Volume XL No. 16

Published as a public service since 1985

Students in grades three through five at Sewanee Elementary School recently enjoyed meeting children's book author, Landra Jennings. Jennings, author of middle-grade novels "Whispering Fog" and "Wand," shared her writing strategies, discussed how to create memorable characters, and encouraged students to engage their imagination. Proceeds from the school's Scholastic Book Fair sales and Sewanee Community Chest funds provided to the library through the Sewanee Parent Organization made this visit possible.

Another EV Charging Station Coming to Monteagle

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

The Monteagle Planning Commission approved the site plan for another EV charging station at the April 16 meeting. The single charging station currently located in Monteagle only offers service to Tesla vehicles. The commission also clarified language in an ordinance governing residing in recreational vehicles.

The commission previously rejected the site plan of the EV charging station company Owl Services. "We were unsatisfied with the location," said Chair Ed Provost. Truck traffic "blocked" accessibility commented town planner Jonathan Rush. The new site, at the Pilot Travel Center just off I-24, will replace current parking in front of the drive thru lane at the Wendy's. "It's a much better location," Rush said. But he pointed out, the site plan called for eliminating 248 square feet of landscaping. One tree would be moved and another tree planted providing "sufficient" shade Rush maintained.

The all-asphalt 240 square-foot site would have a 25-foot concrete pad, said Owl representative Gregory Helman, making it "difficult to add grass." Commissioner Katie Trahan said she was "excited" about the project, but wanted the company to "soften" the appearance. Helman proposed adding another tree on the other side of the drive. The commission approved the site plan subject to the addition of a second tree. Both new trees will be American Hornbeams, a species from the list approved for this type of project. The ordinance governing residing in recreational vehicles made an inaccurate reference to another ordinance, Rush explained. The commission approved an amendment correcting the reference. The amended ordinance governing residence in recreational vehicles stipulates, "RVs shall not be used for temporary or permanent occupancy outside of an approved campground except as permitted in section 537 governing temporary dwelling units. At 5 p.m., Saturday, April 27, at City Hall, Community by Design planners from the American Institute of Architects will present a growth plan for Monteagle, drawing on insight into the town gained from meeting with residents and business and political leaders. In February, the planning commission deferred a decision on allowing campgrounds in Commercial C-2 zoning pending the Community by Design group's recommendations.

Dr. Gatta, who came to Sewanee in 2004, has long been interested in American environmental literature faith. This latest work examines the contributions that Christianity can make to the environmental movement and to ensuring the preservation of the planet.

As Dr. Gatta sees it, humans, animals, plants, and the rest of creation are all part of an evolving spiritual process, and Christianity provides powerful tools to honor and contribute to that process. In the course of Green Gospel, Dr. Gatta takes issue with those who argue for "intelligent design"-as though there is a ready-made divine blueprint for creation-and says instead says that humans, with their free will, should practice an "earth-hearted hope." What potentially awaits is beyond our ability to

Thompson Receives NSF CAREER Award

Assistant Professor Lily Thompson has received the prestigious Faculty Early Career Development (CAREER) Award from the National Science Foundation (NSF), the foundation's most distinguished honor for early-career faculty members.

Thompson is an assistant professor of geology in the Department of Earth and Environmental Systems at the University. She will receive $619,867 over five years from NSF's Division of Earth Sciences, making this the largest NSF grant to be awarded to the University of the South in its history.

The CAREER Award is designed to support promising young faculty members who exemplify the role of teacher-scholar through the combination of outstanding research and education. This highly competitive award is given to researchers who have the potential to serve as academic role models in research and education and to lead advances in the mission of their department or organization. This is the first-ever CAREER Award given to a Sewanee faculty member.

Thompson and her undergraduties of geological materials at the elevated pressure and temperature conditions of planetary interiors. She employs techniques from chemistry, physics, and materials science to address mineralogical and petrological problems at extreme conditions. In this work, she combines experimental and computational approaches to study the constitution and evolution of planetary interiors, with a focus on the role of hydrogen in the Earth's interior.

With her CAREER Award, titled "The influence of cation of the lower mantle," Thompson mathematical abstractions. will work to evaluate the stability and geophysical properties of hydrous phases believed to be stable at the conditions of the Earth's potential for hydrogen storage in the lower mantle is still considerable, as it comprises approximately 56 percent of the Earth's volume. High-pressure experiments and complementary theoretical calculations will provide detailed insights into the atomic-scale chemistry of these phases, helping explain how they remain stable at the extreme pressures and temperatures of the Earth's deep interior. Thompson's project also includes an educational component, focused on developing a virtual reality (VR) application to help undergraduate geology students develop spatial reasoning skills while learning about crystal structures. This VR project was inspired by Thompson's experience with aphantasia (an inability to create mental imagery), and is designed with the intent to foster equity and inclusion for neurodiverse students with visualspatial deficits. "I am greatly honored to receive this award," said Thompson. "This project will enable us to involve undergraduates in cutting-edge science aimed at resolving one of the biggest outstanding questions in Earth science: How much hydrogen is locked in the Earth's interior, and how has it influenced the planet's geophysical and geochemical evolution through time?"

