

Fourth of July Planning Continues

Volunteers Still Needed

Plans are moving ahead for this year's Fourth of July celebration, according to organizers. Lots of volunteers have stepped up and filled many of the key jobs. However, there are still places for folks who want to help.

The traditional Fourth activities—from the early morning flag-raising through the afternoon parade to the fireworks at dark—will take place on Monday, July 4. The street dance will be on Saturday, July 2, near the Sewanee Market. On Sunday, July 3, the Sewanee Summer Music Festival will offer concerts at 2:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. The Festival Orchestra will have its annual free concert of patriotic music at 7 p.m. on Monday.

"We still need road marshals, banner carriers, wranglers at the dog show and shuttle drivers," Bill Barton said. "We can never have too many helpers!"

Airplane rides from the Sewanee Airport will be available for everyone (not just kids) for $10 per person, reports Rebecca Gibson.

For more information or to volunteer, contact Barton at 598-9267.

Walter Merrill at Academy of Lifelong Learning on Thursday

Walter Merrill will be the next speaker at the Academy for Lifelong Learning at St. Mary's Sewanee at noon, Thursday, June 9. Merrill's talk is titled "Sundays with Bob: Lessons Learned from a Master Teacher." Merrill is professor of surgery and chief of the division of cardiothoracic surgery at the University of Mississippi. He received a B.A. in English from the University of the South and an M.D. from the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. He is a current member of the Board of Regents of the University of the South.

Merrill describes his talk as being similar to the book "Tuesdays with Morrie" by Mitch Albom. Like Albom, Merrill spent an extended period of time visiting with a terminally ill former professor.

"The story is about illness, loss of capacity and death," Merrill said. "However, that is not the point at all. The story is, at heart, about how one chooses to live and those things that one considers to be important."

Reservations are not necessary to attend the lecture. However, if guests would like a reservation for a box lunch for $10, please e-mail Ivey Lowry at <stmaryssewanee@bell-south.net> by today, June 3. Guests are also welcome to bring their own lunch.

The Academy for Lifelong Learning at St. Mary's Sewanee sponsors a monthly luncheon lecture for members of the community interested in continuing their education on a variety of topics. New members are welcome at any time; annual dues are $10. For more information, contact Anne Davis, (931) 924-4465, or Elaine Goleski, (931) 924-3227.

Among the highlights of the commencement weekend for the class of 2011 were the announcement of Valedictorian Soyeun Park of Seoul, South Korea, and Salutatorian Justin Thomas of Monteagle and the announcement of other honors (pictured above): Seth Burns of Sewanee, best male athlete; Keeley Stewart of Winchester, day student award and best female athlete; Bryce Taylor of Winchester, Lulu Hampton Owen Service Award; Storm Hill of Hillsboro, Betty Guyard Condra Perseverance Award and the SMA Memorial Merit Award; Be-Be Webb of Memphis, boarding student award; and Ethan Burns of Sewanee, head of school's award.

St. Andrew's-Sewanee Welcomes Alumni Back to the Mountain

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School will welcome over 300 alumni and guests back to campus for the annual Alumni Weekend, celebrated this year June 3-5.

Saturday's highlight is a Champagne Awards Brunch to honor the 50th classes and special award recipients, including the St. Andrew's-Sewanee Service Award, which will be presented to Murray Robinson. This year's distinguished alumni awards will go to actors Sean Bridgers, '86, and Elisabeth Röhm, '91. Other events of the weekend include the alumni and family soccer game, St. Mary's tea, and SMA march escorted by the Highlander Pipe and Drum Corps on Sunday morning.

Robinson, '52, a former trustee, is being honored for his longtime support and service. Murray served 13 years on the board of trustees, eight of them as president and vice president, and was a lead donor during the Cornerstone Campaign. Robinson Dining Hall is named in memory of Murray's brother, Michael.

Distinguished alumnus Bridgers, '86, is most noted for his role as Johnny Burns on HBO's "Deadwood." Sean wrote, produced and starred in "Paradise Falls" in 1997, which won best picture awards at six film festivals. He is developing a feature film, "Arkansas Traveler," set in the post-Civil War era. His most recent film, "The Woman," premiered at this year's Sundance Film Festival and received rave reviews.

