New Composition Featured at SSMF

by Bailey Basham, Messenger Staff Writer

This weekend, the Sewanee Summer Music Center will host the performance of a new composition by renowned Israeli-born composer, Avner Dorman.

The Sewanee Symphony Orchestra will perform the double concerto at 3:30 p.m., Sunday, July 10. The piece, which was written to accommodate either a small ensemble or a full orchestra, will be conducted by maestro Robert Moody, music director of the Memphis Symphony and Arizona Music Festival, and will feature solos by the Ekstasis Duo, consisting of Natasha Farny, American cellist and chamber musician, and Elrian Avni, Israeli pianist and educator.

Dorman, who at the age of 25 became the youngest composer to win Israel's prestigious Prime Minister's Award for his "Ellef Symphony," described the piece as almost like a dance between two people attempting to connect.

"The cello and the piano are very different instruments—their sound production, strengths and weaknesses, size and type of expression at which they excel. I imagine the cello and the piano as two different people...wanting to be close and not quite knowing how. The piece is a journey from a feeling of loneliness and disconnect in the first

Sewanee's Black History Heritage Trail Wants You

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

On July 3, the day before the nation celebrated its birth, the Save Sewanee Black History Heritage Trail made its debut celebrating the history of Sewanee's African American community. The idea for the trail sprang from a Memorial Day event three years ago, said Roberson Project Director Woody Register. African Americans with Sewanee roots gathered at St. Mark's Community Center to share photographs and stories, aided by a huge map to locate the sites where in pre-desegregation days Sewanee's black community carried on the business of living. Information on Sewanee's African American community is notably absent from the University Archives. Trail signage marks five sites once integral to the lives of Sewanee's African American residents who worked as custodians, cooks, domestics, and Jacks-of-all-trades doing the everyday jobs that kept the white neighborhoods and people who lived in them in good working order.

"This history is Sewanee's history," said Register, the history "of the people who made it a place people love." Trail visitors can follow the trail taking a self-guided walking or driving tour using the digital story map <<https://blacksewanee.org/heritage-trail/>> created by Andrew Maggin, Roberson Project researcher and program coordinator.

The first stop, Willie Six Field next to St. Mark's Community Center on Alabama Avenue, honors Willie "Six" Sims, legendary trainer for the University football team from 1909-1947. The black community gathered at the "ball field" to play football, baseball, and basketball. Two basketball goals in the St. Mark's parking lot are the only evidence sporting events occurred there.

From 1957 to the end of segregation, the "negro swimming pool" on Oak Street drew African Americans from the far reaches of Franklin County and beyond. Sewanee alumni and residents of the St. Mark's neighborhood contributed money to build the "swim pool." The diving board mount, sections of the poolside wall, the changing house and pump house can be seen at the site. Maggin speculated no photographs of the pool exist because typically only the well-off owned cameras.

Built in 1936, St. Mark's Church on Palmetto Avenue gave the neighborhood its name. The church replaced the deteriorating wooden church left to the African American community when Sewanee's white residents built the segregated Otey Memorial Parish church. The black community held services at St. Mark's until 1968, even after the end of segregation. Several years later, the University demolished the building.

The black Kennerly School, next to the church, educated Sewanee's African American children from 1949 until a lawsuit closed the school in 1964. Before that, the black children attended classes at the church. The Sewanee Civic Association and St. Mark's Parent Teacher Association raised money to build the school, dedicated to African American educator John Kennerly. The building became a Head Start center after the school closed and later a daycare site. Longtime African American Sewanee resident James Burnett said the Belmont Club, the center of black social life, was located nearby.

The Sewanee Black cemetery, the only site where visual evidence perseveres, still leaves much unseeable. In 1964, University students tore down most of the wall safeguarding the white deceased from the black deceased buried just a few feet away. A small segment of the wall remains near the Georgia Avenue entrance. Also, unseen, a ground penetrating radar scan revealed 90-130 unmarked graves. Research underway hopes to identify the families whose loved ones may be buried there. One of the oldest markers (1900) is that of

Meet the Candidate: Bruce McMillan on County Government, Taxes, Schools

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of interviews with some of the local candidates running for office. State Primary and County General Election voting is Aug. 4.

