

County School Board Requests 7-Cent Property Tax Increase

In an effort to solve the continuing budget crisis in the Franklin County School system, the board of education has requested a 7-cent property tax increase. The Franklin County Commission will have to decide whether to accept this recommendation.

The school board and Director of Schools Rebecca Sharber have been struggling to have a budget for the 2014–15 year that would have a $3 million fund balance. With the proposed property tax increase, the fund balance would be approximately $2.4 million.

At the April 7 meeting of the school board, the draft budget showed a $1.2 million shortage, which included increases in insurance costs and retirement. At that time, the board asked Sharber to come back with a budget that had a $3 million fund balance.

Sharber reported she was unable to get there. Since then, she has been working with system staff to reduce projected expenses. Recommending a 7-cent tax increase was required to get the fund balance closer to $3 million. An earlier plan had recommended a 33-cent property tax increase. A majority of the county commissioners indicated they would not support such a large tax hike.

Because the school board cannot levy taxes, the final decision about the increase must be made by the commissioners. There has been no increase in appropriations from the county commission to the school system for 10 years. The Franklin County commissioners will meet again on June 16.

Susan Binkley and Steve Blount

Blue Monarch Founder Receives Rotary Award

The South Pittsburg Rotary Club recently awarded Rotary's highest recognition, the Paul Harris Fellow, to Susan Binkley. This award, named for the founder of Rotary, was established to recognize those that live Rotary's motto, "Service Above Self."

Club member Beth Duggar said, "The South Pittsburg Rotary has donated $1,000 to Rotary International's Foundation in Susan's honor. She is the epitome of 'Service Above Self.'"

Binkley is the founder and executive director of Blue Monarch, a local residential nonprofit organization that provides services for women and children recovering from abuse and addiction. More than 500 women and children from 34 counties across the state of Tennessee have been served since Blue Monarch was established in 2003.

Assistant District Attorney Steve Blount, was invited to introduce Binkley. "The costs for incarceration are huge and increase yearly," Blount said. "When we send mothers to prison, we must also pay huge sums to take care of children. We must look for alternative programs, because prison cannot be the only answer for this problem. Where do we look? We look to people who have visions of alternative programs.

"We look to people like Susan Binkley and programs like Blue Monarch, where instead of incarceration, separation, destroying the family unit, and spending larger and larger amounts of taxpayer money, we attempt to keep families together, to rehabilitate, to restore and to save taxpayer money," Blount said.

"This award was a tremendous honor for me," said Binkley. "My relationships with folks from Rotary have always played critical roles in the creation and development of Blue Monarch. And it was also special to be introduced by Steve Blount. His influence and encouragement in the beginning of this journey helped to shape the way we operate today."

Local Groups Secure Bonnaroo Grants

The South Cumberland Community Fund and the Mountain Goat Trail Alliance have been awarded grants from the Bonnaroo Works Fund.

The Community Fund's award of $3,500 will support the fund's initiatives in education, cultural enrichment and community-building. "The people of the South Cumberland Plateau are creating innovative and successful programs to improve the quality of life here. The Bonnaroo Works Fund grant gives the Community Fund another way to support those programs," said Scott Parrish, Community Fund board chair.

The MGTAs grant of $5,000 will go toward construction of Phase II of the trail from Monteagle to Sewanee. "Bonnaroo's emphasis on creating healthy communities fits right in with our mission to offer recreational and health benefits, as well as economic opportunity, to the area," said Janice Thomas, board president of the MGTAs.

The Bonnaroo Works Fund supports community projects and educational, arts and environmental programs. For more information go to <www.bonnaroo.com/get-involved>.

St. Andrew's Chapel Centennial Mass

Presiding Bishop to Preach and Celebrate

The Most Rev. Dr. Katharine Jefferts Schori, Presiding Bishop and Primate of the Episcopal Church of the United States, will preach and celebrate the Holy Eucharist at a special Centennial Mass at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School's St. Andrew's Chapel on Saturday, June 7. The presiding bishop's visit coincides with the school's Alumni Weekend [see story on page 6] and is in tribute to the Centennial Celebration of St. Andrew's Chapel.

