

School Board Approves Revised Budget; Deeds Townsend School to County

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

At the June 11 meeting, the Franklin County School Board approved a revised budget in response to the county Finance Committee's directive to make cuts. The revised budget reduced the draw on the fund balance reserve by $384,000, but the request for new money from the county only decreased by $64,000.

The revised budget reflects a reduction in certified substitute teacher pay, eliminating one school social worker, not implementing the Raptor visitor background check program at several schools, a reduction in funds allocated for upgrading the sound system at Franklin County High School (FCHS), and a reduction in allocations for the transportation garage, Huntland School roof, and other capital outlays.

The request for new money ($829,388) still included funding a 2 percent raise for certified and noncertified employees, and a 1.5 percent raise for contract bus drivers. The request for projected increases in health insurance costs was decreased slightly, as was funding for Pre-K to account for a loss in state revenues.

Board member Gary Hanger expressed concern about the small decrease in the new money request. "I'm afraid they won't be impressed," Hanger said.

"The 2 percent is a cost of living increase, not a raise," board member Adam Tucker insisted.

'Fire Sermon': When Being Bad is Good

A Review of the Novel by Jamie Quatro

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

What troubles Maggie in the novel "Fire Sermon" isn't her betrayal of her husband, but that she likes being bad and wants God to walk with her into Hell. In the new millennium, to question infidelity in Godly terms might seem quaint or proselytizing in the hands of a less gifted author. Jamie Quatro's opening scene shows a married woman willingly letting herself be led across the line of infidelity and then jumps back in time to the woman's wedding day. The reader quickly knows the players and setup: an extravagant, formal wedding; brilliant beautiful woman marries brilliant beautiful man; a few allusions to dark moments that have occurred both earlier and later. The groom's uninvited father who abandoned the family, the bride's younger brother who gets stoned and eats the top tier of the cake saved in the freezer for the couple's first anniversary, suggestions of rough treatment by the groom in premarital sex prepare the reader for a journey into a less than idyllic future—but unhappy marriages are the stuff of many novels.

The People, the Place, the Promise:

Land and People

by John Beavers, Messenger Intern

Sewanee, a Shawnee word meaning "southern" was used by the Native Americans west of the Smokies to describe the Cumberland Plateau and the Cumberland River Valley (Elizabeth N. Chitty, Sewanee Now and Then column for the Messenger, Aug. 23, 1985). In the "Sewanee Sampler" Arthur Ben and Elizabeth N. Chitty write that there were no known permanent settlements by Native Americans on the Mountain. "There were trails used by Native Americans from Altamont through Monteagle and down Battle Creek to Jasper... Down in the valley at Lost Cove Cave, and across the mountain at Russell Cave, it is known there was continuous occupation by the Native Americans for at least 8,000 years, but not on top of the Mountain."

Patricia Short Makris, a researcher and former resident of Sewanee, mentions in her book "The Other Side of Sewanee," a few stories of Native Americans on the Mountain up until 1900. Many Cherokee were relocated during the Trail of Tears in the 1830s, however, several early local families have Native American ancestry. These families were also part of the early settlement of the Cumberland Plateau.

The influx of white settlers to the Cumberland Plateau region first began after President George Washington signed legislation to make Tennessee a state in 1796. A parcel of land was granted to each Revolutionary War veteran or their families, including a large plot to the father of W.B. Shephard, a future land donor to the University of the South. In addition, after the founding of Franklin County in 1807, the county began selling land grants to individuals. It is notable that the majority of early settlers in the Sewanee area lived around the Plateau, not on it, as the area was still considered Native American territory until 1825, when the state permitted the sale of 'mountain' territory. From 1824 to 1860, parcels of land were purchased by several individuals whose descendants may still live on or near the land of their ancestors. The names recorded include William Anderson, William Barnes (1824), James and Jesse Barnes, John T. Bowers (1826) and Abraham Bowers, John Castleberry, Henry Garner, John Gilliam (1821), Allen Gipson (1814) and D.L. Gipson, J.B. Hawkins, Joe and Charley Miller, James O'Dear, Lanson Rowe, George Smith, as well as the Bean, Henley, Hill, Long families, and more.

The Cumberland Plateau features a core set of ecological features that helped foster what would eventually pop up as the settlements grew. These include white oak, American chestnut, pignut, sandy and shagbark hickories for construction and lumber; sandstone cliffs ripe for quarrying; perennial springs such as the present day Tremlett Spring <<https://sewaneeater.com/tag/sewanee-water/>> for small crops and settlements; and perhaps most importantly for Sewanee's development, coal deposits scattered across the Plateau.

According to Makris, a land grant purchased by Wallis Estill, Thomas S. Logan and Madison Porter in 1834, mentions the coal beds in Lost Cove. In addition, she notes roads used to retrieve coal as early as the 1830s, possibly connecting to the 1826 survey road that went up the mountain and through its coves.

