

SUD Considers Water Loss, Drought Policy and Dimmick Contract

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

At the June 25 meeting of the Board of Commissioners of the Sewanee Utility District of Franklin and Marion Counties, SUD manager Ben Beavers offered new insight into the possible causes of SUD's high unaccounted-for water loss. The board also discussed options for amending its contract with the University that allows SUD to withdraw water from Lake Dimmick in a drought emergency.

Unaccounted-for water loss is the difference between the amount of treated water SUD produces and the amount accounted for in metered sales. SUD's water loss year-to-date is 28.7 percent. To address water loss from aging inaccurate meters SUD will replace all customer meters, which, according to Beavers, should account for about one-fifth of the loss.

Responding to a suggestion from a water-loss audit, Beavers checked the metering of water leaving the plant. SUD had been monitoring the output during the production process; this method includes water used to clean the skids which is later discarded. Monitoring the output externally as the water left the plant showed a 4,700-gallon difference in one day.

Beavers next plans to investigate sources of unauthorized consumption, such as fire service lines feeding sprinklers that are flushed in routine maintenance; not all fire service lines are metered, pointing to another unaccounted-for water-loss source. Beavers said that water used by the fire department also needed to be more efficiently monitored.

In July, Beavers will attend a conference on unaccounted-for water loss in Louisville, Ky., and hopes to learn other remedies specific to SUD's situation.

The Lake Dimmick contract discussion at the May meeting led the board to ask Beavers to consult with SUD attorney Don Scholes. By the provisions of the contract, SUD pays the University $10,000 annually for access to Lake Dimmick in a drought emergency. Scholes questioned the value SUD was getting for its money. The board discussed whether SUD has an obligation to help maintain the lake since the University is SUD's biggest customer, and it seemed unlikely the University would deny SUD use of the lake in an emergency.

Commissioner Randall Henley pointed out that the University needs to maintain the lake regardless. Beavers suggested two options: one, terminate the agreement; two, modify the agreement eliminating the $10,000 annual fee, but leaving in place the per-gallon use charge. Beavers also suggested that if the $10,000 fee was eliminated the University could be given a break on the rate increase assessed to all customers in extreme drought.

On a related topic, Scholes recommended SUD revisit its drought policy. By the policy, hotels and restaurants are among the businesses whose water is cut off during an extreme drought. Scholes said that as the policy currently reads, the University dormitories could be classified as hotels and McClurg Dining Hall could be considered a restaurant.

The board will revisit the Dimmick contract and drought policy at the next meeting on July 23.

Commissioner Henley asked that the board also review the backflow prevention device policy for commercial establishments in July.

On the suggestion of the college students who did the Constructed Wetlands Study, Beavers is taking measures to enhance public outreach. Plans call for a Twitter account for day-to-day communications and a SUD blog for weekly updates and information. Beavers has received many questions about the proposed constructed wetlands. SUD will also maintain a Facebook page to direct users to the Twitter account and blog for more information. The SUD website will continue to be the primary source for policy and static information, such as rates.

Camp Discover Hosts Second Event

Children from Tracy City Elementary School, along with their families and community members, gathered at the South Cumberland State Park Visitor's Center on June 14 to celebrate the end of the second annual Camp Discover, a two-week summer program for schoolchildren in grades 1-6. Students explored the region, participated in literacy activities and engaged in experiences designed to inspire questions and celebrate the community's history.

More than 75 students participated and visited sites such as the Dutch Maid Bakery, the Silverbait Worm Farm, Beersheba Springs Assembly and the Coal Miner's Museum. Campers in grades 1-3 learned photography from Pradip Malde, a professor at the University of the South, and older campers completed a Junior Ranger curriculum with support from the South Cumberland State Park, Sewanee's Environmental Studies Program and the Friends of the South Cumberland. All students read books to build community connections through literacy, including, for the younger group, "Dad's Railroad: The Mountain Goat" by Mary Priestley and, for the older campers, "My Side of the Mountain" by Jean Craighead George.

Camp Discover is a partnership between Yale Child Study Center, Scholastic, Inc., Tracy City Elementary and the University of the South. The University Dining Services and Morton Memorial Methodist Church volunteers provided food for each day of camp. Mountain T.O.P. also helped support the event.

Council Gets Updates on Market and Speeding

At the June 24 meeting, the Sewanee Community Council received an update on the future of the Sewanee Market and on the Police Department's efforts to reduce speeding on Hwy. 41A. The council also discussed a commitment on behalf of the Lease Committee to reduce the transfer fee.

Speaking on behalf of the University, Frank Gladu, vice president for administrative services, informed the council of the ongoing search for a new operator for the Sewanee Market. The current operators are experiencing difficulties, Gladu said, and no longer want to manage the business.

The new operator would be responsible for providing refrigerators and freezers. The operator would be offered a contract for at least two years or until construction of the roundabout on Highway 41A called for in the Campus Master Plan.

The Master Plan also calls for an independently owned, grocery-type

Coe Writes 14th Novel

"Thieves' Quarry" Out on July 2

Imagine Sam Spade meets Samuel Adams in Boston during the late-1760s and you have a glimpse into "Thieves' Quarry," the latest novel by D.B. Jackson, better known in Sewanee as David B. Coe.

Coe, who has written 14 books in the past 16 years, has a Ph.D. in U.S. history. The new novel, the second in a series, is a timely blend of two of his interests.

"When I left academia, I needed a clean break," Coe said in a recent interview. "So I wrote fantasy, a genre I love. This new project allows me to play with history and feed my passion for writing fiction."

"Thieves' Quarry" takes place in 1768, as the British occupation of Boston begins. The volumes of the Thieftaker Chronicles follow the adventures of Ethan Kaille, a conjurer and thieftaker living in colonial Boston. Each book in the series is a murder-mystery set against the backdrop of a significant historical event in the years leading up to the American Revolution.

Booklist has said the book is "at once a gripping historical mystery and an inventive urban-style fantasy."

Coe described Kaille as the "most compelling and complex" character he's written yet.

"He is not a typical hero. He is older, scarred and broken in a lot of ways," Coe said, "yet he struggles to be whole."

SHOCKING MEDICAL BILL To the Editor:

Just when I hoped to never see it again, the Getting Rich Off Sickness Syndrome (GROSS) snuck into my Sewanee post office box in the form of an abbreviation-rich bill for Hospital and Clinic Services totaling $16,802.10.

We are not talking here about some life-rescuing heroic surgery. I was admitted to a Vanderbilt University clinic at 10:30 a.m. and had an endoscopic exploration of the sinus above my right eye, under general anesthesia. I was out of the OR by 2:30 p.m.

The mission of this operation was to scoop out a gloopy mass of mucus that had been revealed by a CAT scan.

In the summary of charges, I learned that the recovery room cost $2,350, the procedure room cost $9,300, and the pharmacy charges were $652.10.

Some of the bill's other numbers and abbreviations are: General Anesthesia First 30 Min ($1,700); Gros. Anes Ea Addl 30 ($2,200); Lidocaine 1% ($137.12); 1 Mg/Ml Soln ($370.48); Gross & Micro Level IV, 2 at $209 each ($418); Culture Other Source ($139); and Smear Gram/Giems (a) ($43).

