Riley will receive an honorary doctor of civil law degree during the ceremony. The Convocation will include the conferral of four additional honorary degrees and the induction of almost 300 new members into the Order of Gownsmen.

Joe Riley

Sula, Honduras, will receive an honorary doctor of civil law; American novelist William Timothy "Tim" O'Brien will receive an honorary doctor of letters; and the Rt. Rev. Canon George Sumner, bishop of the Diocese of Dallas, will receive an honorary doctor of divinity.

Please note: Due to the number of Sewanee students receiving their gowns, the University expects All Saints' Chapel to be filled to near capacity. Students who are receiving their gowns have been provided tickets for themselves and three guests. After those with tickets have been seated, seats may be available in the Chapel for other members of the University community who would like to attend the service. Guests are welcome to watch the service streaming live in Guerry Auditorium or watch online http://www.sewanee.edu/parents/ convocation-live/name-49805-en.php>

Joe Riley retired in January 2016 after 40 years in office as mayor of Charleston, South Carolina, making him one of the country's longest-serving mayors. Riley previously served in the South Carolina House of Representatives. His tenure as mayor saw the transformation of downtown Charleston from a decaying urban center to a top cultural destination. Known as a bridge-builder, Riley served as president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, included African Americans in Charleston city administration for the first time, and appointed the city's first black police chief. He first gained national attention in 1989 following Hurricane Hugo, and was again in the spotlight last year when a raciallymotivated gunman killed nine people at the Emanuel AME Church. Agraduate of the Citadel and the University of South Carolina School of Law, Riley has received numerous awards, including South Carolina's Order of the Palmetto.

The Rt. Rev. Peter Eaton was ordained bishop of the Diocese of Southeast Florida last January. He most recently had been the dean of St. John's Cathedral in Denver. Eaton is an experienced parish pastor, teacher, and community leader and has served congregations in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, and Salt Lake City, as well as in England and France. Eaton trained for the priesthood at Westcott House, Cambridge, U.K. He was a fellow-in-residence at the School of Theology in Sewanee in 2014. He has been a member of the Mayor's Advisory Committee of Religious Leaders on Ending Homelessness in Denver, and has led a number of other significant social ministry initiatives.

Community Chest Sets Goal

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

"We received five new applications for funding this year," said Sewanee Civic Association (SCA) President Lynn Stubblefield. "The SCA Board has approved a goal of $116,850 for 2016–17 funding." SCA members received the news at the Sept. 22 meeting of the SCA at St. Mark's Hall where more than 60 members and guests gathered for a welcome back picnic.

Founded in 1908 with a long history of acting as a benefactor to the community, among the SCA's early projects were funding the building of Sewanee Elementary School in 1926 and completion of the Alto Highway. Especially noteworthy recent projects include the desegregation plaque at SES and funding the playground equipment and installation at the Elliot Park playground. The SCA also sponsors Sewanee Classifieds, an online community messaging service, the parks committee and Cub Scout Pack 152.

The Sewanee Community Chest fund drive provides crucial support to more than 26 community initiatives annually. In the 2015–16 academic year, the Community Chest surpassed its $100,000 goal to raise $105,000 for 25 organizations.

Projects relying on the Community Chest for vital support include the Sewanee Mountain Messenger, a free community newspaper founded 32 years ago through the support of the University of the South, the SCA and the Sewanee Woman's Club; the Community Action Committee, a local food bank hosted by Otey Parish; the Sewanee Children's Center, a preschool program committed to making learning a joy and making the program available to all children in the community; the Sewanee Parents Organization, which thanks to the Community Chest, hosts educational programs throughout the year without needing to rely on fundraisers; the Mountain Goat Trail Alliance, which received Community Chest matching funds to complete the first leg of the trail and at present is undertaking completion of the trail to Tracy City; the Sewanee