As it would be for the University founders, local climate was important for early settlers. The book "History of the University of the South, at Sewanee, Tennessee" by George Rainsford Fairbanks, noted an interesting report of the sanitary condition of Sewanee. "... the climate marked by neither extreme heat nor cold, as shown by the following data: Winter minimum temperature, 5; summer maximum, 87; average summer temperature, 74." According to <weatherbase.com>, Sewanee has a Köppen Climate Classification subtype of 'Cfa' or a humid subtropical climate. 'Cfa' climates have mild winters, wet summers, and, as we all know in Sewanee, a disposition for pea soup fog formations.

The next stage in Sewanee's development came with a wealthy New York investment group led by Samuel F. Tracy. Buying the grant from Wallis Estill, Thomas S. Logan and Madison Porter for their lands in Lost Cove and obtaining a coal mining charter from the state in 1852, he began the Sewanee Mining Company. What came after, however, is for another time.

David Alexander: Seize-the-Day Vision

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of interviews with some of the local candidates running for office. General election voting is Aug. 2.

"Franklin County is on the verge of good things," said State Representative David Alexander, candidate for Franklin County mayor. His seize-the-day vision zeroes in on the opportunity availed by the soon-to-be constructed Tennessee College of Applied Technology (TCAT). Alexander's three daughters sought employment elsewhere after college.

"I want the job opportunities in Franklin County to be good enough and the variety wide enough that our children want to stay," he said.

EVEN MORE ON GUNS

To the Editor:

According to the latest CDC Report (2016), the rate of gun deaths in the United States rose to about 12 per 100,000 people, the second consecutive increase after a period of relative stability.

There are only 15 countries that have murder rates by guns higher than the United States. There are 58 countries with murder rates lower than those in the U.S. All of the countries that rate higher than the United States are banana republics.

Bill Kershner's Letter to the Editor (June 8, 2018 issue) states that an NRA basic tenet is to keep weapons, including automatic weapons with high capacity clips, out of the hands of the mentally ill and yet, for the past year, Florida has sold guns without any background checks. Additionally, if you have gone to one of the flea markets in Monteagle and been observant, you have undoubtedly witnessed people selling weapons out of the backs of their vehicles. Where are those mental health checks happening?

"If you always do what you've always done, you will always get what you've always gotten."

Many people attribute this quote to Anthony Robbins and before him Albert Einstein, Henry Ford, and even Mark Twain. Regardless of the origin, what matters is the point it makes and the question it begs once again: "Where do we start?" A journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step.

Howard Franklin,
Sewanee

COMMON DENOMINATOR

To the Editor:

I read with interest Mr. Kershner's letter "More on Guns" (June 8, 2018 issue). In addition to the three dots mentioned—"gun-free zones, mental illness and notoriety"—there is a further common denominator, so called

"social media." I only mention this as a point of interest as at my age the phenomenon is unknown to me.

Bob Hynson, C'67,

FUNDS PUT TO GOOD USE

To the Editor:

Marion Animal Resource Connection (MARC) submits this grant report for Sewanee Community Chest funds used Oct. 2017–March 2018, from the 2016–17 grant cycle.

Grant amount = $10,000

Used for:

10 Crates to transport animals to Spay/Neuter clinics, $364;

Three dogs treated for Heartworms ($455, $260, $285)$1,000;

170 Animals of low-income people Spayed or Neutered, $8,636 (105 cats at an average cost of $45 each and 65 dogs at an average cost of $60 each).

Thank you so very much for donating $10,000 to helping make the lives of dogs and cats better. MARC does this by focusing on Spaying/Neutering dogs and cats, especially focusing on pets of low-income people. Decreasing the number of animals able to reproduce will stop the number of unwanted dogs and cats. By altering 105 cats and 65 dogs with the funds from the Sewanee Community Chest you have prevented the births of at least 624 kittens and approximately 448 puppies most of whom would not have been wanted and would have gone on to produce more litters.

Of course, MARC also finds good homes for most all of the unwanted existing dogs and cats of whom we are notified need help. And MARC teaches Humane Care of Animals to all the students in Marion County schools as well as to civic organizations. We hope to decrease the number of unwanted dogs and cats through spay/neuter, finding good homes for existing unwanted dogs and cats, and through humane education.

Sue Scruggs,
Executive Director for MARC

THE CHILDREN

To the Editor:

On June 5, the United Nations called on the Trump administration to halt separating children from parents seeking assylum in the U. S., calling it abnormal to detain children. I cry for these children, many too young to even have language to know what is happening to them; but it is all being recorded in their immature nervous systems. Completely dependent physically and emotionally on parents, they cannot thrive on their own. What this government is taking away from them can never be replaced.

On June 4, Democratic Senator Jeff Merkley of Oregon went to McAllen Border Station in Brownsville Texas, to investigate. He had previously been at that facility and seen "hundreds of children locked up in cages... big cages made of fencing with wire and nets stretched across the top of them so people can't climb out. It's a concrete floor. People are given space blankets, very thin pieces of—like foil—to sleep on. On arrival, Sen. Merkley was turned away. As I watched this unfold on MSNBC television, the police ignored that he is a U.S. Senator whose office had arranged for him to be admitted. Instead, afterwards they tried to rationalize his not being admitted, by announcing that 2-weeks notice is required. Sen. Merkley's question: "Why are children being abused in this way?" is met with "This is required for security."