I do wish my two sainted aunts were still around to contrast the costs for such things that they remembered as hospital nurses back 60 years or so. I can easily imagine them saying, in their white starched uniforms, "How GROSS!"

The "good news" is that the $16,802 billed to me gets offset by the $16,802 in estimated insurance coverage.

The bad news is that all of us bone-head Americans have to stay subscribed to that kind of medical nemesis.

David Bowman, Sewanee ■

Sewanee Police Report

The Sewanee Police Department is investigating a residential burglary that happened sometime between June 9 and June 14 at a home located on the north side of Sewanee. While the residents were out of town, jewelry and small electronics valued at approximately $13,000 were taken from the home. If anyone has information about this case, they are encouraged to call the department at 598-1111.

"Sewanee is a very safe place, but we are not immune to crime," Chief Marie Eldridge said recently. "We encourage people to keep watch around their neighborhoods and if they see suspicious activity, just give us a call. We'll check it out."

Eldridge also reminded residents to lock their cars and homes on a regular basis.

She said that if a resident is going out of town for an extended period, they can contact the dispatcher at the Sewanee Police Department about their absence and SPD will add it to their patrol route.

"Better yet," Eldridge said, "have a neighbor check on your house for you. We want everyone to help us keep Sewanee safe."

No arrests have been made in the burglary, and SPD is following a number of leads about the case.

Drinking Water Safety Notice

The University of the South reminds the community that the water at Harrison Spring ("Hatrock Spring") is not intended to be a drinking source.

Because of the easy access to this spring, located in Sewanee off Hatrock Road, a sign is posted there to let people know that the water is not suitable for drinking.

While that water was tested last year as part of a research project, the University does not routinely test any of the springs on the Domain for drinking safety.

People are therefore advised against drinking water from the springs.

Meetings & Events

Tullahoma Campaign Sesquicentennial

The city of Tullahoma is sponsoring a city-wide commemoration of the 150th Anniversary of the Tullahoma Campaign of 1863 during the Civil War. The commemoration begins at 5:30 p.m., today (Friday), June 28, at 920 Maplewood Ave. The commemoration continues at 9 a.m., Saturday, June 29, at the South Jackson Civic Center in Tullahoma.

Cowan Commemorates Civil War on Sunday

There will be a community-wide recognition of the 150th anniversary of Union and Confederate troop occupation in Franklin County at 1 p.m., Sunday, June 30, at the Cowan Railroad Depot Park.

There will be an opening ceremony, music and remarks by local historians. Speakers will be Michael Bradley, John McCardell and Steve Pearson. The program will include a re-enactment of a famous confrontation that took place between a local resident and General Nathan Bedford Forrest. The program will conclude with the ceremonial installation of a Civil War trail marker in the railroad park.

For more information go to <www.visitcowan.com>.

Area Rotary Club Meetings

The Grundy County Rotary Club meets at 11:30 a.m., Tuesdays, at the Dutch Maid Bakery in Tracy City.

The Monteagle Sewanee Rotary Club meets at the Smoke House Restaurant on Wednesday mornings. Coffee begins at 6:50 a.m.; breakfast and the meeting begins at 7 a.m. and ends by 8 a.m.

Hospitality Shop Schedule

The Hospitality Shop will be closed on Thursday, July 4, and Saturday, July 6, and reopens at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, July 9.

Academy for Lifelong Learning on July 11

The Academy for Lifelong Learning at St. Mary's Sewanee will welcome the Rt. Reverend Henry Parsley at noon, Thursday, July 11.

Parsley will talk about "Surprising Grace in the Writing of Flannery O'Connor." He is the recently retired 10th Bishop of Alabama and was the 22nd Chancellor of the University of the South.

He has offered leadership for the Episcopal Church as a gifted teacher and a person of deep spiritual insight and discerning intellect.

As the Academy approaches its fifth season, the lunch options are changing. St. Mary's Sewanee will no longer offer box lunches. Guests are encouraged to bring their own lunch; many area restaurants offer to-go options.

The Academy's monthly program provides opportunities for lifelong learning for local residents and visitors to the mountain. Lectures are on the second Thursday of each month at noon at St. Mary's Sewanee.

Membership to the Academy for Lifelong Learning is $10. New members are always welcome. The 2013-14 season will begin in September, and dues will be collected then for membership renewal.

Shoemaker's 90th Birthday Party July 6

Caroline Shoemaker's family is hosting an open house and party to celebrate her 90th birthday from 2 to 4 p.m., Saturday, July 6, at Caroline's home, 625 Georgia Ave., Sewanee.

Friends and well-wishers are invited to drop by for cake and refreshments.

Regents Name New Dormitory

At a recent meeting, the University's Board of Regents announced the naming of Sewanee's newest dormitory in honor of Lucy and Herbert Smith Sr. of Birmingham, Ala.

Last year, following the death of Mrs. Herbert Smith Jr., the University received its largest-ever bequest of more than $15 million from the Smith family. Herb Smith Sr. was a member of the famed undefeated 1899 football team. His son Herbert Jr. was a graduate of the class of 1936 who took his place in the family business, Vulcan Rivet and Bolt, in Birmingham.

A gift decades in the making has now created several important and permanent assets for Sewanee, including the naming of the Lucy T. & Herbert E. Smith Hall, the new residence hall located a few steps from the Quad.

In addition to 41 doubles, eight singles, a community kitchen, and other usual amenities, the new residence hall features classrooms, study spaces for both quiet time and group work, easy access to Abbo's Alley, conversation areas, and other facilities for students to dwell (and study) together in unity.

Smith Hall and its neighbor, the newly renovated Cannon Hall, are important teaching tools, as well as important parts of revitalizing the central campus. They will be home to "Finding Your Place," a new place-based first-year course which will launch in August, made possible by a grant from the Arthur Vining Davis Foundation.

Carillon Series Continues

The Summer Carillon Series continues at 4:45 p.m., Sunday, June 30, with special guest Robin Austin. Austin was named full-time carillonneur of the Thomas Rees Memorial Carillon in Springfield, Ill., last September and is only the third individual to hold this position since the carillon's completion in 1962. The Rees Carillon is recognized as one of the world's major carillon centers largely as a result of its International Carillon Festival—celebrating 52 years. Prior to his Springfield appointment, Austin served as Princeton University's carillonneur for 20 years. At Princeton he has been the principle carillon instructor for Anton Fleissner, who has played in Sewanee for five summers and who will be playing here on July 7. Austin's program will include five well-known Stephen Foster songs and music by Corelli, Giuliani and others.

Downing Named to Franklin County Schools Post

Rebecca Sharber has announced that she is naming Finee Downing to the position of elementary supervisor for the Franklin County School District upon the retirement of Nancy Graham at the end of June.

"When Nancy informed me that she was ready to retire, I was very sad and concerned about being able to find someone who could step into the awesome responsibilities of our elementary director at this time in our county," said Sharber. "I asked Nancy to help me in the interview process so we could determine who that person would be together. We are both pleased with Ms. Downing and believe that she has the background and experience that will allow her to pick up where Nancy is leaving and continue our forward movement."

