Boy Named Banjo Begins Weekend Music

Fresh from the stage at Bonnaroo, Boy Named Banjo will perform at 6 p.m., today (Friday), July 3, at the Angel Park Pavilion in downtown Sewanee; if it rains, the concert will move next door to the American Legion Hall.

This performance marks the band's third year playing at the Friday Nights in the Park, hosted by the Sewanee Business Alliance. Band members Barton Davies and William Reames are Sewanee students; they are joined on stage by Will Logan, Sam McCullough and Abe Scott.

University Avenue will be closed at 4:30 p.m. so guests can safely enjoy all the activities, including local vendors offering food and drink.

The annual Fourth of July-eve Street Dance will begin at 8 p.m., at the Sewanee Market. This year's band is Last Rebel, comprised of Neal Parson (lead vocals), Mike Norman (bass), Tony Green (lead guitar) and David Green (drums). In case of rain, the Street Dance will move to Cravens Hall.

The History of the Famous Sewanee Dog Show by Matt Petrilla, M.D., Special to the Messenger

On July 1, 1986, Jeanette Hamilton, who was then the crotchety chief of the Sewanee Hospital laboratory, was sitting in the hospital cafeteria, along with other hospital staff, looking out its large glass window.

"We need to have something for these old folks to celebrate the Fourth of July," she declared. (At that time the hospital served as a part-time nursing home facility). "I've got it! Let's have a Kids' Dog Show out here on the grass!" You two new docs—put it together! (Diane Petrilla and I had just arrived on the Mountain three weeks earlier and were "fresh meat," as Jeanette saw us). And the rest is history.

With two days to advertise and prepare, the first Sewanee Mutt Show consisted of a wooden show ring and an entrance banner (still used to this day). The awards were a squeaky toy, box of dog treats and a leather chew bone. Seven dogs were entered, and three kids went home squealing in delight at their achievement. Hamilton's post-show evaluation was ruthless. "Not enough kids!" "Terrible prizes!" "That stunk!"

The second year had 15 hopeful kids and dogs, three official-looking generic ribbons for awards and boxes of doughnuts. (And, of course, those copycats started the cat show next door!) Post-show critique by Hamilton was, again, embarrassing. "Terrible turnout!!" "Doughnuts?! Who gives doughnuts as dog show awards?!" she barked.

For the third Sewanee Mutt Show, Sewanee resident jocks were asked to donate their old, dusty trophies stored in attics and basements to be refurbished. Community response was tremendous, and at least 100 trophies dating back to 1930 were converted to dog trophies for the next years, as continues to this day. Twenty dogs entered the third year, and the new prizes were a big hit, as grinning children walked off with trophies taller than they were. Finally, post-show evaluation got a "Not bad" from Hamilton. "But don't slack off next year—or else!" she cautioned.

Over the years, changes were made to be politically correct, per the adults. The "Mutt" Show was changed to the "Dog" Show. The first categories were: Biggest Dog, Smallest, Ugliest, Best Trick, Owner-Dog Look-alike.

But Ugly, Biggest and Smallest were felt to be discriminatory and thrown out. The venue was moved to the University football field, then to the site

Otey Parish Calls Lamborn as New Rector

The vestry of Otey Memorial Parish is pleased to announce that its new rector will be the Rev. Dr. Robert C. Lamborn. The news was reported to the congregation on June 28.

"I am very excited to be undertaking shared ministry with this active, thoughtful, and uniquely situated congregation," Lamborn said. "This is a welcome homecoming for my wife and me, and we are confident our daughter will flourish here." Lamborn will begin at Otey on August 17.

"We are delighted that Rob will be joining us at Otey Parish," said senior warden Steve Ford. "With the opening of the renovated and expanded Claiborne Parish House and the energy of our congregation, we are poised for a new chapter in Otey's rich history in this community."