SUD Considers Drought Restrictions

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

"The Big Creek water plant in Coalmont is at the first trigger for voluntary usage restrictions," SŬD manager Ben Beavers reported at the Sept. 27 meeting of the Board of Commissioners of the Sewanee Utility District (SUD) of Franklin and Marion Counties. Since SUD is part of an area-wide drought management plan, we have the option of doing the same thing," Updating the board on operations, Beavers said Lake O'Donnell was full, but Lake Jackson was down 12 feet at the end of August. SUD feeds lake O'Donnell from Lake Jackson. This time last year, O'Donnell was down one foot and Jackson was down just to water use. "The long range forecast

Big Creek water plant manager Allen Joslyn observed that drought seems to run in 10-year cycles. Following the severe drought of 2007, SUD and the other water utilities on the Plateau developed drought management plans. Two years ago, Tracy City water utility completed a transfer line to Big Creek. Tracy City is in the process of getting pumps ready to facilitate the transfer if necessary.

"We'll wait until next month before we decide whether to ask for voluntary restrictions," Beavers said. He hopes alerting customers to the drought conditions will encourage them to take a conservation minded approach

TALENT RETURNS

To the Editor:

"The Free State of Jones" recently reviewed in the Messenger (Sept. 23, 2016 issue) included Sean MacKenzie Bridgers (as Will Sumrall). A graduate of St. Andrews-Sewanee School, during matriculation Bridgers appeared as Poseidon in Euripides' "The Trojan Women." Malia Carlos performed the role of Cassandra in that production, too, and is now teaching at SAS. Sean's sister, Bennett Bridgers-Carlos, is also a Sewanee-based clinical social worker/ therapist and a graduate of SAS. Their parents, novelist Sue Ellen Bridgers has read at SAS and IONA: Art Sanctuary along with family writers-poets-Bennett and the late Ben Bridgers of Sylva, N.C. SAS championed their graduate by inviting Sean to speak in the Performing Arts Center where my own five large oil paintings—The Cumulus Suite—were displayed in the lobby to pay respect to Sean's presence and to the several members of my family involved with the school; the paintings are now returned to IONA.

In "The Trojan Women," during prayer, Cassandra is kidnapped and Andromache's murdered body falls into the incline-canal from high upstage to the beach in a slow motion floor-reclined dance. A young Poseidon (Sean) comes forward to claim her body, then returns to his ocean carrying her body. A memorable scene!

Sean's 62 film-television acting credits include "The Magnificent Seven," now in release, "Room" (2015), the TV series Rectify and Deadwood, The Woman, and Nell.

In "The Free State of Jones," during a dialogue with Newton Knight (Matthew McConaughey), Bridgers' character comes fully to life through

GOOD SPORTS COVERAGE

To the Editor:

Thanks for all of your coverage of St. Andrews-Sewanee sports. I have just written an email to the Times Free Press (TFP) for their failure to give equal coverage to small schools. The TFP sports page today covered the Division II-AA golf tournament held in Manchester. There was another tournament the same day at the same site, with their scores posted side by side that was ignored by their staff. That was the Division II-A state golf tournament won by St. Andrews-Sewanee senior Hannah Powell. Hannah shot a score of 148. She won by four strokes. We are very proud of Hannah and her accomplishments. Thanks again for your coverage of all of our sports. Dan Hatfield, Sewanee

DEAR FRIENDS

To the Editor:

It is not possible for us to properly thank each of you for the very welcomed support you gave us during the time of our family loss. Especially for your prayers, for the flowers, the wonderful cards, the phone calls, Facebook and email messages, or for the caring words when we meet; your concern and thoughts of us have been so special. Lonnie was a special person as those of you who knew him know. All of these kindnesses would have brought a smile to his face. We thank you and wish you blessings from above and peace of heart with our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

MEETYOURNEIGHBOR

by Kevin Cummings, Messenger Staff Writer

Piano music floats across the hall to his office and César Leal is relaxed and frequently smiling, lighthearted,

The University of the South associate professor of music and Sewanee Symphony Orchestra conductor travels memory lane to his childhood in Bogotá, Colombia, where on Saturdays, he and his extended family would gather at his grandmother's house for lunch. In the afternoon they would start playing music, folk music, everyone playing by ear and switching instruments until early morning on Sunday.

