School of Letters Public Events

Each summer the School of Letters invites writers, poets, publishers and scholars to speak each week that school is in session. These events are free and open to the public.

At 4:30 p.m., Wednesday, June 8, author Ed Tarkington will give a reading in the Gailor Auditorium. This is sponsored by the School of Letters and the Friends of the Library.

Tarkington is the author of the novel "Only Love Can Break Your Heart," published this year by Algonquin. The book has won remarkable acclaim, particularly for a first novel: it was both an Indie Next pick for the American Booksellers Association and an Indies Introduce pick for IndieBound, and Book of the Month Club made it a Main Selection.

Tarkington is a graduate of Furman University and earned graduate degrees at the University of Virginia and Florida State. A frequent contributor to <Chapter16.org>, his articles, essays and stories have appeared in the Nashville Scene, Memphis Commercial Appeal, Post Road, the Pittsburgh Quarterly, the Southeast Review and elsewhere. He lives in Nashville, where he teaches English and coaches wrestling at Montgomery Bell Academy.

A reception and book signing will follow the reading in Gailor Atrium.

On Wednesday, June 15, at 4:30 p.m., in Gailor Auditorium, Jennifer Habel will present the reading. She is the author of "Good Reason," winner of the

Investigating College Experiences for GCHS

During the 2016 spring semester, the Grundy County Family Resource Center, Grundy County High School (GCHS) and University of the South professor Paige Schneider's politics of poverty and inequality class partnered to conduct a survey investigating the college experiences of recent GCHS graduates. Two hundred and forty-four alumni of the classes of 2008 through 2015 completed the survey and were entered in a drawing for a new iPad Air 2.

"This survey has been a goal of mine for years," says Emily Partin, director of the Family Resource Center. "I am passionate about our young people getting the skills they need to support their own families one day. In order to help, we have to find out what is working for students who complete college or technical school and what might be blocking the progress of those who have stopped along the way. That is what this survey is all about."

"Up to this point, the survey has largely captured people currently enrolled in college and those who earned degrees," said Partin. "We would like to encourage those who never went to college and those who dropped out of college to take the survey posted on the GCHS Post-graduate Survey Facebook page, or call me at the FRC office at (931) 592-4372."

According to Schneider, recent data demonstrate that college graduation rates in rural counties continue to fall

Council Approves $11,700 for Community Enhancement Projects

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

At its May 23 meeting the Sewanee Community Council approved $11,700 in funding for seven Community Enhancement projects. The council also voted to adopt changes to the constitution and selected meeting dates for the 2016–17 academic year. Provost John Swallow chaired the meeting, filling in for Vice-Chancellor John McCardell.

The Community Enhancement program is in the second year of a two-year trial. In the summer of 2014, the Council approved increasing the municipal service fee paid by all leaseholders to generate $10,000 to be used for physical improvements and amenities on the Domain. The total award for 2016 was increased because the Phil White Dog Park proposal funded in 2015 didn't use its entire allocation.

Sarah Marhevsky chaired the project review committee. In discussion before the council voted, Marhevsky explained the committee did not recommend funding the two sidewalk projects because the cost exceeded $10,000 for each.

"As was our philosophy last year, we opted for helping a wider pool of people and groups instead of just one group," Marhevsky said.

Council member Drew Sampson suggested the money in the fund could be "allowed to accumulate over time so more could be accomplished. This was part of the original thought when the fund was created."

Swallow pointed out the program was still in the two-year trial phase, and "There was no presumption of reserving funds for future use during the trial period."

Council member John Flynn stressed the importance of distinguishing between Community Enhancement projects funded by a "tax" levied on lease holders and the Sewanee Community Chest which funds projects through voluntary donations made by community members.

In praise of the Community Enhancement program, council member Barbara Schlichting said, "I was amazed by the diversity of ideas we saw in the proposals. We learned things we might not otherwise have known."

Council representative Louise Irwin abstained from voting on the committee's recommendations, citing her constituents' need for clarification on how the fund was established and administered.

"There's much to discuss in the fall when we take up possible continuation of the program," Swallow said.

The council voted to fund the following projects: $3,179 for sand, refurbishing restrooms and other improvements at the soccer field; $2,800 for mulch at the Elliott Park playground; $2,200 for electrical repairs at the American

Online Farmers Market Adds New Options

by Kevin Cummings, Messenger Staff Writer

The South Cumberland Farmer's Market, which allows customers to order local produce and handmade products online, is launching several changes this month. The market has extended its ordering hours, implemented a discount lottery, and is seeking more customer feedback.

Starting today (Friday), June 3, customers can order at <sewanee.localgrows.net> each Friday at 9 p.m. through Monday at 10 a.m. Previously, ordering began on Saturday. Customers can pick up orders between 4:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. on Tuesdays at the Sewanee Community Center.