The service begins at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday. The Chapel doors will open to the public at 9:10 a.m. There will be a live video stream into McCrory Hall for the Performing Arts for overflow seating. Guests will be seated in McCrory Hall once the Chapel has reached capacity. Holy Communion will also be offered to those seated in McCrory. Visitors are asked to park in the McCrory Hall/Gym lot.

The Rev. John Thomas, SAS head of school, said, "We are grateful to Bishop Jefferts Schori for making time in her busy schedule to be with us as we celebrate the birth of the physical manifestation of the spiritual center of our community." The Centennial Celebration also kicks off the school's Chapel Centennial Campaign to restore and renovate the much loved but well used and deteriorated building.

The cornerstone for St. Andrew's Chapel was laid in 1913 by Bishop William Alexander Guerry of South Carolina, the first Mass was sung in the Chapel on February 22, 1914, and the structure was consecrated in May of that year. Except for brief interruptions over the years for renovations, students have gathered in the Chapel at least three times a week for prayer and community. The Chapel is the setting for alumnus and Pulitzer Prize-winning author James Agee's novel, "The Morning Watch," a recounting of a young boy's experience during the Easter vigil.

SUD Board Reviews Water Loss; Hears Request for Adjustment

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

At the May 27 meeting of the Board of Commissioners of the Sewanee Utility District of Franklin and Marion Counties, the board asked Manager Ben Beavers about old supply lines being a possible cause of unaccounted-for water loss. The board also heard an appeal from a customer who received an unusually high bill due to a water leak.

Unaccounted-for water loss is the difference between water produced at the water plant and water recorded on customer meters. SUD's unaccounted-for water loss, 27 percent, is slightly lower than last year, although still a cause for concern. Commissioner Art Hanson speculated that supply lines no longer in use could be the source of undetected leaks if the old lines were uncapped and under pressure at the junction with in-use lines.

Beavers acknowledged old supply lines as a possible source of water loss, but said significant leaks would be visible as groundwater or result in marshy areas unless the water ran into a stream bed.

Beavers said SUD had maps dating back to 1953 showing the location of all the supply lines in use at that time, as well as maps from the 1960s, 1970s and 1980s showing the location of supply lines. However, Beavers said, until recently, no systematic records were kept indicating when lines were taken out of service and whether or not the lines were capped. SUD now caps all lines taken out of service and records their location. Beavers plans to investigate out-of-use lines as a possible cause of water loss when the meter replacement program is complete. (SUD hopes its ongoing program of replacing customer meters will help reduce unaccounted-for water loss, since old meters typically give a false low reading.)

A SUD customer whose last water bill was $1,186 more than normal asked the board to reduce the amount

Letters

GRATEFUL FOR WWII VETS To the Editor:

While I am writing this letter on Memorial Day, I am thinking ahead to the next issue of the Messenger in early June.

On June 6, 1944, Allied forces landed in Normandy, France and began the liberation of Europe suffering under Nazi tyranny. It is easy to assume these days that Allied victory was a foregone conclusion. Few people remember that General Eisenhower prepared two press releases before the invasion—one announcing a successful landing but another regretting the failed attempt.

On June 15, two divisions of Marines followed by one Army division landed on the island of Saipan in the Pacific, the first successful breach of Japan's inner defense perimeter. Planned to take three days, this battle lasted for three weeks before the island was pacified. Success on Saipan led to the invasion of neighboring Tinian, where extra-long runways were built to serve the new B-29s in their sustained bombing of the Japanese islands.

Unfortunately not many World War II veterans remain to commemorate the 70th anniversaries of these battles. Sewanee lost several World War II veterans during the past year: Scott Bates, Joe Cushman and Harry Yeatman (I apologize for any omissions from this list). Nevertheless, if you know any World War II veterans this would be a good time to thank them for their service.

SCC THANKS RUNG

To the Editor:

The Sewanee Children's Center would like to thank Lisa Rung for her hard work and many accomplishments as 2013–14 board president.

When the Center was faced with challenges at the beginning of the year, Lisa wisely divided duties between standing and ad hoc committees, creating a strong network of hardworking individuals to meet the Center's needs. She sensitively worked to improve salaries and benefits for teachers while addressing the parent community's interests and concerns. Loyal, dedicated and conscientious all describe Lisa aptly. She spent countless hours in meetings and behind-the-scenes preparation. She worked fund-raisers, handled promotions and on several occasions, volunteered as a substitute for a sick teacher.

