The Sewanee Mountain

Vol. XXIX No. 22

Friday, June 14, 2013

The flags are in place for Flag Day and the 28th Annual Sewanee Fourth of July Celebration.

It Is An "Apple Pie Fourth of July"

This year's Sewanee Fourth of July will be an "Apple Pie Fourth of July \dots An All-American Fourth." Events begin with the street dance by the Hair Depot and the Sewanee Market at 8 p.m., Wednesday, July 3. The celebration continues with the flag raising in Abbo's Alley at 8 a.m. on Thursday, July 4, until the last of the fireworks and music dies away over Lake Cheston that night. This year's Fourth of July will be filled with sights and sounds as only Sewanee can do it.

Arts and crafts, food, music, the cat show (meow), the mutt show (ruff, ruff), face painting, the dunking booth, children's games, carillon recital, pie-eating contest, cake-decorating contest, airplane rides, Civil War re-enactors and so much more. And it would not be a Sewanee Fourth of July celebration without the best parade ever. Start thinking about that perfect spot for parade- and people-watching.

The full schedule, plus parking information and the shuttle route will be announced soon, as well as information about local businesses offering special deals, volunteer help and other assistance for planning the perfect day.

Want a Fourth of July like no other? Join your friends and neighbors for an "Apple Pie Fourth of July" in Sewanee!

See pages 8 and 9 for more information on Sewanee Fourth of July activities, including the Arts and Crafts Fair, the parade and the new pie-eating contest.

Carpools will gather at 9 a.m. at the Hair Depot parking lot on Highway 41A across from Taylor's Mercantile. Carpooling is recommended because some homes have limited parking.

The group will tour the gardens of David Landon, Janet Graham, Mesha Provo and Betty Barton Blythe. Lunch will follow at Flournoy Roger's home. Please RSVP for driving directions and addresses. There is no set charge for lunch, but donations are appreciated; these help fund the club's projects, including the Shakespeare Garden on campus and gardening at $the \, Bridge \, at \, Monteagle \, nursing \, home.$ For more information or to make reservations, contact Judy Magavero at (931) 924-3118 or email < jmagavero@ blomand.net>.

2013 Butterfuly Census

On Saturday, June 22, University biology professor David Haskell and local fantasy author David Coe will lead Sewanee's 17th Annual Census of Butterflies. The census will be sponsored by the North American Butterfly Association (NABA), and will be similar in both method and purpose to the Christmas bird counts organized by the National Audubon Society. Should it rain on June 22, the count will be held on Sunday, June 23.

All who are interested are welcome to participate in the count. There is a $3 per person administrative fee mandated by NABA. The count will begin at 9 a.m. at the Lake Cheston pavilion and will continue until late afternoon. Participants are invited to remain with the census organizers for as long as they wish. Those wishing to join the count later in the day can do so at the Memorial Cross at 1 p.m.

Participants in the census will count not only the number of different species seen, but also the number of individual butterflies. The final count will be sent to NABA so that the results can be tabulated with other censuses taking place throughout the continent in the weeks leading up to and following the Fourth of July holiday. Last year's count in Sewanee turned up 24 butterfly species and a record 414 individual butterflies. In past years, counters have seen as many as 34 species of butterfly.

Participants in Sewanee's count need only a sharp eye, a bit of patience, and a willingness to learn. No prior knowledge of butterflies is necessary. A pair of binoculars is recommended, although not required. It is suggested that participants wear long pants and sturdy shoes, and that they bring along insect repellent. Participants should also bring a snack and something to drink. Those who intend to continue counting through the afternoon should bring lunch.

For more information, contact Coe at 598-9775.

BONAROO CONCERN To the Editor:

As a fan of "Angel with an Attitude" and The Sewanee Mountain Messenger, I appreciated the dual coverage on Bonnaroo on page 5 of last week's issue (Friday, June 7, 2013).