Downing earned a bachelor's degree, a master's degree and an education specialist degree in elementary education. She also holds a reading specialist certification and an administrative-supervision certification.

In addition, she has completed the coursework for a doctorate in reading. She has taught at the elementary level and been an instructional coach.

In addition, she has served as a senior consultant and a district implementation advisor for the Consortium of Reading Excellence. While working for CORE, she provided support for implementing best practices for teaching reading to district level personnel, principals, reading coordinators, literacy coaches and teachers.

"Finee has the exact experience I had hoped to have in our next elementary supervisor," said Sharber. "She has a strong background and years of experience in elementary education. In addition, she has a superior background and experience in the area of reading, which is an area that needs improving in our school district."

Coalmont Summer Reading Program

Coalmont's public library announces its summer reading programs, "Dig into Reading," "Beneath the Surface" and "Ground-Breaking" (for adults). Participants may sign up any time during the month of July. There is no charge to sign up, and you are not obligated to attend.

Story times will be at 3 p.m. on Wednesday, July 3; at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, July 8, with Star, the therapy dog; at noon on Tuesday, July 22; and at 11:30 a.m. on Tuesday, July 29.

Wednesdays feature fun project sessions: 2 p.m. on July 10, make a pet rock; 2 p.m. on July 17, make a fossil; at noon on July 24, plant something day; and at 3 p.m. on July 31, build your own dirt cake.

Thursdays also offer cool programs. Though the library is closed for Independence Day, July 4, Ranger Brent and Ruby the Snake will be at the library on July 11; there will be a pizza party at 1 p.m. on July 18; and at 1 p.m. on July 25, the Tennessee Aquarium will showcase "Tropical Treasures."

Volunteers are welcome to sign up to help with the library. For more information call Fran Adams at the library, (931) 592-9373.

Writers' Conference Announces Faculty

The University of the South will host the 24th session of the Sewanee Writers' Conference, July 23–August 4. Supported by the Walter E. Dakin Memorial Fund, established thanks to the estate of the late Tennessee Williams, the Conference will gather a distinguished faculty to provide instruction and criticism through workshops and craft lectures in poetry, fiction and playwrighting.

This year's faculty includes fiction writers Richard Bausch, Tony Earley, Diane Johnson, Randall Kenan, Jill McCorkle, Alice McDermott, Erin McGraw, Tim O'Brien, Christine Schutt and Steve Yarbrough; and poets Daniel Anderson, Claudia Emerson, Robert Hass, Andrew Hudgins, Maurice Manning, Mary Jo Salter, A.E. Stallings and Mark Strand. Daisy Foote and Dan O'Brien will lead the playwrighting workshop.

In addition, a number of writers, critics, agents and visitors will take part. Those who will discuss writing from the point of view of editing or publishing include David Barber (The Atlantic), Georges and Anne Borchardt (Georges Borchardt Literary Agency), Valerie Borchardt (Georges Borchardt Literary Agency), Barbara Epler (New Directions), Gary Fisketjon (Alfred A. Knopf), Mary Flinn (Blackbird), Gail Hochman (Brandt & Hochman Literary Agency), Roger Hodge (The Oxford American), John Irwin (The Hopkins Review), David Lynn (The Kenyon Review), Speer Morgan (The Missouri Review), Kathy Pories (Algonquin Books), Elisabeth Schmitz (Grove/Atlantic), Don Share (Poetry), Philip Terzian (The Weekly Standard), Liz Van Hoose (The Viking Press) and Robert Wilson (The American Scholar).

Other visitors will include Michelle Brower (Folio Literary Management), Leigh Feldman (Writers House), Mike Levine (Northwestern University Press), Emily Morse (New Dramatists), Amy Williams (McCormick & Williams), and Renée Zuckerbrot (Renée Zuckerbrot Literary Agency). Elizabeth Spencer and poet Sidney Wade will also read from their work.

The Conference will offer its Walter E. Dakin Fellowships and Tennessee Williams Scholarships, as well as awards in memory of Stanley Elkin, Donald Justice, Howard Nemerov, Father William Ralston, Peter Taylor, Mona Van Duyn and John N. Wall. Additional scholarships have been made possible by Georges and Anne Borchardt and Gail Hochman.

HELPING TO MAKE SOUTHERN TENNESSEE HEALTHIER

If he were casting a movie star to play Kaille, Coe said he'd want Mark Wahlberg in the part.

Kaille's nemesis in "Thieves' Quarry" is Sephira Pryce, a rival thiefmaker based on a historical figure. In Coe's world, however, this thiefmaker is a strong, sexy, fearless woman. Blending the real and the fantastic, as he does with this character, allows him to weave together the disparate threads of his professional life.

"Urban fantasy has magical elements, but is set in real cities so it has a gritty, realistic feel to it. It has a noir-ish voice, even with the colonial American vernacular," he said.

Shifting to a new genre has meant adopting a new pen name for this series.

"David B. Coe writes epic fantasy set in alternate worlds with a variety of points of view," he said. "D. B. Jackson writes historical fantasy with a single point of view."

The author name change helps the reader know what to expect, he said. "Author branding is not as painful as it sounds," he joked.

"Thieves' Quarry" will be released on July 2 in hardcover and as an e-book; both will be available wherever books are sold. It is published by Tor Books, a division of Macmillan Publishers.

Coe will have a book signing for "Thieves' Quarry" 11:30 a.m.–2 p.m., Thursday, July 4, at the University Book and Supply Store.

The first book in this series, "Thiefmaker," will be released in paperback on July 2. In addition to many fine reviews, Thiefmaker was named "Best First Book in a Series" for 2012 by the Word Nerds and was listed as one of the best Science Fiction/Fantasy books of the year by SciFiChick.com.

Coe is best known for his fantasy fiction, including "Children of Amarid" and "The Outlanders," the first two novels of the LonTobyn Chronicle, which won the William L. Crawford Fantasy Award as the best fantasy by a first-time author.

facility in the downtown area. Gladu said several individuals had expressed an interest in operating the Sewanee Market for the next two years.

Police Chief Marie Eldridge addressed concerns about speeding on Highway 41-A. When public school is in session, there is an officer on duty there in the morning and afternoon, Chief Eldridge said, but speed monitoring is more "relaxed" during the summer months.

The speed trailer, which shows drivers their current speed, is occasionally placed on Highway 41-A. The typical excess speed there is 38–41 mph, she said. A resident suggested parking an unoccupied patrol car at the side of the road. A council member suggested purchasing an additional trailer, but Eldridge said it would cost $5,000–$6,000, and the money would be better spent on a permanent monitoring device.

Council representative Drew Sampson noted that several years ago the University said it would consider lowering the transfer fee assessed when an individual sold their home; the current fee is 1 percent of the value of the home. The council will review past meeting minutes to determine what was proposed and then refer the subject to the Lease Committee.

The next meeting of the Community Council is scheduled for August 23. The Council does not meet in July.

