Community Council Discusses Need for Hwy. 41A Crosswalk

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

"We can't put a crossing on Highway 41A, because it is a state route," Franklin County Highway Commissioner Joe David McBee told the Sewanee Community Council at the June 27 meeting. Prior to the meeting, community residents were asked to send comments on the crosswalks installed by the Highway Department in July of 2015 on University Avenue and Ball Park Road. Many who responded instead commented on the need for a crosswalk on Highway 41A.

The Sewanee Village Plan proposed by the University would increase pedestrian traffic crossing the state highway.

McBee said the state needed to approve crossings on state routes, and the municipality making the request typically paid for the installation. He estimated the cost at $80,000 to $120,000.

'The time to talk with the Tennessee Department of Transportation (TDOT) about a crosswalk is now, during the planning stages," McBee said.

Arcadia at Sewanee Names First Board

Linda Lankewicz of Sewanee has been named the first board chair of Arcadia at Sewanee, a planned Sewaneebased retirement community. Eight additional board members have agreed to serve as planners for the retirement community.

Lankewicz announced the following to serve on the founding board: Anne B. Davis; Gregory Maloof (treasurer); W. Alexander (Alec) Moseley, C'70 (secretary); Kathleen O'Donohue; Thomas Phelps, C'74 (vice president); Lane Mathis Price; Louis Rice, C'50; and W. A. (Pete) Stringer, C'71. Frank Gladu, vice president for administrative services for the University of the South, will serve as the university liaison to the Arcadia board.

According to Lankewicz, the naming of a board is the culmination of three years of study and work by an ad hoc group and the filing of papers of incorporation with the State of Tennessee in November, 2015 by incorporators, Lankewicz, O'Donohue and Stringer.

"We are excited to be at this new point in creating a residential option where people can have lives of worth and meaning as they age," said Lanke-"Will there be demolition of any wicz. "We still have much work to do, including raising funds and securing a developer for the project," she noted.

Betty Bres as Pepper the Clown. She is returning to Sewanee for a visit

Pepper the Clown Returns to Sewanee

by Bailey Basham, Messenger Intern

A little more than 40 years ago, Kim Bres-Kelley stood at her mailbox in Salinas, Calif., with a letter from her mother in her hand.

Bres-Kelley opened the letter to find a picture of her mother, Betty Scott Bres, dressed as a clown.

"I couldn't figure out why she had sent me a picture of a clown, until I read the letter," said Bres-Kelley. "It was a bit of a surprise— I couldn't quite believe that my mom was a clown, but it seemed like something she would do."

Betty Scott Bres, then 50-years-old, had been working as a disaster preparedness instructor for the Girl Scout Council and American Red Cross in Las Vegas and volunteering in hospitals with the Friendship Force before she made the decision to go to clown school. At that point, Pepper the Clown was born.

Forty-two years later, the Sewanee native is returning for a visit to her beloved birthplace on July 2.

Betty, who was born and raised on the domain, attended St. Mary's and Otey Parish as a child and loved exploring the University's campus as a teenager with her sister, Louise— especially since it was an all-male college at the time.

'She and her sister would ride their bicycles all over, riding out to St. Mary's and The Cross. They loved watching the storms coming up the mountain and made a game out of racing home before they got wet," said Kim. "She learned to drive in a Model-T on the old gravel roads. She acquired a small red truck powered by a lawn mower engine that she drove in the parades in Sewanee."

Betty's son Scott Bres echoed his sister's stories about their mother's love

"She loved going to the grocery store and buying a penny candy to share with her sister Louise, and she would tell us stories of her father inviting some of his students over to the house for dinner," said Scott.

When she was younger, Betty would go to Chattanooga to watch the circus when it came to town. Her son Scott said he thinks that's when the seed was planted.

"Her father (John Mark Scott) was a chemistry professor at University of the South, and he told her that she had to get a bachelor's degree first, then she could do what she felt like. That is one of the reasons she had to delay pursuing her dream of becoming a professional clown," said Scott.

Betty was a member of the Friendship Force, an organization whose mission it is "to promote global understanding across the barriers that separate people," according to the network's website.

For Betty, one way she found to live out the mission of the Friendship Force was to dress up as Pepper the Clown and to entertain kids and adults all over the world—Las Vegas, Ohio, Brazil, Australia, Russia and Korea all bore witness to Pepper's upbeat, positive attitude and her ability to put a smile on anyone's face. According to Scott, when traveling abroad with the organization, Betty could often be heard saying, "While we may not understand each other's native language, everyone speaks Clown."