The farmer's market operates under the umbrella of Rooted Here, an organization that also oversees the South Cumberland Food Hub, which links local growers and artisans directly with wholesalers. Jess Wilson, Rooted Here secretary, was part of the small group of farmers that formed the online market in March 2007. She said utilizing the Internet is great for local growers.

"I don't think that people understand how difficult a regular farmer's market can be for farmers," Wilson said. "It is a lot of work to prepare for a regular farmer's market and you never know what your customer base will be day to day. Though it is usually a nice social endeavor, I often end up wasting a lot of produce that wilts in the sun on my table, and valuable time that could be spent farming."

Wilson, who owns two farms in Monteagle, encourages her customers to order online.

"I absolutely love selling through the online market because I know what I have sold before I pick it," she added. "That means that I can pick it to order, it hasn't sat in the sun on a table for an

IN LOVING MEMORY

To The Editor:

In loving memory of my precious son, Marty Dewayne Parson. It has been 25 years since he was tragically taken from his family on June 1, 1991. He was just 19. Remembering Marty is easy and I do it everyday. Missing him is heartache that never goes away. If love could have saved you, you never would have died. We will miss you and always love you. You will be in our hearts forever.

A BIG THANK YOU TO SOMEONE

To The Editor:

I'm using this means of trying to thank the person or persons who took care of our needs while I was at church on Sunday, May 22. I came out my door, headed for Sunday School and church to discover "something" had robbed my lidded trash cans of their contents, most of which on the yard area and roadway. I headed on to church, not knowing angels came by and cleaned it all up. No card with a name for a big thank you, so I'm just saying it here. The Lord knows who you are so He'll do the blessing. What a so nice thing to do. We're very grateful. God bless you always.

Dinner & VB-Us

Bible School is not “just for kids” anymore. Otey Memorial is preparing for the first summer of VB-Us, an intergenerational evening learning series at 5:15 to 8 p.m., Monday–Thursday, June 27–30.

Each evening begins at 5:15 p.m. with a community dinner and then continues with a choice of several activities such as experimenting with contemplative art, learning about social justice on the plateau, or experiencing a walk with story and song.

Contact Jeannie Babb <oteyformation@gmail.com> for more information or to volunteer.

Christ Church Monteagle

Christ Church welcomes guests this weekend.

The Rev. Michael Thurman and Pat Thurman of Montgomery, Ala., have served in many churches, including The Dexter Avenue King Memorial Baptist Church, where Michael was the pastor from 1996–2011. Pat works with the Baptist Foundation of Alabama and is known for bringing pastoral care to what most would consider an overwhelming challenge.

The Thurmans will be honored guests all weekend, and especially so at the luncheon which follows the 10:30 a.m. service.

Bishop Millsaps and Michael are planning to launch a new ministry in an old setting in Montgomery, which will bring people together in a configuration.

St. James

The Holy Eucharist and Fellowship begins at 9 a.m. on Sundays. On Saturday, June 4 from 2 to 4 p.m. there will be a special reception in the parish hall to celebrate Bud and Sarah Sutherlands’ golden wedding anniversary.

The second annual Summer Bash is at 1 p.m., Saturday, June 11, at the Midway Community Park. There will be free hot dogs and games for children. Bring side dishes to share, non-alcoholic beverages, cups, plates and plastic ware. At 2 p.m., there will be a special “H2O” surprise provided by the Sewanee Volunteer Fire Depart-

Stevens Poetry Manuscript Competition, and “In the Little House,” winner of the Copperdome Chapbook Prize. Her poems have appeared in The Believer, Blackbird, Gulf Coast, LIT, The Massachusetts Review, The Southeast Review and elsewhere. In 2014 she won an Ohio Arts Council Individual Excellence Award. Habel is currently the coordinator of creative writing at the University of Cincinnati. A reception and book signing will follow in Gailor Atrium.

Chris Bachelder is the author of the novels “The Throwback Special,” “Abbott Awaits,” “U.S.,” “Bear v. Shark” and “Lessons in Virtual Tour Photography.” He will give the reading at 4:30 p.m., Wednesday, June 22, in Gailor Auditorium. His short fiction and essays have appeared in a number of magazines and journals including The Paris Review, Harper’s, McSweeney’s, The Believer, The Oxford American, American Short Fiction, Mother Jones, The Cincinnati Review and New Stories from the South. His novel “Abbott Awaits” was published in 2011, to strong reviews: “Not since John Cheever,” said novelist Brock Clark, “has an American male fiction writer written so ingeniously, so beautifully, so heart-breakingly about the pain and sweetness of domestic life.” His acclaimed novel, “The Throwback Special,” was serialized in The Paris Review. The book follows 22 men who meet each year to reenact the 1985 Joe Theisman football injury. Bachelder was awarded the prestigious Terry Southern prize this year. He received an MFA in fiction from the University of Florida and taught at New Mexico State, Colorado College and the University of Massachusetts before joining the creative writing faculty of the University of Cincinnati in 2011. A book signing will follow in Gailor Atrium.