Thank you, Lisa, for your exceptional talents and services to the children and families in our community. We will miss you!

owed. The customer's meter showed 60,000 gallons more water used than normal usage. The excessive use was due to a malfunctioning toilet. The customer, a part-time resident, was out of town and unaware of the problem. SUD discovered the excessive use when reading the meter and shut off the water to the residence on May 5.

SUD Board President Cliff Huffman said the board would "need to rewrite the policy" to authorize an adjustment to the customer's bill. According to SUD's bill adjustment policy for water leaks, leaks between the meter and the foundation of a home qualify for a 50 percent bill reduction, but the policy does not provide for bill adjustment for leaks within the residence.

Beavers said SUD could provide relief in the form of "payments for as long as you need with no interest and no penalty."

Offering especially pertinent advice to SUD customers who plan to go on vacation in the coming months, commissioner Karen Singer said, "When you leave town, we recommend you turn off your water."

The SUD board will not meet in June. The next regular business meeting is scheduled for July 8.

Creighton's Store

Creighton's Store in Coalmont Benefit June 14

Mark your calendar for Saturday, June 14, and plan to help save an important piece of Grundy County history at a "Summer Fling" at the historic Creighton's Store in Coalmont. Starting at 10 a.m., there will be a bake sale, yard sale, live entertainment throughout the day, and other activities until 10 p.m.

This little country store was always much more than a place to buy groceries. Creighton's Store, located on Highway 56 in Coalmont, just before the UT Extension office, was the oldest business in Coalmont when it closed in April 2012 after the death of Sam Creighton. Sam was the third generation of storekeepers, following his father, Robert A. "Bob" Creighton, and grandfather William "Pappy" Creighton. The Creighton family touched many lives and were major benefactors to those in need for several generations.

Donations of baked goods, yard sale items and cash are appreciated. Call Lyn at (931) 592-9360 or (865) 696-1344 to arrange donation pickup or delivery. All proceeds go toward restoring, repurposing and preserving this historic site, which has held a special place in the hearts of many on the plateau for nearly a century.

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School Welcomes Alumni and Friends

St. Andrew's-Sewanee will welcome several hundred alumni for the school's annual Alumni Weekend, June 6–8. St. Andrew's-Sewanee, formed by the merger of Sewanee Academy and St. Andrew's School in 1981, also welcomes the alumni of its parent schools, including St. Mary's School and the Sewanee Military Academy (SMA). Milestone reunions this year are from the class years ending in 4 and 9, but many SAS alumni and their families make this an annual pilgrimage.

The weekend begins today (Friday), June 6, with the SAS Golf Classic. In the evening there will be dinner under the tent on the SAS Quad accompanied by a jazz trio led by Herschel Van Dyke, '03. The evening will end with a bonfire.

On Saturday, June 7, will be the Centennial Chapel Celebration Mass with the Most Rev. Dr. Katharine Jefferts Schori, Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States.

Saturday continues with the Champagne Awards and Medallion Brunch, where this year's Distinguished Alumni Award will be given to Richard Manship, SMA '64. Manship has had a successful career in print and broadcast media. He is president and chief executive officer of Louisiana Television Broadcasting LLC (WBRZ-TV) and Mobile Video Tapes Inc. (KRGV-TV) and former president of the Advocate and the St. Andrew's-Sewanee School board of trustees. Members of the 50th reunion classes will receive their medallions.

Following Saturday's brunch, two sandstone benches will be dedicated. Academy alumni will convene for their annual memorial service at Sewanee's Chapel of the Apostles. At 1:30 p.m. in the St. Andrew's Chapel, the Rev. William S. Wade, former head of school, will present a lecture on his research of St. Andrew's School history. At 2:45 p.m. University alumnus Nathan Shults will present a talk on SMA history at the Chapel of the Apostles. The history lectures are open to the public.

After a variety of parties across campus early Saturday evening, all alumni reconvene under the tent for dinner and entertainment. Chris Behre, StA '77, will perform a wide range of cover tunes and original music.

If you live anywhere near Tennessee Avenue, expect to be awakened Sunday morning at 9 a.m. by the sounds of the Highlander Pipes and Drums Corps. Led by the 50th reunion class, former cadets will re-enact their weekly march from Quintard to All Saints' Chapel. This is a highlight of the weekend for the SMA alumni, and residents of Sewanee often come out to welcome the marchers along the route.