Kling Appointed to Lead the Beecken Center

The School of Theology announced that it has appointed Sheri D. Kling as the new executive director of the Beecken Center and associate dean of the School of Theology. Kling was previously serving in the University of the South's office of the University registrar. Her appointment will take effect on July 1, 2018.

Kling holds a Ph.D. from Claremont School of Theology, an M.A.T.S. from the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago, and a B.A. from Purdue University. She is a theologian who works in the interdisciplinary space where worldviews, beliefs, and practices can create either dis-ease and suffering or psycho-spiritual wholeness and common flourishing. Drawing from process philosophy/theology, Jungian psychology, and mystical spirituality, Sheri focuses on communicating theological ideas and practices that positively impact humans' relationships with God, self, and world, especially the use of dream work as a spiritual practice for divine encounter, personal integration, and widening our relationship to creation. In addition to her position in Sewanee, Kling is a cooperating visiting lecturer in Social and Spiritual Determinants of Health with Palacky University in the Czech Republic and a faculty member of the Haden Institute in Asheville, North Carolina. Last fall, Kling presented at the International Transpersonal Conference in Prague and Palacky University; most recently, she delivered a well-received keynote presentation at the Haden Summer Dream and Spirituality Conference at Kanuga on "Healing our Collective Pain: Worldviews, Dreams, and Transformation."

"My appointment is living proof that God can weave all the disparate pieces of our lives into a surprising tapestry. It seems to me that everything I've done along what has been quite a circuitous path—from marketing and communications, to strategic planning, to public speaking, performing, and program development, and especially my theological education—has all come together in an astonishing way in this position to which I feel very called. I am eager to be part of the Beecken Center's mission and program development so that we can connect more people to the love of God and the transforming power of Christ through the Holy Spirit."

Spiritual formation has been a part of Kling's work for several years, even while she toured the southeastern U.S. as a performing songwriter, recording artist, and workshop leader. Throughout her career, Kling notes that she has considered herself a "voice for transformation." Having previously resided in both Marietta and Demorest, Ga., she moved to Sewanee in June of 2017.

Kling will take over for Karen Meridith, executive director of the Education for Ministry program at the Beecken Center, who has been serving as the interim executive director of the Center for the past year and will remain the associate director. She looks forward to working with the new director. "Sheri Kling brings skills and experience that will benefit the work and mission of the Beecken Center. I welcome her as a new colleague and look forward to working with her as she implements her vision for transformative programming for all the baptized."

Lecture Series Explores 'A Wrinkle in Time' at Otey's VB-Us

The theme for this year's VB-Us at Otey Memorial Parish is "A Wrinkle in Time," based on the popular book by Madeleine L'Engle. The series runs Monday, June 18 through Thursday, June 21, at the church. Otey announces the following speakers for the series:

Monday, June 18 —The Rev. Amy Bentley Lamborn is the Vicar of Southeast Tennessee Episcopal Ministry, Visiting Faculty in the School of Theology, University of the South, and member of the Jungian Society for Scholarly Studies. Her lecture is titled, "Longing for Enchantment: The Quest for Transcendence in a Flattened-out World." Lamborn will reflect on how such stories/films as "A Wrinkle in Time" compensate for our own secular, disenchanted world. Using key insights of Urban T. Holmes and Walter Brueggemann, she will articulate a vital theological task of the priesthood (of all believers) in our time: re-enchantment.

Tuesday, June 19 — The Rev. Robert MacSwain will offer a lecture called, "What have I got that I haven't got?" MacSwain will reflect on his initial reading of "A Wrinkle in Time" as a child, insights gained from subsequent re-readings, and the theological vision of Madeleine L'Engle. MacSwain is associate professor of theology at the University of the South.

Wednesday, June 20 —The guest speaker for Wednesday is Mary Grace Gibbs-DuPree, the Laney Graduate Fellow in Medieval History at Emory University. Her lecture is titled, "Medievals, Madeleine, and Mary: Love and the Feminine Divine in Christian Art." Madeleine L'Engle emphasizes the centrality of the feminine in the work of redemption—of the individual and of the universe. Medieval Christians shared that understanding, especially regarding Mary. Gibbs-DuPree will explore some examples of medieval Marian art in illuminated manuscripts, stained glass, and reliquaries, and will discuss ways L'Engle builds on that tradition of honor to the feminine.

VB-Us at Otey Memorial Parish is an intergenerational dinner and learning series offered each summer. Dinner begins at 5:15 p.m., with a short program at 5:45 p.m., followed by a choice of lectures and activities. The activities include games, arts and crafts, and other fun for all ages. Each night will include a short youth theater production directed by Caroline Lamborn, a student at St. Andrews-Sewanee School. Cassie Meyer will lead music. The series will conclude Thursday, June 21, with dinner and an interactive indoor/outdoor Eucharist, followed by a lawn party with popsicles and an inflatable slide.