University Statement About Sewanee Market

The Sewanee Market, at the intersection of University Avenue and Highway 41-A, was purchased last year by the University of the South. The former co-owners, Connie Warner and Mike Reid, have been leasing the building since then and have continued to run the Market. The operators have recently closed the Market. The University is hopeful that another operator can be secured for a multiyear agreement.

The Market site is an important part of downtown and will be integrated into the long-range planning process for this area. A market is one of the leading elements that the planners are considering for the future of that location.

SSMF at Friday Nights in the Park Tonight

Members of the Sewanee Summer Music Festival will perform at 8 p.m., tonight (Friday), June 28, at the Angel Park in Sewanee. Community members are encouraged to bring chairs or blankets to sit on at this free, family-friendly event. University Avenue will be closed off at 6:30 p.m., and food and drinks will be available.

Friday Nights in the Park will continue each week through the month of July.

On July 5, the band Boy Named Banjo (Barton Davies, William Reames and Will Logan) will perform. They write and play music that is strongly influenced by bluegrass and Americana. Davies and Reames are rising sophomores at Sewanee. Their song, "This Light," was featured in the Sewanee video filmed by Stephen Alvarez. Their first professionally-produced CD, "The Tanglewood Sessions," consists of original songs.

On July 12, John Michael Hurt and the Jay Faires Band are scheduled to perform. Hurt began playing music in the 1960s at the age of twelve. From 1966 to 1976, he traveled the eastern United States as a working musician. After leaving the scene, he continued to write and perform occasionally with friends until 9/11, when he was inspired to write and perform again. He released a progressive rock album in August and has another on the way.

Jay Faires released his first CD, "Huntsville City Limit," when he was 13 years old. Now 16, Jay has opened for artists David Allan Coe (2011), Rhett Akins (2010), John Anderson (2009), and Chris Cagle (2012). He plays blues, rock, folk, reggae and bluegrass covers, and writes and performs blues and rock. Jay is a rising senior at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School.

The Slim Chance Band is slated for July 19. The band plays bluegrass and old-time music. They got started as a volunteer effort to play for the dance events at various fiddlers' conventions around the South. Soon they began entering competitions in bluegrass and old-time, placing often and winning some. In 2012 the band placed first at the Smithville Fiddlers' Jamboree and at the Tennessee Valley Old-Time Fiddlers' Convention.

On July 26, singer-songwriter Lee Gibson will perform. His work ranges from traditional country to Texas Americana to more modern, contemporary country. About him, Music City News said, "Take the best of Alan Jackson, stir in a little Kenny Chesney, shake well with Joe Nichols, and you have the music of Lee Gibson."

Fridays in the Park is made possible by the following sponsors: The Blue Chair Café and Tavern, Locals, Myer's Point, Southern Community Bank, Harmony Homes, Woody's Bike Shop, Lawson Winchester Goodson Wealth Management, Danley Heating and Air, Arrington Vineyards, Russell Barnett Automotive Group, Monteagle Sewanee Rotary, Mauzy Construction, St. Andrew's-Sewanee School, Henley Supply and Millwork, Sovereign Title and Escrow, Hatchett Insurance, Joseph's Remodeling Solutions, Sewanee Family Practice, Sewanee Mountain Messenger and Big A Designs and Printing.

The Sewanee Business Alliance promotes, plans and executes community and business projects to improve Sewanee's image and strengthen the economic welfare locally.

Citizenship and Faith Topic of July 1 MSSA Lecture

On Monday, July 1, at 11 a.m., Reverend Oliver "Buzz" Thomas will give a talk, "Of Piety and Patriotism: The Delicate Dance of Citizenship and Faith."

Thomas is a Baptist minister, an attorney and First Amendment law professor, and is currently president of the Great Schools Partnership in Knoxville. He earned his undergraduate and law degrees from the University of Tennessee, a master of divinity degree from New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary, and master of laws degree from the University of Virginia. He has served churches in Tennessee and Louisiana, has practiced law at every level of state and federal courts, including the United States Supreme Court, and is co-author of "Finding Common Ground," the First Amendment handbook endorsed by the Department of Education and used in many of the nation's public schools.

Thomas is also author of "10 Things Your Minister Wants to Tell You (But Can't Because He Needs the Job)," and writes a column for USA Today. His talk at the assembly will be on the theme of balancing the sometimes competing claims of citizenship and religious faith. Is it possible to be a good citizen and a faithful Christian/Jew/Muslim? The talk will be in Warren Chapel at the Monteagle Assembly.

In addition, the Sewanee Summer Music Festival will present a chamber music concert on Tuesday, July 2, at 8:15 pm in Warren Chapel.

Both events are free and open to the public. Stop at the gate for a free four-hour pass.

Sewanee's Fowler Center to Host Book Fair in July

The 2013 Tennessee Antiquarian Book Fair will be held July 20–21 at the Fowler Center on the campus of the University of the South in Sewanee. Booksellers from more than half the states east of the Mississippi River and at least one foreign country will exhibit at this year's fair. Virginia, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, New York and Florida are just some of the states represented by participating booksellers.

For the last three years the fair has been held in Cowan, but the new venue was chosen to allow the Tennessee Antiquarian Booksellers' Association to host more booksellers than in previous years.

The fair will include a variety of collectable and rare books, autographed documents and other ephemera. Bibliophiles will discover modern first editions of literature, mystery, and science fiction. Collectable books and documents concerning the War Between the States, the American Revolution and both World Wars will be available. Dealers specializing in children's literature, art, religion, fine bindings and books about books will also be exhibiting at the fair. Book prices ranging from $10 to $50,000 are sure to pique the interest of the leisure reader as well as the most avid collector.

The fair will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, July 20, and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sunday, July 21. Admission is $5 for adults and free to those under 18. The price covers both days and includes attendance at all lectures as well as admission to the fair. For more information go to <www.TENNABA.org>.

Humane Society Breaks Ground for New Animal Harbor Shelter

The Franklin County Humane Society held its 5k run, Bow Wow Walk, and ground-breaking celebration on June 22 and raised about $17,000 for the society's new shelter. So far, more than $300,000 has been raised toward the $500,000 goal for the new facility.

The events started early Saturday morning with the 5k Run and Bow Wow Walk at Winchester City Park. Both were hugely successful, with more than 200 participants overall. Many of the dogs participating in the walk were former residents of the shelter. Animal Harbor extends a special thanks to Brandi Scott and the Franklin County Bon Temps Club, Dianna Ogden, Sharon Conroy, Joyce McCumber and Karen Warr for organizing these events and to Moore-Cortner Funeral Home for the use of their tents.

More than 250 people attended the ground-breaking celebration at North Middle School, where attendees enjoyed free food, inflatable fun for the kids and entertainment. A special highlight was the release of 20 white doves by the North family of Watson-North Funeral Home.

The winners of the Best Dish of Franklin County Contest went to Camino Real in the Savory Category and Plum Cute Cakes in the Sweet Category.