The weekend concludes with a 10 a.m. Holy Eucharist service in St. Andrew's Chapel, followed by the Farewell Brunch.

Throughout the weekend there will be activities for children, swimming and canoeing at the Res, late night bonfires.

The Chapel Centennial Celebration, history lectures, Sunday march, and church service are free and open to the public. Area alumni are encouraged to register online on the school's main website at <www.sasweb.org> or by contacting the Alumni Office by email to <sasalumni@sasweb.org>. Registration will also be available on-site Friday and Saturday.

Summer Conferences This Week at Sewanee

At the University of the South, conferences run throughout the summer months from May 15 to August 4. The following are the conferences that are beginning June 5–9.

Tiger Tennis Camp has four sessions in the month of June. This week's session will be June 8–13. The Junior Tennis Camps are divided into the Camp of Champions and Tiger Tennis Camp. The Camp of Champions is for state and sectionally ranked junior players who want high intensity training. Tiger Tennis Camp is for players whose levels range from beginners and intermediates through high school athletes.

Summer School runs from June 8 to July 20. It offers an opportunity for College students to take special courses not normally available during the academic year to broaden their academic program.

Summer in Spain is June 8–18. It explores the phenomenon of pilgrimage—in particular, the medieval pilgrimage route to Santiago de Compostela in Spain—as a means of understanding medieval Spanish literature and art. The group spends 10 days in Sewanee, two weeks in Madrid and the surrounding area, and three-and-one-half weeks traversing the north of Spain along the pilgrimage road itself.

Delta Kappa Gamma has its annual meeting June 5–7 on campus. This professional honorary society of women educators promotes professional and personal growth of its members and excellence in education. This will be Delta Kappa Gamma's 64th gathering at Sewanee, which makes theirs the longest-standing summer conference.

Sewanee School of Letters takes place from June 8 to July 18 and is a summer program in Literature and Creative Writing, offering the Master of Arts and the Master of Fine Arts degrees. It is a high-quality graduate program for students who have only summers to devote to study.

The School of Theology Advanced Degrees Program is June 9–to June 27. This post-ordination graduate degree program offers the Doctor of Ministry (D.Min.) in Liturgy and Preaching and Master of Sacred Theology with an optional Anglican Studies track.

KILLINGTHYME

by Buck Gorrell

Lately, I've been reciting a popular line from Monty Python. "Bring out your dead!" has been ringing in my head since the emergence of the foliage this spring. I doubt anyone will argue this winter was a killer, and the dead are now obvious. Some things were not much of a surprise, while others were not only a surprise but very disappointing.

The greatest surprise was the huge rosemary at the corner of what is now University Realty. Although rosemary is notoriously fragile, this particular one was a behemoth when I first relocated to Sewanee in 1998. Obviously, it had several winters under its belt, some of which saw weeks of single digits. This year, however, it succumbed.

I'm curious whose rosemary has survived and why. This specimen was ideally located on the southeast corner of a brick building with good strong light and radiant heat from the brick. That location undoubtedly gave it some berth in past winters. For those who wish to plant rosemary, "Arp" is a cultivar with a reputation for hardiness beyond its kin. Drainage is always an issue with any rosemary, so prepare a large spot.

Another surprise was a redbud I transplanted as a twig (with permission always) about six years ago. It and its sibling have grown to 15 feet tall with trunks about 4 inches at the base. The sibling fared fine just a few yards away, but the plant in question died to the ground. It has spit out several new branches from the base, however. A hard pruning, of the one-cut-at-the-ground variety, will get rid of the ugly.

My fig tree, which topped my roof with trunks the size of my leg at the base, also died to the ground. I pruned everything back to chest height very early this spring to get it out of the eaves and optimize harvesting height. Warmer weather brought great consternation, as no buds appeared. I feared the pruning had something to do with it but knew the fig might have been winter-killed despite excellent siting by previous owners. As I was beginning to mourn, multiple sprouts appeared from the base.

Crepe myrtles and even a beautyberry around town have suffered the same as my fig and redbud: empty stalks that sometimes sport new growth at the base. Several such crepe myrtles adorn the front of Cooley's Rift. Again, cutting them down and starting over is the only solution short of replacement.