Röhm, '91, is also being honored as a distinguished alumnus; her schedule is preventing her from attending this weekend. She has just completed several feature films, including "Abduction," directed by John Singleton, and "Transit," with Joel Silver as executive producer. She is most noted for her five years on NBC's "Law and Order." In addition to acting, Röhm has written two novels, "Nerissa" and "Desire," and blogs on <People.com>. She works with the Red Cross as an ambassador and a trained emergency volunteer, visiting troops and providing aid around the world.

Bob, in Short

By Avery Shackelford, Messenger Intern

Bob Short—tennis player, fan, coach and artist—is beloved by many in Sewanee. He is the Renaissance man of the over-80 set. Bob can often be found at the Sewanee tennis courts cheering on the University's tennis teams with his dog, "Miss G," by his side. He even has his own stool as a seat of honor at the indoor courts, with "Bob" inscribed in bright marker on the top.

Bob says his relationship with the tennis team has been rewarding, and he has remained friends with several players on the team throughout their time at Sewanee.

"They don't put me in a category as an old man who doesn't know what he's doing," Bob said. "They respect me and I respect them."

But Bob is more than Tiger Tennis' No. 1 fan.

"So many people here know me only through tennis. They don't know about the other careers I've had," he said. "They say, 'Oh, you're the tennis player.' That does not please me, but I don't correct them."

Bob, a native of Mississippi, has pursued several careers throughout his life, including a farmer, a lawyer and a painter.

Everyone told Bob when he was young that he was going to be a farmer, just as his grandfather and great-grandfather had been. "I thought that's what I was supposed to do," he said.

Bob enjoyed farming, but after having dropped out of college twice, decided to go back and complete his undergraduate degree at the age of 39. He finished law school when he was 43.

During college, an English professor introduced Bob to Romantic poetry. Bob was intrigued with the Romantic philosophy and after college, when he began practicing law, he tried to think of a way to incorporate the philosophy of the Romantic poets in his daily life.

"I found that I had been living a life opposed to what I truly believed," Bob said, "which is nature above everything."

In 1976, while working as a lawyer, Bob suffered his first episode of clinical depression. He began painting and completed two-and-a-half paintings in 1976 and 1977.

"When I came out of depression," Bob said, "I couldn't hold a paintbrush."

In 1991, Bob had another bout of depression. That summer, Bob decided he needed a respite from practicing law and came to the Mountain and to his house in the Monteagle Assembly. He took a class in philosophy and religion at the University and began attending services at All Saints' Chapel.

On a blue-skied, sunny September morning, Bob realized that he was finally home. He called his law office and said, "I won't be back."

He began painting again through this depression, which lasted until 1994. First inspired to paint through Romantic poetry, Bob created scenes using quotations from Wordsworth and Blake, written in bold block letters across his paintings. Bob has also composed his own verse, inspired by his religious philosophy. Bob said he contemplated what he thought was true or false, and tried to paint that.

In 1994, Bob moved from the Assembly to Sewanee.

For Bob, art is not art unless it means something. He said the purpose of his paintings is to invoke thought. He is a unique man who believes all lives are connected and driven by the force of energy. Whether on the tennis court, behind a paintbrush or standing in a court of law, Bob Short is a force of energy "going on 85 years young" who truly invokes thought in all who know him.

FOND YEATMAN MEMORIES To the Editor:

I was pleased to see the Yeatmans recognized by the Sewanee Civic Association.

My memories of them span from wonderful nature walks with my Cub Scout den mother, Mrs. Yeatman, in the 1960s, to sitting in on Dr. Yeatman's informative and entertaining biology classes while in high school and home from college.

More recently, I knew who to call to explain the excavated yellow-jacket nest near our house: Mrs. Yeatman described how skunks will dig them up at night in order to eat the dormant insects like popcorn. I gained new respect for skunks.

A well-deserved award!

COUNTY FUNDING FALLING SHORT To the Editor:

We need to prepare for a difficult fiscal year ahead, in which the current allocated resources will probably not meet the needs of the county in education, infrastructure or charitable contributions. In short, there will be considerable debate about money, and it seems clear that some tax increase will be necessary.

We take the following positions.

1) The education of our young people needs to be fully supported. The Board of Education anticipates a shortfall of more than $3 million this year. In part, this is due to a state mandate that counties increase teacher salaries by 1.6 percent. But the real problem is that the county commission has consistently underfunded the school system by hundreds of thousands, and now, millions of dollars. The time has come for the county to meet the schools' needs.