Rob Lamborn

Lamborn most recently has been serving as interim rector at St. James the Less Episcopal Church in Scarsdale, N.Y. For close to eight years (2004–12), he was rector at Christ Church Riverdale in the Bronx, where he led a campaign to add handicapped accessibility, build a new pipe organ and address decades of deferred maintenance on the historic property. He was rector at St. John's Episcopal Church in Crawfordsville, Ind., 1996–2004. The chief area of growth during his service at St. John's was Christian Education, including implementation of Godly Play and the Rite 13/Journey to Adulthood program.

Lamborn is a 1994 graduate of the School of Theology in Sewanee, where he earned a Master of Divinity degree. He earned a Bachelor of Music, summa cum laude, in 1987 from University of Georgia. Before coming to Sewanee for seminary, he was in a Ph.D. program in musicology at Indiana University. He earned a Doctor of Ministry in Ministry Development in 2007 from Virginia Theological Seminary. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1995.

While in seminary, Rob met Amy Bentley, also a student at the School of Theology. They married and have a daughter, Caroline. Amy is also an Episcopal priest and holds a Ph.D in psychiatry and religion from Union Theological Seminary, New York City. For the past four years she has been on the faculty at General Theological Seminary in New York.

"We offer our thanks to the Search Committee for its fine work," Ford said.

Music Festival to Honor Martha McCrory's Birthday

The Sewanee Summer Music Festival will celebrate the 95th birthday of Martha McCrory on Sunday, July 12. As part of the Sewanee Symphony's 3:30 p.m. concert, there will be cake, and the orchestra will strike up "Happy Birthday" and invite the audience to join in singing. McCrory served as executive director of the Sewanee Summer Music Festival (SSMF) from 1963 until 1998.

In 1957, Vice-Chancellor Edward McCrady had a vision of recreating the Cumberland Forest Festival. From the beginning, McCrory served multiple roles: cello faculty, business manager and recruiter, while helping launch SSMF prior to being named executive director.

"It is a joy to celebrate Martha's 95th birthday, especially as

Gipson-Strong

James Gipson and Bill Strong were united on June 28, 2015, at their home in Sewanee by Franklin County Commissioner Johnny Hughes.

James is a 1966 graduate of the University of the South and a lifelong resident of Sewanee. He is the son of the late E. Berry Gipson and the late Hattie Marie Gudger Gipson.

Bill was an optician in Brecksville, Ohio, before moving to Sewanee, where he was the Fuller Brush man. He is the son of the late Robert Delo Strong and the late Ellen Helen Mark Strong of Cleveland, Ohio, Homestead, Fla., and Cleveland, Tenn.

About the event, James reports that Bill asked him 32 years ago to marry; they joke that it took James this long to make up his mind. Bill recalls that Jenny Gardner asked him in 1983, "So you found this quaint little English village here, fell in love with it and decided to move here?" Bill replied, "No, I met Jim and fell in love with him."

Contributions in celebration of this occasion can be made to the Rainbow Fund of the University of the South; c/o the Office of University Relations, 735 University Ave., Sewanee, TN 37383.

in Manigault Park on University Avenue used today. In 2005, cumbersome paper sign-in sheets were replaced with complex computer sign in, as we "progressed." Adults got a piece of the action as judges sometimes awarded prizes to the adults' dogs, but they were redirected to the origins of the show as an event for children.

The emcee job was alternated until Lizzie Clark Duncan took the microphone. The crowds love Lizzie so much that she is now snagged to do the announcing as often as possible.

"Best Dog Joke" was added to the show to fill in time as the judges made their decisions. Benches were added to accommodate the growing crowds of people and the ring made bigger to accommodate the great number of dogs

The highest number of entrants was 70 dogs in 1995, and someone (unofficially) counted 400 onlookers one year. The show was never canceled for rain until the first time in 2013, with organizers facing severe criticism encountered for "wimping out." [Rain plans for this year's celebration can be found on page 11.]

The show began raising money a few years ago, with donations going to Animal Harbor for proper care of homeless dogs.

Thank you to Jeanette Hamilton for the original idea and early "direction," and thank you to the many people over the years that made the Sewanee Dog Show a part of Sewanee's fantastic Fourth of July celebration.