"There was always copious amounts of food and we would get together and make music for hours and hours," he says. "The only way to connect was to learn music."

Back to the present in Sewanee, late hints of fall.

"It's a Beethoven Symphony No. 6 kind of day," César says gesturing toward the window.

As a kid he attended a private Jesuit grade school, where he was surrounded by different languages and exposed to a broad education. In his teenage years he began studying at the music conservatory at Javeriana University in Bogotá.

César was also a TV actor, appearing in soap operas, kids' programs culturally." and other shows, like "Don Camillo," a TV series loosely based on a real-life Roman Catholic priest, where 9-yearold César played the son of an abusive father. Later, César danced in an international theatre company and hosted a around the world. kids' program on a major radio station.

"These were not professional activities to me; I didn't know what professional meant," he says. "I was getting paid for most of these things but to me, acting was a game and music was an entertainment. I never felt like I had everywhere," but Colombia is home to a job even though I was working."

Gay-Straight Alliance at Franklin County High School last year, Troy connected those students with senior citizens at Halsted.

"He wanted to facilitate a dialogue for the kids to see themselves growing up—growing old as gay citizens—to give them some perspective on how it's possible to have a successful life and be happy at the end," César says. "A lot of these kids may be scared and may not see themselves growing up safely as members of the LGBT community."

As César talks about his partner and life, it's easy to see that his world is rich. The life he's created includes plenty of world travels, where he has submersed himself in music and summer is bathed with sun and strong other cultures, living in places like Paris, Ukraine and Greece. He also speaks and guest conducts in a number of different countries and teaches a master conductor class each summer in Salzburg, Germany.

> "It's a blast; I love it," he says. "This business is a constant exposure to new cultures, especially being a musician. The best way to get to know a country is through its art and cuisine. My experiences permeate my work, and me personally, both intellectually and

> Through those international travels he's developed many inspiring friendships. César's ability to speak four different languages is a consequence of connecting with many people

> "Meeting new people is one of my favorite things in life," he says. "I make some of the closest friends through very odd situations.

Because of his global experiences, César says, "home is nowhere and an extent and he's still very close to his César, 39, lives in Sewanee with his parents, who still live there. His dad is partner of four years, Troy Johnson, a an engineer and his mother, an active feminist, is a psychologist.

His mom would play a game with César and his brother when they were kids, "accidentally" forgetting to cook

"I forgot to cook the rice today so you guys are in charge," César recalls her saying.

She'd leave clues for the boys, ingredients and notes and they'd have to figure out how to cook whatever needed cooking.

didn't want us to be useless to our significant others; she wanted us to share the work," he says.

César says because of that game, e's never cooked using a recipe.

His parents always visit César by Sewanee Elementary during the Sewanee Summer Music Festival and his dad, who plays guitar, vrites performance notes.

"My father reviews every one of my concerts," he says. "I expect that, actually. When he does that I know that it doesn't come from any place other than respect and love.'

The interview finished, we decide to leave the building for a photo and piano music plays us out.

Fish Fry at Heritage Center

On Saturday, Oct. 1, from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., members and friends of the Grundy County Historical Society are hosting a fish fry dinner at the Heritage Center at 465 Railroad Avenue in Tracy City. Take out orders are available.

Two milestone events will be celebrated: completion of the reroofing of all three roof structures on the Heritage Center; and reduction of the principal of the remaining mortgage with United States Department of Agriculture Rural Development to $125,000. A campaign to retire that debt will begin.

Tickets to the event are $15. Funds raised will support the Annual Fund for $2016{ ext{-}}17$. The Annual Fund is a vital part of the financial structure of Grundy County Historical Society. It comprises a significant part of the building operation expenses that include insurance on the Heritage Center, utilities, security, building upkeep, maintenance and repairs.