The second-place winners were the Blue Chair Bakery in the Savory Category and the Donut Palace in the Sweet Category. Other participating restaurants were Arezzo's, Crossroads Café, IvyWild, Julia's, Larry's BBQ, Natural Bridge Catering, Pearl's, San Miguel's, University of the South Dining Services, Sugar Coated, Tastebuds and Wendy's.

Animal Harbor extends a special thanks to Southern Tennessee Medical Center, Watson-North Funeral Services, Reliable Rental, Patrick Greer, Bazzania, the Good Time Gals, announcer Chris Ogden, photographer Joy Snead, the participating restaurants, the businesses who sponsored the events or donated supplies, and all of the volunteers, staff and board members for making this a wonderful and memorable ground-breaking celebration. Animal Harbor appreciates the Herald Chronicle, WZYX, WCMT and the Sewanee Mountain Messenger for all of the weeks of announcements for these events.

AT THE MOVIES

SEWANEE UNION THEATRE

Friday–Monday, June 28–July 1, 7:30 p.m.

Warm Bodies

Rated PG-13 • 98 minutes

The first time I saw a trailer for “Warm Bodies,” my initial reaction was “Oh goodie, another mindless undead teenage love story.” Then the movie began to look good because it included “October” by the Broken Bells as background music, and the internal narration by the main character, R, gave the film a quirky feel. How many zombie movies have you seen where it is narrated by the zombie? His internal monologue is better than what comes out of his mouth, which consists of grunts and humming groans.

“Warm Bodies” is a post-apocalyptic love story between a zombie, R (Nicholas Hoult), and zombie-killing girl next door, Julie (Teresa Palmer). R saves Julie from other zombies and subsequently falls in love with her. He takes her through a zombie-infested airport to his dilapidated plane-turned-zombie bachelor-pad (complete with Bob Dylan on vinyl), and a strange relationship between the living and the undead is formed. R begins to change, and this effect ripples through the zombie population. Julie sees R becoming more human and realizes there is a possible cure for the zombies. R and Julie must find a way to bridge the gap between the paranoid living bent on zombie destruction and the zombies struggling to become human again. Rated PG-13 for zombie violence (who knew?) and some language.—Sarah E. Beavers, SMM Intern

The SUT will not offer a movie during the Fourth of July weekend. The next movie, “42” will be shown Thursday–Sunday, July 11–14.

Claire Vaye Watkins

School of Letters Reading July 10

Author and Sewanee School of Letters faculty member Claire Vaye Watkins will read from her work at 4:30 p.m., Wednesday, July 10, in Gailor Auditorium. Books will be sold at the end of the readings.

A graduate of the University of Nevada-Reno, Watkins earned her MFA from the Ohio State University, where she was a presidential fellow.

Her collection of short stories, “Battleborn” (Riverhead Books), won the Story Prize, the New York Public Library Young Lions Fiction Award and the Rosenthal Family Foundation Award from the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

An assistant professor at Bucknell University, she is also the co-director of the Mojave School, a nonprofit creative writing workshop for teenagers in rural Nevada.

Green Revolving Fund Ushers in New Era of Energy Conservation

A new grant to the University from the Jessie Ball duPont Fund will establish a Green Revolving Fund that will be the basis for substantial conservation investments during the coming decades. The $50,000 grant was matched by $100,000 in contributions from Sewanee friends, including an anonymous donor and Angie and Jimmy Hungerpiller, C’78.

The Green Revolving Fund will become a focal point for investments in conservation on campus. It is a permanent revolving loan fund for making internal loans to finance retrofit projects that promise a predictable level of savings. Marvin Pate, director of sustainability integration, estimates that $3 million–$5 million in conservation investment could save the University $500,000 or more every year. The savings in energy use will correspond to a savings in greenhouse gas emission.

According to Pate, a reduction in energy at that level may be accomplished through conservation retrofits such as a campus-wide lighting retrofit, including exterior lighting; installation of occupancy sensors to turn off lighting in unoccupied spaces; replacement of HVAC systems; upgrade of electrical motors to highest efficiency; and reducing air infiltration.

The 2013 grant follows a previous grant from the Jessie Ball duPont Fund to help Sewanee begin preparing for substantial savings. The previous grant supported such activities as a substantial data gathering project that provides direction for energy savings.

“We have several students working this summer on a culmination of that first grant and on a project that you could see as a ramp-up for the green revolving fund. These students are de-lamping (removing unnecessary light bulbs) and replacing all our 32-watt fluorescent bulbs with a 25-watt bulb that puts out the same amount of light. This is just one kind of project we will be able to fund with the Green Revolving Fund,” Pate said. He estimates that on this summer’s project alone, the University will eventually realize $20,000 to $30,000 in annual savings.

The project also demonstrates that the work of energy conservation has both a human and technical dimension. On a warm day in June, the students on the lighting team were met by two electricians from physical plant services. “We’re getting some complaints about the work you did in Guerry,” one worker says. “People think it’s dark in the bathrooms, and they don’t hesitate to call us to complain.” Jonathan Salazar, C’13, counters that the lighting meets international standards for adequate lighting in a public toilet. “Well, people see missing bulbs and think they need to be filled,” the staff member clarifies. After a few minutes, the group arrives at a consensus: keep doing what you are doing but make sure you get the message out about the goals of the project and the process. Technology, education and communication are all part of changing the institution’s energy use.

Other key parts of an energy sustainability plan include carbon sequestration in the 13,000-acre forested Domain, purchasing renewable power from the local utility and generating renewable energy through wind and solar. Sewanee’s existing photovoltaic system has a capacity of 33kW and generates 46,000kWh per year. The Snowden system was designed and installed by Andrew McCalla, C’94, and funded by gifts from Gregg Robertson, C’78, faculty members in the department of forestry and geology and other friends.

I LIKE TO WATCH

by Kiki Beavers

As I watch the news, I learn that one in six people struggle to put food on the table because they cannot afford it. I learn food banks are struggling to get an adequate supply from the USDA, including commodities, in order to help feed people. More than one-third of Americans are obese, and another third are just overweight. TV talking heads blame socioeconomic, two-working-parent households and food that is fast, convenient, made to taste good and bad for you.

I learn more about the national Hostess Company closing and the ensuing bad news of people losing their jobs. I watch the news and see images of people depleting the grocery shelves of Hostess brand snack cakes and bread. The Hostess Company sells off its brands, and a former competitor, Nature's Own, snaps up Wonder Bread.

I look at the bread labels. For the "Smart 100% Whole Grain Wheat Wonder Bread," a serving size is two slices; each serving has 100 calories, one gram of fat, 17 grams of carbohydrates and 6 grams of protein. "Nature's Own Whole Wheat Bread," has a serving size of one slice; the serving has 50 calories, one gram of fat, 10 grams of carbohydrates and four grams of protein. Most people would choose the brand called Nature's Own. Maybe Wonder Bread should have marketed the better choice differently.

The news reports include information on healthy and organic foods. Eat free-range chicken, but what exactly are those chickens eating? Eggs are bad for you. Coffee is bad for you. Do not eat margarine. Butter is the worst thing you can put in your mouth. Soda pops bigger than 16 ounces are the root of all evil. Grain-feed beef or cows that are just fed?