"As soon as she put on her face and gloves, she was no longer Betty— she was Pepper the Clown," said Scott. "When Betty was Pepper the Clown, she was very

Council representative Drew Sampson asked if one of the existing crosswalks in Sewanee could be moved to $Highway\,41A.$

The Highway Department bore the expense of installing the crosswalks," McBee said. "They could be sold to the state as government surplus. But for 41A a different design would be needed."

Council representative John Flynn asked if the county would bear the expense for installing a 41 A crosswalk since, "Sewanee is not a municipality."

dollars goes to the Highway Department. My budget could not absorb the cost," McBee said. "We've applied for safety grants on state roads, and they're hardly ever approved. We wanted a red light at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School and got a caution light."

Regarding the University Avenue and Ball Park Road crosswalks, McBee more concrete, more traffic and more trees gone." said he would have data on the fremeeting. He intends to meet with the at its July 19 meeting. Sewanee Village planner to discuss a design that "would look better than the ones there now." He also expressed concern about the signage. "The plans call for street-side parking and bike lanes, and the signage there now would not work under those circumstances."

Council representative Louise Irwin said she'd observed "children playing with the light" at the crosswalks.

"That will skew the use statistics," council representative Pam Byerly

"This is still a work in progress," stressed Vice-Chancellor John Mc-Cardell.

The council will revisit the crosswalk discussion in August and will invite a TDOT representative to address the council about options for a Highway 41A crossing in Sewanee.

Bringing up another issue related to the Sewanee Village Plan and proposed renovation of downtown Sewanee, council representative Theresa Shackelford expressed concern the council was not notified the Franklin County Planning Commission would vote on rezoning areas of Sewanee at its next meeting.

Provost John Swallow said the University had requested some residential rezoning to mixed-use, both commercial and residential, "to get the zoning in line with the plan."

Residents residing in the area proposed for rezoning had been notified of the meeting. Director of Physical Plant Services Michael Gardner said the planning commission was "required to notify those potentially impacted by rezoning" and not notifying the council was likely an oversight.

Irwin announced that she was chairing the July Fourth parade committee and invited those interested in sponsoring a float to contact her.

The council meets next on Aug. 29. The meeting was rescheduled from Aug. 22 due to a conflict.

"According to Sewanee Utility District manager Ben Beavers, SUD has plans to fix the sewer line in the area," Gladu said.

"Are there plans for constructing specific buildings?" asked leaseholder Chris Colane.

"These questions aren't the purview of the commission," commission chairman A.L. Shasteen insisted.

"What is your purview?" Irwin asked.

"We make recommendations to the County Commission on zoning," Shasteen said.

"What would make you not approve the rezoning?" Irwin asked.

"We must approve it if it meets our regulations," commissioner David James explained.

Janet Petrunich, Director of the Planning and Zoning Department said, "We're here to decide if the request to rezone is compatible. There are 500 "Only 4 percent of property tax acres of mixed-use property in Sewanee. Much of the residential proposed for rezoning to mixed-use is adjoined by property already zoned mixed-use." Leaseholder Lucia Dale expressed concerns about adequate parking.

County Highway Superintendant Johnny Woodall said, "We looked at the olans for parallel street-side parking and parking areas behind the buildings. 's a good plan that will help the community and give them places to park."

"Our intent is to create a walkable village from both homes and cars," Gladu added.

"None of this is making me feel better," Dale said. "You're just talking about

The commissioners voted unanimously to recommend the County Comquency of use by the council's August mission approve the rezoning request. The commission will vote on the request

> The rezoned area's boundaries include U.S. Highway 41-A, Hat Rock Road, Winn's Circle, Bob Stewman Road, Bobtown Circle, Mimosa Circle, Ball Park Road, Castleberry Drive, Bakers Lane, Prince Lane and Lake O'Donnell Road. The current use is educational, residential and religious.

> Mixed-use property is taxed based on use. Property taxes of leaseholders will not increase as a result of the rezoning.

of a retirement community under the 13th Vice-Chancellor of the University, happy and she tried to make everyone Bob Ayres, began working with Costello in 2012. Watson helped expand the else happy too. The only thing that group involved in the discussion.