Dr. Gatta notes that the Bible is filled with visions of nature's divinity, beginning with Genesis, where God looked upon creation and saw that "it was good." Other books include Song of Songs, Job, and various psalms, including 96:11-12: "Let the heavens be glad, and let the earth rejoice; let the sea roar, and all that fills it; let the field exult, and everything in it. Then shall all the trees of the forest sing for joy."

At the same time, the Bible offers warnings about what can happen when humankind fails to honor God's creation. In other words, Green Gospel explores the havoc caused by sin in addition to the possibilities of a transfigured new creation. The book features illustrations of Sewanee landmarks by local artist Mary Priestley.

Dr. Gatta came to Sewanee's English Department after having taught for years at the University of Connecticut. He is the author of five books, including "Making Nature Sacred" and "Spirits of Place in American Literary Culture," both published by Oxford. He will be in attendance at the gathering for those who would like to talk to him about his ideas or have him sign their books.

Duffee Earns Mathematical Association of America Distinguished Teaching Award

The Southeastern Section of the Mathematical Association of America (MAA-SE) has announced the selection of Assistant Professor of Mathematics Anne Duffee for the organization's Distinguished Teaching Award. The largest section of the MAA, the Southeastern Section represents mathematicians from Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee.

Upon presenting Duffee with the award, the MAA-SE stated, "Dr. Duffee approaches teaching holistically, incorporating interdisciplinary ate researchers study the proper- perspectives and creating a classroom where curiosity thrives and barriers to learning are removed. Her teaching style is characterized by humility, wisdom, and unwavering support."

Duffee's colleagues in the Mathematics and Computer Science Department similarly expressed enthusiasm for her commitment to fostering resilience and persistence among her students. "Anne rejoices in seeing her students learn, and they sense it and are motivated by it," said Professor of Mathematics Emily Puckette. One of Duffee's students shared, "[Her class] was the most difficult class I had this semester in terms of content, but it was also the most enjoyable, which I largely attribute to the excellence of Profesor Duffee's pedagogy."

A professor in the College since 2016, Duffee teaches a variety of courses including History of Mathematics and a geometry-centered version of Topics in Mathematics. She pursues questions from a variety of fields, especially those in the fields of analysis and topology, and she has a developed growing interest in the philosophy of mathematics. Guarisco Merit Scholars Named

The Art, Art History, and Visual Studies Program has announced the winners of the Peter V. Guarisco Merit Scholarship for the 2024-25 academic year. Kate Shackelford, C'25, was awarded the Guarisco Scholarship in Art History in recognition of excellence in coursework, writing, and engagement with questions of art history. Gabriel Williams, C'25, was awarded the Guarisco Scholarship in Art for excellence in coursework, creative production, and engagement with the visual arts. The scholarships provide both recipients with tuition for their senior year and funding for a postgraduate career preparation experience.

Kate Shackelford is a junior art history and international and global studies major from Memphis, Tennessee. "Kate is an outstanding student in the art history program. Over the course of her time at Sewanee she has shown her dedication to art history and Asian studies through her work in the classroom as well as in her position as a department research assistant," says Associate Professor of Art History and Chair of Asian Studies Alison Miller. The work that Shackelford engaged in as a research assistant, notes Miller, is now featured on the Japan Past and Present online platform, a global resource for Japanese Studies that is housed at UCLA. Shackelford is currently studying abroad in Seoul, and is interested in pursuing graduate studies in Korean art history.

Gabriel Williams is a junior art major from Salt Lake City, Utah. A painter, Williams noted in his artist statement his interest in exploring the roles of and relationships between painter, subject, and viewer. " choose subjects that have real stakes in my life," said Williams. "The goal of these works is to capture energy from my intimacy with others and present it with pluralistic authenticity from both me and the subject." The selection jury was impressed by Williams' creative output, stating, "Williams' work and writing are substantial. The studio dedication is visible in the painting, and the personal narrative is equally compelling."

An important feature of the Art, Art History, and Visual Studies Program, the Guarisco scholarship "encourages engagement in our program and motivates our students to invest in their studies and studio practices in the years leading up to their senior year and beyond," says Åssociate Professor of Art Jessica Wohl. As Guarisco scholars, both Shackelford and Williams will serve as ambassadors for the arts in addition to conthat Gabe will continue to inspire his fellow students by being a strong presence and role model in and out of the studio."

