County Finance Committee Rejects School System Budget

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

At June 21 meeting, the Franklin County Finance Committee again rejected the proposed school system budget for the 2018–19 school year because of the request for $829,388 in new revenue. The largest portion of the new revenue was earmarked for a 2 percent raise for all certified and non-certified employees.

Finance committee member David Eldridge proposed the teachers' raises come from the fund balance, the reserve maintained by the school system to meet unexpected expenses. The fund balance is projected to be $2.8 million at the close of the 2018–19 school year.

Citing past years where the draw on the fund balance was $1.7 million to $2 million less than expected, Eldridge said he had "confidence" that would be the situation going forward.

"The budget is loaded with contingency expenses," Eldridge argued. He pointed to $200,000 for "unplanned openings" and a projected $100,000 increase in social security costs, insisting the budgeting process "assumes the worst case scenario."

Director of Schools Stanley Bean countered it was "not wise financial planning" to take money for teacher raises from the fund balance. In preparing the budget, County Deputy Finance Director Cindy Latham advised the school board not to draw the fund balance below $2.5 million, the amount needed to make payroll.

Basic Education Program (BEP) funding from the state would not fund a 2 percent teacher raise, Bean stressed.

"We're mandated to put money in certain areas to get us up to state minimums," Bean said. "The BEP money goes there first to plug holes. What's left is nowhere near enough for a 2 percent teacher raise."

Schools' Budget Leaves Emergency Reserves Dangerously Low

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

In a split decision, the Franklin County School Board voted 6 to 2 to approve a revised budget that reduces the school system's emergency reserve fund balance to a dangerously low $2.3 million. The vote was taken at the June 25 special called meeting, which occurred in response to the County Finance Committee's refusal to award the school system $829,388 in new revenue. The decision to take the new revenue needed from the fund balance will enable the schools system to pay $161,000 in increased health insurance costs, keep the Pre-K program operating at its current level, award contract bus drivers a 1.5 percent raise, and award teachers and non-certified employees a 2 percent cost of living raise.

County Deputy Finance Director Cindy Latham repeatedly advised the board not to draw the fund balance below $2.5 million, the amount needed to make payroll. "State basic education program funding comes monthly," Latham said, "but not always in time to make payroll."

"The fund balance has never been lower than what it takes to make

SUD to Replace Aging Water Lines

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

At the June 26 meeting, the Board of Commissioners of the Sewanee Utility District approved a $666,835 bid from Danson Construction to replace aging, constricted water lines on South and North Carolina Avenues, Clara's Point Road, and Florida Avenue. The restoration will increase customer water flows and address leaks. SUD considered doing the three segments of the restoration during a 3-year period. Concerns about increasing costs prompted the board to recommend proceeding with all three phases in 2018.

SUD has sufficient cash on hand to complete the project in 2018, although SUD will show a loss for the year. The firm under contract to review SUD's financial transactions advised SUD manager Ben Beavers the utility should maintain cash reserves equal to a year's operating expenses.

"We have two years in reserve," Beavers said. "We could spend $800,000 and maintain the recommended cash on hand."

Beavers flagged the South and North Carolina segment as a priority, with South Carolina having the worst constriction and highest leak potential. "The lines were installed in the 1920s," Beavers said.

The South and North Carolina replacement will also be the most disruptive to the University. The Florida segment will have the least impact. The contractor expects to begin in two weeks and to complete the project in 90 days.

All replaced lines will be upgraded from six inches to eight inches. The contractor's per linear foot charge is slightly higher than anticipated. Beavers attributed the higher cost to the presence of underground rock in the Florida Avenue area.

The board discussed just doing the South and North Carolina portion of the project this year. Beavers estimated the cost for the Florida Avenue segment would come in $3,500-$4,000 higher if SUD rebid the project in two years.

The replacement of aging water lines on Tennessee Avenue will be deferred for three years. The larger 10-inch line has less constriction and gives "very few problems," Beavers noted.

The lowest of three bidders, Danson Construction based in Sparta, Tenn., came highly recommended by both large contractors and small utilities. Danson completed jobs "on budget and on time" according to the sources Beavers consulted.

Octoπ Pizza and Wine Bar Opens in Sewanee

by Kevin Cummings
Messenger Staff Writer

Pizza, wine and beer are magic words to many people, and chef Keri Moser says she's invigorated by the options her new restaurant offers.

Moser owned IvyWild for more than eight years and today (Friday) officially opened Octoπ, a wood-fired pizza and wine bar in the same location on 36 Ball Park Rd. Ivy Wild was a fine dining restaurant that locals went to for a special night out and out-of-towners learned about through regional and national acclaim. But Moser needed a new venture.

"I've loved Ivy Wild and I'm really proud of it and I think we've done wonderful things over the years," she said. "I just believe everything has a lifespan and I have a certain attention span. I'm just ready to do something different and I'm super excited about this."

Michael Brady: A Man with a Mission

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

Editor's Note: This is the fifth in a series of interviews with some of the local candidates running for office. General election voting is Aug. 2.

Michael Brady, who seeks reelection as Grundy County mayor, took office mid crisis: an Affordable Care Act mandate to provide health insurance for county employees, cost $800,000, and state pressure to address jail overcrowding and fire code violations, or pay to house inmates elsewhere, cost $2.4 million. The county had just weathered a steep property tax hike and still verged on insolvency. Sixteen days into Brady's first term, the fund balance dropped $14,000 into the red.

"It was a scary time," Brady said.

Brady's mantra is a question: "How will the decisions we make today affect the citizens of Grundy County tomorrow?"