Mountain T.O.P. Seeks Support for Housing Project

Mountain T.O.P. is applying to a United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) grant program, the Housing Preservation Grant. According to Julie Keel, associate executive director of Mountain T.O.P., this grant would give the organization funding to do minor and major home repairs in Grundy County using volunteer labor. Mountain T.O.P. and the USDA have established a relationship with one another, and there are many families in Grundy County who need home improvements.

Because of Mountain T.O.P.'s effective use of volunteers, all monies granted are applied toward materials. This practice allows the group to help many more families. Keel said they want to pursue this grant because it will allow them to help area families who may not qualify for grants or loans otherwise.

To qualify for this grant, it is necessary to announce its potential to the area which Mountain T.O.P. will serve and receive feedback from the community.

To submit comments on whether Mountain T.O.P. should receive this grant and why, please mail a letter to P.O. Box 128, Altamont, TN 37301, or drop them off at the camp on old Highway 56 in Cumberland Heights between Altamont and Gruetli-Laager. The deadline for submitting supporting letters is July 5.

Mountain T.O.P. (Tennessee Outreach Project) is an interdenominational, nonprofit Christian mission affiliated with the Tennessee Conference of the United Methodist Church, dedicated to rural life ministry in the Cumberland Mountains of Tennessee. For more information go to

Summer Programs on the Sewanee Campus

Among the many programs taking place on campus this summer are:

The Sewanee Summer Seminar session II runs from July 5 to July 11. This program provides lectures on a variety of topics taught by Sewanee professors. In the morning, participants are actively engaged in learning, and in the afternoon, are encouraged to sit back and relax, to get to know some interesting people and to recharge their spirit on the Domain.

Sewanee's Pre-College Field Studies Experience is a summer residential program for talented students who are passionate about the outdoors and interested in advancing their knowledge and skills in the study of the environment. Students are on campus until July 11.

Sewanee School of Letters will continue through July 17. It is a summer program in literature and creative writing that offers a master of arts degree and a master in fine arts degree.

The Sewanee Summer Music Festival continues until July 19. More than 170 aspiring young musicians from around the United States and abroad join with teachers, performers and internationally recognized guest artists to create a musical community in Sewanee. Concert dates and ticket availability can be found at <sewaneemusicfestival.org>.

Sewanee Summer School is in session until July 19. It fulfills a number of purposes. Summer School offers an opportunity for College students to take courses not normally available during the academic year to broaden their academic program. It also serves previously enrolled students in the University who desire to speed the acquisition of their college degrees or to gain additional credits toward completion of their class standings. Incoming freshmen also take Summer School for an opportunity to adapt themselves to the academic demands of College in an environment that is relatively free of the usual pressures of extracurricular activities.

The 26th session of the Sewanee Writers' Conference will be July 21–Aug. 2. Supported by the Walter E. Dakin Memorial Fund established through the estate of the late Tennessee Williams, the conference will gather a distinguished faculty to provide instruction and criticism through workshops and craft lectures in poetry, fiction and playwriting.

Mike Maxon is feeling queasy as he gets ready to hand over the keys of Sewanee Elementary School. Today, the school's principal for the last 16 years sits in his office dressed like a man ready for retirement in an SES polo, white shorts and sandals.

"It's been a wonderful career in education," he says. "I'll miss it, but I won't miss some of the battles. I feel like there's many times I've fought to try and protect the integrity of Sewanee Elementary School."

The battles he speaks of are struggles against state and local mandates and micromanaging that restrict both students and teachers and limits the creative freedom of Sewanee Elementary.

"I think what the state's doing is taking some of the fun out of teaching for teachers and some of the fun out of learning for children," he says. "Historically speaking, you can see that Sewanee has always ranked up there with top schools across the state.

"If it ain't broke, why fix it? We have a wonderful program, wonderful educators and parents, and a strong community of learners," he adds. "We're getting the job done without micromanaging from the state and the local education

After this interview on June 25, he'll lock up Sewanee Elementary and head down the Mountain to turn in his keys at the Board of Education and officially end his 42-year career, 39 of those in Franklin County schools.

"Good morning teachers, students, staff members—it's a beautiful day on the Mountain!" is how Maxon greeted the school each morning over the loudspeaker, no matter if it was foggy or rainy or sunshine outside.

