John Gass Bratton

Bratton to Lead the 2018 Fourth of July Parade

Sewanee's Fourth of July Parade Committee is proud to announce that John Gass Bratton is the Grand ment: Marshal for 2018. Mr. Bratton's roots in this community range far and wide from reading, writing and arithmetic at the Bairnwick School, to the Sewanee Military Academy (class of 1947), to economics major at the University (class of 1952), to alumni director for seven years, to the oldest surviving charter member of the Monteagle-Sewanee Rotary Club, to the proud distinction of having never missed a concert of the Sewanee Summer Music Festival since it began more than 60 years ago.

Bratton was born in Texas but moved to Memphis as a young child. At age 8, his father died suddenly and the family moved to Sewanee where his two uncles promptly started building a home on South Carolina Avenue for their recently widowed sister and her children. Bratton remembers watching his uncle Henry Gass, a professor at the University and acting Vice Chancellor from 1948-49, and his uncle John Gass, a priest who would eventually become rector of the Church of the Incarnation where the Delano-Roosevelts worshipped, build the house in 1937, which has been inhabited by the Brattons ever since. After graduating from the college, Bratton moved to Charleston and worked on the docks as a stevedore, among other things, until 1969 when he returned to the Mountain to become alumni director.

In the mid-sixties his mother had started taking in student boarders in their home on South Carolina Avenue—a practice continued by Mr. employees, SUD manager Ben Bea-Bratton and refined into ritual over the next 50 years. Bratton guesses up to 150 students have lived in the upstairs apartment and "The Cave" down below. There were often four students at a time living in the house and the Sunday dinners were legendary. Students were expected to bring a date, a friend, a cousin for a real home-cooked meal around a set table. Bratton cooked all day for this command performance and privilege; no matter what, students were loath to miss a Sunday at the Bratton table. Many have remained

SUD to Pay Employee Retirement Plan Fee; Earns 97 Percent Sanitary Survey Score

by Leslie Lytle Messenger Staff Writer

At the May 22 meeting, the Board of Commissioners of the Sewanee Utility District (SUD) voted to allocate nearly $9,000 in fees associated with changing retirement plan providers to SUD rather than burdening employees with the fee.

The decision will impact nine vers said. The fee assessed on each account varies depending on the amount of money in the employee's retirement fund.

"Since the board initiated the retirement plan change, it seems like we should pay for the damage," said Board President Charlie Smith.

The board proposed the retirement-plan-provider change to employees last November, citing the 42 percent decrease in administrative fees. Employees favored the change. The board was unaware the current provider would charge a fee to transfer the assets to the new provider.

Beavers said funds to pay the change-over fee were available since SUD currently had one less employee than budgeted for in 2018 and the budget also included unspent funds in the commissioner Planning and Governance category. The Planning and Governance funds would have paid a portion of health insurance premiums for commissioners who used SUD health insurance. No commissioners plan to use the SUD health care plan.

"For younger employees, a deduction for the change-over fee could have a significant long-term effect on growth by pulling money off the top now," Smith stressed in support of SUD paying the fee.

Turning to the recent state Sanitary Survey, Beavers said SUD lost 15 points out of 599, for a score of 97 percent.

'The most important part of the survey is the water plant and distribution system," Beavers said. SUD received a perfect score in that area.

School Board Approves Budget with Large Shortfall

by Leslie Lytle Messenger Staff Writer

At the May 24 special called meeting, the Franklin County School Board approved a $47.2 million dollar budget that will require drawing $2.6 million from the reserve fund balance to meet the revenue shortfall. On the expense side, the budget reflects a 2 percent raise for all school employees ($592,724), a $175,818 increase in health insurance costs, $100,000 for the Pre-K program due to loss of state funding, and a 1.5 percent raise for contract bus drivers ($23,341).

On the revenue side, the budget includes a request for an addition of $893,883 from the county to meet these expenses.

"If you take out the salary increases and the increase in health insurance costs, the budget only increases 1.83 percent over last year," said school board member Lance Williams. "That is not a lot on a budget this size."