Raised in Jackson, Tenn., District 5 Franklin County Commission candidate Bruce McMillan first came to Sewanee as a college student. After graduation (C'76), he returned to Jackson where he served six years on the Madison County Commission. His past experience as a county commissioner informs his view on county government, taxes, and schools.

"I'm amazed county commission candidates need to declare their political party," McMillan said. "It's totally unnecessary at this level of government. We all want good roads, we all want industrial development, we all care about the environment." As a Madison County Commissioner, McMillan was not asked to declare a party affiliation. He pointed out at a recent Franklin County budget committee meeting, "almost all the votes were unanimous."

He praised the Franklin County Commission for establishing the Airport Authority to resolve the tree cutting dispute at the Franklin County/Sewanee Airport. "Establishing an Airport Authority was an excellent idea on the county commission's part," McMillan said. "Now there's a body to mediate disputes and keep lines of communication open." If elected, McMillan will serve on the airport authority.

McMillan stressed the importance of regularly reviewing county contracts. As a Madison County Commissioner, McMillan chaired the Personnel Committee and persuaded the committee to solicit bids rather than automatically renewing the contract with the longtime healthcare provider. "The employees were not getting good coverage," McMillan said. The bidding brought in a new vendor who provided twice the coverage at half the price.

Turning to finances, McMillan said, "The schools have funding issues, the Sheriff's Department has funding issue. Law enforcement never has enough money." As a former commissioner, McMillan also chaired the Law Enforcement Committee.

"We've had a property assessment," McMillan said. "It will have an impact on county revenue to the positive. But we still have tremendous needs. Prices and charges and fees are rising out of reason. The increased revenue will be spent on regularly increasing expenses, even if the county doesn't have any increase in budget requests. The county needs to look at raises for teachers and employees every year."

Asked about how to best keep county schools safe, McMillan said, "The school board is passionate about their business and their charges. I would like to hear from them. The commission needs to support the school board's position. If there is not enough money, we'll go find it."

McMillan left public service in the government sector to become an Episcopal priest. He returned to Sewanee in 2020 when he retired. He is running for District 5 Seat A, the seat now held by Johnny Hughes who is stepping down to serve as road commissioner. Knowing of his past experience as a county commissioner, Hughes suggested to McMillan he run.

"Johnny Hughes is a hard act to follow," McMillan said. "He's a stellar human being. His greatest skill is he listens well. After 35 years in the priesthood, I hope I've developed that gift myself. You have to be open to everybody's point of view. I'm willing to listen to whatever you have to say."

Henderson Willis. Born enslaved in 1835, Willis emancipated himself, enlisted, and survived the battle of Fort Pillow where Nathan Bedford Forrest massacred more than 230 of Willis' comrades. Summoned to Sewanee to help build up the local black church, Willis became the first African American leaseholder.

A long list of people deserve thanks for making the trail a reality, notably University professor Scott Torrance, his students, and University Bonner Scholars who seized on a grant opportunity, led by Delana Turner, C'24. Visit the trail and brush shoulders with the vibrant community life the St. Mark's neighborhood once sustained. Carl Hill, an African American born and raised in Sewanee said, "By this tradition of letting people know about Sewanee's black history, it will continue to be told."

movement, through dance in the second, each expressing their own emotions in the third, and finally finding a way to connect yet retain their own identities in the fourth," Dorman said.

Farny echoed Dorman, describing the piece as deeply meaningful. "The piece has a range of emotional content. The first movement is poignant and deeply tragic. The second movement is a wild, joyous dance. The third movement is rich and romantic, with hints of despair, which releases into the driving fourth movement," she said. "People will find themselves crying as they listen because the music is so moving."

Speaking of Farny and Avni, Dorman said their understanding of and commitment to the piece are incredible.