This makes me wonder about food trends and choices. We all know that too much of anything is bad for you. We have a choice, but place blame on food companies for not solely offering healthy food choices.

As a child, satisfaction came from eating a sandwich made with some of our vine-ripened tomatoes on Wonder Bread after biking around the neighborhood. The best-ever snack was a frozen Twinkie after softball practice on the way to the swimming pool. We enjoyed beef from cows that were fed on our farm. I ate what I wanted and was somewhat physically active. Today, I blame my weight problem on my Norwegian ancestry: storing every calorie possible for the winter that is never going to come.

I think the blame in America should be placed on the fact we are a prepared-food, fast-food nation, not on the abundance of "bad" foods. We want food now, and we want it all the time, not just during the normal growing season. Big companies answer with mass-produced prepared foods, grown on commercial farms and placed in cans and plastic. Easy and convenient are now the choices. Those did not happen overnight.

People eat canned green beans with too much salt and turkey injected with chicken broth to make it more juicy and tender. People watch too much TV. Kids play computer games instead of going outside. We allow PE classes and sports programs to be cut in schools because of budget concerns. These are choices.

Convenience is a choice. Cars are driven to one big-box store to take care of grocery shopping, rotating the car's tires, and banking needs instead of walking around to all the different businesses that used to be on a downtown square. To some it is easier to pick up a Hostess snack cake than to make a cake from scratch with real ingredients. Of course, real ingredients often consist of eggs gathered from a store, and flour and sugar processed in a commercial plant.

There are choices when deciding to eat out at a restaurant, when selecting food at the grocery store and when making dinner at home. There are choices when it comes to riding a bike or taking a walk. There are choices in helping to feed the hungry.

If you want to learn why you should never eat fast food, watch "Super Size Me" or "Fast Food Nation." What kind of food products do you have in your pantry, freezer or fridge? Do you have a garden planted with an extra row to help feed others? As a fast-food nation, we cannot solely place the blame on the Twinkie.

If reading all this about junk food has made you salivate, get ready, because Hostess has just announced that Twinkies and many of its other sugary treats will be available again in stores on July 15.

Rami Vamos

SSMF Kids Week Set

The Sewanee Summer Music Festival is pleased to announce a special community engagement effort lead by Rami Vamos, professor of education and community engagement of the SSMF.

Every day at 11 a.m., during the week of July 8–12, a class will be offered at the University of the South to all children ages kindergarten to fifth grade from all the surrounding communities of Sewanee. Families and small children are welcome to come learn about music, the arts and how to appreciate the arts community that is available year-round in Sewanee.

Students will also have the opportunity to interact with instruments, hear music, explore musical themes and emotions, and of course, a chance to participate in group activities. This will be a collaborating experience for the students and a great opportunity for parents to professionally introduce their children to music.

All the music workshops by Vamos will help prepare students to enjoy a special concert at 8 p.m., Tuesday, July 16, at the Monteagle Sunday School Assembly. Kids will follow the antics of the zany composer "Wolfgang Amadeus Schmutzinberry" as he creates his masterpiece to the sounds of live music. Wolfgang Amadeus Schmutzinberry will need help from composers, musicians on stage, as well as the interaction from the children in the audience.

Combining his talents as a performer, educator, writer and composer, Vamos has produced a wide array of creative output, ranging from children's musicals to chamber compositions. For the past 10 years he has used these creations to share an appreciation of classical music with people of all ages and backgrounds.

Parade Marshals Named

Betty Carpenter & Anne Lorenz

Tying in with this year's theme of an "Apple Pie Fourth of July," the parade committee chose "Feed the Body, Feed the Mind" as its guide when choosing the 2013 Parade Grand Marshals. Betty Carpenter, in addition to her work with local youth, serves as interim director of the Community Action Committee (CAC) from Otey Parish. She oversees an extensive program that supplies food and other assistance for our community.

Anne Lorenz has tutored scores of local children over the years. From her home overlooking Lost Cove, she has taken her love of nature and applied it in working with her students to supplement and compliment their individual learning styles.

Between Now and the Fourth of July

Crow Creek Valley

The Crow Creek Valley will be celebrating America beginning at 2 p.m., Saturday, June 29, at the Community Center in Sherwood. There will be food, a cornhole tournament, water slide, bounce house, bingo, parade, live entertainment with music and a local Tumblers group, and more. For more information, contact Kathy at 691-3603 or Bryan at 598-0450.

Pelham Valley

The Pelham Valley community will begin its July Fourth celebration at 6 p.m., tonight (Friday) June 28, with a beauty pageant at Pelham Elementary School. At 6:30 p.m., David Sampley and Neal Parson will provide entertainment. On Saturday, June 29, at 9 a.m. the parade forms at the fire team building; the parade begins at 10

Area Fourth of July Events and Activities

open by appointment through July 31.

At 10:30 a.m., also at the University Archives, Merritt Blakeslee will present "A Rite Sharp Little Fight": Skirmish On Sewanee Mountain, July 4, 1863," detailing one of the last engagements in the area.

Pat a Cake, Pat a Cake

Ivy Wild Restaurant and The Blue Chair are firing up the competition for the Fourth of July Cake Contest this year. Ivy Wild will give $100 to the Grand Prize Winner and $50 gift certificates to each of the three winners in the 13 and older group. The Blue Chair will award three $5 gift certificates for ice cream to each of the winners in the 12 and younger group.

Beginning at 9 a.m. at the Blue House at 400 University Ave., contestants may deliver their cakes. Registration for entries will end at 9:45 a.m. Judges will announce the winners at 10:30 a.m. Cakes will be on display to the public 10:30–11:30 a.m. All contestants must pick up their cakes at 11:30 a.m. Individual contestants who would like to share their cakes may do so at 11:30 a.m. in the front yard of the Blue House. For more information contact Flournoy Rogers by email, <fsrogers@wildblue.net>, or call 598-0733.

It Tolls for Thee

At 1 p.m., John Bordley and Raymond Gotko will present a carillon recital at All Saints' Chapel.

Silent Auction for CAST

The Craft Artists of Southern Tennessee (CAST) are having their annual Fourth of July silent auction at Locals Gallery in Sewanee. The event is 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The CAST silent auction is a fund-raiser for the group's projects throughout the year. CAST is the local chapter of TACA, the Tennessee Association of Craft Artists, whose mission is to encourage, develop and promote craft and craft artists in Tennessee.

Yum-Yum

Good food is always a big part of the Fourth. This year there will be a great variety to suit any taste.

Visit CCJP's July 4 booth for roasted, locally grown sweet corn from Valley Home Farms in Pelham.

Also selling food will be: Preston Greer, lemonade; Sequatchie Valley Holiness Church, hamburgers, hot dogs, cotton candy; New Beginnings Church, hamburgers, hot dogs, drinks; Dessie Taylor, BBQ pork, baked beans, coleslaw, beef hot dogs, fried pies; Dennis Mayfield, kettle corn; Ginny Capel, hot dogs and cold water.