The Guarisco award is given to two rising seniors each year, one from art history and one from art. Sewanee's art history faculty selected Shackelford to receive the Guarisco scholarship. Williams was selected for the Guarisco scholarship by a jury of external artists that included Associate Professor of Sculpture Jason Brown (University of Tennessee-Knoxville), Creative Director Cathy Cone (Cone Editions Press), and Foundations Coordinator and Professor of Drawing Andrew Scott Ross (East Tennessee State University).

Career Exploration Virtual Reality Program at Altamont Library

Altamont Library is proud to announce our partnership with Middle Tennessee University exploring the world of Virtual Reality career exploration and training. This $550,000 federal grant from the Institute of Museum and Library Services was given to the MTSU to choose 6 libraries across Middle Tennessee. We are the proud recipients of this pilot program which utilizes Virtual Reality to give area residents the ability to explore 12 career programs that offer a living wage. Six libraries in all were chosen across Middle Tennessee to receive either Career Exploration, or Career Exploration and Training modules.

The goal of this program is to increase access for library patrons within economically disadvantaged areas or under-skilled areas that do not have access to necessary resources to advance their careers and/or limited opportunities for professional growth and job stability. The six libraries which include Altamont are: Clay County Public Library in Celina, Fentress County Public Library in Jamestown, Millard Oakley Public Library in Livingston, Adams Memorial Library in Woodbury, and White County Public Library in Sparta.

Altamont will be having a demonstration for this VR simulation program on at 3 p.m., Thursday, May 2. Everyone will be able to try the system and watch others as they try each career simulation.

Planet vs. Plastics, Earth Day 2024 Exhibit at Stirling's

Fish made of plastic bags? Purses crocheted from grocery bags? Bugs crafted from shampoo bottles? A torrrent of water bottles tumbling off the plateau and morphing into fish? And how about a Sewanee angel decked out in plastic finery? These and more form the current exhibit at Stirling's Coffee House, which follows this year's Earth Day theme: Planet vs. Plastics. On the "Planet" side of things, students at Sewanee Children's Center and kindergarteners at Sewanee Elementary School have drawn colorful flowers and an array of bee pollinators. But dangling from the ceiling, threatening to overwhelm these natural beauties, are goggle-eyed fish and other sea life created from plastic bags by SES fourth graders under art teacher Penny Payne's direction. Peering from the walls are fantastical creatures and conceptual designs all made from throw-away plastic by St. Andrew's-Sewanee art instructor Rachel Malde's students. Herbarium nature journalers have constructed a cascade of disposable water bottles that tumble from the campus down the plateau, all overseen by a Sewanee angel attired head to foot in plastic. Displayed here and there are handbags and a large tote bag, all crocheted from single-use grocery bags. The hand bags are made by college student Kailie Kelsey and her organization is SustainaBAGity. College students Kendall Buck, Nneko Okola, and Leyden Schelke, along with Herbarium nature journalers, coordinated and hung the show, which will be on display through the middle of May.

Upcoming Voice Recitals

Join Sewanee vocalist Victor Esparza for "Love Like You," a recital about love in all its beauty and horror. From dramatic ballads to musical theater to pop hits, this musical journey reminds us that, from its birth until its inevitable end, love somehow manages to forever be. The recital will be at 3 p.m., Saturday, April 27, in St. Luke's Chapel. With Vicki Collinsworth, piano; Sparrow Womack, violin; and Natalie Huckabay, voice.

Katy Mae Elder's "Homebound" is a recital that plays with the concepts of leaving home, finding it again, and realizing that home can be found in the people you love. A variety of music is displayed in this recital ranging from country to musical theater and from poetic folk to soul. Enjoy this recital celebrating our Sewanee home and the community organizations that support it. The recital will be at 3 p.m., Sunday, April 28, in St. Luke's Chapel. With Vicki Collinsworth, piano, and student guests.

The Carlos Gallery is pleased to present "The Sun Sets Midafternoon," by Jessica Hays. The exhibit will be on display through May 3.

Wildfires are raging across the western United States, burning up increasingly large swaths of land every year. While fire is a natural part of many ecosystems, the increasing presence of larger, faster, and hotter fires is a reminder of the rapidly changing environment. In this work, Hays integrates photographs, moving images, and textual works. "The Sun Sets Midafternoon" examines the immediate aftermath of megafires on surrounding communities and what the experience of local fires are like, interweaving narratives of ecological devastation, collective trauma, and climate grief.

"The Sun Sets Midafternoon" began after Hays experienced the devastation of a wildfire in her hometown. This work explores solastalgia, understood as being the emotional and existential distress caused by negative environmental change, and generally felt by people with lived experience closely related to the land.

