Franklin County Schools Vote 'No' on Mask Mandate

by Leslie Lytle
Messenger Staff Writer

At a special called meeting Aug. 30, the Franklin County School Board voted down a motion by board member Sarah Liechty to require elementary-age students to wear masks as a COVID-19 preventative measure. The board voted in favor of adopting a Remote Instruction policy for quarantined students.

Introducing the discussion on masking, Liechty pointed to Tennessee Department of Health guidelines stating students wearing masks did not need to be quarantined following exposure and Aug. 25 statistics showing 36 percent of Tennessee COVID cases were children.

Board chair Cleijo Walker stressed the complications of a mask mandate. "Whose going to enforce this?...[If parents] opt out, whose going to notify the teachers?"

"I think masks probably work... [but] it just adds one more thing for teachers to do," Linda Jones said.

"People in Franklin County don't want to be told what to do with their kids," Chris Guess said.

"For a measured amount of time, could we come together for the common good?" Leichy asked. She noted a Herald Chronicle survey reported 58 percent of those who responded supported masking in the schools.

Board member Lance Williams cited two school surveys showing staff and parents opposed masking: 70.3 percent at Huntland School and 51.1 percent at Rock Creek School.

"Should we ask principals to do a survey of parents?" Walker asked.

Huntland Principal Kenneth Bishop said the anonymous survey process at Huntland School did not distinguish between parents and staff.

Board member Sarah Marhevsky cited the high number of students with COVID, 234 in the first three weeks of this school year compared to 197 all of last year.

Board member Christine Hopkins observed Seawanee Elementary had no cases and Huntland had only one case. SES Principal Allison Dietz said SES was "smaller so it was easier for students to spread out." Bishop said some students wore masks at Huntland and some did not. Masking is optional at both SES and Huntland.

Leichy said the school system website should give current statistics on COVID cases at each school so parents could make informed decisions about masking.

Director of Schools Stanley Bean said he was in favor of masking, but he did not think masking would make "a big change." Bean emphasized the importance of encouraging principals and teachers to do a better job at maintaining social distancing.

Monteagle Jump Starts Park and Recreation Amenities

by Leslie Lytle, Messenger Staff Writer

At the Aug. 30 Monteagle Council meeting, alderwoman Jessica Favaloro provided an overview of parks and recreation plans for the coming year which include new playground equipment and a public fishing area. The council approved four ordinances on second reading but tabled the second reading of the nonconforming-uses zoning ordinance for further review.

Favaloro said plans for playground equipment at Hannah Pickett Park called for swings, slides and climbing apparatus for children ages five to 12. The local Tennessee company Recreational Concepts will install the equipment and provide splinter-free tumble-turf ground cover. The original set, cost $50,000, can be expanded to include swings for handi-capped children and adult exercise equipment. Favaloro hopes installation will begin before the end of the year or early next year. Having a plan in place will help raise the additional $25,000 needed, Favaloro speculated. Mayor Marilyn Campbell Rodman cited American Recovery Act moneys as a possible funding source.

The fishing dock proposed for a parcel on Laurel Lake Drive would offer tables, chairs, and have trash receptacles, Favaloro said. The state park hosted a fishing rodeo at the lake in the past, Rodman said, pointing to a possible future event. Other plans call for planting 100 crepe myrtle trees provided by an anonymous donor, hosting movies in the park with the new portable movie screen, and a September 15 volunteer day for adorning Main Street with pumpkins, gourds, and other fall decorations. Looking to the spring, the Parks and Recreation budget provides for someone to oversee ballfield upkeep and the baseball program.

Alderwoman Dorraine Parmley announced the city would hold a Sept. 11 commemorative observance at the memorial on the Main Street median. The ceremony will begin at 8:30 a.m. and is expected to last 20-25 minutes.

Three of the approved ordinances provided for funding necessary city expenses. Among the items approved in the budget amendment ordinances were the purchase of two police vehicles ($22,050) and a fire truck (cost not to exceed $150,000). Greg Maloof, advisor to the police and fire departments, said the used Ford Explorers and rescue-pumper truck previously identified for purchase were no longer available. A search for suitable vehicles is underway. Maloof stressed he had been advised the best course of action for the out-of-service 1998 fire truck was not to repair the truck, cost $20,000, since there was no market for a truck of that age. Maloof estimated the salvage value at $500-$1,000.

The approved zoning ordinance rezoned a small parcel from high density residential (R-3) to low density residential (R-1). The owner hopes to build a single-family dwelling, which was not allowed in R-3 zoning.

The council raised questions about the proposed non-conforming uses zoning ordinance. Building inspector Earl Geary explained the ordinance "relaxes the original ordinance [governing commercially zoned property] which said a nonconforming use [such as a residence] cannot be modified... It gives people an opportunity to add on to [their residence] or change it."

"This way you don't have to rezone every piece of property...in these situations," Rodman observed.