Mike and Shirley Winn, wraps, nachos, watermelon; Suzanne Naumann,

Pop Culture popsicles; Dorothy Buck, ice cream (she will be at the fireworks show, as well); and Crossroads Café, chicken, wraps. The Blue Chair and Julia's will also be open.

Angel Park = Love Shack?

Davidson Local will play in Angel Park on July 4 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. This band includes the Swallow family of Sewanee. The group plays a variety of genres, including all the original work of songwriter John Wertheimer, rock, folk, pop, English ballad, disco and a Thanksgiving rap—they have it all! Guitar, bass, drums, sax, violin/fiddle, and multiple vocal harmonies.

Keep Your Fork! There's Pie.

Fifteen lucky contestants will vie for the $75 prize to see who can eat three delicious pies in the shortest time. There is a $5 entrance fee, and the deadline to enter is Monday, July 1. The pies have been donated by the Piggly Wiggly in Monteagle.

For more information, contact Ginny Capel at <sewaneesweets@gmail.com>.

Grumpy Cat in Sewanee?

This year's Cat Show has a special enticement for animal lovers. For every entry into the contest, an anonymous cat lover will make a $10 donation to Animal Harbor. Bring your cat and help the shelter.

Virginia Craighill will emcee again. There are categories for biggest cat, smallest cat, look-alike cat, best-decorated carrier, most impressive ear fur and/or toe fur, grumpiest cat and the cat with the most "catitude."

And, we hope that the Internet sensation Grumpy Cat will make an appearance.

Best Friend to All

Registration for the Mutt Show will be from 9 to 9:50 a.m. The show begins at 10 a.m. in Manigault Park. Lizzie Duncan returns as the show's emcee. Judges this year are Stephen Burnette, Shawna Laurendine and Phil White.

Dr. Matt Petrilla's fabulous trophies will be awarded for all the canine categories: best dressed, Yankee doodle doggie, owner/dog look-alike, best trick and judge's choice. Entrants may register for one category or one category plus judge's choice.

I Love a Parade!

"The Apple Pie Fourth of July... An All-American Fourth" is now accepting applications for the parade. The parade will begin at 2 p.m. To enter the parade or for questions, contact parade coordinator Heather Walsh at <Heather.W@12dc.org> or call (678) 617-0505.

Jenny Liles with Mark Webb, Sewanee's athletic director

Liles is Sewanee's 30th NCAA Postgrad Scholar

Sewanee student-athlete Jenny Liles, C'13, has been awarded a prestigious NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship.

NCAA Postgraduate Scholarships are awarded to student-athletes who excel academically and athletically and who are in their final year of intercollegiate athletic competition.

Tennis player Liles, the 2013 University of the South valedictorian, truly embodies what it means to be a successful student-athlete.

This past spring, Liles received the first-ever Southern Athletic Association (SAA) Woman of the Year award while also being named a 2013 Capital One College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA) Academic All-American.

Liles was named the Sewanee athletic department's co-Female Athlete of the Year and earned Intercollegiate Tennis Association (ITA) All-American honors in both singles and doubles. A First-Team All-SAA honoree, Liles finished college with a 4.0 grade point average in biochemistry and English.

This past season, Liles led Sewanee to the 2013 SAA Championship, the third round of the NCAA Tournament and a No. 15 ITA national ranking. Over her career, Liles was a four-time all-conference selection while leading the Tigers to a pair of NCAA Tournament berths. Liles also qualified for two NCAA Singles and Doubles Championships.

Off the court, Liles was a four-time all-conference academic honoree and ITA Scholar Athlete. She was a member of the Omicron Delta Kappa National Leadership Honor Society and served as President of the Alpha Epsilon Delta National Medical Society.

Additionally, Liles served as an Arcadian, a member of the Order of Gownsmen, a Benedict Scholar and was the vice president of Phi Beta Kappa. Finally, Liles was named the University of the South's 2012 Homecoming Queen.

Liles was recently accepted into the College of Medicine at the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences, where she is scheduled to attend this fall.

A native of Little Rock, Ark., Liles is the daughter of Gary and Marci Liles. Her younger sister Lindsey is currently a rising sophomore on the Tiger women's tennis team.

Liles joins former Sewanee women's tennis student-athlete Jordan Casey, C'09, as an NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship winner. Liles also becomes the third Tiger this year to win an NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship after swimmers Phillip Link and Sara Neil were named recipients in April.

With 30 Postgraduate Scholarship recipients, Sewanee ranks among the nation's leading institutions in any NCAA division. Created in 1964, NCAA Postgraduate Scholarships promote and encourage education by rewarding the Association's most accomplished student-athletes. There are 29 male and 29 female student-athletes honored, with each receiving $7,500.

Results of the 17th Annual Butterfly Census

Sewanee's 17th Annual Butterfly Census, held on Saturday, June 22, was a great success and demonstrated that the Mountain continues to support a diverse and vibrant butterfly population. Despite heavy rains during the week leading up to the count, observers identified 31 different species and more than 170 individual butterflies.

The census, led by professor of biology David Haskell and local author David B. Coe, covered most of the Sewanee area.

Counters started the day at Lake Cheston and made stops at several sites, including the horse farm, the Cross, the Mountain Goat Trail, Abbo's Alley, Green's View, the downtown area, Lake O'Donnell and the St. Andrew's-Sewanee campus. In all, the counters logged 20 miles by car and approximately six on foot.

The 31 species seen during the census represents a substantial increase over last year's number, which was held down by drought and heat. On the other hand, the 170 individuals seen was somewhat low when compared with other years. Last year, for instance, the count recorded over 400 individual butterflies. Said David Coe, one of the count leaders, "Everything has been a bit late this year, and we've seen a lot of rain and relatively cool temperatures. That could have held down our numbers a little."

Highlights of the day included two Goatweed Leafwings, uncommon butterflies, large and orange, that had only been recorded once before on the Sewanee count. Counters also saw more than 80 Eastern Tailed-Blues, which are tiny blue butterflies with a small but brilliant patch of orange on their wings.

The census organizers were fortunate to receive help from so many enthusiastic volunteers. They would like to thank the following people for participating in the count: Patrick Mineo, Jonathan Carpenter, Lynn Blankenship, Alice Elizabeth Bradford and James Bradford.

OUTSIDEIN

by Patrick Dean

Occasionally I grab my climbing shoes and chalk bag and stroll down to the end of my block. There stands a stone wall, about seven feet tall and 25 or so feet long, built by the power company. The stones are placed just right for a climbing workout; I can practice traversing, moving from side to side, using finger- and toe-holds in various ways.

On the other side of the wall, 20 feet away, stand the stark metal components of our electrical grid, connected by wires to the generators that produce our power and to the buildings that consume it. I face them as I work back and forth along the stones, but can't see them at all, though I can sometimes hear the humming of current moving through the system.

My thoughts stray and wander, as they can so easily when one is concentrating on a mainly physical activity; soon I'm pondering how we think of places. It seems to me that we do too good a job of dividing and categorizing places in our world.