There is no cost to attend to VB-Us at Otey Memorial Parish. Participants are encouraged to register online <<http://vb-us2018.eventbrite.com>>.

Board Chair Clejfo Walker said that if other county employees received a 2 percent raise, “Teachers and school system employees need to be treated the same,” but Walker conceded, “there are a lot more of us.”

Director of Schools Stanley Bean noted that “nearly all the counties statewide are asking for a 2 percent raise.”

Following the advice of county commissioner Dave Van Buskirk, Walker compiled data showing Franklin County teachers earned less than teachers in neighboring counties. “There is a lot of evidence,” Walker said.

The board will present the budget for the Finance Committee’s approval at 8:30 a.m., Thursday, June 21, at the Franklin County Annex.

In other business, the board approved a quick claim deed transferring ownership of the Townsend School property and buildings to Franklin County. The school system will retain the football field and gym. The school system has been paying for upkeep of the unused property transferred by the deed.

The board decided not to stipulate the board had “first right of refusal” to buy the property back at 50 percent of the lowest bid should the county decide to sell it.

According to Bean, two of the Finance Committee members were not interested in taking the property if the county could potentially lose money on improvements made in the event of a decision to sell.

“The mayor has a vision for use of the property,” said board member Sara Liechty. “I think deeding the property to the county is a win-win proposition.”

Responding to a parent’s concern, the board discussed foreign exchange students being denied National Honor Society and Beta Club honors.

FCHS Principal Roger Alsup said the rules of the two organizations stipulated the student must be enrolled in the high school hosting the programs. Alsup plans to “re-induct” the foreign exchange student in question immediately upon her return. If the school counted exchange students as enrolled, the school system would be falsely claiming state aid on the students, Alsup explained. Following the practice of other school, FCHS intends to deal with exchange students on a case by case basis.

The board meets next on Monday, July 9.

Alexander sees the TCAT as the county’s prime industrial recruitment tool. “We can design programs specific to industries’ needs,” he stressed, pointing to the shortage of nurses at rural hospitals as one example. “I want to be mayor to help the county use the TCAT to make the county better.”

Alexander’s personal story reflects the same seize-the-day approach to life. A family tragedy prompted him to abandon his pursuit of a master’s degree in English literature and return to the rental equipment business, the profession he’d worked in since the age of 14. Born and raised in Jackson, Miss., by the early 1990s he was managing a large store with multiple locations throughout the state. When a conglomerate bought out the store, he and his wife Cile decided they were ready for a change and the appeal of a different climate.

Alexander looked for a small rental business to buy and found one in Winchester. He and his wife loved the area, but not the company. “They had old, worn-out equipment,” Alexander said. In 1994, the couple moved with their three daughters to Winchester and opened their own rental equipment store. In 18 months the other company was out of business. Today, he and his wife live just off the square, pleased they can walk to downtown’s many new offerings.

Alexander points to solid waste disposal as the growing county’s most pressing need. He cited decreasing landfill locations and more stringent environmental regulations as the cause. “For an area to grow, you need a place to put your trash,” Alexander insisted. He lauded the county’s recent purchase of a machine to chip and recycle waste material as a step in the right direction. “An additional remedy might be a gasification plant,” Alexander said. In use elsewhere in Tennessee, gasification plants combust waste and produce electricity.

Asked if he would support a 10 percent property tax increase to fund building two new middle schools, Alexander said, “There is another route we can take.”

“People griping about spending money on the schools need to visit and see the mold and mildew in the bathrooms,” he suggested, “and the pails and trashcans teachers put out to catch water when it rains.” Referencing the recent proposal to build two new schools and salvage the gyms by covering them with a membrane roof, he asked, “If they can fix the gym roofs, what is to prevent them from fixing the roofs on the other pods? Once the buildings are dry, then we can deal with the mold and mildew problems.”

Alexander said the county’s biggest challenge is “to do the things that need done for education, economic growth, and law enforcement and do them within our financial capabilities.”

He praised the county for recently reinvigorating its Long Range Planning efforts as a way to bring together the diverse elements in the county with a view to the future instead of just tackling immediate needs.

“My perspective is larger from my past eight years as state representative,” Alexander said. “There’s a lot of help available if you know who to ask.”

Thomas, the husband is for the most part a nice guy. Maggie could be just another woman who abandoned her doctorate program in comparative literature to raise children who seeks the fantasy reality of an affair to recapture what the self felt like when its own needs mattered most. But Quatro takes Maggie’s transgression into an uncharted dimension. Maggie doesn’t want the scales to fall from her eyes so she “will see the evil behind the pleasure.” Maggie demands of God, “allow me at least the memory unrepented... Let me keep it, God... to be allowed to remain in a state of lust.”

Maggie never contemplates leaving her husband, although she does entertain telling him about her affair—but never does, because she doesn’t want her marriage to end either. Both her husband and lover hurt her sexually, but with her lover she likes the pain, not so with her husband. She fears if the forbidden aspect of her relationship with her lover James were removed, the pleasure would disappear.