With the help of legal counsel, Brady opted out of the $800,000 state health care plan and met with a broker, designing a 70-30 co-pay plan with the county's cost just at $100,000.

"We could have done a cheaper plan, but I wanted to give the employees insurance with benefits," Brady said. Fines for failure to offer insurance would have cost the county $160,000 the first year and more in subsequent years.

Similar financial scrutiny showed building a new jail was wiser than housing inmates elsewhere. The sheriff introduced management practices that saved money, and Brady found a USDA loan with a locked in interest rate that wouldn't strain the county, given the additional funds available when the high school and Coalmont school debts are paid off in 2021 and 2022.

The county not only survived but thrived. It finished 2017 at $2.4 million in the black.

Brady insists combating poverty is Grundy County's most pressing need and to do that, the county needs living wage jobs.

Infrastructure, education, and industrial recruitment top Brady's list of prerequisites.

The county has 14 new road projects approved, Brady said, and he predicts the industrial park will soon be filled. "We've had two expansions, and a third one coming up, creating 30 new jobs." A recent $230,000 grant award will provide infrastructure

CAC THANK-YOU

To the Editor:

The Community Action Committee (CAC) thanks everyone who helped make the first annual "Gospel and Gumbo" a huge success. The cooks, the singers, the summer Vista workers and everyone who came were treated to old time gospel songs sung by the best. Thank you Blue Chair and Piggly Wiggly for donating the food. It was so much fun we'll do it again next year. Read the Messenger for the time and date for "Gospel and Gumbo" 2019. All proceeds go to the CAC, and the funds help us help others in the greater Sewanee community and Sherwood.

CLOTHING BANK HELP

To the Editor:

The Grundy County Clothing Bank is located on the way into Tracy City in the old high school complex.

It has been there for many years, and has assisted anyone who comes in by providing clothing and many other household items for their use at no cost to them. People do not have to prove an income level or jump through any hoops to get what they need. All they have to do is bring their own bag or box to take things home in.

The roof of the building we are in is in very bad shape, and leaks whenever it rains. It is making the building damp inside and spoiling a lot of the clothing to the point the clothing has to be thrown away. We are finding it hard to know who to ask for help, as we seem to be in a sort of no-man's land between the county and city government. "It's not my responsibility" seems to be the general feeling whenever we ask someone for assistance.

Can anybody out there help us to get our roof fixed? Does anyone know who really is the person in the city or county government we should ask, or what part of the budget our roof repair would fit into? We don't ask for much. We don't need much. But we do need help now. The roof has been bad for a while and it is getting worse.

We appreciate any help we can get. Thank you in advance.

*Ruth Alexander, Clothing Bank
Manager, Joyce Parsons,
Assistant Manager, Tracy City*

THANK-YOU

To the Editor:

I wanted to let everyone know that I am fully recovered, feeling much better, and I sincerely thank everyone for their cards, prayers, calls and gifts of food.

I will be back at work at Cuttin' Up Salon as of Thursday, July 5, working half days for the present.

Again, my thanks to everyone.

AT THE BORDER

To the Editor:

There is increasing public hysteria regarding the U.S. policy of separating children from illegal immigrant parents who are arrested. Concerns were recently raised by news photos of children being detained in what appeared to be cages. The deluge of people entering the U.S. illegally across the Mexican border is placing a huge strain on the U.S. Border Patrol and Department of Homeland Security.

According to the Washington Examiner, "Over 20,000 children a year are put into foster care because their American parents are taken to jail, 10 times the number of those separated when illegal immigrant parents try to sneak into the U.S. but are caught," said Peter N. Kirsanow, a commissioner on the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights. Under a 1997 agreement known as the Flores Settlement, the government is obligated to release migrant children in its custody, either to their parents, adult relatives or a foster care program.

In August 2014, the Bureau of Justice Assistance, U.S. Department of Justice, in collaboration with the International Chiefs of Police, developed a model protocol and training program for protecting the physical and emotional well-being of children when their parents are arrested, which stated, "If the parent is unable or unwilling to identify a caregiver, and other suitable arrangements cannot be secured within a reasonable period of time, the child shall be taken into the custody of CWS (Child Welfare Services) or another authorized partner organization." This policy was adopted in 2014 by then Secretary of Homeland Security, Jeh Johnson.

Too many of us, all reasonably educated and capable of discerning truth from fiction, are falling for misleading and often untruthful news stories, which divide us one from another.

*James E. Waller,

Beavers said his only concern about undertaking the entire project in 2018 was a possible $40,000 increase in operating expenses for replacing the pumps at the Wastewater Treatment Plant (WWTP). In the past several months, the WWTP began experiencing problems from disposable personal care towelettes, clogging the pumps and inhibiting spraying.

"The pumps are only operating at 40 percent capacity," Beavers cautioned. He will investigate purchasing finer screens to filter out the towelettes.

Reporting on the Midway pressure boosting station, which recently went into service, Beavers said no leaks or complaints were reported. Customers observed occasional pressure fluctuation, which Beavers attributed to the pump cutting on and off.

Board President Charlie Smith thanked Paul Cross and the Cross family for their work and cooperation in facilitating the Midway easement process.

Bringing a customer request to the board, Beavers said the customer wanted SUD to take responsibility for repairs on the customer side of the meter or at the least to inspect repairs that the homeowner's contractor performs. SUD policy states leaks and repairs on the customer's side of the meter are the customer's responsibility. The board saw no reason to add an inspection clause or otherwise alter the policy.

There are no plumbing codes in Franklin County that allow for water line inspection, Beavers pointed out.