Watson, who passed away in December 2015, developed the first survey and make people smile, if only for a of area residents and University alumni. According to his wife, Gail, "Tom moment, no matter where she was or cared deeply about this project coming to fruition and dedicated many hours to meetings and gathering the information needed. He visited other retirement communities and worked closely with Frank as the initiative continued to grow and her duck-on-a-stick that she would and deepen. I know he would be excited about the naming of an official board."

Costello continues to believe in the project and the potential for alumni support. He emphasizes the importance of affordability and notes, "by tapping into professional talents of hundreds of alumni in all walks of capital finance, real estate development and medical care, we can work together to create an affordable community that is world class and tailored to this unique community.

The name, Arcadia at Sewanee, originated with Costello's group and has been embraced by the current board. The name comes from a description of Sewanee by author William Alexander Percy. He wrote "It is so beautiful that people who have been there always, one way or another come back. For such as can detect apple green in an evening sky, it is Arcadia—not the one that never used to be, be reached at <GroomerKim@aol. but the one that many people always live in; only this one can be shared."

O'Donohue, executive director of Folks at Home, which supports older adults who live at home and one of Arcadia's incorporators stated, "Āresidential community with support services is an essential addition to help fulfill the needs of our community. Sometimes living alone at home is less desirable than being in an engaged, supportive residential environment."

According to Gladu, "the establishment of Arcadia at Sewanee and the naming of a Board is a major step in providing the necessary leadership, decision making and discernment needed to move the project forward."

Gladu has worked on this effort for the past three years and has led the University's support including the funding of surveys by ProMatura of Oxford, Miss., in 2013, a conceptual facility design in 2015 by Dominion Senior Living of Knoxville, Tenn., and an area survey by Sage Age Strategies of Montoursville, Pa., in 2016. The University's Board of Trustees has approved the use of land and has continued to be informed of the progress of the planning. Gladu adds, "Arcadia is also an important aspect of the plan for development of downtown

There are two proposed sites for Arcadia at Sewanee. One is on Hwy. 41A down from Kentucky Avenue, with two proposed roads to be built connecting to Castleberry Drive. The other is off of Alabama Ave., across from Willie Six Road.

The most recent report by SageAge Strategies examined the need in the immediate area and did not include alumni surveys. That report concluded, "... it would be the recommendation of SageAge to move forward with plans and continue the process of planning for the development of a small senior living campus in the Sewanee area."

The Arcadia at Sewanee board meets monthly. For further information, contact Linda Lankewicz at <arcadiaatsewanee@gmail.com> or at PO Box 3227, Sewanee, TN 37375.

Free Summer Meal Program Serves Second Course

by Kevin Cummings, Messenger Staff Writer

In its second year, the South Cumtinues to serve area children, while making some tweaks to the menu.

The program provides free meals to children and teens 18 and under at various sites in Franklin, Grundy and served approximately 3,800 meals and fed almost 600 children this summer.

Liz Sirney, an Americ Corps VISTA munity." (Volunteers in Service to America), is coordinator of the program.

summer's program and this summer's program are the menus and the meal sites themselves," she said. "After last year's program we got a lot of feedback about the meals being too 'adult' for the kids so this year we tweaked the menus so that the kids would be more and delivering," she said. "It's just a willing to try them—and it's been a Sirney said the beef taco salad seems to be a special favorite this year. Meal options range from breakfast burritos to pancakes for breakfast, meatball subs to cheeseburgers for lunch, and lasagna to pork chops for dinner. Every meal is served with fruits, veggies and milk to make it balanced and healthy.

Sewanee Dining prepares the meals and executive chef Rick Wright said last summer children didn't want to eat certain items because the seasoning may have been too sophisticated for young palates, or they didn't like the presentation.

"A good example is spinach scrambled eggs; the young people didn't like spinach, or something green in the eggs, so we just omitted it from the eggs, and added it as sautéed spinach on the side, which is much more acceptable," Wright said.

Cooks also adjusted portion sizes down on some items and used less spicy seasonings on some items, Wright said. In addition, site organizers were allowed to choose between a cold sack lunch or hot lunch, with some sites choosing cold lunches because of the summer heat.

Last year's program was deemed a big success and with most school cafeterias closed down for the summer, many children aren't sure where their next meal is coming from.