"From my interactions with the festival and looking at the rehearsal schedule, I can tell that conductor Robert Moody, and everyone else is taking this premiere incredibly seriously – which is a great gift to me as a composer," he added. "The orchestra musicians have had more time with the music than would usually be in professional groups. They also have more rehearsal time to truly get to know the piece, internalize it and bring it to life. Having such high-level soloists as partners in the process has been a wonderful experience."

Tickets to the premiere and more information about the festival are available for purchase at <<https://ssmf.sewanee.edu/event/the-sewanee-symphony-3/>>.

Welcoming New VISTAs to the Plateau

The South Cumberland Plateau AmeriCorps VISTA Project welcomes three new members to its team. Amy Greene, Madison Almquist, and Maggie Willis began their year of service as VISTAs (Volunteers In Service To America) on June 6, and are now serving with organizations in Grundy and Franklin counties.

AmeriCorps, a federal agency, brings people together to tackle the country's most pressing challenges, through national service and volunteering. AmeriCorps VISTA members serve with organizations dedicated to the improvement of communities. AmeriCorps <www.AmeriCorps.gov> helps make service to others a cornerstone of our national culture.

The South Cumberland Plateau AmeriCorps VISTA Project is a partnership between the University of the South and South Cumberland Community Fund (SCCF). SCCF was established in 2012 as a collective way for people to support the many nonprofit organizations across the South Cumberland Plateau (SCP) in South Central Appalachia. SCCF makes grants for projects on the Plateau and provides organizational support to these nonprofit groups, helping them develop stronger administrative structures, clearer missions, and integrated strategic plans.

One of the largest VISTA projects in the state of Tennessee, the South Cumberland Plateau AmeriCorps VISTA Project serves an economically depressed region of rural Appalachia. SCP VISTA members serve with community partners including nonprofits and local government agencies in Franklin, Grundy, and Marion counties in Southeast Tennessee. Now in its eighth year of operation, the program supports capacity building initiatives at 14 local organizations, with a focus on improving education, economic opportunity, and healthy futures through asset-based community development. Service projects span a wide range of need in our community including food security, literacy, substance misuse prevention and recovery, and childhood wellness through trauma-informed care.

They join the current cohort of six passionate, committed and exceptionally talented South Cumberland Plateau AmeriCorps VISTAs.

Greene serves at Arts Inside, a community-based, grassroots organization that provides art and education programs for people who are incarcerated and their families. Throughout her service, Amy will work to bring awareness to the stories and challenges of individuals involved in the justice system. She will also aim to develop access to resources, services, and support for participants.

Greene is a novelist, speaker, and former nonprofit co-director with experience teaching and mentoring Appalachian student writers. Her debut novel, "Bloodroot," was a national best seller. Her second novel, "Long Man," was a Washington Post Top Book of the Year. She is also a contributor to The New York Times among other publications.

As a VISTA, Madison Almquist will help to build the capacity of Mountain T.O.P., a nonprofit headquartered in Grundy County. With the mission to help meet the physical, spiritual, social, and emotional needs of the people they encounter, Mountain T.O.P. is most recognizable for their assistance with local housing repairs. As a primary goal of her VISTA service, Madison will build a sustainable case management system so that Mountain T.O.P. staff can refer clients to other nonprofit and social service organizations that can round out the types of resources offered. Almquist will be mapping these community assets over the seven counties that Mountain T.O.P. serves and will develop a tracking system to ensure successful implementation of this system.

She is a senior at Texas State University pursuing a Bachelor of Arts in Public Health with a minor in geography. She has an interest in how physical & cultural geography affect individuals' and communities' relationships with health outcomes and the healthcare system, especially in the rural South and Southwest where she grew up. She joined the VISTA program to enter the world of community service and explore these issues in her new home on the South Cumberland Plateau.

Maggie Willis serves as the Hunger Relief VISTA with the Office of Civic Engagement at the University of the South, and is focusing on building the capacity of food distributions and food systems across the Plateau. In addition to administering the South Cumberland Summer Meal Program, which runs through July 29 of this year, Maggie will focus on developing year-round food security solutions. As she examines these solutions, she will bring together the many stakeholders (including producers, distribution centers, and restaurants/ kitchens) of our local food system to provide increased food access to residents of our Plateau communities. Maggie is looking forward to meeting residents and other community members interested in our food system.