Updating the board on the SUD employee retirement plan change, Beavers said the transfer fee from the former provider was less than expected, $2,300 instead of $9,000. At the May meeting, the board agreed to pay the fee on the employees' behalf. The new plan gives employees more options, has far lower maintenance costs, and assigns fiduciary responsibility to the provider rather than the board.

The board meets next on July 24.

octopus art, is the wood-fired oven, a product of a Maine company which features French clay construction and an artist-designed copper wrap.

Mike Seeber and Anna Brandt of Chattanooga were the first customers to eat pizza from the oven on June 22, the start of a "soft opening" weekend. Returning home from Nashville, Seeber and Brandt Googled nearby restaurants and came across IvyWild.

Finding a new restaurant in its place was a surprise, but a good one.

"The pizza is very unusual, very delicious," Seeber said. "They're going to be successful."

Brandt and Seeber tried the Blue Ring Sting pizza, made up of red sauce, Pig Mountain hot sausage, sopressata, gorgonzola, mozzarella, Calabrian chili paste and a honey drizzle.

"It was exquisite," Seeber said, "just the right degree of tomato and sweet."

"Don't be afraid of the Calabrian chili paste," Brandt added. "It's not that hot; it's just savory and delicious."

The travelers also ate a Davy Jones's Locker pizza, which includes capers, octopus, mussels and a black alfredo sauce among its ingredients. In addition, the first customers tried an Inkling pizza with a Possum Bottom Farm mushroom blend, mozzarella, parmesan and olive oil.

"The pizzas exceeded our expectations," Brandt said. "The texture of the crust is perfect; it's just enough chew and just enough tang."

Although the travelers didn't drink any wine because of the drive, Octoπ offers small batch and lesser known craft wines.

"As somebody who is trying to make a living doing what I love and am passionate about, I love that our wine program is really supporting artisans and craftsmen," Moser said.

The restaurant also boasts a selection of craft beers and ciders, including Mantra's Saffron IPA from Franklin, Tenn., and Bahr and Sons' Ugly Pug, a black lager from Texas.

Ivy Wild customers have been mostly positive about the change to pizza, Moser said.

"Ninety-nine percent just overflowed with excitement and 1 percent were crushed in horror," she joked.

Woody Deutsch and his wife Anne were regulars at Ivy Wild, but Woody said he anticipates more great experiences.

"Ivy Wild was a restaurant of exceptional high quality," he said. "It could make it anywhere in which fine dining was revered. It was amazing that Keri was able to maintain her vision in such a small market for as long as she did."

An Octoπ pizza!

"We are all probably aware that the restaurant biz is a high burnout proposition, so it's a very cool thing for Keri not to close the doors and walk away, but rather rekindle her food passion with a different approach," he added. "I know the quality of Octoπ will be top notch, and will look forward to reaping the benefits as a customer."

Moser said her inspiration came during a birthday trip to New York City for her 11-year-old daughter Ivy, the namesake of the old restaurant. They found a pizza and wine place near the Hell's Kitchen neighborhood that they loved.

"The flow of those two things together was so natural and so organic, that I got really excited about it," Moser said.

During a return trip to New York City in March to do research for IvyWild, Moser and Christia Crook, the dining room manager, kept going back to that same pizza place.

Moser decided in April to transform IvyWild, but her daughter took the change hard at first.

"She's grown up here since she was three and she has her name on the door," Moser said. "She loves this place and I was really surprised by how upset she was when I told her."

Ivy wrote nine questions for her mom to answer about the change and before the end, Moser said Ivy was drawing logos for Octoπ.

Both Ivy and Moser's son Bryce, 16, have helped with the remodel, she added.

As for the name Octoπ, Moser said she loves octopuses, as well as writer H.P. Lovecraft. Cthulhu, one of Lovecraft's creations, was a monster that at least partly resembled an octopus. She also couldn't resist the wordplay of octopi and pizza pie.

Moser, a native of Houston, Texas, said she is in love with what is happening.

"The pizzas are just going to keep getting better, because I don't sit still on anything," she said.

Octoπ's regular hours are Thursday through Sunday, 3 to 10 p.m. expansion for two existing businesses.

"Grundy County doesn't have the funds to improve the industrial park," Brady stressed. He tapped into an Economic and Community Development grant cycle that began with a state funded evaluation and growth plan, and this year funded $36,000 for geotech studies at the industrial park. Next year Brady expects to receive $1 million for infrastructure funding at the park.

"Tourism is our niche, as well," Brady said, pointing out the average Grundy County household spends $600 less per year on taxes due to tourism revenue.

Grundy County recently received a $70,000 grant to help fund electric service to the Bluegrass Underground and another grant to purchase a section of rail bed on the Mountain Goat Trail.

Brady will use monies from a recent Accountability Award to launch certified welding and nursing assistant programs at Grundy County High School.

Since taking office Brady has scored more than $4 million in grants for the county. The number of residents living in poverty has decreased by 4 percent.

A Grundy County High School graduate, Brady trained as a welder, worked for United Technologies while attending night school, earned degrees in pre-law, and Management and Human Relations, took a job with the county tax assessor's office and decided to run for county commissioner. He served one term, before running for mayor.

Brady and his wife Cindy have seven children. "I've lived in Grundy County my entire life," Brady said. "I love Grundy County. It's easy to say what I love about it and that's the people. I want to create the community those people deserve. We've climbed a hill. I want to get to the top of the mountain."

County Mayor Richard Stewart, the finance committee chair, acknowledged teacher wages fell behind surrounding counties.