"We have learned that food insecurity is growing every day and the need for healthy meals is still there; sadly, I am afraid that this will always be the case," Wright said.

The meal program is a collaborative effort by the South Cumberland Community Fund, The University of the South, The South Cumberland VISTA Project, Tennessee's Department of Human Services, the USDA, and many community partners ranging from the Grundy County Public Libraries to churches like Tracy City First United Methodist Church. Sirney is one of 14 VISTAs participating.

Although The Sewanee Union Theatre will be taking a break to observe the local Fourth of July festivities, the screen will be back to flickering on Tuesday, July 5 with a special FREE screening, followed by a trip back to visit our favorite Greek big-screen family, the Portokaloses!

The Rating System

Stars are so overused, and there's nothing on the planet more critical than cats, so one feature each week is rated from one to five Jackaroos. The more Jackaroos there are, the better it is!

Take Shelter

7:30 p.m., Tuesday, July 5 2011, Rated R, 120 minutes

How safe is too safe? This and other vital questions are raised in a special screening of this riveting drama, sponsored by the Film Studies class being taught this summer as part of the Sewanee School of Letters by filmmaker and Sewanee alumnus Michael Dunaway. Curtis, perfectly played by the hatchet-faced Michael Shannon (best known for his chilling turn on HBO series "Boardwalk Empire") is a hardworking family man living in Lagrange, Ohio who begins to have apocalyptic visions—swarms of black birds and thunder and lightning. Fearing the worst, he enlists the help of his construction worker buddy Dewart (Shea Whigham) to build a sophisticated storm shelter in his backyard. While he is aware these visions may be a sign of mental instability, he nonetheless forges onward in his project to keep his family safe, despite protests from his long-suffering wife (Jessica Chastain). Directed by Jeff Nichols, this film swept up awards at the Cannes Film Festival and is considered one of the best psychological dramas of our time. Rated R for some language, this film is best suited for older teens accompanied by parents and adults due to the disturbing but important subject matter on the ramifications of possible mental illness.

My Big Fat Greek Wedding 2

7:30 p.m., Thursday, July 7 through Monday, July 11 NO SCREENING ON SATURDAY, JULY 9, see page 16 for details 2016, Rated PG-13, 94 minutes

Opa! Toula Portokalos, (Nia Vardalos) and her humorously overbearing family is back. Vardalos returns not only as the star but the writer of MBFGW Part 2 and sets her family 16 years after the first film. Her exasperated daughter Paris (Elena Kampouris) is applying for colleges—far, far away from her relatives, much to the distress of her mother. As Nia and her husband Ian (John Corbett) struggle to maintain a love life of their own amid growing responsibilities, Nia's mother and father realize through a strange twist of fate that their wedding certificate was never signed by a minister, meaning they were never officially married. Before one can say "tzatziki," another wedding is in the works—proving to be even bigger and more outlandish than before. Heavy on laughs and light on plot, it remains a breezy comedy perfect for a summer evening. A cameo of the eternally attractive John Stamos is well worth the price of admission. Rated PG-13 for some suggestive material (AKA: parents trying to rekindle their romance), this film is appropriate for adults as well as older children accompanied by parents.

'Celebration of the Four Seasons' Reception July 1

Contemplative photographer, Laura Ellen Truelove of Cowan will exhibit photographs with the theme "Celebration of the Four Seasons" at Artisan Depot in Cowan through Saturday, Aug. 6. The meet the artist opening reception will be held at Artisan Depot today (Friday), July 1, from 5 to 7 p.m. All are invited to attend the reception.

Truelove is a former executive director of nonprofit agencies focused on literacy and the arts. She retired to Sewanee in the spring of 2009 after living in a contemplative monastery for a year.

"From the beginning, I was fascinated by the beauty that surrounded me in this rural area," she states. "I wanted to live in an area that would be conducive to my life of prayer. Because of the beauty that surrounded me, I started making photographs to share with my friends.

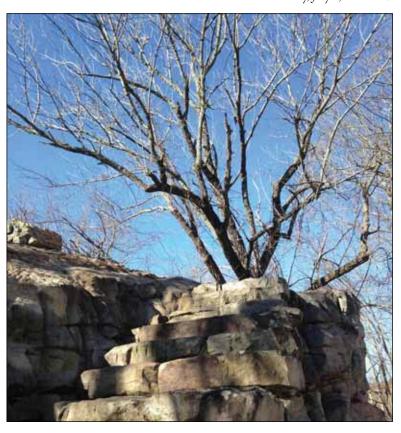

The theme of the current exhibit is "Celebration of the Four Seasons." Most of the photographs showcase the beauty of the local area in fall, winter, spring and summer.