2) Some commission members have said that they "gave their word" to constituents not to vote for new taxes. It's a popular refrain, but it is unrealistic. We owe our young people more than campaign promises; we owe them a future in which they can get good jobs and be productive members of the community.

3) Franklin County needs to be as appealing to new investment as possible. Nissan's presence, for instance, has had a huge impact on the county's viability. Industries look to locate in communities with a genuine commitment to education. Short-sighted political promises do not attract new businesses; well-educated potential employees do.

Let's invest in Franklin County's future.

YOUNG PEOPLE LEARN HEALTHY HABITS To the Editor:

On Tuesday, May 17, Grundy County School's fourth-graders boarded buses and made the short trip to the University of the South in Sewanee to participate in "Healthy Horizons." The day was filled with fun activities to teach children to choose healthy foods and engage in exercise. Healthy Horizons was funded by a grant from "Project Diabetes" and organized by the Grundy County Health Council.

I worked with the parents who made the trip, who were reminded that kids are "all eyes and ears," so it is important to be good role models. After lunch, we took a tour of the University and had time with folks from the Admissions Office.

Almost as exciting as the event itself was the opportunity to be on the campus of such a beautiful school. The kids were in awe of the magnificent structures on campus. Many wondered if this was where the "Harry Potter" movies were filmed!

It was a privilege to have access to this resource on the Mountain. We had the campus to ourselves that day, as it was when the campus is typically closed following graduation in order to prepare for summer programs and classes. Instead, Sewanee opened its doors and hosted our this group.

Sewanee's chef Rick Wright and his staff did an amazing job preparing lunch. A special thank you to the University of the South! Thanks also to all the teachers and assistants who participated in this event, making this a great day!

SES Fifth-Graders Help at CAC

On May 18, the fifth-grade students at Sewanee Elementary School crossed the street to Otey Memorial Parish Hall to begin setting up for Community Action Committee's monthly mini-mobile food pantry. Under the great leadership of volunteer Lelia Blizzard, many fifth-graders began the project of placing grocery items on tables in very orderly rows. The parish hall was full of delicious things to eat.

Fifth-grade teacher Kim Foster and Pam Jenkins, a parent volunteer, organized the students into three groups for the morning event. After all the tables had been stocked with a variety of foods, the doors opened. Each person shopping the mini-mobile food pantry was paired with a student. The students escorted each person around the room carrying the items of food selected and then taking the groceries to the car. Several School of Theology students helped the fifth-graders pack away tables and leftover groceries and assist in the cleanup. Under the direction of Michelle Ortiz, a School of Theology student, the young people then organized and restocked the CAC's food pantry in the CAC office.

"The day was full of fun, good will and good things to eat," reported Kana Goldsmith, CAC's director. For more information about CAC call 598-5927.

Friendship and Education Flourish at CUAC Triennial

More than 80 people attended the triennial meeting of the Colleges and Universities of the Anglican Communion (CUAC) May 22-26, which was hosted by the University of the South, the first time the conference was held in the United States.

Over the course of four days, the participants became reacquainted with old friends and colleagues, made new friends and attended presentations relating to this year's theme, "Sustainability: A New Context for Higher Education." Presentations included Mercy Pushpalatha's talk on "Educational Leadership: Stewardship and Sustainability" (Lady Doak College, India Chapter) and Robert Warner's presentation on "Re-imagining a Church Foundation in a Secular Age" (University of Chester, Europe Chapter).

A panel comprised of John Gatta, James Peters, Robin Gottfried and Marvin Pate discussed the implications of sustainability and what forms of practical learning could be incorporated into undergraduate offerings.

At the end of the conference, the CUAC board of directors officially installed the Rev. Canon James Callaway as the next Secretary General. Linda Lankewicz was elected as board chair for the group.

Rango

107 minutes • PG • Admission $3

A witty, wonderful, smart movie that will entertain the entire family, “Rango” is the rare beast in the animated movie genre. “Rango” (voiced by Johnny Depp) is a lizard, but imagine him as the good guy in a John Wayne western. He comes to the town of “Dirt” to clean things up and encounters the usual suspects, including bad guy Rattlesnake Jake (Bill Nighy) and the local mayor (Ned Beatty). With homages to movies ranging from “Blazing Saddles” to “Apocalypse Now” to “Star Wars,” this is a delight for everyone. As one reviewer wrote, “Though young children may enjoy it, the film is built for viewers of any age with a taste for joyful anarchy.” Rated PG for rude humor, language, action and smoking. —LW

Note: In June, the SUT will have films Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday evenings at 7:30.