County Commissioner Dave Van Buskirk concurred. "We need to fix the low salaries paid to 10 and 20 year teachers."

"That's what we're doing with some of the BEP money," Bean said, "to plug holes."

"I want to see the teachers get raises," said committee member Eddie Clark, who also chairs the county commission. "We're in a year with no growth. We don't have the $829,000 readily available. Can you help us out this year?"

Stewart suggested if the school board would "work with" the finance committee on the budget issue, getting approval for the new middle school design plan, cost $1.8 million, "will be easier."

Stewart asked the opinion of the two commissioners attending who did not serve on the finance committee. Van Buskirk said he strongly favored a raise for teachers and "there should be a way to carve that out. I couldn't vote for this budget." Commissioner Angie Fuller concurred. "Teachers deserve a raise more than anybody, but I can go along with a new school better than this."

"We need to go back to the drawing board," said Franklin County School Board Chair Cleijo Walker, following the decision. The board already cut $463,000 from the budget when the Finance Committee rejected the original draft.

"There's danger in taking a recurring expense like teacher raises from the fund balance," insisted board member Sara Liechty. "This decision seemed to reflect misunderstanding and lack of information."

Pointing to examples, Liechty said the school system was mandated to fund Response to Intervention (RTI) and Special Education to assist at risk children. The school system receives no state funding for RTI, and Special Education is only partially funded.

Without the $829,388 in new revenue, the total projected revenue for 2018-2019 is $43.6 million, which comes from county taxes and state funds. Projected expenses are $46.7 million, which includes salaries, wages, insurance, utilities, taxes, supplies, and maintenance. This will require a $3.1 million draw on the fund balance, reducing the fund balance to $2 million. The portion for teachers' and employees' raises is $600,000. To annually take cost of living raises from the fund balance would deplete it in just a few years.

payroll," cautioned board member Chris Guess, who voted against the budget.

"Reducing the fund balance to $2.3 million is not financially responsible," said board member Lance Williams. "In five years we'll be dead broke if we continue to cover the raises every year." Williams also voted against the budget.

The board considered reducing the request for new revenue to $161,000, the amount of the health insurance cost increase.

"I don't think we're going to get any new money," said Williams. According to Williams, other county departments have been advised not to expect new money and to take the money for 2 percent cost of living raises from their fund balances.

"Other departments have a higher fund balance percentage than us," noted Director of Schools Stanley Bean.

Board member Adam Tucker suggested reducing the amount designated for capital outlays to offset the fund balance draw.

That would leave "no money for improving the schools," Bean said.

"And no money for addressing breakdowns," Guess added.

Bean proposed reducing the raises to 1 percent and giving a bonus at Christmas to bring the raises up to the original amounts proposed, if the money was available. "I'd feel comfortable with that," he said pointing out the fund balance would only drop to $2.6 million with that plan.

"Going broke is still going broke," objected Williams.

"Yes, but in eight years instead of five," said board member Sara Liechty.

Williams recommended waiting until the end of the year and giving raises then if the money was available.

"Not giving raises is a bad message to the teachers," Bean said. "We need to give them something up front to show the school board is making an effort."

"We can't ignore our teachers," agreed Board Chair Cleijo Walker.

Surrounding counties were giving a 2 percent raise, Liechty observed. "What's the risk of going with the original 2 percent plan and having faith the county commission will support pay raises in the future?" she asked.

"I think the commission will help us with emergencies, but not pay raises," Bean said.

"The county has always come through when we needed something," said board member Christine Hopkins. "I think we need to put the 2 percent raise in and take our chances."

Hopkins made a motion to draw the entire $829,388 needed in new revenue from the fund balance. Liechty seconded the motion. A roll call vote followed.

Monteagle Town Council Update

The Monteagle Town Council met on June 25 for its regular monthly meeting.

Police Chief Virgil McNeese said the schedule had been worked out to help monitor the annual Monteagle Fourth of July parade. Special attention will be given to the areas by the interstate. Line-up begins at 9 a.m., and the parade starts at 10 a.m.

Alderman Kenneth Gipson asked for a clarification on how much money a department could spend without additional council approval. The police department recently spent $9,000 for new tasers. This expense was budgeted.

Mayor David Sampley consulted the Monteagle Town Charter. "Items more than $10,000 must go before the council for approval, even if it is in the budget," he said. Department heads still have to fill out the appropriate paperwork for any purchase.

Fire Chief Mike Holmes reported they have received trucks from the Tennessee Department of Transportation. The trucks have decals, and the department is waiting on radios to be installed.

Holmes reported the fire department had an issue with the dump tank, which is used to refill the tanker with water. The dump tank had rusted in two and is broken. He received quotes to replace the dump tank, with a $3,500 to $5,000 estimate. The council approved the purchase to come out of the 2017-18 budget.

Codes Enforcement Officer Earle Geary reported five building permits have been issued this month, including three new houses in Cooley's Rift.

Monteagle resident Dorraine Parmley asked Geary about a church on Layne Avenue that is in disrepair. Geary said he'd had difficulty determining who owned the property. A certified letter was sent to an owner 15 years ago but was never picked up or signed for. Geary said the city could tear the building down and put a lien on the property for the demolition cost, but they could encounter difficulty recapturing the expense.

"The legal notification process has happened and the council can take action," said Geary. The council moved to take bids from contractors to tear down the building after asking the city attorney for advice.