"My primary work is prayer. As a contemplative, I consider each of my photographs as a prayer," said Truelove. "Each one gives glory to God, the Supreme Artist. There is sometimes a moment when I stand breathless before the beauty before me. It is a sacred moment, a moment I want to remember and to share with others. Each of my photographs expresses my appreciation and joy."

The Artisan Depot is located at 204 Cumberland St. East in Cowan. It is operated by the Franklin County Arts Guild. Gallery hours are noon to 5 p.m. on Thursdays, Fridays and Sundays and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

Live Sewanee Radio Show at the SUT

In an unprecedented use of the Sewanee Union Theater, the first ever Sewanee Radio Show will be presented by River City Sessions on Saturday, July 9, at 7 p.m. The show, sponsored by Chambliss, <Communify.org> and Trenchi Law and produced by Sewanee Eclectic, will feature original works of music and spoken word. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are $6 general admission available at the door (cash only), or by credit card online at <SewaneeEclectic.org>.

Sewanee Eclectic is an artist-powered initiative that's eager to surprise the community with performances brimming with quality, insight, and entertainment. The Sewanee Radio Show is their first event, and they are planning future productions that will be undoubtedly eclectic in nature and something not to miss.

Master of Ceremonies:

Michael D. Gray—Author, musician, and humorist, Gray first performed as a spoken word artist in 1984, presenting an original piece at the Knoxville Barbeque Contest. A year later he was invited to perform at Memphis in May International Festival. He has appeared at The Camp House, Wide Open Floor, the Chattanooga Writer's Guild, the Mountain Festival, Audubon Acres, the Little Owl Festival, Ketner's Mill Fair and on the air with WUTC. Gray's works include the book Life; Through a Child's Eyes and a collection of short stories and essays appearing in such publications as Trout Unlimited, Land of Waterfalls, Chattanooga Parent and Chattanooga Times Free Press.

Five years ago, Gray began a production called Wordfest. It soon evolved into a monthly radio production called River City Sessions and included storytelling, songs and poetry. The show went on the road last summer with a session at Roan Mountain State Park, followed by a show last month at Lula Lake on Lookout Mountain. "You might say we're trying to escape the downtown heat of the summer," Gray laughs. Gray's Sewanee connections include being a mentor for Education for Ministry (EfM), and multiple relationships with local performers and writers. He says he has wanted to record a radio show in Sewanee for years. "With the School of Letters, the Summer Writers' Conference and the Sewanee Summer Music Festival all presented here, Sewanee is a natural fit for our format."

Spoken word performers include:

Jeannie Babb—holds two degrees from the School of Theology, where her articles are regularly featured in magazine and online publications. Jeannie writes for the Godly Play Foundation, directs Christian formation at Otey Memorial Parish, and still drives to Ringgold at least once a week to help sell lumber at the family business. Her photography has been published by Gastronomica and Garden & Gun. Jeannie's passion is exploring theological questions through writing, especially poetry. She is known for the dynamic performance of her original work.

Maggie Blake Bailey—has poems published or forthcoming in The Southern Poetry Anthology, Volume V: Georgia, Tar River, Tinderbox, and elsewhere. Her chapbook "Bury the Lede" is available from Finishing Line Press. She lives in Atlanta with her husband and daughter, where she teaches high school English. During the summer, she pursues an M.F.A. at the Sewanee School of Letters. For more of her work visit <www.maggieblakebailey.com>.

Miller Dew—Ever since a middle school creative writing class where she learned what a pantoum is and how to properly pronounce "cacophony," Dew has been scrawling poems on everything from bedroom walls to napkins at sub-par fast food joints. Exact influences are difficult to pinpoint, but she constantly stumbles upon inspiration in downtown parking lots, John Darnielle's lyrics and the color pink. She is currently a Sewanee student and eagerly awaits the beginning of her sophomore year where she will be both an executive board member and resident of the Bairnwick Women's Center, as well as a regular participant in Sewanee's own Poet Society.