Sewanee Elementary is a school known for its emphasis on the arts, Palmer.' I wouldn't be where I am now physical education and getting creative with special programs such as its science fair, "Book Character Day," and and being an educator has been so Friday School, where professionals from all walks of life teach students about endeavors like dance, gardening Junior High (now North Middle) prior and ecology.

That well-rounded education is one of the reasons more than 30 percent moved around the country as his dad, of the school's students come from a World War II veteran and Marine Lt. gling with the parents and children as out-of-zone, places like South Pittsburg, > Rebecca Sharber, Franklin County director of schools, also retired in June after six years at the helm of the school system. Sharber and Maxon had their share of friendly disagreements over the years, but she praised the former principal for his work.

> "I think that Mike Maxon served the Sewanee community well for many years," she says. "One of his strongest attributes was the partnerships he formed with the University and the parents. He worked diligently to ensure that the students received a well-rounded education.

> "I think we had a good working relationship," she adds. "We both felt comfortable stating our opinions about various issues, and we both believed in the worth and importance of each child."

> In a letter to Amie Lonas, the new director of schools, Maxon asks her to include a Sewanee faculty member and a community member on the search committee for a new Sewanee Elementary principal.

In the letter Maxon says, "The parents want the whole child taught. I believe that if this is done well, test scores will take care of themselves."

He adds that students should be prepared not just academically, but socially, emotionally and physically for the next stage in life.

Hoop House on the SAS Farm

Family Workday on SAS Farm

The farm at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School is hosting a family workday beginning at 9:30 a.m., Saturday, July 11. This is the second in a series of volunteer workdays on the SAS farm. The community is invited to participate.

The work will consist of transplanting, weed-eating and preparing the garden area for plowing. A picnic lunch will be served at 12:30 p.m., followed by swimming at "the Res." Watermelon and subs will be provided for lunch. People are asked to bring cookies for a cookie swap.

The 550-acre SAS campus in Sewanee is on what was once known as Colmore Farm. Robert Lionel Colmore, bursar and general manager of the University of the South in the 1800s, owned 75 acres adjacent to the University Domain, where he and his family lived and farmed.

In 1905, the Colmores sold the property to the Order of the Holy Cross, a monastic order from New York seeking to establish St. Andrew's, an Episcopal school for Mountain boys. For years the students at St. Andrew's continued to work Colmore Farm, raising food for themselves and their livestock. The farm ceased operation years ago.

In 2008, SAS offered to provide land and support for a grower to produce organic food for the dining hall. An afternoon program was established where organic food for the SAS dining hall is grown, and students learn the seed-to-plate process. SAS students in the afternoon farming program also have the opportunity to learn some basic principles of sustainable and biodynamic land practices. Meter Encourages Summer Reading by SES Students

Sewanee Elementary School students have accepted the challenge to set a record for the number of minutes they read this summer, according to Kathryn Bruce, SES librarian.

As partners with the Scholastic Summer Power Up and Read program, students are recording the total number of minutes they read each day.

According to the online dashboard, SES students have read 16,108 minutes. With six more weeks of summer left, the number of minutes will continue to rise.

Students may also record their reading minutes at <scholastic.com/ summer>, or they may record their minutes on paper logs available on the school's website or at local area libraries. Students who record their minutes can unlock stories to read online.

The new Power Up and Read meter on the SES lawn also features a story that develops the more students read, Bruce said. The meter is on the lawn at SES for all to see.

"Students--the more you read, the longer the story and the higher the meter! Keep reading!" Bruce said.

Summer Binge-Watching Recommendation

Song of the Sea

2014 • Rated PG • 93 minutes

Irish and Scottish folklore tell of magical creatures called Selkies, seals that on the Summer Solstice shed their skins and transform into captivating women with pale white skin, long dark hair and eyes as black as night. This Irish animated film, which was nominated for Best Animated Feature in this year's Oscar race, brings this nautical legend to life with a unique blend of hand-drawn animation enhanced with watercolor textures and backgrounds.