In the work, there is a tension between the land and how it is integral to our identity, our livelihoods, and our wellbeing, and the sudden, uncontrollable change in which wildfires present. The experience of a wildfire is all consuming. It crowds out your vision. The pillar of smoke cannot be mistaken as anything else. Communities face collective trauma as they wait for news about the spread and containment of fire, constantly refreshing web pages and data bases. Although these are localized examples of wildland fire and the trauma that follows, collectively, the scale of these events is unfathomable. The day to day struggles of normal life continue as fires rage, setting lives in a scene of gray oppression. Cycling endlessly from active fires to aftermath, the images reference the ever worsening pattern of climate driven fires.

Jessica Hays concurrently received a BA in Film and Photography and a BA in Environmental Studies at Montana State University, and an MFA in Photography at Columbia College, Chicago. She is currently a Visiting Lecturer in Photography and Media Art at the University of Tennessee, Chattanooga.

'Longing and Belonging' at the UAG

The University Art Gallery proudly presents the thesis work of senior art majors Timothy Cook, Calley Doyle, and George Meng in "Longing and Belonging."

Together the work of these artists explores distance, displacement, longing, and-most importantly-a shared effort to locate oneself and find a place—a place in the landscape to which to return, a place in history, a place that feels like home, a place of belonging.

"Longing and Belonging" will be on view in the UAG from April 12 through May 10, with special hours from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on May 11.

The artists will present their work as part of Scholarship Sewanee from 9:30–11 a.m. Friday, April 26, in Convocation Hall.

The University Art Gallery is located at 68 Georgia Ave. Nearby visitor parking is located behind Fulford Hall, off of University Ave., or behind duPont Library, off Georgia Ave. Limited mobility parking is available immediately in front of the UAG, on Georgia

Emma Burns collected six points and Sally Herrington recorded three goals, but the Tigers fell in the semifinals of the SAA women's lacrosse tournament to Rhodes, the number one seed.

Rhodes collected the first goal of the day and did not let up, recording nine goals in the first quarter.

Herrington registered the Tiger's first goal of the day with an assist from Burns. Burns collected Sewanee's second off a free position shot, and Burns found Herrington for their third goal of the quarter.

The Lynx tacked on the first goal of the second quarter before Elizabeth Muller was fouled and collected a free-position goal for the Tigers. However, the Lynx again had an answer and found the back of the net 40 seconds later for their 11th goal of the game.

A caused turnover by Burns led to her second goal of the day. Rhodes ended the half recording two back-to-back unanswered goals to maintain their lead.

Chloe Parker extended their unanswered goals tallying the first of the second half for Rhodes.

Herrington connected on a man-up free position shot for the Tigers. The Lynx tacked on four unanswered goals before Burns registered a goal with one second left remaining in the quarter for Sewanee, for her 45th goal of the season.

Muller posted one of the only two goals scored in the final quarter. Her goal came off an assist from Burns. With 9:15 on the clock, Rhodes tacked on the final goal of the SAA semifinals, capitalizing on a man-up opportunity.

Special Spring Sightings

Chris Lotti reported last Saturday that they had seen the Rosebreasted Grosbeak in their yard since the previous day. I saw them at the feeders at Stirling's on Sunday. They were reported right around this same time in 2022. They breed in Canada and the north-eastern United States and are migrating north from their wintering grounds in southern Mexico, Central America, the Caribbean, and through to Peru and Venezuela. Rose-breasted Grosbeaks are birds of eastern North America. The males have the bright, almost pink breast while the females are brown and white striped like a sparrow or female purple finch. The males share incubation with the females, despite their bright plumage. However, the bright colors are on their breasts and would be hidden while on the nest.

Kim Butters discovered the Large Yellow Lady's Slipper hidden among the foliage of her bleeding heart plant. The Showy Orchis was spotted on a Trails and Trilliums walk in Tarlton Valley. Both orchids are somewhat uncommon and a special treat to find. The orchid family is considered the largest plant family worldwide. They are dependent on an association with fungi in the soil for germination of their dust-size seeds and nutrients through their roots.

FROMBARDTOVERSE

A Poem for Peace in Our time

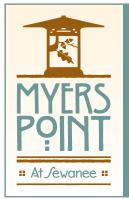

Thy father drew his sword in the North, With his thousands strong he marched forth; Thy Brother has arm'd himself in steel To avenge the wrongs thy Children feel.

But vain the Sword and vain the Bow, They never can work War's overthrow. The Hermit's prayer and the Widow's tear Alone can free the World from fear.

For a Tear is an intellectual thing, And a Sigh is the sword of an Angel King, And the bitter groan of the Martyr's woe Is an arrow from the Almighty's bow.

The hand of Vengeance found the bed To which the Purple Tyrant fled; The iron hand crush'd the Tyrant's head And became a Tyrant in his stead.

--from William Blake, The Grey Monk