Maggie graduated from the University of the South in May of 2021 with a bachelor's degree in Politics, with a focus on identity and diversity, and a minor in business. Maggie was a member of the Sewanee softball team where she served on the Student Athletic Advisory Committee. Maggie most recently worked as a focus group facilitator with the Coordinated Community Response Team at Sewanee.

If you are interested in serving our community as an AmeriCorps VISTA, please contact Ashley Cheaves at <ashley.cheaves@sewanee.edu>.

MSSA Program Highlights for July 10-16

The Monteagle Sunday School Assembly in Monteagle continues its 140th consecutive summer season of enrichment with an interdenominational worship service at 11a.m., in the Assembly's Warren Chapel. The eight-week season will continue through Sunday, Aug. 7, featuring numerous visiting lecturers who will present morning and evening programs in the Auditorium that are open free of charge to the public; unless otherwise noted, morning lectures begin at 10:45 a.m., and evening lectures at 7:45 p.m. Anyone interested in a full schedule of the Monteagle Assembly's 2022 program is welcome to pick one up at the Assembly Office (tel. 931-924-2286), or to peruse the schedule on the Assembly's website at <http://www.mssa1882.org>.

Two celebrated authors join the Assembly this week to talk about their work and share their writing. Dr. Sean McFate presents two programs on Thursday. McFate is a foreign policy expert, author, and novelist. Among his many appointments, he serves as a Senior Fellow at the Atlantic Council, a Washington D.C. think tank, and a professor of strategy at the National Defense University and Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service. McFate's career began as a paratrooper and officer in the U.S. Army's 82nd Airborne Division. He served under Stan McChrystal and David Petraeus, and graduated from elite training programs, such as Jungle Warfare School in Panama. He was also a Jump Master. McFate then became a private military contractor and paramilitary. Among his many experiences, he dealt with African warlords, raised armies for U.S. interests, rode with armed groups in the Sahara, conducted strategic reconnaissance for the extractive industry, transacted arms deals in Eastern Europe, and helped prevent an impending genocide in the Rwanda region.

In a Thursday morning lecture and book talk, McFate will focus on his fiction work, particularly his latest novel, "High Treason." His novels are based on his military experiences. New York Times bestselling author James Patterson said, "Sean McFate just might be the next Tom Clancy, only I think he's even better...The action is non-stop."

Thursday evening, he will share his work in nonfiction policy analysis. His recent book, "The New Rules of War: How America Can Win Against Russia, China, and Other Threats," focuses on principles for the future of military incursions globally. The publisher writes that the book is "an urgent, fascinating exploration of warfare – past, present and future – and what we must do if we want to win today. The book delivers a highly provocative, even controversial, exploration of modern warfare and what we must do to win in the future. McFate carefully constructs ten rules for the future of military engagement, explaining how to fight and win in an age of entropy and a global system very different from the past: one where corporations, mercenaries, and rogue states have more power and 'nation states' have less."

Jeff Upshaw will also share his writing with us in two appearances Friday. After a career spent in marketing and advertising, Upshaw wrote the novel "Twelve Days in Sunset" after struggling to come to terms with his relationship with a Black woman in the Mississippi delta. In 2000, Upshaw traveled to Mississippi for the funeral of Willie Bell, a woman who had been involved in his family's lives for decades. Attending that funeral in a Black church in a small town in Mississippi, Upshaw had the opportunity to speak about Bell's importance to his life and didn't. He told a reporter for his home church's newsletter, "I wanted to, but I didn't. Because I was uncomfortable. Out of my element. I just sat there." The regret at not acknowledging her importance in his life ate at him, and "Twelve Days in Sunset" was his way of atoning for what he saw as a failure of courage.

Upshaw will lecture on the central question of that novel, "Where Do Heroes Come From?" Friday morning in the Auditorium. At 2:30 p.m., at the Writers' Grove, he'll read selections from the novel. Books will be available for sale and signing following his morning lecture.