In Parks and Recreation business, the council voted to have the Fourth of July fireworks on July 4, not July 3 as originally stated. Vice Mayor Jessica Blalock also updated the council on upcoming events in July. There will be a car show and movie at the park, July 13. There will be a community-wide yard sale during the 59th annual Monteagle Mountain Market for Arts and Crafts, at the end of July. The cost is $10 to join the yard sale. Participants can go to the May Justus Library to sign up.

The second reading on ordinance 18-05, holidays for employees was tabled as a new ordinance had to be written. The 2018-19 fiscal year budget was passed.

In the citizens comment portion of the meeting, Parmley asked the council for clarification on a new fire department building, after a lengthy discussion that occurred on social media. Holmes had stated at a previous meeting that a new fire hall would be expensive, such as the one built in Winchester for $800,000.

Gipson said nothing was set in stone, and that the planning and discussions were still underway. The actual cost for a new fire hall is unknown at this time.

"It is not cheap to build a fire hall, and we have got to get a plan together and a blueprint first," he said. Gipson said the council will get a grant written to pay for the new fire hall.

University Avenue will be closed at 6 p.m., with food and drink available for purchase. VOLK takes the Angel Park stage at 7:30 p.m. The rain location is the American Legion Hall.

VOLK is the dynamic duo that roars with a mix of high-octane rock 'n' roll, classic country swagger, and heart-shattering soul. After cutting their teeth in the dim-lit bars of Europe, VOLK decided to take their music home to the U.S. Since settling down in Nashville, VOLK has opened for such acts as Left Lane Cruiser, Royal Thunder, Mayeux & Broussard, The Ghost Wolves, Brother O' Brother, catl, and Shooter Jennings.

Coming up next for FNIP is Little Russell Band on July 6 and JackWagon on July 13.

St. Mary's Sewanee Offers July Retreats on Gardens, Meditation

St. Mary's Sewanee: The Ayres Center for Spiritual Development is pleased to announce two new retreats taking place at the center in July.

Local gardening expert June Mays will lead a one-day workshop, The Grace in Gardens, on Saturday, July 14. The group will explore the link between garden and spirituality, and tour garden sanctuaries in the Sewanee Community. Mays will offer ideas for making a personal garden more spiritual, provide new ideas for church gardens, and explore how gardens have affected the spiritual lives of others.

Mays is a garden designer who trained at the English Gardening School in London. She is a parishioner at St. Mary's on the Highlands in Birmingham and has built garden sanctuaries at her homes in Sewanee and in Birmingham. This program is limited to 30 participants. The cost of the workshop is $60 and includes lunch. Options for staying at St. Mary's Sewanee on Friday night before the workshop are available.

A new three-day retreat, Calm and Clear Meditation, will be offered Friday-Sunday, July 20-22, led by Arthur Giacalone. It will focus on meditation techniques for the development of Calm-Abiding (quiescence). Participants will be guided through step-by-step instructions for cultivating an open and wakeful presence, resting in silence, single-focused and stable attention, mindfulness, and tranquility. This retreat is appropriate for both new and experienced practitioners of meditation.

Giacalone is a clinical/consulting psychologist in private practice in California and has taught widely throughout the U.S. and Europe. He was elected as a William Shannon Fellow by the International Thomas Merton for his research on Merton and Contemplation. The fee for this retreat includes all programming, meals and two nights lodging. The cost is $365 for a single in St. Mary's Hall; $465 for a single in the Anna House.

For more information about these events, including making reservations, call St. Mary's Sewanee at (931) 598-5342, email <reservations@stmarys-sewanee.org>, or go online to <www.stmaryssewanee.org>.

St. Mary's Sewanee: The Ayres Center for Spiritual Development is dedicated to providing spiritual hospitality to persons of diverse religious and spiritual backgrounds, in a place of natural beauty, simplicity, silence, tranquility and warm spiritual rest through retreats, renewal and learning. For the last 30 years, St. Mary's Sewanee has welcomed individuals and groups from across the United States and around the world to a place to rest, renew and reconnect.

Sewanee Summer Music Festival

The Sewanee Summer Music Festival, a program hosted by the University of the South, celebrates its 62nd season atop the Mountain through July 22. With its long tradition of offering exceptional orchestra and chamber music training to musicians from around the world, the SSMF can point with pride to many notable alumni who now have distinguished careers in music. When not rehearsing, practicing, or performing, the hardworking young musicians enjoy trail exploration and a regional field trip. The Festival presents more than 20 diverse events, some of them free to the public. Highlights include the annual Patriotic Celebration on July 4 and the Jacqueline Avenet Concerto Concert on July 19. There will also be several recurring events, such as the Faculty Artist Series on Saturday nights, Sunday afternoon student orchestra concerts, and more. For a complete schedule and to purchase tickets, visit ssmf.sewanee.edu.

Sewanee Young Writers' Conference

The Sewanee Young Writers' Conference will convene its 25th session from July 1 through July 14. During their time in Sewanee, students will participate in small group workshops, generate and share ample new material, and cultivate a thriving creative community. Highlights of this summer will include lectures by Sewanee faculty members, extracurricular art and writing activities led by Assistant Director Robie Jackson, a visit from distinguished YWC alum and "Beasts of the Southern Wild" screenwriter Lucy Alibar, and, of course, the Sewanee Fourth of July fireworks show.

ALOOKBACK

from the pages of the Sewanee Mountain Messenger

Sewanee's First July 4th

In the July 3, 1987, issue of the Messenger, Elizabeth N. Chitty published in her column "Sewanee Now and Then" a description of the service and founding meeting on Lookout Mountain, July 4, 1857. We include her article in full.