This year the Heritage Center faced a serious building maintenance problem due to an extraordinary amount of rain received in January. Thanks to the alertness and dedication of Floor Manager Nadene Fultz Moore, who monitored the many leaks throughout the rainfall including Saturday and Sunday, interior damage was limited to parts of the ceiling and insulation. The expense of new roofs for the Heritage Center has exceeded $46,000. Support of a $20,000 grant from U.S.D.A. Rural Development, a $10,000 grant from South Cumberland Community Fund, $6,000 from Grundy County together with generous contributions from patrons of the Heritage Center, have enabled restoration of the roofs.

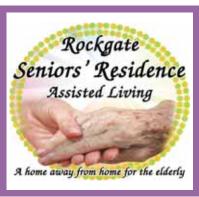

The initial mortgage indebtedness included a $40,000 first mortgage to purchase the facility and a $190,000 second mortgage to complete restoration of the facility and develop the museum, library and research center. The first mortgage has been retired in full and the principal of the $190,000 second mortgage has been reduced to $125,000. This has been a $105,000 reduction of principal plus interest paid.

Tickets may be purchased at the Heritage Center in advance or at the event. For more information go to http://grundycountyhistoricalsociety.com>.

SAS Named to List of Most Beautiful High Schools

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School has been named to Southern Living magazine's list of the South's Most Beautiful High Schools. The cutline accompanying the photo of the school's historic St. Andrew's Chapel reads, "Set atop the Cumberland Plateau, this picturesque school neighbors Sewanee: The University of the South and offers all manner of academics as well as outdoor activities. The school—in the Spanish Colonial architectural style—also includes an on-campus lake used as an outdoor biology lab and popular swimming hole."

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School is the result of the 1981 merger of St. Andrew's School and Sewanee Academy. The newly formed school was located on the St. Andrew's campus which had been established in 1905 by a group of Episcopal monks from the Order of the Holy Cross. The buildings of Sewanee Academy are now part of the University of the South.

In addition to the historic St. Andrew's Chapel, innovative LEED Goldcertified Wade Hall for the Sciences, and the stunning McCrory Hall for the Performing Arts, the school's 550-acre campus includes fields, forests, bluffs

Head of School Karl J. Sjolund hopes that the national attention will help to encourage more families to consider St. Andrew's-Sewanee School for their child's education. "A beautiful setting, an outstanding college preparatory education, and a loving and supportive community, what more could a family want?" said Sjolund.

The school's fall Admissions Open House is Sunday, Oct. 9, from 2 to 4 p.m. For more information, go to <www.sasweb.org>.

Hunt for the Wilderpeople

7:30 p.m., Friday, Sept. 30 through Sunday, Oct. 2 2016, Rated PG-13, 101 minutes

What could a wise-cracking city teenager and a cantankerous old man have in common? A penchant for trouble, of course! Hip-hop loving Ricky doesn't expect much when he gets sent to his latest foster home in the wilds of New Zealand (filmed entirely on location) that includes warm-hearted Bella and her husband Hec. However just as Ricky becomes accustomed to his quirky new family, tragedy prompts the authorities to send him packing. Hec and Ricky decide to make a run for it, thus prompting a nationwide manhunt and general hilarity. Having already won several awards in global film festivals, "Hunt for the Wilderpeople" is garnering Oscar buzz for its artful blend of true "lol" humor and sage messages of what it means to be family. Fun fact: my cousin Charlie McClellan, who also worked on the original "Lord of the Rings" Trilogy films, is the executive producer of this movie! Rated PG-13 for thematic elements including violent content and some strong language, this film is meant to be watched by parents and their older children due to the strong themes of family ties and how those bonds of love can be tested, and ultimately, triumph in the face of life's challenges.