Saoirse (pronounced Seer-sha) is the daughter of a poor fisherman who is devastated after his Selkie-wife has had to return to the sea after giving birth to her. Her brother, Ben, resents his little sister because she doesn't talk and seems to make his father even sadder every time he looks at her. When their father sends the two of them away to live with their conservative grandmother in the city, the pull of the sea is too strong for little Saoirse, who has come to realize her Selkie heritage. With a conch that sings to them "the song of the sea" given to Ben by his mother and no small amount of grit, Ben and Saoirse embark upon a journey that blends the fairy world with the modern one and mends the hearts of their broken family.

Visually stunning, children will be captivated by its unique tale and sweetly drawn characters; adults will appreciate the heavier themes regarding love, loss and how the strength and maturity of our progeny can exceed even our own expectations. "Song of the Sea" is available for purchase on DVD, through DVD rental on Netflix and streaming rental on Amazon Instant Video.

Guitar Program Concludes With Happy Strumming

The Monteagle Elementary School students who were among the 50 Grundy and Marion county participants in this year's Guitarsome Program strummed their final session on stage at the end of the school year.

The Guitarsome Program was initiated by Lucas Finney, an award-winning guitarist and a visiting instructor of music at the University. Finney, in partnership with the Grundy Area Arts Council, has taken the program to students at Coalmont Elementary, North Elementary, Tracy City Elementary and Monteagle Elementary schools. Two student assistants helped provide hands-on instruction: Mack Lindau, a senior at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School, and Trevor Hill, a Grundy County High School alumnus.

Finding many students who wished to participate but did not have instruments, the Arts Council began a campaign to collect guitars, cases, music stands and tuners in order to create an Instrument Bank. This effort to collect items for the Instrument Bank is continuing. To make a donation contact Finney at (615) 920-0155 or email < sewaneeguitar@gmail.com>. This program was made possible by benefactors including the Monteagle Rotary, Monteagle-Sewanee Rotary and Grundy County Rotary; the Sewanee Community Chest; the Tennessee Arts Commission through its ABC (Arts Build Communities) program; and several individuals. Planning for the fall session is underway.

Fireflies

Firefles, also known as "lightning bugs," are neither flies nor bugs, but rather papery beetles of the family Lampyridae. They produce cold light by oxidizing the chemical luciferin in the last two segments of their abdomen. Their blinking is information-dense, a visual Morse code. Males usually flash while flying, and females, if interested, answer from a perch. Fireflies seem to be "hanging" as they fly, with their eyes forward and their abdomens pointing down.

Firefly larvae are grub-like "glow worms," whose light conveys a different message, that of distastefulness. They eat little snails and other soil-dwelling tidbits. Consequently, fireflies like warm, humid environments where the larvae can find food. In the United States, flashing fireflies are found mostly east of the Mississippi.

Firefly drawing by Jill Carpenter

Fireflies are harmless insects, but are often collateral damage in the human wars against pest insects. Fireflies also succumb to rapid habitat loss.

Here are some things to do to keep fireflies lighting up on our summer evenings.

- Turn off outside lights at night, and close inside draperies. Artificial light makes it difficult for fireflies to find mates and breed.
- · Let logs and litter accumulate, and plant trees. Larvae feed in litter, and trees provide shade and low light conditions that adult fireflies like.
- Create small water features that support firefly food.
- Avoid pesticides.
- Use natural fertilizers.
- Don't over-mow. Fireflies rest on the ground or in long grasses during the day.

Finally, if you catch fireflies to observe them, keep them in a ventilated jar and let them go within a day.

I did not come by my aversion to snakes naturally. It happened over time, slowly, through various moves with my family.

Living in Chicago, I never saw a snake unless there was an exhibit at the Shedd Aquarium. My family and I lived in the city, and snakes were never part of the conversation of "things to watch out for."

When I was 10, we moved to a small town in West Tennessee. Snakes suddenly became part of everyday conversation. Snakes were something to fear, to dread, to watch out for, even outside or inside the house.

"If a snake is wrapped around your leg, run to the house." "The only good kind of snake is a dead snake."