The reader travels with Maggie through 23 years of marriage and beyond. As a young child, her daughter Kate begins a pattern of physical abuse that she finally outgrows, which cure the therapist ironically attributes to Maggie and Thomas’ loving relationship—“When love is present in the home, children almost always emerge beautifully into adulthood.” In truth, for years Maggie has faked orgasm and as often as possible avoided making love to her husband. She’s entertained erotic infatuations with other men, but never followed through, until when her children are teenagers she writes to the poet James Abbott and James replies.

Why James? Coincidence litters the surface. James and Maggie are the same age and their children are the same ages and genders. But far more significant is the singularity—and isolation—of being Christians in a post-Christian America. Husband Thomas, an agnostic, accepts Maggie’s spirituality, spirituality which exists largely in the background for Maggie until James appears on the scene.

Perhaps James is a stand in for God, practice for the radical conclusion drawn by the “Fire Sermon” imbedded in the narrative. The story begins in the 1990s and continues into Maggie and Thomas’ old age, past the date of the novel’s publication and the date of this review. Maggie’s talks with her therapist give way to internal dialogues with the alter ego telling the self the tale will end “how I want it to end.”

For the reader, after being lured by Quatro into “Fire Sermon’s” daring journey through the heart of erotic desire, the most salient question is “What’s next?”

Jamie Quatro will read Wednesday, June 20, at 4:30 p.m. in Gailor Auditorium in conjunction with the Sewanee School of Letters faculty reading series.

New Window Displays at Heritage Center

The Town of Tracy City and Tennessee Arts Commission have provided funding for new window poster displays for the three windows in the south façade of the 1978 addition of the Heritage Center facility.

Two of the posters are devoted to Historic Tracy City and portray the story of the founding of the town and the development of its outstanding architectural record, much of which exists today. Several of the town's existing historical structures have been placed on the National Register of Historic Places and are depicted in one of the posters along with other historic structures some of which are acclaimed to be candidates for placement on the National Register. The display includes examples of both high style and vernacular architecture. High style architecture is work by an architect and is one of a kind designated for a specific site sometimes using custom materials and finishes. Vernacular architecture uses local materials constructed by workers with local building knowledge. A great deal of the architectural record of Tracy City survives and reveals the core of life in this significant American industrial town.

The third poster portrays the agrarian writer, Andrew Nelson Lytle, who lived in the Monteagle Sunday School Assembly where Southern writers of the agrarian and other persuasions gathered during the 1940s and thereafter. These writers included Allen Tate, and his wife Caroline Gordon, a novelist from Kentucky. Andrew Lytle and Allen Tate were successive editors of The Sewanee Review. It also included John Crowe Ransom, Donald Davidson and Robert Penn Warren, three of the original fugitive poets from Vanderbilt University. Along with them came Randall Jarrell, a poet and critic from Nashville as well as Ford Madox Ford, the English novelist, and the New England poet Robert Lowell with his first wife Jean Stafford, a novelist.

To Andrew Lytle "The history of Monteagle Sunday School Assembly admonishes the present to continue to be a place to promulgate and cultivate the arts, and that means artists."

The Grundy County Historical Society Heritage Center is located at 465 Railroad Ave., in Tracy City. It is open Monday through Friday, 10 a.m.–4 p.m. It is closed Saturday and Sunday.

The Monteagle Sunday School Assembly continues its 136th consecutive summer season of enrichment with an interdenominational worship service at 11 a.m. in the Assembly's Warren Chapel. The eight-week season will continue through Sunday, Aug. 5, featuring numerous visiting lecturers who will present morning and evening programs in Warren Chapel that are open free of charge to the public; unless otherwise noted, morning lectures begin at 10:45 a.m. and evening lectures at 8:15 p.m. Anyone interested in a full schedule of the Monteagle Assembly's 2018 program is welcome to pick one up at the Assembly Office (931-924-2286), or to peruse the schedule on the Assembly's website at <www.mssa1882.org>.

In a rare out-of-Nashville performance, the radio program Music City Roots brings its show to the Auditorium on Friday evening for a 7 p.m. show, with doors opening at 6 p.m. Box dinners are available for pre-order at the Assembly office. The Music City Roots will feature music, interviews, and everything fans of the show have come to expect. Artists performing this year Greg Hall, Scott Mulvahill, the Wild Ponies, and the Grascals. Music City Roots's Keith Bilbrey will talk about "50 Years Behind a Microphone" on Thursday evening in Warren Chapel. Bilbrey is the announcer for the Music City Roots radio program.

The minister in residence this week, the Rev. Thom Schuyler, will also give an informal lecture on another part of his interesting past: "Forty Years a Songwriter." This lecture on Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. on the porch of Winfield Cottage will cover Schuyler's four decades in Nashville as a Hall of Fame songwriter. He will also perform a number of songs written over the years for the Youth Choir he directed at Woodmont Christian Church. In addition to Schuyler's impressive musical career, he and two friends created the In-the-Round format of songwriter shows at the world-famous Bluebird Café in Nashville.