Les Misérables

7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 5 2012, Rated PG-13, 158 minutes, free

The famed Broadway musical based on Victor Hugo's heartbreaking novel gets the big-screen treatment, starring Hugh Jackman as Jean Valjean, an ex-convict who breaks his parole to start an honest life under a new identity. As years pass, Valjean becomes a wealthy factory owner, but ruthless police inspector Javert (Russell Crow) vows to never stop hunting the man who so expertly evaded the law. Meanwhile, Valjean's paths cross with the ethereal Fantine (Anne Hathaway), a factory worker who in desperation has turned to prostitution to raise enough money to buy her daughter Cosette back from being a working slave for an evil tavern owner and his wife. Valjean intercedes, and it is discovered Fantine is fatally ill. He promises to raise her daughter as his own—and change the course of his existence forever. Set against the background of revolutionary France, this literary masterpiece gets proper epic treatment under the watchful eye of director Tom Hooper, best known for his work on "The King's Speech." Fun Fact: in most filmed musicals, actors record their musical numbers ahead of time, and lip sync while filming. Hooper insisted on having the actors sing "live" in the moment to create a work with more authenticity. While diehards of the musical may take exception to certain creative changes made in favor of the film medium (one common complaint among critics was "too many close-ups") it certainly is a worthy homage to a lasting piece of creative work that chronicles with unblinking honesty a tumultuous time in European history through the human experience. With an extended running time an rated PG-13 for suggestive and sexual material as well as wartime violence, this one is best saved for adults and older children accompanied by parents.

Finding Dory

7:30 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 6 8 p.m., Friday, Oct. 7, free, Bishop's Common Lawn 7:30 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 8 and Sunday, Oct. 9 2016. Rated PG. 97 minutes

Pixar's true blue tang fish with short-term memory is back with several familiar aquatic pals in this lushly animated feature that brings audiences on a family-friendly under the sea enterprise. Voiced by the perpetually perky Ellen DeGeneres, Dory becomes inspired to find her own family after seeing the reunion of her clown fish friends Marlin and his son Nemo. The journey will take the trio through California waters with sea lions, one sneaky septopus named Hank, and a variety of marine life along the way as Dory learns what it means to find home. Directed by Pixar veterans Andrew Stanton and Angus MacLane, "Finding Dory" does what very few sequels achieve—it earns its merit off of its own storytelling genius and humor, rather than rely on the established success of its predecessor. Rated PG, this film is appropriate for kids and the kid in all of us.

'Seeing in the Dark' at Carlos Gallery

The Carlos Gallery in the Nabit Art Building at the University of the South is pleased to present "Seeing in the Dark," an exhibition by artist Brian Hitselberger. The show runs Oct. 8–Oct. 30 with an artist talk and reception 4:30 p.m., Nov. 4, in the Carlos Gallery.

Hitselberger is an artist living and working in Athens, Ga. His installations, paintings, and works on paper explore a variety of themes that shift between subjects and perspectives alternately intimate and immense occasionally within the same piece. His modestly scaled paintings and drawings employ detailed mark-making, dense layering, and unexpected relationships between form, content, and material, yielding works that strive for optimism without simplicity, and wonder without resolution.

Hitselberger's work has most recently been exhibited at ATHICA in Athens, Ga., Dalton Gallery of Agnes Scott College in Decatur, Ga., Barbara Archer Gallery in Atlanta, The Contemporary in Atlanta, and Cabinet in Brooklyn, N.Y. My Summer Reading Book Report

To save space for my summer reading highlight, I'm skipping lightly through other writings: non-fiction, Ann Patchett's essay collection, "This is the Story of a Happy Marriage;" fiction, "The Summer Before the War" a somewhat inaccurately termed "light" historical fiction about an English town during World War I by Helen Simonson, author of the endearing "Major Pettigrew's Last Stand;" Curtis Sittenfeld's contribution to the misguided Austen Project, an annoying update of "Pride and Prejudice" via her novel "Eligible;" intriguing mysteries by Peter Robinson and Donna Leon; a quirky non-mystery, "The Book Stops Here: A Mobile Library Mystery," by Ian Sansom, slightly plotted with fluid prose portraying entertaining librarians and clientele in rural Northern Ireland.