The first celebration of July 4 of what would become the University of the South took place in 1857, at the founding meeting of the Board of Trustees. The day was carefully chosen, the events were patriotic, and the scene was Lookout Mountain. In 1888, Vice-Chancellor Telfair Hodgson published a collection of University documents from prior to 1860 and called the volume "University Papers, Series A." Henry C. Lay, secretary and later bishop of Arkansas and then Easton, prepared the narrative from which these quotations are taken.

"At a proper hour, the procession, marshalled by Maj. A.M. Lea, of Knoxville, was formed in front of the 'Mountain House.' At its head, a flag was borne by Rezin Rawlins, a soldier of the Revolution, a brass band from Chattanooga following. In order, succeeded the Bishops and other Trustees, the Clergy... the ladies of their families, and several hundred citizens. A wild and picturesque spot had been chosen for the exercises... and the services proceeded with undisturbed quietness and decorum."

The service began with the 100th Psalm, after which Bishop W.M. Green read the 22nd chapter of Joshua, "an altar that we might do the service of the Lord." And the narrator says "far from rearing an Altar of discontent, we had met with a just pride in our common heritage." There followed the "Te Deum" and the "Gloria," before the Hon. G.B. Duncan read the Declaration of Independence and gave a history of the flag used on the occasion. The staff was cut by President Millard Fillmore from near the grave of Washington. "The flag... had waved upon the breezes of Europe and of Asia, of the Mediterranean and the Nile." The flag was made by ladies of Philadelphia. It now is encased on the wall of All Saints' Chapel. A hundred years later, July 4, 1957, the staff was taken back to the Lookout Mountain site for a Centennial observance.

Bishop James H. Otey of Tennessee, senior bishop in the dioceses between North Carolina and Texas, made the address. When he "began to speak of our Country and the love all good men bear it, a breeze came to stir the Stars and Stripes; and still, as he proceeded to denounce the thought, that we would come with holy words to plot against our brethren, the flag waved more proudly than before, seeking the person of the speaker and causing his words to come as it were from the midst of its folds." And the band followed the Address with "Hail Columbia."

Bishop Otey expressed the projected institution: "It is designed to found an institution on the most enlarged and liberal scale; to engage in its service the best talents, the most erudite learning, and the greatest skill and experience which ample compensation and the hope of usefulness can command; to make its departments commensurate with the wants and improvements of the age, in every field of philosophic research, of scientific investigation, and of discovery in the arts." And he said, "We affirm that our aim is eminently national and patriotic, and as such, should commend itself to every lover of his country... We contemplate no strife, save a generous rivalry with our brethren, as to whom shall furnish to this great republic the truest men, the truest Christians, and the truest patriots."

Alas, strife did come less than four years after this grand occasion, but before then a name, a site at Sewanee, and a charter were obtained, all of which are in use today.

Happy Fourth of July!

MSSA Program Highlights for July 1-7

The Monteagle Sunday School Assembly continues its 136th consecutive summer season of enrichment with an interdenominational worship service at 11 a.m. in the Assembly's Warren Chapel. The eight-week season will continue through Sunday, Aug. 5, featuring numerous visiting lecturers who will present morning and evening programs in Warren Chapel that are open free of charge to the public; unless otherwise noted, morning lectures begin at 10:45 a.m. and evening lectures at 8:15 p.m. Anyone interested in a full schedule of the Monteagle Assembly's 2018 program is welcome to pick one up at the Assembly Office (931-924-2286), or to peruse the schedule on the Assembly's website at <www.mssa1882.org>.

Roll Tide! Fans of the Alabama football program will not want to miss Phil Savage, Jr.'s Thursday evening lecture, "Fourth and Goal Every Day," based on his book by the same name, which is his 360-degree view of the Crimson Tide football program. Savage served on Bill Belichick's Cleveland Browns' staff in the early 1990s and currently works as the Crimson Tide radio analyst. During his career, he's served in a variety of roles, from coaching offense and defense, to scouting more than 7,000 potential NFL draft picks, to his current work as on-air talent for the Crimson Tide Sports Network, SiriusXM Radio, and ESPN. Friday night, the film "Undefeated" (2011) will be screened at 8:15 p.m. in the Pulliam Center. The film profiles an inner-city high school team's valiant effort to reach the schools first-ever playoff game.

Prepare for Leif Torkelsen's Tuesday lecture by attending a screening of the first segment of the four-part "The First World War" documentary, which will be shown on Sunday at 8:15 p.m. in the Pulliam Center. The film, is based on the book by Professor Hew Strachan and tells the story of the first world conflict. Then, you'll be ready to attend Torkelsen's lecture Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. in Warren Chapel about the cultural crisis that underscored World War I, a conflict that Torkelsen argues shaped the modern world more than any other conflict. World War I also marked the debut of the United States as a global power. How did the conflict illustrate the underlying cultural crisis of western civilization so early in the 20th century? Torkelsen will place America's entry into the work within this context. He is an adjunct professor of economics at Belmont University, and he holds a J.D. from the University of Michigan Law School and a Ph.D. from Ohio State University.

Additional events this week include the following:

Monday, July 2—Lecture with Jefferson Mansell, "Souvenirs of Travel: Southerners on the Grand Tour" at 10:45 a.m. in Warren Chapel; informal lecture with Rev. Ray Miller, "Christ Weeps with Us: The Power of Lament in a Broken World" at 4 p.m. on Winfield Porch.

Tuesday, July 3—Lecture with Michael Shane Neal, "The Art of the Portrait" at 10:45 a.m. in Warren Chapel; performance by the Sewanee Summer Music Festival at 8:15 p.m. in Warren Chapel.