Thomas Macfie—poet and percussionist, who recently used one of his adroit drumming moves to avoid being crushed by a semi. Macfie, who grew up on the mountain, continues to be drawn back to Sewanee from such diverse environments as Montana and New York City.

Mindy Melton has been performing the seemingly easy, but sometimes difficult task of humaning since arriving on this plane in Sewanee in 1976. During this time she has experienced numerous successes, her failures being exponentially more. Having spent most of her life living in various locations of the surrounding area, Melton dropped out of Sewanee in 1994, eventually leaving the mountain for a five-year hiatus. She has been the sole proprietor of the frame shop on the corner for the past eight years where she relishes her placement within the community and her freedom to freely write of her experiences.

Pete Trenchi—lives off the grid where he houses the Roark's Cove/Alto version of Sewanee angels in a monu-

The more mundane part of Trenchi's history includes a couple of years at the University of the South, a stint as a cook and a bus mechanic in St. Petersburg, Fla. Trenchi holds a B.S. in forestry from the University of Tennessee-Knoxville, an M.S. in forest economy from Auburn University, a law degree from the University of Arkansas, and an M.F.A. from the University of the South.

Singer/songwriters include: John Michael Hurt—began playing music in the 60s at the age of 12. From 1966–76 he traveled all over the Eastern U.S. as a working musician, before frustration with the late 70s music scene drove him to destroy all his old material and go to work building recording studio equipment. Later he became a teacher. Hurt continued writing new works and performing, sometimes with friends. After 9/11 something made him want to write and perform more. Many friends urged him to do so. In 2006, he released an album called "Borrowed Time," available on iTunes. He has another album on the way.

Linda Heck—performing original selections from her soon-to-bereleased album "Experimental Connections In the Memphis." She will be accompanied by seminarian violist Tom Adamson and cellist Barbara Carden. Heck is an accomplished artist with many credits. Her 2012 album Transformed is available on iTunes.

PEDESTRIANS and BIKERS -EXERCISE CAUTION!

When you are out getting your exercise, following a few simple rules will keep you on the go. When biking, cyclists should loudly announce their presence about 75 feet before passing pedestrians and slow down, since some may not hear a warning bike bell and know to step to the right. On roadways, walkers should walk on the left-hand side of the road, traveling against the traffic; bicyclers should travel in the right-hand lane, going with the flow of traffic. During the day, both walkers and bikers should wear clothing of bright, easily seen colors, and, from dusk on, wear light, reflective clothing. In any case, don't just assume drivers can see you. Be on the lookout ... for your own safety.

Piebald male cardinal

This Nature Note was printed in the July 3, 2014 issue of the Sewanee Mountain Messenger.

Piebald Cardinal

"On June 25," Jean Yeatman reports, "a piebald male cardinal was feeding its male offspring, which was also piebald, but with a different pattern. They were on the walk where I scatter seeds. The young male would feed itself for a while, then go up to its father, tremble its wings in a begging way and be fed. When it tried this with its mother, she would drive it away. Soon a young thrasher flew in with its parent, but was not able to get fed, so it ate on its own.

"Two days later," she continued, "the young male cardinal was on the walk eating away, but when its parent flew in, it tried to get fed again. This time it was pushed away. Then a beautiful male indigo bunting flew in, and the young cardinal followed it around for a while.

"This piebald male cardinal has been coming to my feeder for three years," she concluded. "This is the first time any young have showed the piebald trait, which has a complicated genetic pattern that is mostly

Pets of the Week

Meet Bella and Luke

Animal Harbor offers these two delightful pets for adoption. Bella is an active young adult Catahoula mix with so much love and energy to share with her new family. So far, she seems to prefer spending most of her time outdoors, but she could be an indoor/outdoor constant companion type of dog. Bella is heartworm-negative, up-to-date on shots, microchipped and spayed.

Luke is pretty mellow mannered for a kitten, not to say he won't get feisty and playful, but our own little Cool-Hand Luke is just a seriously cool kitten. He spends a good bit of his time napping, so be sure to leave a little space on your bed for him. Luke is negative for FeLV and FIV, house-trained, up-to-date on shots, microchipped and neutered.