There are spots that we recognize and set aside for their beauty: Fiery Gizzard and Foster Falls, lakes, parks. And then there are places that we by common consent set aside to be made ugly: parking lots, strip malls, gravel pits, junk yards.

Why, though? Are those 'ugly' places somehow worth less than the 'beautiful' ones? Who decided, and on what basis, which would be saved, and which not tended with care?

Aren't all land, all places the same? If any place is sacred, aren't all places sacred?

I once read a quotation to the effect that long ago, art and religion were integrated totally into people's lives, indistinguishable from their daily existence. Then, art became "art," to be hung on walls and closed off in museums, somehow apart from what we do every waking moment; religion became "religion," consulted in churches on Sundays and led by appointed people—again, somehow separated from the everyday.

It's certainly easier that way. To wall off art and religion is to give ourselves permission not to think continually of how they could inform and infuse everything we do, every day. By dividing the world into places we love and places we violate, we're spared having to take the time, expense, and, above all, care required to treat all of it with love and respect.

I'm glad that there are museums and churches. I have felt awe while staring up at El Capitan in Yosemite National Park, and while hiking through the Hoh Rainforest on the Olympic Peninsula in Washington.

And yeah, that electrical grid makes it possible for me to grind my coffee beans and to type these words on this laptop. I send bags of garbage off to our local dump. You might call me an accomplice to our culture's choosing of places to trash, while keeping others pristine.

Which is to say, I can't wrap this up tidily for us. I can't say, "Let's all do this, and it'll resolve the issue." Maybe it's just about noticing, and about trying not to separate our places, our lives; maybe it's about being aware. I think that'll do for a first step.

Fritillary Butterflies

Jean Yeatman reports that "There were three Great Spangled Fritillary butterflies, and one male and one female Diana Fritillary feasting on the blooms of my oregano plants. This is such a good opportunity to compare the Great Spangled Fritillary male to the Diana Fritillary male. They both have a wing-spread of about two inches. The Great Spangled Fritillary's upper wings are tawny-orange of dots on the outer wings and a light brown toward the body. The under back wings are variously studded with silvery white spots below.

"The Diana Fritillary male has orange with dots on the outer edge of its wings," she continued, "and a very dark brown on the center of its wings. It has a habit of flying about very rapidly, then feeding for a short time, then flying about again and coming back to feed. The female is a dark blue-black in color. This is a rather rare species found in the mountains," she concluded, "and it prefers woodlands to open country."

Pets of the Week

Meet Tula and Kabuki

The Franklin County Humane Society's Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption.

Tula is an exceptionally sweet 6-month-old Heeler mix who loves people. She is great with other dogs and with children. Tula is up-to-date on shots and spayed.

Kabuki is a 3-month-old kitten who likes to cuddle and play. He loves to zoom around the cat play room at full speed. Kabuki is negative for FeLV and FIV, house-trained, up-to-date on shots and neutered.

For a limited time, two kittens may be adopted together for one adoption fee of $75. Having two kittens is better than one because they play together and keep each other company. Adult cats may be adopted for a $40 fee during this special.

Every Friday is Black Friday at Animal Harbor. On Fridays, adoption fees will be reduced 50 percent for black or mostly black pets more than 4 months old who have been at Animal Harbor for more than a month. Pets adopted from Animal Harbor qualify for a free post-adoption wellness exam by local veterinarians.

Call Animal Harbor at 962-4472 for information and check out the other pets at <www.animalharbor.com>. Enter their drawing on this site for a free spay or neuter for one of your pets. Please help the Humane Society continue to save abandoned pets by sending your donations to P. O. Box 187, Winchester, TN 37398.

Keep Utility Poles Clear of Attachments

As part of Duck River Electric Membership Cooperative's routine line-inspection program, numerous potential safety hazards have been identified throughout our service area as a result of members of the public attaching items to DREMC utility poles.

While the cooperative recognizes that members may find it convenient to attach equipment to our poles, this can be hazardous because of the high-voltage power lines. Unauthorized attachments also pose danger to co-op personnel who must climb poles when restoring power following storms or while performing routine maintenance to ensure system reliability.

"Unauthorized hazards pose a threat to the linemen's ability to safely climb wooden poles," emphasized Timmy Orrell, DREMC safety coordinator. "Small objects such as nails and tacks keep climbing gaffs from penetrating the pole, increasing fall potential. Larger objects such as flags, birdhouses, basketball goals and satellite dishes make it difficult for the linemen to navigate a pole while climbing and could cause a fall."

DREMC has the responsibility to provide protection during the installation, operation and maintenance of electrical supply lines and equipment. To safeguard against any foreseeable situation that could cause harm or create an unsafe circumstance for you, your family or our line personnel, DREMC has a long-standing policy prohibiting member's property from being attached to any cooperative pole.

If you currently have posted any equipment or signage of this nature, please make arrangements to have it removed. Safety is of the utmost concern when it comes to working around energized power lines. Contact the DREMC office if you are concerned about removing items yourself.

HEARING HEALTH NEWS

by Debbie Gamache,
M.S. CCC-A Audiologist

PUTTING IT MILDLY

Older individuals often deny any need for a hearing instrument by protesting that their hearing loss is mild. Research indicates, however, that even a mild hearing loss can result in significant communication difficulties. There is also evidence to suggest that mild hearing loss may negatively impact the memory. The earlier the person begins to utilize a hearing instrument, the easier it will be for his or her hearing system to adapt to listening to the amplified sounds.

If you have hearing loss, you are missing more than just the understanding of words. Hearing keeps you in touch with the world and lets you respond to sounds and reassures you of changing surroundings. A regular hearing test should be considered as important as your yearly physical checkup. THE HEARING CENTER, LLC offers comprehensive hearing services by an audiologist at 705B Northwest Atlantic St., Tullahoma, including evaluations, counseling, fittings, a full line of hearing instruments, follow-up support and repairs. Call us today at (931) 393-2051 or (888) 303-2051. You can visit our website at www.thehearingcenterllc.com.

BARDTOVERSE

by Scott and Phoebe Bates

Birthday of Jean Jacques Rousseau

The first man who, having enclosed a piece of ground, bethought himself of saying This is mine, and found people simple enough to believe him, was the real founder of civil society. From how many crimes, wars, and murders, from how many horrors and misfortunes might not any one have saved mankind, by pulling up the stakes, or filling up the ditch, and crying to his fellows: Beware of listening to this imposter; you are undone if you once forget that the fruits of the earth belong to us all, and the earth itself to nobody.

—Rousseau, "Discourse on the Origin and Basis of Inequality Among Men" (1754)

I die adoring God, loving my friends, not hating my enemies, and detesting superstition.

—Voltaire (Written February 28, 1778)

Mock on, mock on, Voltaire, Rousseau:
Mock on, mock on: 'tis all in vain!
You throw the sand against the wind,
And the wind blows it back again.

And every sand becomes a Gem,
Reflected in the beam divine;
Blown back they blind the mocking Eye,
But still in Israel's paths they shine.

The Atoms of Democritus
And Newton's Particles of Light
Are sands upon the Red Sea shore,
Where Israel's tents do shine so bright.

—William Blake, ca. 1800–03