All of this is to say that keeping one's eyes open never fails to offer an educational opportunity. Looking around right now will provide great information for future plant selections. Plants have done all they can to show signs of life, so prune at will.

Serbian Leaders Study Area Schools

Four young academics from Serbian universities visited Franklin County in May to study how students in the United States are prepared for employment through the educational system. They were here through the Open World program that brings young civic leaders from Russia, Serbia, Ukraine, Kosovo and other countries for short-term professional trips.

Friendship Force of South Central Tennessee served as the group's local sponsor. Connie Kelley of Sewanee and Crocia Roberson of Winchester assisted as coordinators for activities at Franklin County High School and at the University of the South.

Although the Serbian higher education system has undergone reformation in the past several years, it is focused on more innovative employment practices and ideas, particularly for young people facing near 50 percent unemployment levels. Education leaders wish to modernize by including new curricula and responding to their labor market needs.

As part of their tour, the group met with Lee Brannon to learn about the facilities and programs offered at Franklin County High School. They visited Sewanee, where Nate Wilson, domain manager, and college student Lydia Brown gave them a tour of the Domain. Economics professor Mare St. Pierre met with them and described the economics academic program. Kim Heitzenrater, director of career and leadership development at Sewanee, explained the programs of that office. In addition to learning more about Sewanee and FCHS, the group also met with representatives from many other colleges and technical schools across the state of Tennessee.

SEWANEE UNION THEATRE
Friday–Monday, June 6–9, 7:30 p.m.
The LEGO Movie

Rated PG • 100 minutes

If you think LEGO means “kid movie,” you will miss out on one of the spring’s best films, albeit an animated one that uses plastic figures to tell its story. “The LEGO Movie” is a simple story: a regular guy (well, a LEGO minifigure) learns he is the key to saving the world. The movie follows his hilarious and surprising response to his new calling. With great voice casting (Will Arnett, Will Ferrell, Morgan Freeman, Elizabeth Banks and Chris Pratt), this is one fun and wonderful movie not to miss. Rated PG for mild action and rude humor.

SEWANEE UNION THEATRE
Thursday–Monday, June 12–16, 7:30 p.m.
The Monuments Men

Rated PG-13 • 118 minutes

George Clooney’s latest project, “The Monuments Men,” is the most-ly true story of how a group of unlikely soldiers save art masterpieces from the Nazis in World War II. Clooney adapted the book, directed, stars in (and probably paid for) the film, along with his buddies, Matt Damon, Bill Murray, John Goodman, Bob Balaban and Cate Blanchett. There’s nothing wrong with a Clooney film/party, but “Monuments Men” misses the opportunity to be a great movie and ends up feeling a little dull. Still, there’s lots of eye candy for women of a certain age. Rated PG-13 for some images of war violence and historical smoking.

Shakerag Workshops Welcome Author and Illustrator

The Shakerag Lecture Series sponsors a presentation by a special visiting artist for each of the two Shakerag Workshop sessions, June 8–14 and June 15–21. The first Shakerag Lecturer is award-winning author and illustrator Debra Frasier. She will talk at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, June 11, in McCrory Hall for the Performing Arts on the campus of St. Andrew’s-Sewanee School. She will talk about the creative process in her lecture “The Country of Lost.” The event is open to the public. A reception will follow in the SAS gallery honoring Frasier and the Shakerag faculty artists.

Frasier is an author and illustrator of such children’s classics as “On the Day You Were Born,” “Miss Alaineus,” “A Vocabulary Disaster” and most recently “SPIKE, Ugliest Dog in the Universe.” Originally trained in textiles, Frasier’s illustrations often use cloth techniques. In addition, she speaks to children, teachers and artists across the country about the creative process. Frasier believes that all people have “moments of feeling lost: for ideas, for direction, for the right path.” In her lecture Frasier will discuss “practices that help navigate the creative person’s landscape of doubts and questions.”

Shakerag faculty members give brief presentations about their work on other weekday evenings at 7:15 p.m. in McCrory Hall, and these lectures are also open to the public. The first session faculty talks are:

Monday, June 9—Jody Alexander, book-making; Bob Ebendorf, jewelry; and Catharine Ellis, natural dyeing.

Tuesday, June 10—Connie Norman, pottery; Erica Spitzer Rasmussen, papermaking and sculpture; and Saul Becker, painting.