Shenanigans Gallery in June

Laurel York and Daniel Pate

Laurel York and Daniel Pate are the featured artists at Shenanigans Gallery in June and will be presenting a variety of crafts for display and sale.

York will exhibit a large collection of original linocut greeting cards which feature highly imaginative motifs, some whimsical, others poetic. She will also be showing a selection of children's dolls, each of them hand-knit from fine natural wools and imbued with its own distinct personality.

In addition to his paintings, which are already familiar to Shenanigans patrons, Pate will display a collection of hypertufa outdoor garden sculpture. Hypertufa is a synthetic lightweight stone that possesses the same porous, plant-compatible properties as natural tufa. He has shaped it into pots and planters, birdbaths, pedestals and other garden ornaments. Visit the gallery and check out this unique blend of art and functionality.

Shenanigans Gallery is located in the back of Shenanigans Restaurant at 12595 Sollace M. Freeman Highway in Sewanee. The gallery is open every day from 11:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. For more information, please visit the Shenanigans Art Gallery page on Facebook.

Artists with work in the gallery include: Bob Askew, watercolor and oil paintings; Larry Carden, weaving; Jill Carpenter, patchwork and quilting; Tom and Susan Church, woodworking; David B. Coe, photography; Ginger Freeman, mixed media; Diane Getty, fibers; Robley Hood, handmade books; Barbara Hughes, ceramic sculpture and painting; Diane Jones, calligraphy; Sanford McGee, copper and mixed media; Dan Pate, painting and sculpture; Claire Reishman, pottery; Peggy Solomon, fiber art; Jeanie Stephenson, bronze; Christi Teasley, textiles; Merissa Tobler, pottery; Mae Wallace, pottery; and Laurel York, printmaking and basketry.

Summer Male Choir Returns

Following a successful and enjoyable venture last summer, a choir of men to sing four-part (TTBB) music is being formed for a short season this summer. On the Thursday afternoons of July 7, 14, 21 and 28, the group will rehearse from 4 to 5:15 p.m., with music coming from the large collection of choral music from the days when the College was all male. A talented group has already expressed interest in the venture. All men who are interested are invited. For more information contact John Bordley via e-mail, <jbordley@sewanee.edu>.

Schedule for Yoga With Carolyn

Carolyn Fitz announces her summer schedule of yoga classes. The morning yoga classes will meet 8:30–10 a.m. on Tuesdays and Fridays at the Sewanee Community Center. The cost is $7 per class.

The Yin After Work class meets on Tuesday evenings at her home from 6 to 7:10 p.m. The cost of this class is $5. (The difference in class costs is because Fitz pays a fee for the Community Center space.)

The Tuesday classes, both morning and evening, are Yin Yoga. Yin Yoga involves asanas that stretch the connective tissues of the body in long-held static poses. The Friday class is usually a combination of Yin Yoga and Iyengar informed static poses and Slow Vinyasa Flow.

Sarah's Shade Dedicated at SAS

By Avery Shackelford, Messenger Intern

Friends and family of Sarah Rudolph gathered at the St. Andrew's-Sewanee tennis courts on May 27 for the dedication of “Sarah's Shade,” a pavilion built in memory of the former SAS student and tennis player who died in a car accident at the age of 16 in 2009.

The pavilion was a nine-month project constructed by members of the community. The design reflects Sarah's spirit with its beautiful landscaping, Adirondack chairs, porch swings and blue and gold tie-dye flags handmade by Sarah's friends. The two-story structure overlooks the tennis courts, as well as the soccer and baseball fields on the SAS campus.

Sarah's mother, Carol Fujiyoshi, thanked the donors and contributors to the project for their gifts.

“Standing here, I remember those years watching Sarah play doubles with her friend Zoe [Petropoulos],” she said. “They were always dancing and having fun on the court—it was part of their strategy to distract their opponents—wearing those too-small uniforms the senior girls convinced them to buy,” she recalled, laughing. Fujiyoshi presented the Rev. John Thomas, SAS head of school, with a donation to the school's scholarship fund in honor of Sarah.