However, despite the Angel's satirical take on what goes on at the festival (in addition to the music, of course) and the other story's more factual approach on the festival's considerable economic impact, neither one explicitly stated that at least 10 people have died at Bonnaroo since it began in 2002, and that last year, 1,500 people were treated for heat-related illnesses. As the Huffington Post has reported, for reasons that remain unclear, Bonnaroo has a higher-than-average rate of death and illness than comparable events elsewhere.

As I knew one of the fatalities—a promising young man of 29, he tragically died at the 2010 festival of a combination of dehydration and heat stroke—I am especially concerned that people be aware of the serious dangers and take adequate precau-

Lecture on Theological Writing and Preaching

As part of the Advanced Degrees Program at the School of Theology, Stanley Hauerwas will give two public lectures. His first lecture on Wednesday, June 19, is titled "How to Write a Theological Sentence," and his second lecture on Thursday, June 20, is titled, "How to Preach a Theological Sermon." Both lectures begin at 7 p.m. at the Chapel of the Apostles. The lectures are free and open to the public.

Hauerwas has sought to recover the significance of the virtues for understanding the nature of the Christian life. This search has led him to emphasize the importance of the church, as well as narrative for understanding Christian existence. His work cuts across disciplinary lines, as he is in conversation with systematic theology, philosophical theology and ethics, political theory, as well as the philosophy of social science and medical ethics.

He was named "America's Best Theologian" by Time magazine in 2001. Hauerwas, who holds a joint appointment in Duke Law School, delivered the prestigious Gifford Lectureship at the University of St. Andrews, Scotland, in 2001.

His book "A Community of Character: Toward a Constructive Christian Social Ethic," was selected as one of the 100 most important books on religion of the 20th century. Hauerwas recently authored "Matthew: Brazos Theological Commentary on the Bible," (Grand Rapids: Brazos Press, 2006) and "The State of the University: Academic Knowledges and the Knowledge of God," (Oxford: Blackwell Publishing, 2007).

"Gulf Spit Up"

Found objects from Pine Beach, Alabama: Crab lines, corroded aluminum drink cans, nylon fishing lines, roots, driftwood, plastic strap and buckle, plastic window screen, lead, fishing lure, blue jersey cloth, glass wool insulation, sand;

Round corroded fishing net styrofoam float with small barnacles and large rose-hued barnacles, plastic tube, plastic line;

Plastic spectacle frames.

I found the tangle at Pine Beach, near Gulf Shores, in 2007. Two feet from the tangle were the spectacle frames. I found the float on the same beach two years later. All the manmade products of products in the assemblage left a slew of noxious chemicals in the Gulf, one of the planet's most polluted waters.

Then "Gulf Spit Up" won a $25 gift certificate in a contest for "Creative Use of Materials." All I did was pick up the stuff up.

SEWANEE UNION THEATRE Friday–Monday, June 14–June 17, 7:30 p.m. Safe Haven

Rated PG-13 • 115 minutes

There was a time when every time I turned around there was a Nicholas Sparks' book to read in one sitting, and then I would watch the accompanying movie the next day. It got to the point where I was reading and watching the same thing over and over again, with only the names and coastal locales changing. And so far, none of them have lived up to the stunning movie, "The Notebook." "Safe Haven" is a very different and satisfying movie from most of the other Sparks movie adapations.

"Safe Haven" is set in a small coastal town, giving a beautiful backdrop to two people finding each other. The twist in this movie is that Julianne Hough (Dancing with the Stars), as Katie, is running away from an abusive relationship, but eventually finds shelter, support and love from Josh Duhamel (Transformers), who portrays the widower Alex. Katie experiences some terrifying ordeals, but finds what real love is. Spoiler alert: there is a ghost in this movie! Rated PG-13 for thematic material involving threatening behavior, and for some violence and sexuality.

This movie is based on the book "One Shot" by Lee Child, but all similarities with the main character end there. Cruise is in his element as an action movie hero, doing everything he can to figure out the conspiracy. Rated PG-13 for violence, language and some drug material.—KGB

by Patrick Dean

"I miss the beach," I said.