“What Was the New Journalism? A Dialogue with John Grammer and Neil Shea” will be at 4:30 p.m., Wednesday, June 29, in Gailor Auditorium with a reception following in Gailor Atrium.

Marshall Frady called it an “odd unchurched coupling between the novel and journalism.” Tom Wolfe gave it the name that stuck, “the New Journalism,” a designation John Sullivan glosses like this: “the long, weird, quasi-essayistic, documentary-infused magazine piece, a form older than the novel, despite a heritable instinct in critics to continually be calling it New.” New or old, the form experienced a remarkable flowering in the 1960s and early 1970s, when writers like Frady and Wolfe—and Mailer and Talese and King and Morris—created a remarkable moment in American letters, one that continues to inspire writers like Sullivan. Grammer and Shea discuss the moment and its influence on nonfiction writing today.

Jennine Capó Crucet is the author of two books, most recently the novel “Make Your Home Among Strangers” (St. Martin’s Press). Her story collection, “How to Leave Hialeah,” won the Iowa Short Fiction Award, the John Gardner Book Prize and was named a Best Book of the Year by The Miami Herald, the Miami New Times and the Latinidad List. Her writing has appeared in Guernica, Ploughshares, Epoch, The Rumpus, Prairie Schooner and other magazines. She’s the fiction editor of PEN Center USA’s Handbook for Writers, a comprehensive writing manual used in high schools nationally as part of PEN’s Writers in the Schools programs. A former sketch comedienne and National Public Radio scriptwriter, she’s worked extensively as a writing coach and college advisor for high school students and also led the Young Artists’ Workshop (exclusively for high school writers) at the Port Townsend Writers’ Conference for three years. A winner of an O. Henry Prize and a Bread Loaf Fellow, she received her B.A. from Cornell University and her M.F.A. from the University of Minnesota, where she was also an instructor. She grew up in Miami but now lives in Lincoln, Neb., where she’s an assistant professor of creative writing at the University of Nebraska. This reading will be at 4:30 p.m., Wednesday, July 6, in Gailor Auditorium with a reception and book signing following in Gailor Atrium.

On Wednesday, July 13, at 4:30 p.m., in Gailor Auditorium, the School of Letters MFA candidates will read from their work.

Turning to administrative issues, the council approved changes to the constitution intended to increase involvement in the council and make representation more equitable. At present, there are three elected council representatives from each of the four districts. The council voted to reallocate the distribution of elected seats. Beginning with the November election, elected representation shall consist of four at-large seats and two seats from each district.

The council appointed Pixie Dozier to serve as the election officer for the fall 2016 election.

For the 2016–17 academic year the council will meet Aug. 22, Oct. 24, Jan. 23, March 27 and May 22, with four dates held in reserve for meetings as needed.

Sampson requested the council receive a report on the University’s proposed intention to reduce transfer fees. The nonprofit Folks at Home was assessed a very large fee for a recent transfer, Sampson said.

Jonathan Carreto from the class of 2008 was the lucky winner of the iPad Air 2. Carreto earned his bachelor’s degree in criminal justice from Tennessee Tech in Cookeville. He is employed by the Putnam County Sheriff’s Department. below urban counties among students with a similar sociodemographic profile. Rural graduation rates are much lower than the national average of 59 percent. “The gap between low-income students and high-income students in college going and completion is growing in the U.S., and rural students have fallen behind the most,” said Schneider. “This downward trajectory is worrisome given the demands of a knowledge-based economy where a technical degree or four-year college education is essential to securing a job that pays a living wage.”

Of this survey’s participants, 26 percent had earned a post-secondary degree and 44 percent were enrolled in college. The survey suggested that involvement in the METS (MTSU Educational Talent Search) program and earning college credit while in high school were related to these students’ success.

Thirteen percent of participants had dropped out of college; results indicated that non-academic factors impacted this decision more than academic ability. Generally, the major reasons people cited for discontinuing school were related to finances and the need to work. One of the least common responses for why someone dropped out of college was “some of the classes were too difficult,” and only 13 percent of dropouts had below a C average.

Another striking finding was that when asked if they would have taken basic community college classes on the mountain if offered, 69 percent of participants said “yes” and 18 percent said “probably,” which suggests that 87 percent of GCHS graduates would likely take college classes on the mountain if they were available.

These results point to the need for more higher education opportunities and support on the mountain. The Grundy County Community is currently looking into opportunities for a college support center where students will be able to access a computer lab and study space, study groups and general education college courses. The hope is that providing these resources on the mountain will reduce the financial and time burdens on students who commute to college and keep them engaged in their education.