Thursday, June 12—Linda McFarling, pottery, and Greg Pond, digital arts.

Each June since 2004, St. Andrew’s-Sewanee School has welcomed accomplished and aspiring artists to Shakerag Workshops for two one-week sessions of studio classes and lectures. Shakerag 2014 focuses on multiple media including paper sculpturing, sculptural weaving, electronic media, drawing, painting, textiles, paper cutting, clay, making books, photography, printmaking, and natural dyeing. For more information go to <www.shakerag.org> or contact Claire Reishman at (931) 598-5651, ext. 3165.

LIKETO WATCH

by Kiki Beavers

I watched a "60 Minutes" episode about Wolfgang Beltracchi, called the most successful art forger of our time. He does not recreate an existing work of art. What is fascinating is that he creates original paintings in the style of the artists, works he thought the artists would have done if they had the time or had thought about it.

These paintings found their way into art galleries, museums and private collections. Beltracchi made millions of dollars during a 40-year period. He was caught because he used the wrong titanium white on a Max Ernst creation that sold for $7 million. The buyer liked it so much he kept it, flawed and all.

What is amazing is how Beltracchi created art for art's sake.

While I can paint only if it involves four walls and some trim in a room, I still appreciate the creative process. Going to art galleries is one of my favorite things to do. I do not always understand the painting of artists such as Dali or Picasso or even Pollock. I still like to look at them and hear the artist say, "There is not just one answer to what is beautiful."

I do have a knack for creating with needlepoint. I just finished my latest embroidery piece [pictured at right]. It measures 2'x3' and took me three years to complete. I finished, took a photo, rolled it up and placed it with the other 20 or so pieces I have created during the years.

The original is hanging in some museum in Denmark.

I have created my own original embroidery pieces. The most notable is one I made while I was in second grade.

The "Fly Away" [pictured below] won some sort of award, and the unframed version actually hung in the Art Institute of Chicago almost 43 years ago. It is in a frame now because my mother did so to preserve its importance. I like to think she did so to preserve its expressive imperfections.

At the time I created this piece, my family lived in an apartment on South Sacramento Avenue in Chicago. We did not have flowers or a dog. The only birds I saw were blackbirds. Even then, somewhere in the back of my mind's eye, I knew a place I would like to be and created it.

As I hung up "Fly Away" in the house, my son asked, "Really?" "Dogs don't fly, mom."

I looked at the crazy colors and the lopsided stitches trying to see what he saw. I still think it is beautiful.

The 2014 Class inductees are:

Was named to the SCAC All-Tournament team three times in her career, including 2004, when she led the Tigers to their only SCAC title. During that tourney run, Owensby became the first and only pitcher in league history to win four games at the postseason event. Also holds school records in wins, strikeouts, innings pitched and ERA.

Women's Tennis Players Named All-Americans

Sewanee women's tennis student-athletes Bronte Goodhue and Lindsey Liles earned individual All-American honors after each won their Round of 32 contest at the NCAA Women's Tennis Championships on the campus of Claremont-Mudd-Scripps.

May 22 marked the second straight season that Sewanee has had more than one All-American. In 2013 Liles and her sister, Jenny, played their way to that same honor, while Goodhue ranked No. 20 nationally, which also earned her All-American accolades.

Goodhue opened her bid for a National Championship with a convincing 6-3, 6-2 straight set win over Nancy Benda of Hope College.

At the same time, Liles dominated her Round of 32 match against Rebekah Kitto of Cal Tech. After winning the first set 6-1, Liles took the second set, 6-2.

Goodhue and Liles played and lost in their Round of 16 singles' matches and in their Round of 16 doubles' match.

New Assistant Named for Women's Lacrosse and Field Hockey

Mark Webb, Sewanee athletic director, and Michele Dombrowski, head women's lacrosse and field hockey coach, have named Laura "Mac" McIntyre as the new assistant women's lacrosse and field hockey coach.

"I am extremely excited to have Mac join our programs," said Dombrowski. "It was evident during the interview process that she is passionate about both sports, as well as the student-athlete experience. Her attention to detail and knowledge will immediately benefit both teams. Mac's experiences within competitive academic and athletic programs give her great insights into our players and recruits."