This week at the Assembly is the Wayne and Virginia Jervis Bible week, with daily lectures focused on a particular theme in the scripture. This year, Tom McCollough joins the Assembly on the theme: "The Bible and Archaeology: Searching for Ancient Israel and its Religion." These lectures explore how archaeological excavations in Israel have shed interesting and occasionally provocative light on the history and religion of ancient Israel. McCollough's lectures occur Tuesday-Friday mornings in Warren Chapel.

Additional events this week include the following:

Fruit and Vegetable Insect Control Update

UT Extension in Grundy County would like to invite everyone to attend a free Fruit and Vegetable Insect Control Update on Thursday, June 21. The program will take place at the UT Extension office in Coalmont beginning at 11:30 a.m. with lunch, and will conclude around 1:30 p.m. Please contact the UT/TSU Extension Office at (931) 592-3971 by Tuesday, June 19, with the number in your party so that proper arrangements can be made for lunch.

Frank Hale, UT Extension Entomologist, will give an update on the common insect pests you might see this year in your garden and around your fruit crops. Hale will also give an update on the spotted wing drosophila fly (SWD) and how to deal with it in small fruit production. This will be a great opportunity to get a head start on your spring garden plans and obtain some good information. Information will also be available helping producers identify insects and learning the best control measures. Specifically, the SWD is a vinegar fly (sometimes inaccurately called a fruit fly) from Asia. It was first detected in California in 2008. In 2011, SWD had reached blueberries in East Tennessee. By 2013, SWD damage had spread to 23 Tennessee counties, including Grundy County. The female SWD is equipped with a serrated egg laying structure called an ovipositor that allows her to pierce the flesh of healthy fruit and insert tiny eggs inside. The piercing of the fruit allows yeast, fungi and other microorganisms to enter and begin the process of decay. Once the larvae hatch, they feed on the fruit, causing it to further decompose. The SWD targets strawberries, blueberries, blackberries, raspberries, grapes, figs, persimmons, cherries and other soft, thin-skinned fruit. Berries are especially susceptible. Wherever it has been found, the SWD has caused considerable damage to fruit crops.

To learn more about the SWD and many other insect pest and their control measures, attend this seminar. The meal is sponsored by UT Extension, Grundy County Office. UT Extension offers its programs to all eligible persons regardless of race, color, national origin, sex, age, disability, religion or veteran status, and is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

"Anyone who knows my child knows that she plays hard and runs fast. She pushes her body to the max. In order to keep her at her best, we started getting her alignments to make sure her body was asymmetric. By doing this, it helps to prevent injuries and maximize output. Also, a lot of top athletes are using chiropractic care to help with flexibility." Alvina Holman & Ashtin Holman

St. Mary's Sewanee Offers July Retreats on Gardens, Meditation

St. Mary's Sewanee: The Ayres Center for Spiritual Development is pleased to announce two new retreats taking place at the center in July.

Local gardening expert June Mays will lead a one-day workshop, The Grace in Gardens, on Saturday, July 14. The group will explore the link between garden and spirituality, and tour garden sanctuaries in the Sewanee Community. Mays will offer ideas for making a personal garden more spiritual, provide new ideas for church gardens, and explore how gardens have affected the spiritual lives of others.

Mays is a garden designer who trained at the English Gardening School in London. She is a parishioner at St. Mary's on the Highlands in Birmingham and has built garden sanctuaries at her homes in Sewanee and in Birmingham. This program is limited to 30 participants. The cost of the workshop is $60 and includes lunch. Options for staying at St. Mary's Sewanee on Friday night before the workshop are available.

A new three-day retreat, Calm and Clear Meditation, will be offered Friday-Sunday, July 20-22, led by Arthur Giacalone. It will focus on meditation techniques for the development of Calm-Abiding (quiescence). Participants will be guided through step-by-step instructions for cultivating an open and wakeful presence, resting in silence, single-focused and stable attention, mindfulness, and tranquility. This retreat is appropriate for both new and experienced practitioners of meditation.

Giacalone is a clinical/consulting psychologist in private practice in California and has taught widely throughout the U.S. and Europe. He was elected as a William Shannon Fellow by the International Thomas Merton for his research on Merton and Contemplation. The fee for this retreat includes all programming, meals and two nights lodging. The cost is $365 for a single in St. Mary's Hall; $465 for a single in the Anna House.

For more information about these events, including making reservations, call St. Mary's Sewanee at (931) 598-5342, email reservations@stmaryssewanee.org, or go online to www.stmaryssewanee.org.

St. Mary's Sewanee: The Ayres Center for Spiritual Development is dedicated to providing spiritual hospitality to persons of diverse religious and spiritual backgrounds, in a place of natural beauty, simplicity, silence, tranquility and warm spiritual rest through retreats, renewal and learning. For the last 30 years, St. Mary's Sewanee has welcomed individuals and groups from across the United States and around the world to a place to rest, renew and reconnect.

MSSA to Host Music City Roots

On Friday, June 22, the Monteagle Sunday School Assembly (MSSA) will host Music City Roots, a Franklin, Tenn.-based radio show in a rare out-of-Nashville performance. Nationally recognized for its lively mix of vintage variety radio and cutting-edge Americana music, the show will feature music and interviews with Greg Hall, Scott Mulvahill, the Wild Ponies and the Grascals.

