding skills, but about breathing, about moving.

Now that I'm out here, I look back at the mental process preceding my ride and wonder why I even had to debate whether or not to do it. What was that about? Have I ever regretted a decision to go rather than not to go?

After all, what if I broke my leg tomorrow and couldn't ride for six months? What if some other, more insidious disease made it impossible for me to ride ever again?

What if someone close to me went to the hospital and I spent the next significant amount of time sleeping in emergency-room chairs?

(As it happened, later in this very ride I watched a lady walk toward a building on University Avenue, using a cane for assistance. What if, far sooner than I hoped or planned, that became my situation?)

Meanwhile, on my bike, on the dusty gravel, those pollen bombs that seem to be making all of Sewanee wheeze are making it hard for me to see. The nasty particles hang in midair, somehow surf the slipstream around my glasses, and embed themselves in my eyes.

Night-black butterflies rise calmly out of the dust, showing patches of iridescent blue at certain angles. I pass a friend and his dog; the dog lopes along with me for a few moments before returning to his owner. A fun little shortcut beckons me: I pedal faster, swerve around a couple of logs, hop over a couple more, and return back onto the gravel.

The first advance drops of the impending predicted storm plop on my helmet just as I return to asphalt. Back at the house, it's time for a sandwich, shower and work. I take my laptop out on the porch as the storm front finally arrives. Rain pours off the eaves and rushes through the gutters ... and more importantly, scrubs at least some of that pollen from the air.

My day will have been almost immeasurably richer for my having chosen to ride. A mere three-fourths of an hour. Nothing epic, or extreme, or rad, or even gnarly. But oh so satisfying.

Why was there even a question?

NATURENOTES

By Jean Yeatman

Sedges Have Edges

"When walking around Lake Eva this week," reported Jean Yeatman, "I discovered five different Sedges growing along the edge of the water. This is a grass-like plant that many people mistake for a grass, but it has different types of flowers, and the stem is triangular in shape. This is where the phrase 'Sedges have edges' comes from. If you take the stem and twirl it between two fingers, you can feel the edges. I also have several Sedges growing in the edge of my flower beds.

"This week, she continued, "the Carolina Wrens nesting on my porch got off of their second brood of babies. The adults started giving a special one-note call over and over, until the young began to fly out of the nest box. One of the babies flew to a railing, and I had a very good time watching it look all around for a while. Then it took off with a very strong flight.

"The young have a shorter tail than the adults," she concluded, "so when they are around the yard feeding, they are easy to spot."

Pets of the Week

Meet Jared and Tippy

The Franklin County Humane Society's Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption.

Jared is a beautiful cat with a luxurious coat. He enjoys lounging on soft things, being petted, and every now and then, getting feisty playing. Jared is negative for FeLV and FIV, house-trained, up-to-date on shots and neutered.

Tippy is a sweet Dachshund/Jack Russell mix who wants all the love you can spare! She would enjoy a quiet home where she could stay outside in nice weather and inside when it's too hot or cold. Tippy is up-to-date on shots and spayed.

Every Friday is Black Friday at Animal Harbor. On Fridays, adoption fees will be reduced 50 percent for black or mostly black pets more than 4 months old who have been at Animal Harbor for more than a month. Pets adopted from Animal Harbor qualify for a free post-adoption wellness exam by local veterinarians.

Call Animal Harbor at 962-4472 for information and check out the other pets at <www.animalharbor.com>. Please help the Humane Society continue to save abandoned pets by sending donations to the Franklin County Humane Society, P. O. Box 187, Winchester, TN 37398.

"Hike 'Em All" Continues

Meet at the Grundy Forest picnic shelter at 9 a.m., Saturday, May 24, for a hike of the Raven Point Loop, a challenging 10.4 mile loop with a 550-foot elevation change. Bring water, snacks, lunch, hiking poles and a flashlight or head lamp. Wear sturdy hiking boots.

On this beautiful trek, hikers will see massive hemlocks, cascading Fiery Gizzard Creek, wildflowers, Blue Hole, Black Canyon and Sycamore Falls. They will visit Raven Point, a wonderful bluff with a great view looking over the Gorge of Gizzard Cove. This hike is difficult because the trail is rocky with exposed roots and there are several boulder fields to hike through. Tennessee Naturalists Marietta Potet and Naullain Kendrick will lead the hike.

In February the Friends of South Cumberland initiated the "Hike All 14 in 2014" Challenge to introduce people to each of the 14 hikes listed in Mary Priestley's guide to hiking in the South Cumberland State Park, "Hike Em All." In this book Priestley lists 14 hikes that cover all 10 parks that comprise the SCSP in 120 miles of hiking. "If you hike all 14, you will have covered a lot of trail and seen some of the most spectacular scenery to be found," said Priestley.

SAS COMMENCEMENT

Gaudeamus igitur
Juvenesdum dumus
Post iucundam iuventutem
Post molestam senecuem
Nos habebit humus

Let us rejoice, therefore,
While we are young.
After a pleasant youth
After a troubling old age
The earth will have us.

While we're young, let us rejoice,
Singing out in gleeful tones;
After youth's delightful frolic
And old age (so melancholic),
Earth will cover our bones...

Where are they who, before us
Were in the world?
Go to the heavens
Cross over into hell
If you wish to see them.

Where are those who trod this globe
In the years before us?
They in hellish fires below
Or in Heaven's kindly glow,
Swell th' eternal chorus...

Long live the academy!
Long live the professors!
Long live each student;
Long live the whole fraternity;
Forever may they flourish!

Long live all girls,
Easy [and] beautiful
Long live [mature] women too,
Tender, lovable,
Good, [and] hard-working
Long live all the maidens fair,

Easy-going, pretty;
Long live all good ladies who
Are tender and so friendly to
Students in this city...

Long live the state as well
And he who rules it!
Long live our city
[And] the charity of benefactors
Which protects us here!

Long live our Republic and
The gentlefolk who lead us;
May the ones who hold the purse
Be always ready to disburse
Funds required to feed us...

Let sadness perish!
Let haters perish!
Let the devil perish!
And also the opponents of the fraternities
And their mockers, too!

Down with sadness, down with gloom,
Down with all who hate us;
Down with those who criticize
Look with envy in their eyes...

Long live our society,
Scholars wise and learned;
May truth and sincerity
Nourish our fraternity
And our land's prosperity...

May our Alma Mater thrive,
A font of education;
Friends and colleagues, where'er
they are,
Whether near or from afar,
Heed her invitation.