"Snakes have teeth, and there are several kinds that will do everything they can to come and get you."

"It does not matter if they are poisonous or not. All snakes bite."

I went to the library and checked out a snake book. Snakes like to coil up. Their necks stretch upright before they strike. Some snakes are camouflaged in the grass and in the leaves. Sometimes you don't see a snake until you are right on top of it. If you see one, you had better run and go the other way.

My grandpa, a truck farmer, did not help alleviate my fear once we got to Tennessee. As we drove down the road to go work at his farm, he would yell out the car window to folks walking down the side of the road or out in the field.

"Watch out! You are going to get snake bit!"
Was that for real? What kind of fresh hell had we moved to?

I watched for snakes out at the farm and only picked the peas or tomatoes that were close to the top of the vines. I did not care if my brother Kris picked the most vegetables to win the praise and the Popsicle at the end of the day. There was no way I was sticking my hand down that close to the ground. Something could be lurking and twined up down there, unhinging their jaws for a taste.

I quickly learned the names of these West Tennessee snakes. There are 34 kinds of snakes in Tennessee. Four of the most poisonous snakes could be out in my backyard: copperhead, cottonmouth and two kinds of rattlesnake. They all moved in a serpentine fashion. They slithered and came at you with their mouths open and fangs exposed. When I thought about them, they were always in my face.

Even going to the lake was hazardous. When the family went canoeing at Reelfoot Lake, I figured I was safe enough to drop my snake watch. Then a snake dropped from the tree into the water barely one foot from the boat. The first of many items to mark off of my nevergoing-to-do-that-again list.

When we moved to Saudi Arabia, there were other kinds of snakes to watch out for: the king cobra and the sea snake.

I did not worry too much about the king cobra. It seems the cobra is a timid and shy, albeit, deadly snake. Then we got the phone call to be on the lookout. A nest of cobras was moving from the desert to the town at such a speed that a cloud of sand could be seen from a mile away.

This was before Google, so I had to let my imagination do the thinking. I stayed indoors, sitting on the counter in the kitchen until the all-clear was sent. Kris periodically came in and made hissing noises at me, which did not help.

Later that week, I took my little brother, Mark, out snorkeling in the Arabian Gulf. We were almost to a floating dock stationed about a fourth-of-a-mile from shore when I looked down. Floating not three feet away was a sea snake. I knew sea snakes could not open their mouths as widely as other snakes and typically aim toward appendages in order to strike. Our feet were covered with flippers, but our hands were exposed. I grabbed my little brother, put him on my back and proceeded to set some sort of saltwater-to-sand speed record that can never be reproduced. Of course, nobody was there to see this except for my little brother, the SNAKE and me. Check going to the floating

Green, black, coral, with yellow stripes, with diamonds, with rattles, with both diamonds and rattles; there are too many snakes to keep up with. They all, in my mind, are deadly poisonous vipers with venom and boa constrictor-like tendencies.

Even when I watch movies, the snakes are there. There are obvious movies I have not seen. "Anaconda." Nope. "Snakes On A Plane." No way. In some of my favorite movies, such as "Chamber of Secrets" or the "Raiders of the Lost Ark," I have to shield my eyes and resist the urge to flee. The scene from "True Grit," where Maddie gets bit by a rattler and Rooster Cogburn tries to save her arm, still gives me the heebie-jeebies.

I now live on Snake Pond Road. Seems the pond where the snakes hang out is just a stone's throw from our house. I have seen the snake holes and heard the "sssssstttt" in the yard. I watch them on the driveway, on the road, in the grass and on my porch. They are there, coiled up, moving sinuously and waiting for me.

Against Shelbyville, the Tigersharks boys' team fell only 4 points short with strong performances from Zolon Knoll and Harrison Hartman, sweeping most of 11–12 age group races. Similarly, Toby Van de Ven, Jackson Frazier and the Smith brothers—Aidan and Sam—made meaningful contributions in their Sourwood tree in bloom.