"We are thrilled to bring this show to Monteagle Assembly again this year, and we invite our community to join in the fun," said Virginia Curry, MSSA platform superintendent. "It is a not-to-be-missed event and a truly unique experience. Seating in the auditorium will be on a first-come, first-served basis, but there is plenty of outdoor seating—bring a blanket and a picnic and enjoy the music under the stars."

Admission is free. The doors of the Assembly's historic auditorium will open at 6 p.m., and the show will start at 7 p.m. Picnic fare is welcome. Those wishing to attend should stop by the front gate at the Assembly to get a free four-hour grounds pass.

Music City Roots is a weekly live radio show and HD webcast featuring the finest roots and Americana music based in or passing through Nashville. Since going on the air in October 2009, Music City Roots has broadcast the authentic sound of today's Music City, embracing the traditional and the progressive in equal measure. Every Wednesday at 7 p.m. central, four guest artists perform to an audience of 300-800 people in Liberty Hall in the Factory at Franklin, Tenn. They further reach thousands of viewers worldwide via <Livestream.com> and the Roots Radio Network. The show also goes out nationwide as a 14-week series on American Public Television.

The Lemon Fairy Tale

Once upon a time—a long, long time ago in Sewanee, it was the Fourth of July. There were no celebrations. No parade. Boo Cravens was sad. She called the children in town—“Decorate your bicycles. Let’s have a parade!”

So they did, little children and big children rode their bicycles with bright streamers down University Avenue. It was a little parade—no trucks, no floats, no horses and no bands. Just Sewanee children led by Boo. This parade continued for a number of years. Then some people got together and thought, “let’s have a big celebration for the Fourth.”

The Lemon Fairy has watched the fun grow and everybody works together for this special day. Thank you Boo for getting us started more than 30 years ago!

Now we have a street dance, food, games, fireworks and a big parade. Even cats and dogs join in! Boo’s little Fourth of July children now have children of their own.

You can see them on their bikes July 4.

F@H Cumberland StoryCorps Project

Folks at Home (F@H) announces the summer launch of the Cumberland StoryCorps Project.

The initiative is modeled after National Public Radio's StoryCorps. The goal is to capture, preserve and share the community's stories in order to build connections between people. This project allows individuals involved with F@H and the greater community to share their stories so that others may hear and learn from them.

Shared stories foster a sense of shared humanity. Stories create compassionate connections between individuals. Stories teach us to listen.

If you have a life story you would like to share, or want to participate in this project, contact Abbie Warr at <warrak0@sewanee.edu> to schedule an interview or receive more information.

The recorded interviews will be available for listening through the StoryCorps website <https://archive.storycorps.org/communities/sewanee-folks-at-home-storycorps-project/> and shared with the American Folk Life Center through the Library of Congress.

This initiative is made possible through the generous support of Sewanee's Office of Civic Engagement.

The Tigers finished with a 22-6 overall record, matching their win total from a season ago, and the team captured its sixth consecutive Southern Athletic Association regular season and tournament championship.

Ranked seventh in the Atlantic South region rankings, Sewanee made its 16th appearance in the NCAA Championships this year. The Tigers lost in the second round to N.C. Wesleyan in a match played at Emory University in Atlanta.

Finishing the season ranked nationally, Sewanee's Jack Gray earned a No. 27 ranking in singles play. The Chattanooga, Tenn., native ended his junior season with a 12-7 record, including four wins against nationally-ranked foes. Earning a spot in the 2018 NCAA Men's Tennis Singles Championships, he is ranked the fifth-best player in the Atlantic South region.

Andres Carro finishes the 2018 season ranked No. 19 in the region. The Memphis, Tenn., native recorded a 13-7 season, including a 6-4 record at the No. 2 flight.

In doubles play, Hayden Loeb and Gray are ranked No. 10 in the region. The duo finished 3-3 together, but Loeb posted an 11-4 overall record in doubles, while Gray collected a 15-11 mark.

Also ranked in doubles play is the duo of Jordan Brewer and Carro. Playing at the No. 2 position, the team recorded a 12-7 record.

Tiger Women's Tennis Earners Top 20 Ranking

The Tigers finished the season with a 22-5 record, en route to their sixth straight Southern Athletic Association regular season and tournament titles.

Finishing third in the Atlantic South region rankings ahead of Carnegie Mellon (Pa.) and national runner-up Emory, the Tigers advanced to the third round of the 2018 NCAA Women's Tennis Championships. Making their 25th appearance in the championships, the Tigers downed the Bears of Washington University-St. Louis (Mo.) in a 5-4 battle in the second round of the tournament before falling to Emory in the next round.

Sewanee's Clementina Davila wrapped up her career in the top-20 in the national singles rankings, finishing in a tie for 20th with Marjorie Antohi of Chicago, Libby Rickeman of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Caroline Kutach of Trinity (Texas).