In the discussion prior to the vote, board member Adam Tucker said he would vote for the budget, but objected to the low wage paid to teachers. Tucker computed the average hourly wage for teachers at $25 per hour. "At the Nissan plant the starting wage for line workers is $23-$25 per hour."

County Commissioner Dave Van Buskirk said the board could increase teachers' salaries by drawing more from the fund balance.

"No we can't," said Tucker. "County Deputy Finance Director Cindy Latham recommend we don't drop the fund balance below $2.5 million."

The projected $2.6 million draw on fund balance will cut the amount held in reserve nearly in half.

Helen Stapleton, Renaissance Woman:

Efficiency, Frugality, Future

by Leslie Lytle Messenger Staff Writer

Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of interviews with some of the local candidates running for office. General election voting is Aug. 2.

In discussing her first term as Franklin County Commissioner, Helen Stapleton, candidate for District 5, Seat B said, "It's a very efficiently run county." The same might be said of Stapleton's Renaissance Woman grace in navigating a complex and multifaceted life.

Within the span of just a few hours she switches hats from Director of the University Language Lab to help her husband milk down a cow who just gave birth before ferrying her teenage son to play practice.

Born and raised in Alexandria, La., Stapleton came to Sewanee as an undergraduate student in 1986. She went on to earn a master's degree in Linguistics and ESL at Georgia State University, spent two years in Africa in the Peace Corp putting her ESL skills to use, and in 1994 returned to Sewanee to marry Archie Stapleton and raise three children.

"Being a stay at home mom was my best job," Stapleton said.

In the Philippines for several years when her husband received a grant for a pottery workshop, Stapleton again taught ESL. Back in Sewanee, she served three years as director of the Sewanee after school program before taking the language lab position with the University. She also became actively involved with the Franklin County Democratic party and currently serves

As the new Chair of the Friends of the Sewanee Summer Music Festival (SSMF), I would like to invite the members of the greater Sewanee Community to join in the excitement of the upcoming 2018 Festival which begins June 22 and runs for four weeks until July 23. Approximately 200 young musicians will converge on the mountain to learn and practice with an impressive array of faculty members that span the width of today's symphony orchestras. Throughout the four week festival, ticket holders will be able to enjoy Sunday symphony concerts, chamber music ensemble events and children's programs.

To purchase tickets (either seasonal or individual) please visit: http://SSMF. Sewanee.edu/tickets>. We hope to see the entire community at various venues on the plateau as well as home base, Guerry Hall.

WHERE DO WE START?

To the Editor:

I felt no relief after reading that White House spokeswoman Sarah Huckabee Sanders had said that the commission the president convened after the Parkland, Florida, shooting in February "has been activated today to start that conversation up again."

She declined to say whether Trump will revisit some gun control measures after the 22nd school shooting of this year, but added, "Certainly conversation's ongoing about the best ways to protect kids across the country."

Question: If the committee needed to be re-activated, then how was any conversation going on?

It is ludicrous that with such carnage that someone hasn't connected the dots. The one common denominator to all of the senseless and horrific loss of life and loss of America's children loss of safety is that in each school mass killing guns were involved. Any search must begin at this point.

Maybe the citizens of the United States don't have the self-control and intelligence that our forefathers had some 230 years ago and it's time to consider what the Second Amendment's rights should or should not embrace.

The time for NRA sanctioned conversations has past. It is time for some action. Where do we start?

Trinity Sunday and Its Followup

Sunday, there was an ordination, a celebration of the Feast of the Holy Trinity and a solemn welcoming of yet another Memorial Day. Rather than being old news, the Sunday points toward the future and how it calls us to reflect on both mystery and revelation.

On this Sunday, June 3, the calendar that Christ Church keeps has the parable of the rich man and Lazarus as its Gospel Reading. This will be the topic of the sermon. For most liturgical churches, the color of the season is green. It seems to suit the summer best, as we are to grow more and more into a mature faith.

Lunch is served at around noon, after the morning service. Bishop William Millsaps has returned from recent travels and will be the preacher for the day. However, since Christ Church looks forward to summer visitors, there is sometimes a "surprise preacher." We wish everyone blessings, as summer is almost here.