Additional events this week include the following:

Blue Monarch's New Eight-Family Rechter Home

Celebration of Rechter Home Opening

More than 200 people gathered on June 26 at the Blue Monarch campus in Coffee County to celebrate the official opening of the new Rechter Home, which will house eight families in the Blue Monarch program. Since 2003, Blue Monarch has provided long-term, residential recovery for nearly 1,000 women and children who are healing from abuse and addiction.

The Rechter Home was made possible through a generous gift of $825,000 from Ben and Joan Rechter. "We were delighted that Joan was able to attend this special celebration and we regret that Ben passed away last year before the home was completed," said Susan Binkley, Founder and President of Blue Monarch.

"Building this home from scratch gave us an exciting opportunity to address community living challenges we have experienced in the past," said Binkley. "For instance, this home has separate common areas, larger spaces for bigger families, and designated study areas for the children."

The highly successful Blue Monarch program is in great demand and the leadership is thankful for a way to serve more families in need. Blue Monarch puts great emphasis on the child's recovery as well as the mom's, and focuses on healthy parenting skills for mothers who have never parented sober. Through this effort, more than 360 children have been reunited with their mothers who had previously lost custody.

The event on Sunday was paired with a Blue Monarch graduation. "We were excited for Joan to see, firsthand, the kind of powerful transformation and healing our families will experience while living in the beautiful home she and Ben provided," said Binkley. "We are enormously grateful for this tremendous blessing that will be felt for many years to come."

MSSA Woman's Association to Host 58th Annual Cottage Tour & Bazaar

The Woman's Association of the MSSA (Monteagle Sunday School Assembly) will host its 58th annual Cottage Tour & Bazaar on Friday, July 22. The much anticipated event will include tours of five representative cottages; a self-guided tour of historic buildings; the always-popular bazaar with fine art, jewelry, home décor and much more; Butterfly Boutique (resale); special presentation by Elizabeth Heiskell, Debutante Farmer; lunch options from the Corner Market; and the "famous" Bake Sale.

The annual event is designed to share with the public the Assembly's unique history and mission, to showcase its representative turn-of-the-century structures, and to highlight the Chautauqua Movement and the Assembly's association with the Chautauqua Network. This year's tour will feature five distinctive cottages: Mint Julep, Comfy Cozy, Wayside, Balcony Place and Leaning Oak.

The bazaar, open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., will feature local arts and crafts and splurge-worthy fine art and jewelry from more than 40 selected local and regional artisans. The nearby Butterfly Boutique sale of donated items from members and friends is a bargain-lover's delight held in the Writers' Grove located near the Woman's Association Winfield House.

At 10:45 a.m., guests are invited to attend a special presentation by Elizabeth Heiskell, instructor at the Viking Cooking School; TODAY Show contributor; special guest on Food Network's The Kitchen and Chopped, CMT's Pickler and Ben and The Hallmark Channel. She is also a cookbook author and creator of Debutante Farmer, a bloody Mary mix that won acclaim as Southern Living's food award for one of "the best new products in the South."

Emily Frith of Corner Market Catering in Nashville will offer box lunches to be enjoyed in one of the Assembly's green spaces (must be pre-ordered for $18). The grill at Harton Dining Hall will also be offering a buffet lunch featuring soups, salads, and an array of comfort food specialties, sides and desserts. Guests will also enjoy the annual bake sale where the Assembly's best cooks bring their sweet and savory specialties, and the Snack Shop will be open for popcorn, chilled candy bars, bottled water and souvenir T-shirts.

Be sure to stop in at cottage 116, The Gallery. In addition to art and gifts, the Gallery is one of a select few to carry award-winning McCarty Pottery. Created by Assembly members, the late Lee and Pup McCarty, Mississippi-based McCartys has earned international recognition. The Gallery is a mainstay of the Assembly history a must-stop, must-shop during any visit.

Advance tour tickets ($15, $20 day of) and box lunches ($18) must be reserved and paid for in advance on the MSSA website <MSSA1882.org> using PayPal or by calling the MSSA office at (931) 924-2286 or by stopping by the office. Parking passes ($5 per car) can be purchased on the day of the tour at the North Gate entrance.