This portable library inspired re-reading Cathi Appelt's "Down Cut Shin Creek," a photo-text slice of history about Depression Eralibrarians riding horses to patrons in Kentucky's Cumberland mountains. A generation later, the hardy drivers of the bookmobile, which regularly visited our rural Tennessee school earned my enduring gratitude.

My outstanding book of the summer was Colson Whitehead's "The Underground Railroad." Some reading from North Carolina's extensive collection of slave narratives led me to feel somewhat prepared for this powerful book. Wrong! Initially, time shifts are slightly confusing, but soon the characters, particularly Cora, a teenager whose mother fled when she was eight, and Caesar, a slave sold after the death of a mistress who had taught him to read and to expect freedom, become real people whom we follow with fascination. Whitehead's railroad isn't metaphorical. Using subterranean tracks and tunnels, networks of agents and engineers take protagonists from harsh Georgia cotton plantation life to South Carolina's supposed utopia for escaped slaves, North Carolina's macabre Freedom Trail, Tennessee's blighted landscape and Indiana's complex society. Symbols of literacy are woven into the narrative, with ability to read "The Declaration of Independence" (its irony clear to those learning to stumble through its text and meaning) a coveted skill.

The supporting cast includes a host of collaborators, some genuinely compassionate, others eerily grim, and a menacing slave catcher and his crew. Colson's extensive research gives the novel added authenticity. Chapter dividers are genuine ads for escaped slaves; Cora's saga includes an incident drawn from fugitive slave Harriet Jacobs' chronicle, "Incidents in the Life of a Slave Girl." (I was glad to see that material in a niece's copy of "The Norton Anthology of American Literature," published long after my ancient edition with one mention of fugitive slaves, a short excerpt from "Uncle Tom's Cabin," brought to our school by bookmobile.) Whitehead writes about appalling events in a matter-of-fact tone, creating searing prose, which leaves us with questions about good and evil, some of which I ask myself as I consider today's news.

After losing sleep and neglecting chores while reading this memorable book, I find that it's time to regroup for fall break's California visitors. Among other conversations, I'm looking forward to the eighth grader's thoughts on "To Kill a Mockingbird," the most read novel in middle schools. The first grader will review "Doc McStuffins" for me. Based on the animated series, the pint-sized African American veterinarian and her patients, stuffed animals of varying species, are popular with boys and girls from all ethnic groups. Although I don't ban Disney books, I'm not a fan, nor do I succumb to the inevitable merchandising. I see only positive parent reviews online, and comments from local readers would be interesting. Their mom and I will discuss Whitehead's writing.

I'll also share an old favorite for ages six and up, which appears on current Banned Books Week lists. In Jeanette Winters' "Nasreen's Secret School," a courageous grandmother defies the Taliban by taking her granddaughter to a hidden school. Difficult subjects are introduced through colorful illustration and gentle text with themes of love and determination amidst loss and danger. The characters are Muslim; they are exposed to violence. Full disclosure: I was on the Jane Addams Children's Book Award committee, which gave it an award in 2010. Read it for yourself on YouTube https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=WE9b1gR4YZE; borrow my copy or check it out from local libraries. Opinions are welcome.

For teenagers, their parents and grandparents, I strongly recommend fitting "The Underground Railroad" into autumn's busy schedule. The masterful writing and gripping story will definitely inspire in-depth thinking and discussion. Please send your own reports of good books

SAS Mountain Bike Team Competes in First Race

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee varsity and middle school mountain biking teams competed in their first race of the Tennessee High School Cycling League's season the weekend of Sept. 17–18.

The competition was held on the Chickasaw Trace trail in Columbia, Tenn. The weekend turned out to be a challenge for all riders as rain turned the trail into a virtual slip and slide with no traction and areas of deep mud.