Friday, July 6—Lecture with Dr. Lee Jefferson, "The Art of Pilgrimage" at 10:45 a.m. in Warren Chapel.

VILLAGE REPORT

by Frank X. Gladu

It's hard to believe that it's the Fourth of July already!

The Village development office will host an open house on the front porch at 400 University Ave. See Sewanee's Future is part of Sewanee's "From Sea to Shining Sea" July 4 festivities. Becky Timmons, Director of Implementation from Town Planning and Urban Design Collaborative, and I will be available between noon and 2: p.m. to address questions, provide clarifications, and display layouts and renderings of Sewanee's future. Come see the updated map of the plan as well as some renderings of the new University Bookstore, expected to break ground later this summer. Also on display will be a conceptual parking plan and the revised housing development on Prince Lane.

All of these plans will require money to move them forward. Some projects will be funded through the University such as the bookstore. Others will be financed by developer investors who will build homes and buildings with the hopes of renting or selling the buildings and spaces that they build. Other monies will be necessary to create an attractive and functional Village that would include providing convenient parking areas, sidewalks, street lighting, plantings of flowers and trees. If you are interested in making a donation to this effort, the Village vitalization effort would appreciate your gift. Your gifts qualify for the Stronger Truer capital campaign. There are several items available for major gifts that provide naming opportunities. Those items include gathering spaces, buildings, street enhancements and more. There are also areas where donations could be directed to enhance the look and vibe of the Sewanee Village. For more information, please contact the Office of University Advancement at (931) 598-1821. Or call me at (931) 598-3397 to talk about how you could be involved as an investor, developer or donor to make a difference in this truly lasting effort to create a space to complement the University of the South!

I will be resuming the monthly community update meeting in August on Tuesday, Aug. 7, at 10 a.m. at the Blue Chair.

Hope to see you on the Fourth!
Frank

MOUNTAIN DIETITIAN

by Mary Pate-Bennett

Who is Guiding Your Food Choices?

As a registered dietitian, my goal in working with people is to normalize food habits, change attitudes and beliefs around food and body image, and steer food choices towards those that will nourish the body the best. There are many different messages portrayed in our society that promote restrictive diets, claim certain foods are toxic, and moralize your food choices. Many of these messages are from people who have no background or training in nutrition. As someone who has devoted their education and career to knowing the evidence, I'm here to tell you that, with a little guidance, the expert on your food choices is you.

Babies are born with the intuition and instinct to know when to eat and how much. They cry when they are hungry and they are calm when they are full. As a child grows, these instincts are buried by comments from our parents, messages we see on commercials and advertisements, and even things told to us by the medical profession. Were you ever part of the clean plate club growing up? Or sentenced to "no dinner" as a punishment? What about taken out to ice cream when you got a good grade in school? Food became part of a reward/punishment system and was no longer simply given to calm your growling stomach or for the nutrients needed to grow. Food became personal.

The best things we can do to make peace with food, is to let go of everything you have learned about dieting, such as watching your calories, and feeling ashamed about eating certain things. Simply, go back to the basics: eat lots of whole foods (not packaged or processed), eat when you are hungry and stop when you start to feel full. Be mindful of your food choices and where your food comes from. Sit at a table and take in what you are eating, without the distractions of TV, phones, or computers, and think about how much you are enjoying (or not enjoying) your food. Habits will not change overnight, but unless you start taking action, results will always be the same.

Book suggestion: "Intuitive Eating" by E. Resch & E. Tribole (2012)

F@H Cumberland StoryCorps Project

Folks at Home (F@H) announces the summer launch of the Cumberland StoryCorps Project.

The initiative is modeled after National Public Radio's StoryCorps. The goal is to capture, preserve and share the community's stories in order to build connections between people. This project allows individuals involved with F@H and the greater community to share their stories so that others may hear and learn from them.

Shared stories foster a sense of shared humanity. Stories create compassionate connections between individuals. Stories teach us to listen.

If you have a life story you would like to share, or want to participate in this project, contact Abbie Warr at <warrak0@sewaneed.edu> to schedule an interview or receive more information.

The recorded interviews will be available for listening through the StoryCorps website <<https://archive.storycorps.org/communities/sewaneed-folks-at-home-storycorps-project/>> and shared with the American Folk Life Center through the Library of Congress.

This initiative is made possible through the generous support of Sewanee's Office of Civic Engagement.

HEARING HEALTH NEWS

by Debbie Gamache,
M.S. CCC-A Audiologist

ALL THE BETTER TO HEAR

According to a National Council on Aging survey of 2,300 people over the age of 50, untreated hearing loss can lead to depression, anxiety, and social isolation. Hearing impaired persons who did not use hearing aids were more likely to report worries, have reduced social activity, and feel more insecure. Other symptoms included fatigue and irritability. Positive effects for those who used hearing aids consistently included improved family relationships, a sense of independence, emotional stability, and increased social activity. Hearing instruments do, indeed, increase the quality of life for all degrees of hearing loss, from mild to severe.

Hearing loss can impact our ability to communicate with our loved ones, to perform well in a work setting and enjoy social activities. The first step involves scheduling a comprehensive hearing evaluation with an audiologist at Debbie Gamache's The Hearing Center LLC located at 705 NW Atlantic St. Suite B, Tullahoma. Call our office today at 931-393-2051 to schedule an appointment. You can also visit our website at www.thehearingcenterllc.com.

'Indigo and Smoke' Begins at Artisan Depot

Christi Teasley and Ursula Vann invites the public to a reception for the next Franklin County Arts Guild members show, "Indigo & Smoke."