McIntyre comes to Sewanee after spending the last three years as an assistant coach at McDaniel College in Westminster, Md. She helped coach the team to the Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) field hockey tournament in 2011 and 2012; McDaniel College was also an ECAC women's lacrosse finalist in 2013 and semifinalist in 2014.

Prior to her coaching career, McIntyre was a goalkeeper for the Gettysburg College women's lacrosse team, which won the 2011 NCAA Division III National Championship. Playing alongside an all-conference teammate in goal each year, McIntyre played in 34 games with 12 starts. In nearly 886 minutes in goal, she allowed 85 goals and made 104 saves. Her 5.76 career goals-against average is second all-time in program history, while her .550 save percentage is 11th all-time. She recorded a perfect 12-0 record in cage, including a 7-0 mark in 2011.

On the field hockey team, she played in 44 matches with 37 starts in the midfield. A 2010 captain, she led the team with seven defensive saves in 2010. During her time, Gettysburg posted a 47-27 record, including a 30-10 mark in conference play and advancing to the conference playoffs all four years.

"I am very excited to join the Sewanee community," said McIntyre. "I have had a wonderful experience here at McDaniel, working with wonderful mentors in Melissa Miranda Jones, Muffie Bliss and Kristin Ramey. I believe that my experiences as a player and coach in the Centennial Conference have prepared me well for a new challenge. I am looking forward to the opportunity to work with coach Dombrowski and the field hockey and women's lacrosse teams at Sewanee."

McIntyre earned a B.A. in psychology from Gettysburg College in 2011. She also completed an M.A. in counseling from McDaniel College earlier this summer.

OUTSIDEIN

by Patrick Dean

"Breathe in.
"Breathe out.
"Stop breathing."

That last command always amuses me — even, or maybe especially, because I'm in the middle of a PET scan when I hear it. You'd think that the doctors would prefer you not stop taking in air and letting it out.

I'm about halfway through a five-hour process of getting poked with needles, being weighed, measured, and examined, and in between all that, waiting.

Then, finally, it's done. We drive to my nephew's house, change clothes, and head to a local walking and running path.

The path is mainly in woods, although a golf course, parking lots and roads can be glimpsed without too much effort. The wide, hard-dirt and gravel surface is obviously well-used, and there are water fountains (with dog bowls) every so often — along with, sadly, call boxes and signs telling users to always walk with someone.

We're in a major college town, so on the path we encounter all sorts of people. Two women in floppy hats gesticulating vividly as they stride briskly along. Serious runners, scantily clad, lean, somber and fast. Professional types. Large, hefty men huffing and puffing with headphones on. Dogs on leashes. Retired-professor types, such as the thin gentleman in khaki pants and khaki short-sleeved shirt who quickly passed us seemingly without exertion.

The path crosses several creeks (or perhaps the same creek several times), and we stop to lean over the rail and look for wildlife. All we see are the occasional tennis ball or water bottle, until we reach a longer wooden bridge over a restored wetland. There we spy turtles large and small, some perched on tree limbs protruding just above the water, others hovering on the surface.

Below us on the other side of the bridge a snake sits curled atop a pile of brush — flotsam from some recent storm. We debate its type until another walker looks over the side and says, "Black snake!"

A half-mile or so later we are back in the parking lot, having walked almost three miles and worked up a late-spring sweat.

As it turned out, we had good news from the checkup, so our mood was relief and enjoyment of the day. But even if there had been a different outcome of the tests and scans, getting outside would have been one of the best ways to deal with the stress, uncertainty and physical discomfort involved.

Walking—moving—is so good for our psyches, no matter what we're dealing with. I was glad that we instinctively had made the choice to leave the artificial, high-tech world of diagnostic medicine and head straight outside.

That evening we sit on the screened porch and see the first fireflies of the year. The next morning we will drive back home to the Mountain, but that night we can listen to the evening birdsong, enjoy fresh watermelon and look back on a day which had been improved so profoundly by a simple walk.

NATURENOTES

By Jean Yeatman

The Unwelcome Visitor

"Three weeks ago," reports Jean Yeatman, "Sally and Jimmy Hardy discovered a beaver swimming in Lake Eva. This was bad news, because several years ago beavers had come to the lake and had been very destructive. They had built a lodge over the Bates' pump for their water line. Beavers can't resist the sound of running water. The lodge had to be removed by a backhoe, which tore up the line and pump, requiring both to be replaced. Then the beavers moved to the dam and dug a large den, which had been rocked in.