"Well," my wife responded, "what do you miss about it?"

We were just a few days back from the South Carolina coast. In the company of friends, we spent a week walking along the surf line and reading in the shade within sight and sound of the waves. We rode our bikes to the beach and cruised winding bike paths through tall pines and along the busy road of a port town.

Her question gave me pause. I had just returned to my green, rocky, mossy home place at the height of its late-spring verdancy, glad to get back on the trails with Jackson, my dog. Hanging out at Julia's or on my porch, going for early-morning bike rides, even mowing the lawn: it's the most wonderful time to do these things in Sewanee. What in fact did I

It's really all about time and intentionality.

At the beach, we give ourselves time with nature. In the morning we say, "I'm going to the beach." There's no action involved; it's not necessarily "I'm going walking on the beach," or "I'm going to run on the beach," though those things happen.

Back at our Mountain home, though, we deny ourselves this most basic pleasure; being in nature typically has to involve walking the dog, getting in a bike ride, or jogging off last night's dinner. Here on the Mountain, how often do we say simply, "I'm going to the woods?"

Closely related to this is the question of intention, and what society and culture tell us are the proper ways to spend our time once we arrive at the beach, as opposed to other destinations outside.

It is customary and acceptable just to sit and look at the ocean, all day if we choose. Why isn't that true in other settings? I know of several places a few minutes from my house where the water flowing over mossy boulders is just as mesmerizing, just as soulful as the beach – if not quite as dramatic. Yet we don't exactly take folding chairs out and set up for the day there.

Think of someone who drives four hours to the beach on Friday, spends not quite two days watching waves, and drives four hours home on Sunday. That person could have spent two hours each weekend day contemplating the nearest lake, forest or range of hills, and come out ahead. We seem to think only of the beach in that particular way, though, a way to give ourselves time with nature.

Perhaps, then, it's not the beach that I miss as much as the mindset that we adopt once we see the ocean. To experience the Mountain in that same $\label{eq:condition}$ mindset—to say, "I'm going to the woods"; to sit and watch spring-created streams creating small, noisy rapids; hell, maybe even to take a folding chair and a book to the overlook at Morgan's Steep—just might be the way.

played both as an offensive and defensive end for the Tigers from 1960 to 1963. As a captain on the 1963 team, Davis led Sewanee to a perfect 8-0 record. That season, the Tigers outscored their opponents 275-45 and had shutout victories over Millsaps, Hampden-Sydney, Randolph-Macon and Southwestern (Rhodes). In 1963, Davis was selected as an all-conference player. A leader on and off the field, Davis would often play the entire game. Professionally, Davis became a renowned surgeon and medical educator at the Cabrini Medical Center. In 1994, the Robert P. Davis Memorial Scholarship was established at the University of the South in his honor.

Bernie Moore—After serving on the front lines in France during World War I, Moore returned to the United States hoping to become a coach. After coaching at La Grange High School in La Grange, Ga., Moore accepted his first coaching position at Sewanee in 1924. At Sewanee, Moore served as the head track and field coach, while assisting in football. Under his leadership, the Tigers won the 1924 S.I.A.A. and Southern Conference Championships. After his time on the Mountain, Moore rebuilt Mercer University's program from 1925 to 1927. Two years later, Moore moved to LSU, where his career continued to grow.

Moore coached for 18 seasons at LSU. During his tenure, Moore led the LSU Tigers to an unprecedented 14 SEC titles, five world records, won eight NCAA titles and collected 29 All-America honors. In 1948, Moore became the commissioner of the Southeastern Conference and would hold that office for 18 years. Moore has been inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame, the Louisiana Sports Hall of Fame, the Helms Hall of Fame and the Tennessee Sports Hall of Fame. Moore also served as the first president of the Tennessee Sports Hall of Fame and was an assistant coach on the 1932 Olympic team. After retiring, Moore resided at his home in Winchester, Tenn.