The Mexico City, Mexico, native racked up a 15-4 record overall in singles action, including a 10-2 record at the No. 1 flight.

Making two straight NCAA Singles Championships, the Atlantic South's Most Improved Senior finished fifth in the final regional poll, as she concluded her career with 49 singles wins.

Also ranked in the singles regional poll is Christina Merchant. The Greenville, S.C., native is 15th with an 11-6 record. The senior finished her career with the Purple and Gold with a 50-25 singles record.

In doubles play, the duo of Catherine Owen and Davila fell two spots to No. 16. ## NATURENOTES

Diana Fritillaries

From the June 16, 2017 issue. Last week, we saw our first male Diana Fritillaries, large orange and chocolate brown butterflies. This is the largest of the Greater Fritillaries, larger than the Great Spangled Fritillary. The males appear first, followed by the strikingly different black and blue females. Their life history is rather unusual. Females lay their eggs in the fall, seemingly at random, among grasses in a meadow, not on the caterpillars' food plant, violets. The eggs hatch and overwinter as tiny caterpillars, not eating for seven or eight months. Few survive the winter, but those that do then seek out violets and grow through several stages to large (about 2 inches) black spiny-looking caterpillars that hide out on the ground and feed at night. These are the ones that have pupated and are now emerging as adults.

Waterfall and Photography Tour

Join SCSP Park Rangers and professional photographer David Duplessis of Tennessee Photographs, for a two-day course that includes not only some amazing hiking on South Cumberland State Park's Fiery Gizzard Trail (cited by Backpacker magazine as one of the top 25 hiking trails in the U.S.) and at Rock Island, but you'll also learn and practice taking photographs of some amazing landscapes, waterfalls, cascades, rivers, and more!

This class is designed for anyone who wants to learn about waterfall and landscape photography. Bring your DSLR, lenses, and a tripod with shutter release. Some of the hiking involved is quite strenuous, so please bear that in mind and wear appropriate clothing and shoes. There is every possibility you'll need to stand or move through water, or water will spray or drop on you and your equipment. So please be aware of that, and pack accordingly.

Bring plenty of water as well as your own snacks and lunch. Fee is $150.

On June 20, you will meet at 8 a.m. at Fiery Gizzard Trailhead, 131 Fiery Gizzard Rd., for a 2–3-mile hike (with lots of time for photography built in).

On June 21, you'll travel on your own to meet at 8 a.m. at the Rock Island State Park, (Hwy. 56 to McMinnville, then 70S onto Hwy. 136, to 287), Blue Hole Trailhead (second road on the right past the park office). After exploring the Blue Hole Falls (the hike is short but hazardous) you will caravan to other locations within the park. There will be some short bursts of strenuous hiking involved throughout the day. Each day will be 8 a.m.–2 p.m.

Price of $150 includes both days of photography and hiking adventure.

To register contact SCSP Park Manager Bill Knapp at <william.knapp@tn.gov> or register online.

Sewanee Herbarium Summer Event

Sewanee's H-tree, Saturday, June 30, 9 a.m., with Trae Moore—The H-tree is a pair of white oaks on the side of the Plateau below the Cross Memorial on Tennessee Avenue. In addition to visiting this botanical curiosity, the group will investigate the woody and herbaceous plants of this forest. The walk includes a short trek on the "Old Cowan Road." For those interested in a longer hike, Trae will also lead the group on a 2-mile loop trail consisting of the brand new section connecting Morgan's Steep and the Cross, circling back via the old section. This hike is moderately difficult due to the elevation change and some loose rocks on the Old Cowan Road. Meet at the Cross Memorial in Sewanee.

Build the Sherwood Day Loop

Volunteer to help build the Sherwood Forest Day Loop. Sherwood Forest, the newest area of the park, is a completely wild, wonderful wilderness. Construction of a new 3-mile loop trail, out to a spectacular overlook and the Sherwood Natural Bridge, is underway. Volunteer to help Ranger Jason Reynolds create this new trail.

You can only access Old CCC Road from Jumpoff Road; not from Sherwood Road. There are jobs for everyone, and many do not involve moving rocks. Please be prepared with sturdy footwear and plenty of water/snacks. If you have favorite trail-building tools or pairs of gloves, feel free to bring them.

Work days are currently scheduled on: Saturday, June 16, 1:30 p.m., Saturday, June 23, 9 a.m., and Wednesday, June 27, 9 a.m. Meet at the Sherwood Forest Trailhead.

BARDTOVERSE

by Phoebe Bates

The far court opens for us all July,
Your arm, flung up, like an easy sail bellying.
comes down on the serve like a blue piece of a sky barely within reach and you, following, tip forward on the smash. The sun sits still on the hard white canvas lip of the net. Five-love
Salt runs behind my ears at thirty-all.
At game, I see the sweat that you're made of.
We improve each other, quickening so by noon that the white game moves itself, the universe contracted to the edge of the dividing line your toe against--limbering for your service, arm up, swiping the sun time after time-- and the square I live in, measured out with lime.

—Prothalamion, by Maxine Kumin