Alderman Nate Wilson asked if the nonconforming-use modifications needed to be brought before the planning commission.

"It [allows nonconforming] use on review...It probably doesn't say that, but it's my understanding that's what it's supposed to say," Geary said.

The council tabled the second reading of the ordinance. Rodman asked Geary to research the language question. Geary will consult town planner Garret Haynes who recommended the ordinance. The council will hold another public hearing on the ordinance in September.

Monteagle-Seawanee Rotary Club's 7th annual Hunger Walk is raising funds to combat food insecurity in Tennessee's South Cumberland Plateau region. This year the Hunger Walk will be a hybrid event beginning on Sept. 18 with a week-long virtual walk and culminating on Sept. 25 with an in-person walk from Monteagle to Seawanee. Proceeds will benefit local organizations which help our neighbors in need, such as the Community Action Committee (St. Mark and St. Paul), Grundy County Food Bank, and Morton Memorial Feeding Ministry. This year's goal is $50,000.

Go to <<https://thehungerwalk.com>> for complete information and to register or donate.

The concert will feature the 2021 Seawanee Summer Music Festival Jacqueline Avent Concerto Competition winners along with Festival artist-faculty. The event is at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Sept. 17, in Guerry Auditorium. Falletta has been a guest conductor at the Seawanee Summer Music Festival since 2014. No tickets are required for this free event and the public is invited to attend. Masks are required in all University buildings. The Lemon Fair's New Story

by Bailey Basham, Messenger Staff Writer

A beloved Seawanee fixture is under new ownership as of June 2021.

The Lemon Fair, which has been owned by the Alvarez-Evans family since the 1970s, was purchased by realtor and investor Andrea Woodard-Evans and her husband, Scott, who graduated from the University in 1998.

"My husband and I had been looking for a spot on the Mountain to invest, and when we saw The Lemon Fair hit the market by our dear friends at Village Real Estate, we called immediately," Woodard-Evans said.

Woodard-Evans said purchasing The Lemon Fair only made sense for her and her family — not only because she and her husband had long been looking to own their own piece of the Mountain but because of a generations-old family story.

"I was extremely close with my grandfather, and when I was growing up, he had an expansive garden in his California backyard where he was known for cross-pollinating his lemons and oranges. Our family has a great affinity to lemons because of this legend he left behind, and anytime we see lemons, we think of him, all his big stories he told, his generous, giant heart and the lessons he taught us. It felt like a wink from my Papa to take a chance and invest in The Lemon Fair. Add to that my husband being an alum, our routine family visits, and simply the magic of the Mountain, everything about it felt meant to be," she said.

Katherine Evans, daughter of the store's original owner Gay Alvarez, took over the shop after her mother's passing five years ago. She said she had the intention of bringing the store back to life following her mom's illness, and for the last several years, she has done just that. But due to COVID, she had to reevaluate her plans.

"The Lemon Fair was my first job and because I'd grown up with the business and run Stirling's Coffee House for nearly 20 years, I felt uniquely qualified to grow a small business in this particular small town," she said. "I had more of an eight to 10 year plan in mind. But when Covid hit and I realized I couldn't do the post-holiday, slow-season winter travel that I'd become accustomed to, I decided to spend the time getting the store ready to sell."

Evans said that she hopes to see the Seawanee institution her mom created continue to flourish.

"For me, this is a continuation of The Lemon Fair's story, just with a new perspective. I think we were lucky to find buyers with an appreciation of the store's traditions and an eye to the future, and I'm excited to see what happens next," Evans said.

ESTABLISH A DRUG-FREE COMMUNITY WITH GSCC

To the Editor:

Every day, substance use changes the people we know and love - and every time they use, we all lose.

I work for Grundy Safe Communities Coalition (GSCC) as a Youth Coordination Development VISTA. Our mission is to be united together to establish a safe, caring, drug-free community that supports youth and families.

Substance misuse does not discriminate—it could be you, a friend, a colleague, or your neighbor. Grundy County needs your support to prevent these losses that affect every one of us.

We are striving to create a youth coalition and to continue to build capacity for our community coalition for drug and alcohol prevention in Grundy County communities.

We hope to involve churches, businesses, and other local groups to build capacity toward a sustainable program to help youth understand the health dangers and long-term effects of drug use.

Get involved to prevent the tragedy of substance misuse and overdose by learning prevention practices and incorporating them into your home and life. Knowing the drugs you take, the effects they have on your body, and how to prevent substance misuse and overdose makes all the difference. Join us in understanding how substance misuse affects each one of us.

LESSONS UNLEARNED

To the Editor:

So now comes the final chapter of another unwinnable war. And the repercussions will be catastrophic—not only in the costs in human lives and equipment, extravagant spending and national debt—but the fact that, once again, our foreign enemies have scored a major victory.

Not to mention that the turmoil within our nation is taking us down a very slippery path to destruction—also advantageous to our enemies within and without.