Community Council Appoints Election Officer;

Discusses Streetside Dead Brush

by Leslie Lytle Messenger Staff Writer

At the May 21 meeting, the Sewanee Community Council appointed Charles Whitmer to serve as election officer for the upcoming council member election. Each of the four districts has two representatives, with one seat coming open in each district as well as two at-large seats.

Potential candidates should submit a petition signed by 10 registered voters in their district. For at-large candidates, 10 signatures from any Sewanee registered voter suffices. Contact Whitmer for details < charles. whitmer@gmail.com>.

Scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 6, the election coincides with the voting times and location of the General Election held at Sewanee Elementary

It's not yet known whether the current incumbents will seek reelection: Flournoy Rogers, District 1; Pam Byerly, District 2; Charles Whitmer, District 3; Richard Barrali, District 4; and at-large representatives Annie Armour and Kate Reed.

"We need more young people on the council," Byerly said. Byerly acknowledged the complication family demands posed for young residents, but she stressed the importance of their voice in council decisions, especially since oversight of the ball fields is under the council's umbrella

Whitmer suggested the council consider offering childcare during council meetings. "I see the council as a mechanism to improve things is what got me involved," Whitmer said.

Council representative Cindy Potter called attention to the dead brush on Kentucky Avenue, Mikell Lane, and South Carolina Avenue. She asked if Duck River Electric could cut and remove the brush rather than spraying with herbicide and leaving the dead residue in place.

"In the past you could request Duck River to cut rather than spray," Potter said.

Green will check with Duck River on the options.

"It might help if community members phoned Duck River and asked them to cut rather than spray," Byerly said.

Irwin pointed out the grass hadn't been mowed on a lot on Hwy. 41A Frank Gladu, Special Assistant to the Green will contact Gladu about the away from their ancestral lands. unmown lot.

said the May 5 clean up on feeder roads entering Sewanee was a "huge success and will become an annual event." White thanked Mary Priestley for coordinating the effort, the Sewanee Police Department for providing safety vests and cones to divert traffic, and Facilities Management for collecting the trash bags filled by volunteers. collected," White said.

The council does not meet in the is Aug. 27.

The fund balance is a reserve that is maintained in case of unexpected expenses or lack of revenue. An equally large draw next year would nearly deplete the fund balance and put the school system in violation of state law. By state law, the school board must keep 3 percent of its operating budget as a reserve.

"Those of us on the board for seven or eight years have seen this coming," said school board member Chris Guess. "We are not in the money making business. We're in the education business."

At the last meeting, the school board requested adding a school psychologist and increasing certified substitute teachers pay to $80 to attract qualified substitutes. The budget expenses reflected these additions.

Addressing the board's concern about safety in light of recent school shootings, the budget includes $14,000 for implementing the Raptor visitor background check program at all schools and $6,000 for the Interquest Detection Canines program approved earlier in the meeting. The Interquest contract will provide for searches by dogs trained to detect drugs, alcohol, weapons and ammunition at the middle schools and high schools.

The board scrutinized the budget for possible cuts.

Van Buskirk said a recent county commissioner training recommended dividing school budget expenses by the total number of students and comparing the figure from year to year with a view to increases or decreases in enrollment. "Franklin County School enrollment decreased by six percent," Buskirk pointed out.

"The schools have become all things to all people," Williams said. "We now have nurses and social workers. It's a different world. These are things we may have needed but didn't have. If we had to cut six percent, it means cutting services to the detriment of some of the kids."

In other business, the board approved abolishing three certified and 22 non-certified positions. Most of the positions were eliminated due to "lack of students," said Assistant Superintendent Linda Foster. In the case of Pre-K educational assistants, the state had withdrawn funding.

The board also voted not to take Tennessee Ready test scores into account when calculating students' grades. Board Chair CleiJo Walker said by state law the test scores could count for up to 15 percent of a student's final grade.

The Bell Route

by John Beavers, Messenger Intern

Signs marking the Bell Route of the Trail of Tears National Historic Trail have gone up in Monteagle and Sewanee in recent weeks.