The reception is today (Friday) from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Artisan Depot in Cowan. Refreshments will be provided.

Teasley's textiles, "Indigo," are printed and dyed, using primarily natural dyes. She also likes to incorporate recycled textiles. Her functional work includes textiles for the home—dishtowels, napkins and pillows. She also creates artwork for the wall that are mixed media. Her stitch constructions reference maps and abstractions found in nature. Teasley lives and works in Monteagle.

Vann's part is the "Smoke." Basic forms do best for this technique. Her work finished with a pit/sawdust firing, which produces the decorative surface. Instead of a pit, Ursula uses an above ground brick box. Along with the sawdust and wood shavings, a number of other materials are added, which may produce some color. The surface is permanent unless fired to a high temperature in a kiln. Vann lives and has a studio in Huntsville, Ala.

The public is also encouraged to check out the latest community show at Artisan Depot, "Miniatures." The Franklin County Arts Guild hosts community shows about every six to eight weeks.

The Artisan Depot community art shows welcome original contributions from Franklin County artists of all ages in multiple types of art media. All work in the show is for sale.

Organizers are also very proud of the new Student Art Gallery with art from many children in the Franklin County school system.

There are also lots of art, jewelry, pottery, ironwork and many other forms of art available for purchase.

The Artisan Depot is operated by the Franklin County Arts Guild and is at 204 Cumberland St. East, Cowan. Gallery hours are noon to 5 p.m. on Thursday, Friday and Sunday, and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

For more information about the Artisan Depot or the Franklin County Arts Guild contact Diana Lamb at (931) 308-4130.

NATURENOTES

Water Scorpion

Pond Life

We have a small pond with a small dock on it from which we can observe the animal life in the water. Recently, we have noticed a spider hanging around on the water surface nearby. Sure enough, there is a genus of spiders, Dolomedes, also known as dock or wharf spiders. They are covered with short, unwettable hairs which allow them to stand or run on the surface tension of the water. They use the water surface as other spiders use a web, detecting the vibrations caused by a struggling insect and running to capture it. They can even go below the water surface, those same fine hairs trapping a film of air around their bodies, into which they can breathe.

We also see the familiar water striders, or pond skaters, which also have unwettable hairs on their legs which trap air bubbles that keep them afloat. Water striders are true bugs, as are water scorpions, which we were surprised to learn about when we saw something that looked like an underwater stick insect, and water boatmen, with their long hind legs they use as oars. All these bugs eat other insects that fall in the water.

Most numerous on the water surface seem to be the whirligig beetles, which also have flattened hind legs with which to steer. A special treat is to see the larval, gilled stage of salamanders, swimming, or resting at a slant in the water. These are likely to be spotted salamanders, because we see their large egg masses in the early spring. And, of course, there are the frogs, about which I have written before. We had considered introducing fish in the pond, but we decided we would rather have the frogs, the salamanders, and the insects.

Many dragonflies and damselflies also inhabit the pond but are harder to identify. I will venture to say that we have been seeing azure bluets (damselflies), which like well-vegetated ponds (usually fishless!) and (probably) the bright green-and-red comet darter (dragonflies).

Sewanee Herbarium Summer Events

Sewanee's H-tree, Saturday, June 30, 9 a.m., with Trae Moore—The H-tree is a pair of white oaks on the side of the Plateau below the Cross Memorial on Tennessee Avenue. In addition to visiting this botanical curiosity, the group will investigate the woody and herbaceous plants of this forest. The walk includes a short trek on the "Old Cowan Road." For those interested in a longer hike, Trae will also lead the group on a 2-mile loop trail consisting of the brand new section connecting Morgan's Steep and the Cross, circling back via the old section. This hike is moderately difficult due to the elevation change and some loose rocks on the Old Cowan Road. Meet at the Memorial Cross in Sewanee.

BARDTOVERSE

by Phoebe Bates

It's the Fourth of July, the flags are painting the town, the plastic forks and knives are laid out like a parade.

And I'm grilling, I've got my apron
I've got potato salad, macaroni, relish
I've got a hat shaped like the state of Pennsylvania.

I ask my father what's his pleasure and he says, "hot dog, medium rare, and then, "hamburger, sure what's the big difference," as if he's really asking.

I put on hamburgers and hot dogs, slice up the sour pickles and Bermudas uncap the condiments. The paper napkins are fluttering away like lost messages.

"You're running around," my mother says,
"like a chicken with its head loose."

"Ma," I say, "you mean cut off, loose and cut off being as far apart
as, say, son and daughter."

She gives me a quizzical look as though
I've been caught in some impropriety.
"I love you and your sister just the same," she says,
"Sure," my grandmother pipes in
"you're both our children, so why worry?"

That's not the point I begin telling them, and I'm comparing words to fish now,
like the ones in the sea at Port Said,
or like birds among the date palms by the Nile, unrepentantly elusive wild.

"Sonia," my father says to my mother,
"what the hell is he talking about?"
"He's on a ball," my mother says.

"That's roll," I say, throwing up my hands,
"as in hot dog, hamburger, dinner roll..."

"And what about roll out the barrels?" my mother asks, and my father claps his hands, "Why sure," he says,
"let's have some fun," and launches into a polka, twirling my mother around and around like the happiest top, and my uncle is shaking his head, saying

You could grow nuts listening to us," and I'm thinking of pistachios in the Sinai burgeoning without end, pecans in the South, the jumbled flavor of them suddenly in my mouth, wordless, confusing,

crowding out everything else.