Scott Polancich, C'01—Polancich left Sewanee as one of the men's soccer program's most decorated and successful players. A 2000 All-American and SCAC Player of the Year, Polancich was a four-time All-SCAC selection and three-time All-South Region honoree. Polancich is currently fourth on the program's all-time career goal list (50 goals) and third on Sewanee's

The Sewanee Department of Athall-time assist (31) list. Additionally, Polancich has the seventh, 19th, and 23rd best single-season points total in school history.

Cullen Watson, C'02—A 2002 All-Region selection and three-time The inductees will be honored dur- First-Team All-SCAC honoree, Watson left Sewanee as one of the baseball program's most productive players. In 2000, Watson led the team in runs scored. A year later, Watson finished with a team-leading .415 batting average and a team-high 49 hits. Then during his senior season, Watson led the Tigers and SCAC in RBI (43) and SCAC categories. Since 2000, Watson holds the single-season record for runs

by Avery and Sadie Shackelford

Throughout June, any pedestrian, mountain biker or Prius passenger who chances past the Bruton Guerry tennis courts can hear someone shout: "Pick 'em up and rotate!" over the pavilion loudspeaker. In its simplest form, John Shackelford's signature phrase is a familiar signal to all campers and counselors at Tiger Tennis Camp to stop the drill they're doing and move to the adjacent court to begin a new drill. But as John's daughters, in true John Shackelford fashion, we must dissect this phrase and carry it beyond its surface meaning. "Pick'em up and rotate" not only is a cue to start yet another round of pounding cross-court forehands under the noonday sun, but a chance to try something new: meet a new counselor, talk to a different camper, learn a fun game or a better way to create topspin, or understand the beauty of Jason Box's dance moves to '90s music. Although camp on this mountain has always been part of our lives, new journeys have taken us beyond the domain. We too, have literally picked it up and rotated.

Sadie: Î recently returned from my first year of college at Middlebury, about 1,000 miles away from home. I was on the tennis team there, a small piece of familiarity, but mostly the culture, people, and of course, 30-degree April afternoons were completely different. Having been born and raised in Sewanee, it was difficult transitioning into a world of East coast preppies and Vermont hippies and living in a town built around dairy farms and apple orchards. It took me nearly the entire first semester to get used to the weird faces I got after saying "Yes ma'am" and "y'all." Despite the differences, Middlebury began to grow on me. Biking to the grocery store, throwing on four layers before leaving my room, and adjusting to the biting Yankee sarcasm of my teammates and teachers became natural. I'm sure my northern friends would, too, first find it hard to adjust to Sewanee culture, questioning our own crazy traditions, especially within Tiger Tennis camp. But I'm sure, like me, accepting and then loving Vermont, they would adjust. And now that I'm back here, coaching at a camp that has been a part of my life for nearly 19 years, I know that no matter how far I may stray, I can come back, hear Box over the intercom, see campers biking to McClurg, watch my father stroll down the stadium steps to start the day, and know that I am home.

Avery: Tiger Tennis Camp has been part of my life for as long as I can remember, but as a rising college senior I knew that I needed a full-time internship, and so I ditched my dorm room at Benedict for a dorm room at Vanderbilt, and started a job at the Tennessean. Last week, I happened to have two days off during the middle of the week, and I knew immediately what I wanted to do. I returned to camp Tuesday morning to find that very little had changed. My dad was in his usual Zen mode, leading a group of sleepy campers through some elementary yoga. As usual, I pretended to do the moves instead of actually doing them, having been born without the yoga gene. I insisted on being out in the sun all day after sitting in an office at the night copy desk for three weeks and feeling a bit like a vampire. Even the resulting flesh-peeling sunburn didn't put a damper on the funfilled days of playing doubles with campers and listening to their brilliant (and never off-key) karaoke performances. I left Sewanee for Nashville the next day, feeling a bit sad that my camp days were over. My dad and I have exchanged a few phone calls during the past week, and I always ask how camp is going. "Just getting the Sprite," he says, and I know without asking that this will be used for the casino night "cocktails." It's hard when you realize that you're kind of an adult, and you kind of have to get a real job, but it makes me happy to know that there was something in my life that had such a big impact on me and that I can look back on fondly.