The Tennessee Trail of Tears Association (TNTOTA) worked for more than 20 years to get signs marking a section of the Bell Route on the Trail of Tears, as reported by the Sewanee Mountain Messenger on June 9, 2017.

According to the <tn.gov> website, feasibility of the addition of this lesser known trail to the Historic National Trail was previously directed by Congress to the National Park Service (NPS) National Scenic and Historic Trails in 2006. The Bell Route was designated part of the Trail of Tears National Historic Trail in 2007.

Floyd Ayers, a TNTOTA charter member, and David Moore of the Franklin County Historical Society, spearheaded the local effort for recognition of this Superintendant of Leases Sallie section of the trail, along with members of the TNTOTA.

The Bell Route began in Charleston, Tenn., at Fort Cass, an internment camp for native Cherokee, on Oct. 11, 1838, and reached Evansville, Ark. (then the border to Indian Territory, which is now Oklahoma) on Jan. 7, 1839. Nearly 700 Cherokee were taken along this route led by John A. Bell, a Cherokee leader and signee of the Treaty of New Echota. More than 20 died along this route.

Bell's group, joined by a military escort led by Lt. Edward Deas, under the Council representative Louise wider supervision of Gen. Winfield Scott, crossed from Battle Creek northwest of Jasper towards Memphis, through Winchester and Savannah. This route can be confirmed because of vouchers used to pay for supplies along the path recently purchased in conjunction of the Bell detachment. These vouchers, made by Lt. Edward Deas, helped the with the Sewanee Village project. the NPS to track the Bell detachment's route.

The Treaty of New Echota was signed on Dec. 29, 1835, promising land west Council representative Phil White of the Mississippi to the Cherokee. Although this treaty was not signed by John Ross, Principal Chief of the Cherokee National Conference at the time, it was ratified and passed by the U.S. Senate in March 1836.

> Signs signifying the trail on the Mountain can be found in Monteagle and Sewanee, along the the Mountain Goat Trail. "The plan is for signs to go as far as Templeton Library on St. Mary's Lane, where the trail then descends the Mountain," said Moore.

> "Three signs have been erected in Cowan. The Winchester signs will start on Williams Cove Road and end on the old David Crockett Highway."

"All signs in Franklin County are being supplied by the National Park Ser-"More than 25 bags of trash were vice. However, the park service has yet to order the signs for the state roads. All the county and city signs have already been received. Timing for the erection of these signs remains the discretion of the county and the cities, as will also be summer. as secretary.

She lauds the county's electronic voting mechanism for having a paper trail and no internet connection. As commissioner she sponsored legislation to keep that practice in place, and hopes in her second term to see the resolution through to a "yes" vote.

As a member of the IT Committee, Stapleton organized training to help seniors avoid cybersecurity attacks and is working to advance full transparency at county commission meetings. She'd like to see agenda background information projected on a screen. At present, only an abbreviated agenda is readily available to the public.

Helen Stapleton

Stapleton also serves on the School Committee. The need to build two new middle schools tops her priorities. "If we wait until the high school debt is paid off in 2022, we might not need a taxincrease, but there's urgency to begin building now due to the leaking roofs."

'We haven't had a property tax increase in a number of years," Stapleton said. "The county's tax rate is very low. There's no wheel tax. Maybe when the middle schools are paid off, the county can decrease the tax rate. We've done that before."

Stressing the importance of the middle school project, Stapleton said, "Even if you don't have children in school, you'll benefit. The young people at these schools will become your police officers and nurses."

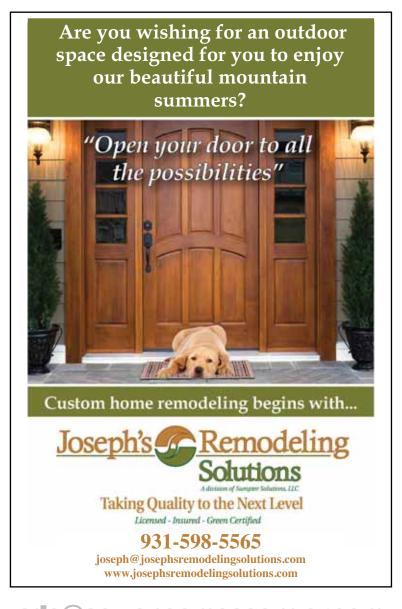

Other initiatives dear to Stapleton include bringing broadband internet access to underserved areas and supporting the continuation of the Rural Reentry Program to help those convicted of a crime readjust to life after release from jail.