Nineteen varsity and three middle school athletes competed for SAS with more than 200 riders from across Tennessee and Kentucky in gender- and grade-related categories.

Top finishers for SAS were Luciana Mollica (second, freshman girls), Matthew Mollica (eighth, varsity boys), Fritz Stine (eighth, junior varsity boys) and Aidan Smith (fifth, freshman boys).

Coaches Speed Baranco and Beth Pride Ford were proud of all of the kids for riding the course, which they called a huge accomplishment under the worst conditions, especially for first-time racers and riders with less biking experience.

HEARING HEALTH NEWS

by Debbie Gamache, M.S. CCC-A Audiologist

PROTECTING YOUR EARS

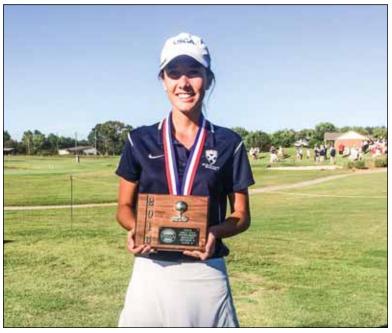

The National Institute on Deafness and Other Communication Disorders recommends ear protection when engaging in potentially harmful activities that fall within the 85-100dB (decibel average) range, including circular saws, chain saws and lawn tractors. When using power tools, riding a lawn tractor, or performing in loud aerobics classes for more than 15 minutes, protect your ears from harmful noise (above 100dB) with hearing protection. Always protect ears from the dangerous noise levels (110dB and higher) when using firearms. The louder the noise, the less time exposure is needed to cause permanent hearing damage.

Most people do not realize they have exposed their hearing to dangerous noise levels until it is too late. Although new research and products are making better hearing more accessible than ever to the hearing impaired, it is still best to avoid places where noise levels are high unless your hearing is protected with custom ear protection, foam plugs and/or ear muffs. For more information on hearing protection devices, contact Debbie Gamache's The Hearing Center LLC today. We are located at 705 NW Atlantic St. Suite B, Tullahoma. You can call us at 931-393-2051. You can also visit our website at at www.thehearingcenterllc.com.

SAS Varsity Soccer Drops Three

On Sept.22, St. Andrew's-Sewanee School varsity girls' soccer played Cascade High School. Cascade came out strong, an attacker driving through the defense and threatening a shot of goal. Sarah Beth Hobby recovered and chased the attacker down to stop a goal. Cascade kept the pressure up and scored off of a strong shot from outside the 18-yard line. SAS responded to the goal with an attack from Mariel Rinck. Both teams fought hard, and Cascade almost scored twice after the ball ricocheted off the crossbar. Sarah Simons helped SAS defend, and Rachel Alvarez made several good saves in goal. Kate Butler had shots on goal and was fowled with mere seconds left in the first half. Kyra Wilson lined up for the free kick and rocketed the ball in the goal with three seconds on the clock. At half time, the score was 1–1. The second half started off with high energy from both teams: Butler and Rinck played quick, one-touch balls through the Cascade defense and Anna Post had a few chances to shoot on goal. Two substitutes, Elsie Uwera and Tessa Shakelford came in and helped SAS keep the energy high. After Butler and Rinck made another good connection up top, Cascade responded by scoring off of a rebound. Cascade scored one more time at the end of the match with the ball rebounding off of the inside of the goal post and into the goal. The final score was 3–1 in Cascade's favor.