So thanks, Dad, for camp, and for everything you do. We love you very much. Happy Father's Day.

Woodchucks

"One day this week," Jean Yeatman reports, "I was looking at the grasses and flowers on my bluff, when they began to wave about. I was going out to see what animal could be causing this, when the head of a very large Woodchuck popped into view. It was sitting upright on its hind legs and eating a flower stem as it looked about. Then it dropped back to all fours and started nibbling clover, tall grasses, blueberry bush leaves, flowers and other green leaves.

"Woodchucks are light brown in color, have a medium-length bushy tail, can be two feet in length and weigh up to 12 lbs. They dig deep burrows in which they can hibernate from October to February. Farmers do not like them in their fields, as livestock can be injured by stepping into their holes. They are also very destructive to vegetable gardens.

Recently the skins have sold for $8, and the fur is used by fly fishermen in making flies."

Pets of the Week

Meet Rosie and Ira

The Franklin County Humane Society's Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption.

Rosie is a young Heeler mix who is very affectionate. She loves children, but she may prefer to be an only dog because she likes to be the center of attention. Rosie is up-to-date on shots and spayed.

Ira is the coolest, most gentlemanly adult cat. He needs to stay safely indoors, but there he will light up your home with his sweetness and silly antics. Ira is negative for FeLV and FIV, house-trained, up-to-date on shots and neutered.

For a limited time, two kittens may be adopted together for one adoption fee of $75. Having two kittens is better than one because they play together and keep each other company.

Every Friday is Black Friday at Animal Harbor. On Fridays, adoption fees will be reduced 50 percent for black or mostly black pets more than 4 months old who have been at Animal Harbor for more than a month. Pets adopted from Animal Harbor qualify for a free post-adoption wellness exam by local veterinarians.

Call Animal Harbor at 962-4472 for information and check out the other pets at <www.animalharbor.com>. Enter their drawing on this site for a free spay or neuter for one of your pets. Please help the Humane Society continue to save abandoned pets by sending your donations to P.O. Box 187, Winchester, by Scott and Phoebe Bates

The season turned like the page of a glossy fashion magazine. In the park the daffodils came up and in the parking lot, the new car models were on parade.

Sometimes I think that nothing really changes-The young girls show the latest crop of tummies, and the new president proves that he's a dummy.

but remember the tennis match we watched that year?

Right before our eyes some tough little European blonde pitted against that big black girl from Alabama, cornrowed hair and Zulu bangles on her arms, some outrageous name like Vondella Aphrodite -

We were just walking past the lounge and got sucked in by the screen above the bar, and pretty soon we started to care about who won, putting ourselves into each whacked return as the volleys went back and forth and back like some contest between the old world and the new, and you loved her complicated hair and her to-hell-with-everybody stare, and I,

I couldn't help wanting the white girl to come out on top because she was one of my kind, my tribe with her pale eys and thin lips and because the black girl was so big and so black,

so unintimidated,

hitting the ball like she was driving the Emancipation Proclamation down Abraham Lincoln's throat, like she wasn't asking anyone's permission.

There are moments when history passes you so close you can smell its breath, you can reach your hand out and touch it on its flank, and I don't watch all that much Masterpiece Theatre, but I could feel the end of an era there in front of hose bleachers full of people in their Sunday tennis-watching clothes as that black girl wore down her opponent then kicked her ass good then thumped her once more for good measure and stood up on the red clay court holding her racket over her head like a guitar.

And the little pink judge had to climb up on a box to put the ribbon on her neck, still managing to smile into the camera flash even though everything was changing and in fact, everything had alrady changed-

Poof, remember? It was the twentieth century almost gone, we were there, and when we went to put it back where it belonged, it was past us and we were changed.