Running a no-frills campaign, Stapleton said, "I don't believe in yard signs, and I'm going to reuse the cards I have left from my last campaign and change the voting date. I'm very frugal."

"I'm hoping people know me," she concedes. "I intersect with a lot of people." Stapleton also teaches yoga and sells fruit, vegetables, and honey produced on the family's small farm. "I try to maintain cordial relationships with everyone even if I disagree with them.

Asked what most qualified her to serve as commissioner, she said, "I'm good at seeing an issue from both sides."

If you will be throwing candy, please be sure to throw it as close to the curb as you can. We want to keep our little ones as safe as possible by keeping them from running out into the road. I know, not an easy task, but we can try. Also, if you have a horn or other type of loud noise, please turn it off when your entry reaches Texas Aveune. There are those who do not like to hear the sirens and they will be seated at or near the hospital. Due to insurance precautions, we will once again be asking that you sign a release form. Someone will be there the day of the parade to take care of this. And last but not least, if you will be riding a motorcycle or 4-wheeler, please wear your helmet and be very cautious in your driving. Remember, there are children all along the parade route. Your help in this will be greatly appreciated.

RNEIGHBOR

by Kevin Cummings Messenger Staff Writer

Sally Krebs is a woman with a penchant for craft beer and rescuing turtles, who once helped map all the rivers, lakes and streams in the Badger

Her two dogs, Simon and Iggy, relax on the screened-in porch during one of our interviews, where it's evident she's a person whose feelings are both close to the surface and as deep as Lake Superior.

"This is how I live: being loving, forgiving and authentic; keeping a sense of humor and allowing time for joy and silliness into my days; and I always remember that people are in progress, including myself," she says.

Sally, 49, grew up in Illinois, Ontario and Georgia, the youngest of four children. Her mom was a homemaker and her dad a sales executive.

She earned her degree in geography from The University of Georgia in 1992 and spent a year in grad school for conservation biology. Eventually, Sally worked for the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources as a Geographic Information Systems specialist. As a team member and project leader she helped map all the surface water in Wisconsin at 1:24,000 scale to allow the state to better manage its natural

"It was a massive undertaking and I'm proud of my role in that endeavor," she says.

Now a self-employed licensed massage therapist, specializing in both therapeutic and relaxation massage, Sally says the occupation suits her. Her services include treating problems through methods like Deep Tissue and Muscle Energy Technique, as well as helping people relax.

"I customize the sessions for people," she says. "I've been an LMT for four years and love helping people feel better so they can be better to themselves and the world around them."

Sally and her young family first moved to Sewanee in 2004, where she delved into various jobs, including working at Pearl's restaurant, maintaining garden beds and running her own painting business for three years.

Initially, life in Sewanee was challenging, but formative, she says, especially living in a ramshackle 19thcentury railroad house.

Sally Krebs

For the first three winters at the old house, there was little heat or insulation, so Sally split her own wood and slept by the stove to keep the fire going.

"I was raised in comfort, and so being poor and cold and scared was new for me," she says. "It definitely humbled me and gave me an appreciation for basic needs that I never had before. I am a more compassionate person for it."

Today her home is an extension of her personality, it's eclectic, incorporating old wood and there's mismatched and swinging doors. The 1968 stereo blares Phish as a German Black Forest cuckoo clock keeps time, the house extending easily into the garden outside stocked with native plants.

"When I work on my house, I try to bring the outside in," she says. "I want to live beautifully. I want my house to feel like my favorite t-shirt and blue

She and her partner, Matt Petrilla, a local physician, love to work on projects together, which currently includes a fixer-upper in St Elmo. Projects make her happy, but so does being a mom, playing board games, hiking with her dogs and coffee with friends.