John Shackelford, who spearheaded the project, offered a few words about his relationship with Sarah. He talked about spending Saturday mornings teaching Sarah tennis.

“She was my student and friend,” he said. Shackelford said the inspiration to build Sarah's Shade came from the need to have a shady place to sit at the famously hot St. Andrew's tennis courts. “Every time I sit here and wait for the breeze, and a shadow from the porch above comes over my face, I will think of her,” he said.

Wright Offers Breakfast Bible Study

“How Jesus Interpreted the Old Testament” will be the topic of a three-week Bible study led by Rebecca Wright at St. Mary's Sewanee beginning on Wednesday, June 8.

The sessions will be 8-9:30 a.m. on Wednesdays through June 22.

“In this three-week series, we will look at some of Jesus' parables and other teachings to see how a greater familiarity with the Old Testament passages Jesus quotes and alludes to can add depth to our understanding of his words,” Wright said.

The cost for the series is $55 and includes breakfast.

Wright is a C. K. Benedict professor of Old Testament at Sewanee. She received a B.A. from the American University, an M.Div. from Wesley Theological Seminary and a Ph. D. from Yale University.

For more information call 598-5342.

Tutus and Tiaras Dance Camp

"Is there a princess dancing around your house?" asks David Herriott.

If so, Alabama Youth Ballet-Sewanee Dance Conservatory will be conducting a summer dance camp, Tutus and Tiaras, from June 20 through July 1. Tutus and Tiaras is the perfect introduction to dance for ages three through six. The first week is for three- and four-year-olds, while the second week is for five- and six-year-olds. The camp will run from 9:15 a.m. to noon, Monday through Friday. The cost is $85 per week.

Tutus and Tiaras will offer age-appropriate ballet and creative movement classes and make ballet-oriented crafts to take home. They will also learn how dancers tell a story through movement, such as the Sugar Plum Fairy in "The Nutcracker" and Princess Aurora in "Sleeping Beauty."

Each week will culminate with a showing of their work to their parents. Students must bring their own snack each day. The course will be taught by Callie Holloway, who has studied dance in Scotland and danced with the Nashville Ballet. She taught the DanceFun classes for the Conservatory this past year and continued her studies under Herriott at the University of the South. Herriott is the artistic director of the Alabama Youth Ballet and the Sewanee Dance Conservatory.

Tutus and Tiaras will be held in the dance studio at the Fowler Center. For more information, e-mail Herriott at <deherriott@gmail.com> or call (706) 589-2507.

Trains and Tunnels, Part One

If the wind is blowing just right, sometimes you can hear train whistles in Sewanee, calling like ghosts in the night. For about 135 years, however, whistles sounded locally as a train ambled through the town. Anyone under the age of 25 never saw the tracks running in front of the Sewanee Market, or crossing the Marion County line, signaling safety from the Monteagle police speed-traps. Surviving remnants now form garden beds and terraces. When someone asked me in the 1990s where the tracks used to be, I was shocked! It won't be too long, though, before first-hand stories of the former lifeline to civilization will be only legend. The railroad was for over a century, however, the most important symbol tying the University, the community and the surrounding areas together.

It took two incredible engineering feats and much cooperation to bring the railroad up the Mountain in the 1850s. Men from Irish work camps, early settlers from the area, slaves and servants risked danger and disease as they cut through solid rock to create the 2,200-foot (nearly half a mile) long Cowan tunnel to Crow Creek Valley; others worked with hand tools to blaze a steep, windy trail up the Mountain. Cholera was epidemic, though legend has it that the workers who lived on the Mountain did not get sick. The Cowan tunnel, still in operation, and the Mountain Goat short line set records at the time as the longest tunnel and the steepest railroad grade in the nation.

Without the railroad, the University might be called Ben Lomand or Monte Sano, other possible locations for the fledgling University. It certainly would not have been placed here. Tracy City would have received the name "Sewanee." But Sewanee Mining Company representatives and area landowners made such generous offers of land, raw materials and personal support that Bishop Polk was able to convince the trustees to locate the University in this former wilderness.