Sourwood Blooms

Most of our trees—maples, oaks, tulip poplars—are past blooming, but one is in full fragrant bloom now: the sourwood, reports Yolande Gottfried. The white flowers are in curved spikes in clusters near the ends of branches, and when they drop to the ground, you can see their similarity to blueberry flowers. Sourwood is a member of the same plant family—the heaths—as blueberries, as well as mountain laurel, rhododendron and others. It is the only member of this family in our area that grows as a tree, the others being shrubs. It is on the small side for a tree and almost always grows in a curve, which led one botanist to comment that maybe it is still trying to be a shrub like its relatives. That characteristic also made it useful for sleigh runners, already bent in the right shape. This is a true tree of the Southeast, ranging only barely up into Pennsylvania and mostly staying well east of the Mississippi.

Of course, for most folks, when you say "sourwood," they say "honey," and indeed if you are out in the woods where sour woods bloom, the hum of bees overhead is quite impressive. Luckily, this tree flowers when the rhododendron and mountain laurel have finished, since their honey is poisonous. In contrast to the delicately flavored sourwood honey, the leaves and twigs, when chewed, do in fact have a sour taste because of an organic acid, which gives the tree its name, also called sorrelwood for the same taste. Even the scientific genus name, Oxydendron, comes from the Greek roots for "sour" and "tree." It is the only member of its genus.

Fireworks Safety Recommendations

Fireworks are synonymous with our celebration of Independence Day. Yet, the thrill of fireworks can also bring pain. More than 200 people on average go the emergency room every day with fireworks-related injuries in the month around the July 4th holiday.

Remember, fireworks can be dangerous, causing serious burn and eye injuries. Follow these safety tips when using fireworks:

Never allow young children to play with or ignite fireworks.

Avoid buying fireworks that are packaged in brown paper because this is often a sign that the fireworks were made for professional displays and that they could pose a danger to consumers.

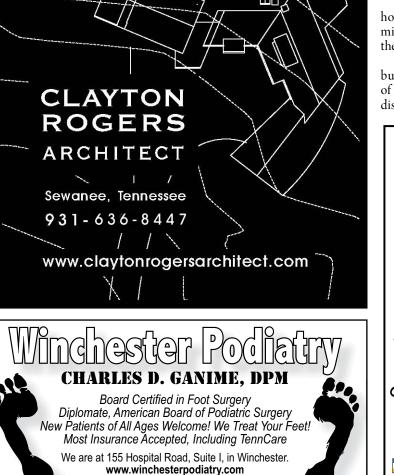

Always have an adult supervise fireworks activities. Parents don't realize that young children suffer injuries from sparklers. Sparklers burn at temperatures of about 2,000 degrees—hot enough to melt some metals.

Never place any part of your body directly over a fireworks device when lighting the fuse. Back up to a safe distance immediately after lighting

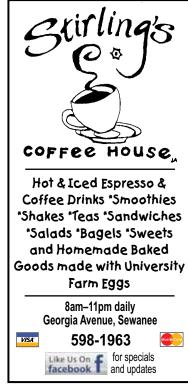

Never try to re-light or pick up fireworks that have not ignited fully. Never point or throw fireworks at another person.

Keep a bucket of water or a garden hose handy in case of fire or other mishap. Light fireworks one at a time, then move back quickly.

After fireworks complete their ourning, douse them with plenty of water from a bucket or hose before discarding to prevent a trash fire.

Independence Day

...This is Independence Day, Fourth of July, the day we learn to keep, Whatever happens and whatever falls, Out of a sky grown strange; This is firecracker day for sunburnt kids, The day of the parade, Slambanging down the street. Listen to the parade! There's J.K. Burney's float, Red-white-and-blue crepe-paper on the wheels, The Fire Department and the local Grange, There are the pretty girls with their hair curled Who represent the Thirteen Colonies, The Spirit of East Greenwich, Betsy Ross, Democracy, or just some pretty girls... The band, the flag, the band, the usual crowd, Good-humored, watching, hot, Silent a second as the flag goes by, Kidding the local cop and eating popsicles ... All of them there and all of them a nation ...

— from "Listen to the People: Independence Day 1941" by Stephen Vincent Benét