Research associates Brandon Miller and Kate Wiley, who work with Partin at the Family Resource Center, provided key assistance working with the college students to develop and distribute the survey and collect and analyze the results. The Politics of Poverty class is a community engagement course offered under the University’s new Office of Community Engagement. The project received a grant from the Collaborative for Southern Appalachian Studies to cover expenses.

hour and I'm being as efficient as possible with my time."

Another change to the online market is the option to have products bagged and ready before a customer arrives. There's a 5 percent convenience fee for the service. Also new this month, is a weekly lottery, where a customer can win a 10 percent discount on their order. All orders are automatically included in the drawing.

Leslie Lytle, Rooted Here president, noted changes at the pickup site include a table for socializing and a comment box.

"A recent survey showed customers like to chat with the farmers and producers and to see (the products) before they buy," she said. "Hearing from customers, both praise and gripes, is key to the market's successful operation. The managers hope people will take the opportunity to leave a comment card—no need to sign your name."

Lytle said in the summer, Rooted Here farmers and producers are encouraged to also sell outdoors at the Community Center during pickup hours.

Along with the recent changes, Rooted Here is facing a challenge in how to pay employees a sustainable wage and maintain a volunteer base, Lytle added. With only three low-paid employees, Rooted Here relies on 200 to 300 volunteer hours per month to operate, she said. The Internal Revenue Service denied the group's application as a 501 (c) 3 nonprofit and University of Tennessee law students recently reviewed Rooted Here's structure and advised they form an LLC.

Lytle said the group's board is exploring its options and Rooted Here will host a community workshop in the fall to help find a solution. For more information about the organization, visit <rootedhere.com> or contact Lytle at <sllytle@blomand.net>.

SAS Alumni Weekend Events Begin Today

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School will welcome home several hundred alumni and their guests for the school's annual Alumni Weekend, June 3–5. St. Andrew's-Sewanee, formed by the merger of Sewanee Academy (SA) and St. Andrew's School (StA) in 1981, also welcomes the alumni of its parent schools, including St. Mary's School (SMS) and the Sewanee Military Academy (SMA). Milestone reunions this year (5th, 10th, 25th, etc.) are from the classes ending in 6s and 1s, but many alumni and their families make this an annual pilgrimage.

The weekend begins today (Friday), June 3 at noon with the SAS Golf Classic on The Course at Sewanee. Alumnae of St. Mary's School gather to swap stories in the afternoon. In the evening there will be dinner under the tent on the SAS Quad and a lawn party featuring live jazz with Herschel van Dyke '03. A new series of events, the Mountain-Alumni-Challenge (M-A-C), creates teams of alumni for friendly competition, including a trivia contest. The evening ends with a bonfire.

Saturday, June 4 continues with a M-A-C soccer tournament, a yoga master class led by Sarah Armour-Jones Campbell '06, a family soccer match and reunion class photos. At the champagne awards brunch, Andy Simmonds StA '61 will receive the SAS Service Award. The 1966 reunion classes of SMA, St. Andrew's and St. Mary's will be awarded their 50th Year Medallions. In the afternoon there will be memorial services to honor those alumni who have passed away. At 3:30 p.m., Beth Sperry SA '76 will offer a vocal concert in McCrory Hall for the Performing Arts. The concert is free and open to the public. The evening continues with reunion parties, an all-alumni dinner, evening entertainment with Chris Behre StA '77 and a karaoke competition.

On Sunday, June 5 at 9:45 a.m., the Highlander Pipes and Drums Corps and the 50th reunion class will lead former cadets to re-enact their weekly march from Quintard Memorial Hall to All Saints' Chapel. This is a highlight of the weekend for the SMA alumni and residents of Sewanee often come out to welcome the marchers along the route. The march route from Tennessee Ave. to University Ave. will be closed to traffic for a brief period between 9:45–10 a.m.

The weekend concludes with a 10:30 a.m. Holy Eucharist service in St. Andrew's Chapel, where the St. Andrew's Class of '66 Banner will be retired, followed by the farewell brunch.

Throughout the weekend there will be activities for children, swimming and canoeing at the Res and late night bonfires.

The Saturday concert and Sunday march and church service are open to the public. Area alumni are asked to register online for all other activities on the school's main website or by contacting the Alumni Office at <sasalumni@sasweb.org>. Registration will also be available onsite Friday starting at 10 a.m. and Saturday 8:30 a.m.–1 p.m.