"Buddy Hoosier set out to see what this beaver was doing," she continued. "It had cut down two large maple trees, and had built two lodges at different sites on the lakeshore. These were constructed of small sticks from shrubs cut at the site. One of the large maple trees was left in the water at the site of cutting. After going out to the lake in the evenings, as that is when beavers come out to work, and sitting watching the lake, no one saw the beavers for a week. Everyone hoped the beaver was caught by a coyote or had moved away to another site, but that turns out not to be the case. It was spotted on June 3, working on its lodge.

"Young beavers spread out in the spring in search of new territory," she concluded. "Beavers eat the fresh inner bark of trees and also water plants. They mate for life, and this could have been a young beaver in search of a mate."

Close Encounter with a Titmouse

Twice recently while Sally Hubbard had coffee and breakfast on the front porch and her collie, Sabina, slept behind the other rocking chair, a tufted titmouse has hopped up cautiously and pulled hair out of Sabina's tail ... then onto her hip for the long silky back hair ... then onto her knee for tummy hair—always just accumulating more in her beak. Sabina finally raised her head and looked at me, and the bird exited. Today Mama Titmouse availed herself of a wad of hair out of Sabina's brush and flew back to the holly tree.

Big Birds-Little Birds

John Bordley reports that baby pigeons hatched on May 4. Twenty days later, on May 24 (photo at right), they were still "in their nest," he said, "such as it is, on the parapet of the carillon tower." They are about 8 inches long.

Baby cardinals hatched on May 12. May 19 was a big day. In the morning (photo below, left) they were still huddled in their nest, their mother having been sitting on them during the nights. In the afternoon, they were leaving the nest (photo below, right) and moving on.

Hike 'Em All Continues

Fiery Gizzard to Foster Falls

Meet at the Grundy Forest picnic shelter at 9 a.m., Saturday, June 7, and shuttle to the starting point at Foster Falls for this 12.3-mile moderate hike. At 60 feet, Foster Falls is the largest by volume of any waterfall on the Cumberland Plateau. There are great views from Raven Point and Fiery Gizzard. Tennessee Naturalists Marietta Poetee and Naullain Kendrick will lead the hike.

In February the Friends of South Cumberland initiated the "Hike All 14 in 2014" Challenge to introduce people to each of the 14 hikes listed in Mary Priestley's guide to hiking in the South Cumberland State Park, "Hike 'Em All."

Hikes will be offered throughout the year, with multiple chances for each trail. Hikers who have not yet entered the challenge can begin at any point. For more information go to <www.friendsofscsra.org>.

Noire

Pets of the Week

Meet Noire and Charlie

The Franklin County Humane Society's Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption.

Noire is a gorgeous white short-haired cat, around 8–12 months old, with lots of love to share with her new family. She would look so nice in your window sill basking in the sun! Noire is negative for FeLV and FIV, house-trained, up-to-date on shots and spayed.

Charlie is a standard Long-Haired Dachshund who is approximately 5 years old. He is a sweet, gentle-tempered dog who gets along well with other dogs and would love to be someone's couch potato. Charlie is up-to-date on shots and neutered.

Every Friday is Black Friday at Animal Harbor. On Fridays, adoption fees will be reduced 50 percent for black or mostly black pets more than 4 months old who have been at Animal Harbor for more than a month. Pets adopted from Animal Harbor qualify for a free post-adoption wellness exam by local veterinarians.

Call Animal Harbor at 962-4472 for information and check out the other pets at <www.animalharbor.com>. Please help the Humane Society continue to save abandoned pets by sending donations to the Franklin County Humane Society, P.O. Box 187, Winchester, TN 37398.

BARDTOVERSE

by Phoebe Bates

D-DAY, JUNE 6, 1944

"We shall not flag or fail. We shall go on to the end. We shall fight in France, we shall fight on the seas and the oceans, we shall fight with growing confidence and growing strength in the air, we shall defend our island, whatever the cost may be. We shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills; we shall never surrender."

—Winston L. Churchill, House of Commons June 4, 1940, following evacuation of British and French armies from Dunkirk as the German tide swept through France