Sally has two children, Casey, 21, a student at Edgewood College in Wisconsin, and Sean, 14, an upcoming sophomore at St. Andrew's-Sewanee

During her own childhood, Sally was usually surrounded by friends but often felt like a misfit.

"Since I've had a memory I've found humans to be pretty confusing," she says. "I connected mostly to nature and animals."

She spent some of her early adulthood rebelling against standards and expectations.

"I sadly mistook rebellion for authenticity, and felt constricted in a facade that I saw was inevitable to function in our civilization," she says. "This struggle led to unhealthy living for some time until I confronted it head on. I made a series of drastic life changes and, other than my greatest treasure of motherhood, I am most proud of who I have become through hard work and humility."

especially the current hypervigilance, where many people with good intentions constantly look for wrongdoing,

"I try to be optimistic about the present condition of our world, but I regularly carry sadness for what's happening with our natural environment, culture and knowledge," she says. "So, I do what I can to make this world a better place, even if it's just a little bit."

Sally's serious candor flows like the whitewater of Wisconsin's Peshtigo River, but she is also a woman who dives into the fun of life, at a baseball game, on a beach with a frisbee, or listening to 1940s jazz.

Music keeps her reflective and full, says the frequent listener of Yes, Billie Holiday and Phish.

"I love all kinds of music, but I really like something that's going to take me away from the mundane," Sally says.

As Phish finishes another meandering tune, we are wrapping up the interview. "Coconuts and chloroform, some whicker and some cork," they sing about a recipe. Sally is also a mixture of diverse ingredients and The Mountain is fortunate to have her.

Find all the area MLS listings on our updated website!

/ILLAGEREPORT

by Frank X. Gladu

This month the focus of my update will be on the Market Analysis Demand study. Preliminary findings from this study have been received. I would like to share this information to help identify what could be supported from a commercial retail perspective, as well as the sales and rentals of housing options.

The study began last summer when we hired Randall Gross from Development Economics. Randall's background includes dozens of projects (mostly in rural settings) in the identification of market demand in these areas to support development. For our study, Randall examined the existing conditions in Sewanee of businesses and housing. He also compared our information with the market in the region, with similar mountain top college communities around the country and conducted surveys of University alumni and employees. The initial results identify a sizable housing demand. Results also identify a challenge to support retail efforts both existing and future. Normally, housing demand is fueled by retail options that provide buyer or renter motivation. However, in our situation in Sewanee, the increase in retail offerings needs to be carefully orchestrated. The study identifies that retail may need to take a back seat to housing to provide an increase in the number of people needed to support the retail. At the same time, the study suggests that Sewanee needs to give consideration to creating itself as a visitor's destination to support retail. More people need to come here and spend time on the mountain to enjoy what the area has to offer. Of course, this presents some challenges regarding the infrastructure needed to support an increase in visitors, i.e., places to stay and basic services. However, it is clear that retail will not achieve the desired mix and volume that most people hope to have in the Sewanee Village without an increase in visitors.

Housing potential is estimated to be fairly substantial in the next 5 years with 50-100 rental units and as many as 100 single family detached units needed. The predominant style of living space is projected to be that of smaller units comprised of cottages, townhomes and condos. Retail potential could be twice what exists now provided there are more people living in and visiting the Village. Potential new businesses that were identified as desirable are: specialty grocery; apparel; hardware/garden; bookstore; and arts/cultural.

As Randall completes his final report, he will focus on assisting us with identifying conditions to support developer project efforts. He will also provide us a set of specific strategic recommendations to focus on to bring the vision of a vibrant Village to support University life.

Here is an update on the five priority projects where substantial completion is expected before the incoming class of 2022 graduates.

The road project design to narrow Hwy. 41A to two lanes between Kennerly Road and Kentucky Avenue still needs to be completed by the Tennessee Department of Transportation. Franklin County is assisting with finalizing the design with the hopes to wrap it up by the end of the summer. Then, construction can be scheduled.

A new food market in a three-story mixed-use building is planned for the corner of Hwy. 41A and Lake O'Donnell Road, across from Taylor's Mercantile. The ground floor will be occupied by the food market while the upper two floors are apartments. Arrangements with a developer interested in the project are in progress and an agreement may be achieved in a few months.