Bonnie Bishop to Perform

At 7:30 p.m. Friday, June 10, at Angel Park, Thirty Tigers recording artist and Grammy-winning songwriter Bonnie Bishop will perform. A veteran touring musician with five records behind her, Bishop has seen her songs covered by Bonnie Raitt and performed on the tv show Nashville. Her sixth album, Ain't Who I Was, appeared on May 27 to remarkable acclaim, including strong reviews from the New York Times, Rolling Stone, and American Songwriter. The Texas native's roots are in Country music, but the current record—produced by Dave Cobb, fresh from albums with Chris Stapleton, Sturgill Simpson, and Jason Isbell—moves toward R&B and draws persistent comparisons to Dusty Springfield's Dusty in Memphis. The Sewanee show, interrupting a very busy tour, will be a homecoming for Bishop, who is a creative writing student in the Sewanee School of Letters. The School of Letters is sponsoring the event, which is free and open to all.

Gould's Metal and Wood Show

Ken Gould, blacksmith and metal worker, is showing his work at the Artisan Depot in Cowan. The show is open now through Saturday, June 25.

THE INSATIABLE CRITIC

by Elizabeth Ellis

Your friendly neighborhood movie critic is back, along with hot summer flicks courtesy of the Sewanee Union Theatre! We have current reels in addition to screenings of Cult Classics being shown exclusively on "Throwback Thursdays." Read on for more details!

The Rating System – Introducing guest Critic Kitty Jackaroo!

Stars are so overused, and there's nothing on the planet more critical than cats, so one feature each week is rated from one to five Jackaroos. The more Jackaroos there are, the better it is!

Jackaroo

Zootopia

7:30 p.m., Friday, June 3 and Saturday, June 4
Sunday, June 5, Special Matinee Screening at 2 p.m.; 7:30 p.m.
7:30 p.m., Tuesday, June 7
2016, Rated PG, 108 minutes

This family-friendly feature focuses on a seemingly idyllic city where anthropomorphic animals, from the tiniest mouse to the mightiest elephant, live together in harmony. However Judy Hopps, an enterprising rabbit who has just joined the police force, quickly realizes that there are darker machinations underneath the peaceful façade of the city. Being the first of her species to join law enforcement, she's determined to prove her grit despite her diminutive size. Unfortunately, she finds herself joining forces with Nick Wilde, a singularly sneaky fox voiced by wry comedian Jason Bateman who initially does more harm than good despite an unexpected and touching interspecies friendship that forms between the two. Lushly animated in pastel tones and pop culture references aplenty to amuse the older audiences—including a very funny nod to "The Godfather"—this feature is a crowd pleaser on every level. Rated PG for some rude humor and action, feel free to bring the whole family along on this trip to this singular city.

Throwback Thursday Special Screening Only $2 for everyone!

Ferris Bueller's Day Off

7:30 p.m., Thursday, June 9
1986, Rated PG-13, 108 minutes

Grab your Ray Bans, throw on your bleached jean jacket, and crank up the synthesizer because we are going back to the 80s! This classic by famed director John Hughes shot young Matthew Broderick to stardom and made breaking the fourth wall funny long before Deadpool. Ferris decides that he is going to skip school in the most elaborate way possible – and bring his friends along for the ride. As well as being a wonderful tour of downtown Chicago, such catchphrases as "Bueller?...Bueller?" and "Save Ferris" have been solidified into American pop culture fabric for all time thanks to internet memes and merchandise. In 2012, Broderick participated in a "Bueller-esque" Super Bowl commercial for Honda CR-V that heavily referenced this film. Rated PG-13 for some adult situations and language, it is accessible for children accompanied by parents as well as teens and adults. Don't miss this chance to relive the story of the ultimate teenage slacker on the big screen, or introduce a whole new generation to this gem in comedic film history.

Divergent: Allegiant

7:30 p.m., Friday, June 10 to Monday, June 13
2016, PG-13, 120 minutes

From 80s Chicago to a futuristic, chilling version of The Windy City, this third installment based on the bestselling young adult series by Veronica Roth finally has our heroes breaking outside the suffocating box their world has become. Tris (Shailene Woodley), our genetically perfect heroine, is deemed by authorities to be the only one worthy of saving in the city. Tris must find her way to outwit David, played by a surprisingly nefarious Jeff Daniels, who wants to destroy her "flawed" friends at all costs—including her love, Four (Theo James). Seen by critics as a dwindling franchise that initially succeeded by riding the dystopian wave of "The Hunger Games" popularity, extending the final book across two films—"Ascendant" to be released next year—seems to be bringing an already thin plot to the breaking point. Rated PG-13 for intense violence and action and some partial nudity, this feature is appropriate for older children accompanied by parents as well as teens and adults.

Welcome, Summer Visitors!