The railroad remained the center of activity in the town for many years. Steam engines to diesels negotiated the perilous path from Cowan to "Lower Coal Banks" and beyond, bringing coal cars, the mail, merchant supplies and passengers. Even the Breslin bell and carillon bells came to Sewanee on that train. In earlier days, hacks would miraculously show up at the depot to transport people wherever they needed to go. At night, strangers stepping off into a deserted depot were usually met by a resident responding to the train's whistle to see who might be stranded. The depot was a main source of interaction between town and gown.

SAS Girls' Tennis Ends Great Season

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee girls' tennis team finished the season as one of the top eight Division IIA squads in the state. After securing a substate match with their 7-1 region record, the girls fell 4-3 to St. George's (Memphis). Sadie and Michaela Shackelford earned key wins for the team at No. 1 and No. 2 singles, respectively, and at No. 1 doubles. With the match score tied at 3-3, the SAS duo of Nikki Johnston and Mary Grace Edwards were unable to sustain momentum at No. 2 doubles, eventually losing 8-5. The girls' team enjoyed a stellar 10-2 season.

In individual play, Sadie Shackelford, with her second place region finish, advanced to the quarterfinals of the Division II-A State Tournament in Murfreesboro. In her first match, Sadie topped Taylor Barnes of Immaculate Conception (Memphis) 6-2, 6-0. In the semifinal round, Sadie faced Oromia Womeodu of Lausanne. Despite a strong effort, Sadie was unable to find a weakness in her opponent, falling 6-2, 6-0. Sadie has been a state contender since 2008 and ends an excellent 2011 season with a 16-2 singles record.

"I'm very proud of all of our girls," said coach Kelley Black. "They were dedicated in the post-season and put forth a formidable team effort in tournament play to cap a very successful season."

Sasha Peters

Peters Key to CCS Victory

Sasha Peters of Sewanee helped capture the Region 4-A/AA title for the Chattanooga Christian School Chargers boys' soccer team, advancing CCS to the state tournament, where it was the winner.

Peters scored the lone goal in the first half of the regional game against rival Notre Dame.

"Sasha was a spark plug for us in the first half," CCS coach Shawn Brower said. "He was the one guy who was to the wall. We needed someone with a spark, and he gave that to us. He was so fast up and down the sidelines."

Peters, the son of Cheri and Jim Peters of Sewanee, will be a senior next fall at CCS.

Adult Spring Tennis Tourney

The Sewanee Tennis Association held its annual spring tennis tournament May 21-23. The final matches were played on Sunday, starting outdoors at the Gaston Bruton Tennis Courts and moving indoors when the rains came.

Men's singles were completed outdoors with Walter Brownridge winning a seesaw battle in a third set tiebreaker over Michael March, 6-3, 4-6, 15-13. Men's doubles was well into the second set when the rain forced it indoors. Laurence Alvarez and Bob Ott won over Brownridge and John Solomon, 6-2, 6-4. Brownridge competed again in the mixed doubles. He and Connie Arrick lost to Sandy Baird and Solomon in another close match 3-6, 6-2, 12-10. Thanks to tournament organizers Dede Clements and Michael March, and to John Shackelford for helping with the draw.

OVERTIME

by John Shackelford

Sitting in a major league baseball stadium on a hot June night watching a long fly ball disappear into the outstretched glove of a speedy outfielder is one of the top 40 reasons I love sports. It's also in my top 10 reasons for why I love summer. Much like a slice of watermelon or a cup of Sweet CeCe's yogurt after the 10th punch on my card. Seeing that same fly ball on television just cheats the sport. The live crack of that bat, the distance the ball actually travels in a soaring arc like an Apollo 12 mission, and the mystery of the outfielder somehow arriving in the exact location as the ball are all sights best seen from a seat in the bleachers under a towering bank of lights. You need an overpriced hotdog in a foil wrapper, some stale popcorn and a $25 team hat to improve the quality of the experience. Baseball improves in a minor league park where the fans shout at the players, calling them by their first names from much more intimate distances. Still better is the chance to watch your kid round the bases at a Little League park. As the scale shrinks, the love of the game builds inside each of us in some sort of strange inverse order of appreciation. I have a video of my daughter, Sadie, playing coach-pitch up on Ball Park Road. Patrick Morris, her coach at the time, threw my chubby little eight-year-old a not-fastball over the heart of the plate, and she whacked away like she was attacking a piñata filled with watermelon-flavored candy. As she rounded the bases and the throws fell farther and farther from their intended targets, Coach Morris shouted and encouraged her to just keep heading for home. Her face was rounder than the ball and was filled with a super-sized grin that I need no video to remember.