The Village Green project, located on the present site of the Sewanee Market, awaits the completion of the new food market before the current market can be removed. Design of this civic and gathering space may be underway soon due to a generous gift as part of the University's Stronger Truer capital campaign.

Providing additional housing for Sewanee has always been a major objective in the Village Plan. A variety of housing types are being pursued including apartments, townhomes, duplexes and single family homes. These living spaces are hoped to be built by developers who are relying on enough demand to justify their investment. These housing options will be in addition to the University's expected release of additional lots for faculty and staff to build a home on the domain.

The Campus Book and Supply store will find a new home in the Village located on University Avenue between the Sewanee Post Office and the Tower Community Bank. Design is completed and the project awaits the approval of the Board of Regents to proceed with construction. The new bookstore could open as early as next summer.

With all of this in mind, the next Village update will be at 10 a.m., Tuesday, June 5, at the Blue Chair Tavern. The topic for discussion will be: "What does an increase of visitors to Sewanee look like and how can we achieve it?"

See you there, Frank

The new movie adaptation is based on the 1962 book by Madeleine L'Engle, which won numerous awards including the Newberry Medal. Disney's visually stunning movie adaptation, directed by Ava DuVernay, offers a fresh take on the beloved story. Storm Reid ("Twelve Years a Slave") stars as Meg. The three space-tessering beings in the story are played by Oprah Winfrey, Reese Witherspoon and Mindy Kaling.

A Wrinkle in Time is the theme for Otey's third annual VB-Us, an intergenerational summer learning program that offers activities for all ages. The series runs Monday, June 18 through Thursday, June 21, beginning with supper at 5:15 p.m. Like the Friday movie screening, the entire program is offered at no cost. Western Juniper trunk in Redmond airport

Western Juniper

Flying into the Redmond airport on a visit to our son and family in Bend, Ore., we had a great view of the expanses of the high desert covered with Western Juniper. When we stepped out of the airport, we were hit with the strong smell of that tree. The high desert is at an elevation of around 3,000 feet and the substrate is volcanic rock and ash. Precipitation is 12-14 inches a year. These conditions favor the juniper, along with sagebrush, bluebunch wheatgrass and other bunch grasses.

Before the arrival of Euro-Americans, fire every 20-40 years kept the juniper from taking over. Decades of fire suppression, however, have resulted in the dominance of the juniper. The juniper alters the soil chemistry and creates shade, conditions that do not favor the bunch grasses. More critically, perhaps, it can transpire from 20 to 40 gallons of water a day. Ranches in the area have observed formerly dependable springs drying up. When the juniper is removed, the springs flow again.

The tree must be removed manually when it has reached maturity, as it is fire-resistant at that size. These juniper can live 200-500 years, with the oldest known tree aged 1,600 years. Large old trees are rare and valued, but measures are being taken to try to restore Western Juniper to its previous role in the landscape.

—reported by Yolande Gottfried

Debbe Lane from Gudger Road sends in this report about wild wildlife. "The week before this past one we enjoyed a visit from a red fox pair and their kit. When our dog started barking furiously this past Friday around 1 p.m., I ran to a window expecting to see the foxes nearby. Lying in the grass and facing me, not 50 yards from the window, was a mountain lion/cougar, about the size of my 75 pound dog. My husband came running to see it, was equally amazed, and then we yelled for the dog to come in. When we ventured out to see it closer up, it had returned to the 2,000 acre forest that abuts our farm. I sensed it might have designs on the number of cats we have, as it was looking in their direction."

BARDTOVERSE

by Phoebe Bates

June Light

Richard Wilbur, 1921 - 2017

Your voice, with clear location of June days, Called me outside the window. You were there, Light yet composed, as in the just soft stare Of uncontested summer all things raise Plainly their seeming into seamless air.

Then your love looked as simple and entire As that picked pear you tossed me, and your face As legible as pearskin's fleck and trace, Which promise always wine, by mottled fire More fatal fleshed than ever human grace.

And your gay gift—Oh when I saw it fall Into my hands, through all that naïve light, It seemed as blessed with truth and new delight As must have been the first great gift of all.