SSMF Features Familiar Concerts and New Events

The 60th anniversary season of the Sewanee Summer Music Festival (SSMF) will include many of the traditional elements of the annual four-week festival. The Faculty Chamber Music Series, Student Chamber Music in Guerry Garth and Sunday afternoon student orchestra concerts have all become popular features. The Jacqueline Avenet Concerto Competition Concert will take place Thursday, July 14, and feature the finalists performing with an orchestra specially formed for the occasion, combining faculty and the most advanced students.

This year the festival also offers new attractions, as well as concerts away from their usual home in Guerry Auditorium, many of which are free. On Thursday, June 30, SSMF Brass will perform an outdoor concert at 5:30 p.m., at the Angel Park in downtown Sewanee. SSMF students will prepare two concerts for the young and/or curious, featuring demonstrations of their orchestral instruments. Visitors will have the opportunity for a "close encounter" with the instruments. Pam and Greg Maloof are sponsors of the concerts (and the ice cream that will be served). SSMF for KIDS will take place at 3 p.m., Saturday, July 2 and July 9, in Convocation Hall at the corner of University and Georgia avenues.

The annual Hike to a Concert takes wing this year to the Franklin County Airport on Airport Road in Sewanee, with Woody's Bicycles as the concert benefactor—and the name appropriately adjusting to Bike/Hike (or Fly) to a Concert. The orchestra will be seated in the old hangar with the vintage airplanes as a backdrop to perform Mozart's Symphony No. 36, (Linz). The concert will take place at 6 p.m., Friday, July 8. Student chamber ensembles will perform at 5:30 p.m., Saturday, July 9, at the Sewanee Inn, where the audience can enjoy a free pre-dinner concert.

A complete list of all concerts is available on the website <www.SSMF.Sewanee.edu>.

LOOKSATBOOKS

by Pat Wiser for Friends of duPont Library

Here are some ideas for exploring fiction during the season which brings time (we hope) for stacks of novels.

Carolyn and Chuck Tocco suggest the historical fiction and fantasy of Susanna Clarke's "Jonathan Strange and Mr. Norrell" with two protagonists whose magic defends England during Napoleonic times. Considered suspenseful and witty, its 875 pages might inspire use of a handy e-reader for travel.

For another combination of history and fantasy, Messenger columnist Patrick Dean will continue "The Thieftaker" series by D.B. Jackson (pseudonym for local writer David B. Coe). In David's Colonial America, a conjurer uses unique skills to best villains; reviewers like the magical stories' authenticity of dialogue and historical figures.

Katherine Zammit enjoyed Ruth Ozeki's "A Tale for the Time Being." Nao, a precocious, troubled Japanese girl is linked with Ruth, a writer on a remote island off the west coast of Canada, when a Hello Kitty lunchbox containing her diary surfaces with debris that traveled from the 2011 tsunami. The story touches on Buddhism and includes a suggestion of supernatural connections.

Phillip and Valerie Lorenz recommend "The 100-Year-Old Man Who Climbed Out the Window and Disappeared," by Jonas Jonasson. Our hero, who once knew Franco, Stalin and Mao, begins a new adventure by fleeing his 100th birthday party through his nursing home window. His ensuing theft of a suitcase leads to involvement with nasty criminals and an elephant named Sonya, plus a delighted readership for Jonasson.

Fans of fiction drawn, however loosely, from art history will share my enjoyment of Dominick Smith's "The Last Painting of Sara de Vos," with its tale of a single painting connecting five centuries, three continents and two artists. Smith adeptly builds a story derived from the sparse history of women in artists' guilds of the Dutch Golden Age.

Also for summer, or any time, is Jhumpa Lahiri's "Unaccustomed Earth." Lahiri's talent for family portrait is displayed in short stories about immigrant parents and their American-raised children. Added appeal for trips and nighttime reading: We may be able to stop after one story and resist the temptation of reading far into the night. A further recommendation: Ann Arnold's name inscribed in Thurmond Library's copy.

Mysteries appear on many summer lists. Ruth Wendling is fond of Susan Wittig Albert's "China Bayles Herbal Series" set in a small Texas town where seemingly ordinary people commit extraordinary crimes. Recipes and information about herbs are added treats.

David Kearley directs us to the "Brother Cadfael Chronicles" by Ellis Peters. A reviewer says that the 12th century Welsh Benedictine monk combines the curious mind of a scientist and the bravery of a knight-errant. The sympathetic, occasional grumpy, protagonist is beloved by many Sewanee readers.

Bring your willing suspension of disbelief to the English village of Nether Monkslip and the fifth appearance of G.M. Malliet's ex-spy/now vicar. In "The Haunted Season," a patient bishop reluctantly approves Father Max's investigation of another local murder—a decapitation—and his marriage to the very pregnant Awena, pagan proprietor of the village new age shop, Goddesspell.