Animal Harbor is now in its new shelter at 56 Nor-Nan Road, off AEDC Road in Winchester. Call Animal Harbor at 962-4472 for information, and check out their other pets at <www.animalharbor.com>. Jerry H. Summers is a practicing attorney in Chattanooga, Tennessee. He has served as an assistant district attorney, criminal defense attorney, and personal injury and labor awyer since he began the practice of law in 1966. He has argued cases before the United States and Tennessee Supreme Courts and has been involved in numerous landmark decisions in both civil and criminal law.

- Valuable insights into the colorful character and motivations of Raulston Schoolfield. Rush to Justice? captures the rich backdrop of the community and times of this remarkable and complex personality. While Summers' in-depth research is obvious, he weaves the facts into a highly engaging story which reads like fiction, yet it is all too true Muccke Barker, retired Cluef fustice of the Tennessee Supreme Court
- Remarkable life story of Raulston Schoolfield's journey and struggles for redemption in a legal and judicial career engulfed by the turbulent times of mid-twentieth century politics immers presents provocative research for the reader to decide if justice was done in Judge Schoolfield's 1958 Senate impeachment trial, or if he was the uncompromising victim of political enemies abusing executive and legislative powers
- While reading the story of the colorful and controversial Raulston Schoolfield, I found myself transitioning constantly - at one moment feeling admiration for Schoolfield only to have the admiration replaced by confusion, doubt and skepticism about his choices. Rush to Justice? tells a fascinating story about Tennessee history, politics and law. It is a story much enhanced by Jerry Summers' dogged research and his unique perspective on his beloved home town and profession. We can only hope that Jerry will have mercy on his readers and tell the rest a's story in a subsequent volume

Wm. Ralph Hill. Ir., Senior Judge, Superior Court of the State of Georgia

- Penny White, University of Tennessee law professor and former Tennessee Supreme Court Justice Provides a full-bodied view of Raulston Schoolfield, a talented trial lawyer whose controversial behavior confounded several members of the legal community. But perhaps most interesting is the delicate, balanced picture that attorney Jerry Summers paints of the state. Senate and the connections and events that lead to Schoolfield's impeachment. Was it politics as usual, or the appropriate punishment for a judicial figure accused of bribery and extorting campaign help from racketeers? The reader has all the necessary tools to decide.
- Zack Peterson, Courts Reporter, Chattannoga Times Free-Press O Jerry Summer's life-long passion for - and commitment to the law - shines through in Rush to Justice. Summers, a legendary trial lawyer, defends the poor and innocent and challenges the rich and powerful. He has witnessed true political corruption but also has defended those who were falsely accused. In short, Jerry Summers possesses the unique experiences to tell this story with knowledge and passion. The amazing tale of Judge Raulston Schoolfield, who rose to become one of the most controversial judges in Tennessee, only to fall hard amid allegations of unethical and illegal conduct, should be taught in law schools and in CLE programs across the South. When do we get Part II?

Fourth of July

It's the Fourth of July, the flags are painting the town, the plastic forks and knives are laid out like a parade.

And I'm grilling, I've got my apron, I've got potato salad, macaroni, relish, I've got a hat shaped like the state of Pennsylvania.

I ask my father what's his pleasure and he says, "Hot dog, medium rare," and then, "Hamburger, sure, what's the big difference," as if he's really asking.

I put on hamburgers and hot dogs, slice up the sour pickles and Bermudas, uncap the condiments. The paper napkins are fluttering away like lost messages.

"You're running around," my mother says, "like a chicken with its head

"Ma," I say, "you mean cut off, loose and cut off being as far apart as, say, son and daughter."

She gives me a quizzical look as though

I've been caught in some impropriety.

"I love you and your sister just the same," she says, "Sure," my grandmother pipes in, you're both our children, so why worry?"

That's not the point I begin telling them, and I'm comparing words to like the ones in the sea at Port Said, or like birds among the date palms by the Nile, unrepentantly elusive,

"Sonia," my father says to my mother, "what the hell is he talking about?" "He's on a ball," my mother says.

"That's roll!" I say, throwing up my hands, "as in hot dog, hamburger, dinner roll....'

"And what about roll out the barrels?" my mother asks, and my father claps his hands, "Why sure," he says, "let's have some fun," and launches into a polka, twirling my mother around and around like the happiest top, and my uncle is shaking his head, saying "You could grow nuts listening and I'm thinking of pistachios in the Sinai burgeoning without end, pecans in the South, the jumbled flavor of them suddenly in my mouth, wordless, confusing, crowding out everything else.