Painting by Sunday Perkins

Retrospective Exhibition by Sunday Perkins at Artisan Depot

The Franklin County Arts Guild is pleased to announce the opening of a very special "Retrospective Exhibition, Early Art through Quarantine" by Sunday Perkins, a longtime Franklin County resident and art teacher.

Sunday Perkins is a native of Franklin County. However, during the 'Great Migration' she went with her parents up to Ohio where she attended Elyria High School and then went on to graduate from Kent State with a K-12 teaching degree in Art and Social Studies.

Perkins taught Art in Ohio for 8 years before returning to Franklin County, where she taught for 30 years until her retirement in 2017. Sunday says that even when she was busy teaching art she never stopped making art.

Although Perkins mostly does portrait commissions of animals and people her natural inclination is to create abstract/abstract expressionist pieces which are often inspired by Aboriginal dreamtime art. In these pieces she desires to fire a spark in the imagination of the viewer.

While at college, Sunday channeled frustration with her painting professor into the physical act of creating sculpture from marble and clay. She feels that this foray into 3 dimensional pieces ultimately supported her painting practice and gave her another channel through which she could explore her expression.

The exhibition is at the Artisan Depot at 204 Cumberland St. E in Cowan. It will run through Aug. 28. Community members are cordially invited to a meet the artist reception 5–7 p.m., Friday, July 15.

2022 Masters Exhibition 800m Selection at the Toyota USATF National Championships

Sewanee got a mention at the Hayward Field in Eugene, Ore., on the final day of the Toyota USATF National Championships. Sewanee resident, William Yelverton was selected to race in the Masters Exhibition 800m event that showcased America's fastest men over age 60.

Yelverton, a seven-time USATF Masters National Champion 400m/200m sprinter, ran in just the fourth 800m race of his masters track career. He finished third in a time of 2:21.53, behind Mike Blackmore, a former All-American from University of Oregon and 3:57 miler, and Dan King, the American record holder in the M60 mile (60-64 age group).

The Toyota USATF Championship is America's elite track and field national championship event and qualifier for the IAAF World Championships. Segments of this Championship were broadcast on NBC over the weekend, and the complete event can be viewed on USATF.TV website. (Hayward Field at the University of Oregon will also be hosting the IAAF World Championships beginning on July 15).

Each year, an elite group of US masters athletes are selected to participate in a showcase exhibition event on this national stage. This year was particularly notable as the event was held for the first time in what is considered America's finest track and field stadium, the newly built $200 million Hayward Field on the campus of the University of Oregon in Eugene.

Shakerag Classic Returns to Sewanee

The annual golf tournament between The Monteagle Sunday School Assembly (MSSA) and Sewanee will be played July 11 this year. Sewanee team Captain Dan Hatfield and MSSA team Captain David Peacock said both communities will field strong teams and are looking forward to a competitive match.

Local businesses sponsoring this year's tournament are: Piggly Wiggly Grocery, Mountain Outfitters, The Village Wine & Spirits, High Point, Mountain Goat Market, Papa Rons, Up in Smoke, The Scoop, Mooney's Emporium, Monteagle Tire & Auto, Monteagle Nutrition, Mountain Top, The Blue Chair, Shenanigans, The Lemon Fair and La Bella Pearl's.

The Cleveland Golf Company will provide a Cleveland Driver to the golfer who wins the most accurate driving contest and a Cleveland Wedge to the golfer who wins the closest to the hole driving contest. PGA representative Starr Campbell will also be playing in this year's event.

NATURENOTES

by Yolande Gottfried

Pine-sap

Victoria I. Sullivan sent in this Nature Note.