Travels from the porch swing might take us to the canals of Venice in Donna Leon's "The Waters of Eternal Youth" for the 25th appearance of the gentle Commissario Brunetti. Phoebe Hethcock and Susan Holmes share my affection for the recurring cast, which includes Venice itself. Architecture, food, music and family traditions give richness to the well-plotted stories.

Mysteries, fantasy, history: What's on your list? Watch the Sewanee Mountain Messenger for information on summer reading programs at area libraries and details about small accessible lending libraries in Sewanee and other locales. Remember to find time to read, read and read to the children during summer.

SAS Track at Regional

The SAS Track and Field team sent three athletes to Division II East Regional running events on May 19.

Junior Christian Taylor (Sewanee) completed his season by running the 300m intermediate hurdles. He raced to a fourth place finish overall and barely missed heading to state.

Burton Dorrough (senior from Albany, Ga.) competed well in the 400m dash, finishing fifth overall in his final high school meet.

Bailey McLean (sophomore from Manchester) destroyed his personal record in the 1600m by 18 seconds when he finished in 5:25.

Liles and Berndt First USILA All-Americans

Sewanee men's lacrosse student-athletes Cason Liles and Robbie Berndt have become the program's first-ever United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association/Nike All-Americans.

Berndt earned the honor after being named the Southern Athletic Association (SAA) Offensive Player of the Year in 2016. Liles also garnered a major conference award when he was named SAA Newcomer of the Year earlier this spring. Both players were also All-SAA First-Team selections.

Family Bike Ride Series

Children and adults of all ages and abilities are invited. Rides start and end at the Sewanee Gardener's Market gravel parking lot, next to Hair Depot. The rides begin at 4:30 p.m. on Sundays through July 31. For more information email <bethpride@att.net>.

Tigers Named SAA Man and Woman of the Year

Sewanee senior student-athlete Emily Javadi has been named the Southern Athletic Association (SAA) Woman of the Year award winner. Sewanee senior student-athlete Eric Roddy (men's tennis) has been named the 2016 SAA Man of the Year.

The SAA Man and Woman of the Year, presented by Summit Management Corporation, are the highest honors the league bestows. An event will be held at the University of the South campus on Monday, June 13 to celebrate the recipients and their families.

Since the league started in 2012–13, the Tigers have won five of the eight SAA Man/Woman of the Year awards.

A recent graduate of the University of the South, Javadi completed her Bachelors of Science degree in Biology with a 3.54 GPA. A member of the SAA Academic Honor Roll every semester, she parlayed her love of science into community service when, during her junior spring semester break, she spent a week in Haiti providing medical service.

On the links, Javadi has enjoyed success unlike any other women's golfer in program history. Already named one of the top 15 Sewanee female athletes all-time by the Tennesseean, Javadi rose to No. 1 in the national rankings earlier this season.

The Chattanooga, Tenn., native entered her fourth consecutive NCAA Tournament ranked No. 5 nationally. A two-time SAA Women's Golf Player of the Year winner, Javadi has been named to the All-SAA First-Team all four seasons.

This season, the Chattanooga, Tenn., native was just named a WGCA All-American for the third time. She also won the Dan Quayle Collegiate, MCC Women's Intercollegiate, the GolfWeek Preview and SAA Championship.

Along with breaking the GolfWeek Preview scoring record, Javadi finished no worse than seventh in any event in 2015–16.

She has been awarded as a WGCA Academic All-America twice (2013, 2015). In 2013, Javadi was named the WGCA/NCAA Freshman of the Year.

Roddy is a rare student-athlete that perfectly encapsulates the character of the league's top honor. A double major in English and Spanish, he graduated from the University of the South as one of the top-four in the Class of 2016 with a 4.03 GPA.

He has served tirelessly over a four-year period as a Bonner scholar performing community service in a neighboring poor rural county school system. On the tennis court, he led his team to four straight SAA Regular Season and Tournament Championships while earning four All-SAA First-Team awards.

He is currently ranked No. 2 in the country in doubles and No. 9 in the region in singles. The Chattanooga, Tenn., native has a 25-3 doubles record and a 19-4 singles record that includes only one NCAA Division III loss this season.

Already a 2016 All-American as a result of his ITA Regional Doubles Championship and second place finish at the ITA National Championships last fall, Roddy and teammate Jack Gray qualified for the NCAA Doubles Championships.

Roddy was a 2015 Rhodes Scholar finalist and traveled to Spain to study in the summer between his sophomore and junior years. In 2015, he started an internship in New York for Scout.com and writes a weekly blog on the Miami Dolphins. He also has published articles in the Sewanee Mountain Messenger, as a guest columnist.

Liles Named ITA National Senior Player of the Year

Sewanee senior women's tennis student-athlete Lindsey Liles became the fourth Tiger in program history to be named the Intercollegiate Tennis Association (ITA) National Senior Player of the Year.