The big news in sports this week is that Jim Tressel, the football coach of the Ohio State Buckeyes resigned in yet another NCAA cheating, lying and cover-up scandal. This comes on the heels of the University of Tennessee's basketball team facing the same difficulties. The CBS "60 Minutes" television news program last week offered testimony from Lance Armstrong's former teammates that our former American hero had been illegally using performance-enhancing drugs while en route to his seven Tour de France titles. Barry Bonds, who hit fly balls beyond the reach of more outfielders than any other player, just spent the last two months on trial for lying about alleged steroid use. In a survey of world-class athletes, many admitted they would sacrifice three to five years off their lives if the payday was an Olympic gold medal. These high stakes seem to create an environment where cheating is more expected than discouraged. If so, what have we really won?

Last week my 16-year-old Sadie lost a tennis match at the TSSAA State Championships. Her no-longer round face was filled with tears as the rain came during the final points. Losing hurts and watching your child lose hurts more. What to say as a dad? How can you make it okay? Is a hug enough? What all of my children (and maybe yours) don't fully understand is that each of us as parents won the lottery the day they were born and every day they have taken a breath since then. Who needs to cheat when we were given the trophy in a birthing room long ago? You want years off of my life? You can have them all if I can sit in the bleachers and watch my kid round the bases. It is the reason we learned to run.

Song of the Wood Thrush

When walking through Abbo's Alley at dusk and day-break this summer, listen to the beautiful flutelike singing of the Wood Thrush. It makes a sound like "ee-o-lee." The song can also be heard at the edge of Lost Cove. This thrush is a ground-dwelling, leaf-scratching bird that spends the winter from southern Mexico to Central America. Its food consists of many kinds of insects, insect larvae, snails, spiders and some wild fruit such as berries. The nest is placed in bush crotches and horizontal limbs of small trees. It is made of dead leaves, grasses, twigs and weeds, with a mixture of mud on the inner cup. Three or four bluish-green eggs are laid. Listen for its song this summer. It is delightful.

Herbarium Offers Nature Journaling

Sewanee Herbarium has a full slate of events this summer, starting with nature journaling on Thursday mornings through July.

From 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m., beginning on Thursday, June 2, Mary Priestley will offer this great opportunity. Experienced in, but not an "authority" on nature journaling, Mary has been practicing it for close to 10 years. This is an invitation to set aside time on Thursday mornings for nature journaling. Meet at the gazebo in Abbo's Alley. Bring a notebook (preferably small and unlined), a pen or pencil, and something to sit on if you wish.

Watch the Messenger for future events, or go to the Herbarium website, <<http://lal.sewanee.edu/herbarium/>>.

Cavers' Carnival Opens June 9

The 60th Annual SERA Cave Carnival will be June 9–12 at Caver's Paradise Campground in Sewanee. THE ALLEY NEEDS YOUR HELP!

Abbo's Alley, one of Sewanee's favorite woodland retreats, was set aside by University Trustees in the late 19th century as a permanent parkland. For many years this place remained in its original state—a wooded ravine garden.

In the early 1940s Professor Abbott C. Martin of the English department began refining the area, using students who sought work-study income, some volunteers and even German prisoners of war from nearby Tullahoma. The "Alley" was named for "Abbo."

Today, as in the past, virtually all of the maintenance in the Alley is done by students and volunteers. Supplies, equipment and replacement trees are provided by generous contributions of Friends of Abbo's Alley.

BARDTOVERSE

by Scott and Phoebe Bates

What passing-bells for those who die as cattle?
Only the monstrous anger of the guns.
Only the stuttering rifles' rapid rattle
Can patter out their hasty orisons.
No mockeries for them from prayers or bells,
Nor any voice of mourning save the choirs,—
The shrill, demented choirs of wailing shells;
And bugles calling for them from sad shires.

What candles may be held to speed them all?
Not in the hands of boys, but in their eyes
Shall shine the holy glimmers of good-byes.
The pallor of girls' brows shall be their pall;
Their flowers the tenderness of silent minds,
And each slow dusk a drawing-down of blinds.

—"Anthem for Doomed Youth" by Wilfred Owen (1893–1918; killed in World War I)