A solitary Pine-sap (Monotropa hypopithys L. in the blueberry family) stalk of flowers sprang up in our backyard under a persimmon tree at the edge of the woods near Fairbanks Circle. This pale inconspicuous inflorescence with its many dull colored flowers is not accompanied by leaves or other green parts. The lack of chlorophyll bearing leaves and/or stems begs the question: How does it obtain food? Most plant species make food through photosynthesis using green chlorophylls pigments. Pine-sap are heterotrophs (feed on others), specifically mycoheterotrophs (myco means fungus) that attach to a mycorrhizal fungus attached to the roots of a photosynthetic plant. The fungus acts as a bridge between the plant and the mycoheterotroph. Carbon nutrients flow from the plant root to the fungus and on to the mycoheterotroph.

From the July 10, 2020 issue.

Friends Offer TNP Scholarship to Teachers

Each year, the Friends of South Cumberland offer a scholarship for one local teacher — occasionally two — to participate in the Tennessee Naturalist Program free of charge, Friends board member Mary Priestley has announced.

One 4-hour Saturday morning class approximately every month during the school year introduces participants to the natural history of the South Cumberland: geology, plants, animals, and more — information that will enrich your understanding and enliven your classroom science lessons, Priestley said.

For more information or to apply, contact Priestley at <mpriestley0150@gmail.com>.

Classes are set to begin in September 2022.

Beauty

Marley

MARC's Mountain Adoptables Meet Beauty & Marley

Beauty is a little sweetheart. She is a fun-loving active kitten looking for a playful family. Beauty was found under an air conditioning unit and now is in a loving foster home living with other cats, dogs, and children. She is around 13 weeks old, spayed, and up-to-date on her vaccines and preventatives. Beauty will make a great addition to your family.

Miss Marley is looking for her forever home. She and her sister were stray and taken in by a kind family. Unfortunately the family dog was not being nice to these girls so they are now being boarded but are in an outside kennel. If you are not sure you want to adopt Marley it would be wonderful if you want to try her out while fostering her. Marley is a beautiful girl who is friendly and laid back. She likes to play and run like any puppy would. Marley is ready to continue to learn good doggie manners. She would probably like to go on long walks and hikes and to cuddle up on the couch to be close with her people. If you are ready to help Marley learn to be a great dog companion, say yes!

If you would like to learn more about Beauty and Marley, please fill out an Adoption Application on the MARC website <www.marc4change.org> or contact Sue Scruggs at (423) 619-3845. These pets are fostering on the Sewanee-Monteagle Mountain and are easy to meet. All MARC animals ready for adoption are spayed or neutered and up-to-date on their vaccines and preventatives.

MARC is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit animal welfare organization. It is not a shelter and relies on foster homes to save animals. MARC also provides low cost and free spay/neuter procedures for animals and is available for teaching humane education in schools and to community organizations.

BARDTOVERSE

by Phoebe Bates

Sewanee Summer Music Festival

...From harmony, from Heav'nly harmony
This universal frame began:
From harmony to harmony
Through all the compass of the notes it ran,
The diapason closing full in man.

What passion cannot music raise and quell!
When Jubal struck the corded shell,
His list'ning brethren stood around
And wond'ring, on their faces fell
To worship that celestial sound:
Less than a god they thought there could not dwell
Within the hollow of that shell
That spoke so sweetly and so well.
What passion cannot music raise and quell!

The trumpet's loud clangor
Excites us to arms
With shrill notes of anger
And mortal alarms.
The double double double beat
Of the thund'ring drum
Cries, hark the foes come;
Charge, charge, 'tis too late to retreat.

The soft complaining flute
In dying notes discovers
The woes of hopeless lovers,
Whose dirge is whisper'd by the warbling lute.

Sharp violins proclaim
Their jealous pangs, and desperation,
Fury, frantic indignation,
Depth of pains and height of passion,
For the fair, disdainful dame.

But oh! what art can teach
What human voice can reach
The sacred organ's praise?
Notes inspiring holy love,
Notes that wing their Heav'nly ways
To mend the choirs above.

Orpheus could lead the savage race;
And trees unrooted left their place;
Sequacious of the lyre:
But bright Cecilia rais'd the wonder high'r;
When to her organ, vocal breath was giv'n,
An angel heard, and straight appear'd
Mistaking earth for Heav'n.
--John Dryden, from A Song for St. Cecilia's Day, 1687