During an exciting parent's weekend at SAS, the team took on Huntland School. Huntland came out with high energy, and SAS had good movement in the midfield from the first whistle. Huntland managed to score early in the game with a dribble past the defense and shot. SAS responded with focus and intensity: Berner-Coe possessed up the sideline and crossed the ball in to Kate Butler, who made a quick pass through the defense to Mariel Rinck . Rinck shot, but the ball was saved by the Huntland goalie. SAS continued to attack, but they could not stick a shot. Sophia Hartman made a great pass to Rinck who turned with the ball to beat the Huntland defense. Rinck shot the ball over the goal. Directly after, Anna Post shot and the ball bounced off of the goal post. Both keepers, including Rachel Alvarez, made great saves in the first half. After halftime, SAS continued to have high-pressured attacks on the Huntland defense: Butler lofted the ball to Berner-Coe who one-touch volleyed, but missed the goal wide. Butler and Rinck had multiple shots on goal saved by the Huntland keeper, and Kate Bachman dribbled to beat her defender and threatened a goal. SAS changed the formation, putting Sarah Beth Hobby as attack middle fielder. She brought energy and aggression to the front line, but the keeper continued to save every shot. In the last minute of the game, both Rinck and Butler had spectacular shots on goal, both stopped by the keeper. The final score was 1-0 in Huntland's favor.

Donaldson Christian Academy (DCA) hosted the SAS team on Sept. 27. It was a skillfully played match for both teams, with quick and focused possession all over the field. DCA managed a goal five minutes into play after a hard shot rebounded off of the SAS goalie, Rachel Alvarez. Mariel Rinck attacked after the kickoff, but was thwarted by the DCA defense. Alvarez made several great sliding saves, but there was a foul on the SAS defensive line that led to a free kick and a volley into the net. After half time, DCA had a counter attack and scored despite the intense defending of Sarah Beth Hobby. DCA's next goal was scored from a shot taken outside of the 18-yard line. Butler and Rinck made a good play up top. Hobby dribbled and drove a ball through a window in the defensive line to Butler streaking past the defense. Butler stayed calm under pressure and scored a goal in the final five minutes of the game. The final score was 5–1 in DCA's favor.

The boys' varsity team finished second out of four teams with a great score of 42.

For the girls, Sophia Patterson finished fourth out of 16 runners, followed by Winnie Fang (fifth) and Cayla Riehl (15th).

On Sept. 20, the Mountain Lions went to a large meet against nine schools at Fayetteville High School.

As a team, the varsity boys had their best result of the season, scoring a 98

He was followed by Tang (11th), Duncan (12th), Gill (30th), Huber-Feely (36th), Oscar Jing (68th), Allen Lee (80th) and Lin (83rd).

Both varsity girls' runners, Fang (16th) and Sophia Patterson (17th), ran very well against 58 runners and just missed out on the medals.

On the middle school side, the lone Mountain Lion boys' runner, Porter Neubauer, set a blazing 1.55 mile time of 10:40 and finished third out of 72 runners. For the middle school girls, Isabelle Patterson ran a great race and finished 25th out of 44 runners.

NATURENOTES

Mountain Goat Trail Walk

The Sewanee Garden Club took a walk on a short section of the Mountain Goat Trail (near Pearl's) on Sept. 26, and found a surprising number of plants still in bloom, or at least green. In the wetland crossed by the long wooden bridge, there was a large population of Richweed, a member of the mint family, also called Horsebalm as it is reputed to have been grazed by horses and used on their sore backs.

At least four different ferns were noted: New York, Southern Lady, Royal and Cinnamon. Nepal grass, last week's Nature Note topic, was much in evidence, and the previous week's subject, strawberry bush or hearts-a-bustin', was in fruit right across the trail from the parking area.

A couple of nice stands of Jewelweed or Spotted Touch-me-not glowed with their dangling orange flowers. This is a close relative of the garden flower Impatiens. Butterflies and hummingbirds are attracted to Jewelweed, and the juice is supposed to be good for poison ivy and nettle rashes. Various members of the aster family included Giant or Lateflowering Goldenrod, Blue-stemmed or Wreath Goldenrod, American Old-Field Aster (small white flowers), Ironweed, Boneset, Late-blooming Thoroughwort and White Snakeroot. Many of these are actually found in the sunny area around the smaller wooden bridge, not quite reached on the Garden Club walk.