The Little Rock, Ark., native joins former Tigers Cameron Tyer (1993), Gabriela Cavalho (2008), and Mary Missbach (2000) as an ITA National Senior Player of the Year honoree. Along with the national honor, Liles was named the Atlantic South Region Senior Player of the Year.

During the season, Liles has posted records of 14-5 in singles and 23-3 in doubles. She guided Sewanee to as high as No. 10 in the Oracle/ITA Collegiate Tennis National Team Rankings. Heading into the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) Singles and Doubles Championships, Liles was ranked No. 5 in the Atlantic South Region in singles and No. 1 in doubles, along with partner Clementina Davila. Over her four seasons, Liles had a career record of 59-18 in singles and 84-19 in doubles.

The 2016 Southern Athletic Association (SAA) Player of the Year is a multiple All-American in both singles and doubles while guiding Sewanee to back-to-back NCAA Tournament Regional final berths the past two seasons.

Off the court, Liles was a Benedict Scholar recipient while also receiving the Stephen Puckette Award for student leadership and the Elizabeth Marks Caldwell Award for leadership and scholarship. Earlier this month, Liles was honored with a College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA) First-Team All-Academic honor after she graduated with a 4.06 GPA.

Liles also earned the Atlantic South ITA/Arthur Ashe Leadership and Sportsmanship Regional award a season ago.

Sports Notes

Liles and Davila, All-American

After playing their way to All-American honors, Sewanee women's tennis student-athletes Lindsey Liles and Clementina Davila's run at the NCAA Division III Women's Tennis Doubles Championships came to an end.

The Tiger duo had an outstanding run despite dropping their quarterfinal match to Aashli Budhiraja and Eudice Chong of Wesleyan, 6-1, 6-2.

Liles and Davila will finish the season as one of the top eight doubles teams in the nation.

Schober, All-American

Led by junior singles player Avery Schober, three Tigers completed action at the NCAA Division III Men's Tennis Singles and Doubles Championships.

Schober opened Round of 32 singles action with an impressive, 6-0, 6-0 win over Jake Yasgoor of Pomona-Pitzer. With the win, Schober became an All-American by advancing into the Round of 16.

Despite dropping the first set to Sam Geier of Kenyon, Schober battled back to win the second set, 6-1. Schober could not break or hold Geier in the third as the Kenyon senior, who is ranked as the top ITA player in the Central Region, won at 6-0.

In doubles action, No. 2 ranked Jack Gray and Eric Roddy dropped their Round of 16 doubles match to Ben Foran and Matthew Heinrich of Stevens, 7-6, 7-6.

Woody Plants

The Sewanee area and the whole Southern Appalachian province in which we are located have long been noted for the diversity of its flora. The "Guide to the Trees, Shrubs & Woody Vines of Tennessee" by B. Eugene Wofford and Edward W. Chester lists even more numbers of different woody plants for the Cumberland Plateau than for the Smokies and other mountains to our east.

As an illustration of this diversity, I made note of the types of trees growing on the edge of the woods along one side of the Gudger Road where I usually take my regular walk. In a section of just about 100 paces I listed 19 trees: white oak, scarlet oak, chestnut oak, two different hickories, red maple, black gum, sweet gum, black cherry, persimmon, dogwood, redbud, black locust, beech, tulip poplar, buckthorn, white ash, juniper and Virginia pine. Compare this to the entire country of Finland where there are roughly two dozen species of trees. Maybe we do live in the "greenest state in the land of the free" as we used to sing in the old Davy Crockett song.

Bald Eagles Sighted

In 2009, two bald eagles were reported, for the first time, nesting within the Arnold Air Force Base Wildlife Resource Area. Recently two more eagles were spotted on Arnold property.

The new pair of eagles are not yet mature and are still perfecting their skills at making a nest which can measure anywhere from 5- to 8-feet across.

"This pair of eagles is 4 years old," said John Lamb, a wildlife and plant biologist with URS Federal Services at AEDC. "Their age is based on plumage. They still have some brown feathers behind the eye and in the tail. A 5-year-old, full-grown, adult eagle will have completely white feathers on the head and tail.

"They built a rather shabby first attempt at a nest, but aren't actually using it."

Bald eagles may be spotted in many prime locations in Tennessee and are more easily seen during the winter months when the leaves fall from the trees and when the birds are wintering from late-October to mid-February. The eagles that nest in northern regions and are wintering in Tennessee return to southern Canada and the Great Lakes area in April. Adults that nest in Tennessee, remain in state the entire year.

Lamb said if someone sees a bald eagle on base they should call 454-5378 or the Arnold AFB Natural Resources office at 454-5466. If an eagle is seen off-base, they may contact their county TWRA.

For more information about eagles, visit the TWRA Watchable Wildlife website at <www.tnwatchablewildlife.org>.