What concerns me most is the rise of violence, division, fear, hatred and dissension within our ranks. As the old saying goes, “a house divided soon falls.”

The time has come to unite for the betterment of human relations or stand back and watch the dissolution of all our founders and many others since fought and died for.

Don Shannonhouse, Monteagle

ARCADIA AT SEWANEE CONVERSATION

To the Editor:

Last week’s article reporting on the update given to the Monteagle-Sewanee Rotary Club on economic development considerations for the Domain included a reference to the Arcadia at Sewanee organization that is working to establish a continuing care retirement community here. We would like those interested in the project to know that a helpful and clarifying conversation between us took place following the publication to ensure that our respective goals and perspectives on Arcadia were more completely understood and shared.

Many of the University’s strategic priorities relate to investment and focus on those initiatives that will attract and retain students, faculty, and staff. Categories of emphasis that fulfill this promise concern diversity, equity and inclusion; student success; and economic development that leads to new forms of revenue.

We look forward to working together to explore further how the Arcadia initiative can relate to those priorities. By no means was the quote intended to minimize or dismiss the Arcadia effort, and the two of us are committed to continued cooperation and intentional dialogue to serve the community well.

Sincerely,

David Shipps, Vice President, Economic Development & Community Relations, The University of the South

George Elliott, President, Arcadia at Sewanee

Join the Fun: SWC

Last year, the Sewanee Woman's Club (SWC) celebrated its 90th year. In the middle of a pandemic, isolation, and eventual vaccinations, we braved the odds and enjoyed each other's company. With masks on and off we ate lunch, had conversations, and stimulating talks and lectures. We even had one of the most successful fundraisers in years, the proceeds from which we shared with some civic associations on the Plateau.

Although initially membership in the SWC was limited to women whose families were associated with the University of the South, current membership is open to all women in the surrounding area on the Plateau. If you're interested in sharing our goals and objectives, which have remained the same since the inception of the Club: to promote study and discussion groups and to cooperate for the welfare of the community, then join us. You may also want to join our Book Club or our Garden Club.

The SWC meets the second Monday of most months at St. Mary's Sewanee, off of Sherwood Road. Vaccination and masking are required for the time being, except during eating and drinking and for those with a legitimate medical issue.

The first meeting of this year will be on Monday, Sept. 13, at 11:30 a.m. for registration, socializing, and informal conversation. A buffet lunch will be served at noon with social distancing observed. Annual dues of $10 will be collected at this meeting as well as $15 for the lunch.

The speaker for the first meeting of our 91st year will be the Rev. Dr. Robert MacSwain, Professor of Theology at the University of the South, who will engage us with a talk about "Saints Among Us."

Please reserve your spot no later than Monday, Sept. 6, by contacting Susan Peek, phone (615) 504-5404 or email <Susan.Peek@gmail.com>; or Martha Ann Pilcher, phone (615) 517-1659 or email <mapilcher@gmail.com>.

Emerald Ash Borer in Sewanee

The Emerald Ash Borer (EAB) is an exotic wood boring insect originally from Asia. It was first discovered on our continent in Michigan in 2002 and since then has been munching its way across the country. The first EAB in Franklin County was found in a trap in 2015, but it has taken until this year for us to find evidence of them on the University of the South campus.

If no action is taken, EAB will kill all ash trees it comes in contact with. There are chemical treatment options for individual trees, but they can only be applied by professionals and are practical only in an urban context.

If you have ash trees on your leasehold, now is a great time to take a look at their health. Here <<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=izEFdv0VLh8>> is a good introductory video but there are many more good references online for both identification of ash trees and signs of infestation. Sewanee student members of the Forestry Club are willing to help leaseholders with ash and EAB identification. If interested, please email them at <forestryclub.sewanee@gmail.com>.

At this point, we are early in our infestation. The most common symptoms seen around campus are thinning crowns and an increasing number of dead branches. A good example of these symptoms can be found in an ash tree on Georgia Avenue in front of the Bishop's Common. While there are not yet any of the characteristic D-shaped exit holes in the trunk bark, limbs are beginning to die in several areas of the crown, and if you were to climb the tree you would see these limbs have those characteristic holes. As the infestation grows in the tree, the EAB will make its way to the trunk.

If you have trees on your leasehold that you would like to protect, it is important to act soon. Once a tree has lost more than 30 percent of its canopy, it may not be possible to save it. We are expecting exponential growth of EAB on the Domain over the next couple of years and experience from other areas of infestation lead us to believe that most ash trees on the Domain will be dead in 10 years. Once most of the ash trees are dead, the EAB population will crash and maintenance of trees chemically treated can become less intense.

On the central campus, Facilities Management, Domain Management, and Forestry faculty are working together to identify which central campus trees may be appropriate to chemically treat. Spring treatment of trees is most effective, and we hope to begin treatment next spring. Unfortunately, many of the ash trees on campus will also be removed. Because of the way EAB kills ash trees, affected trees quickly become brittle, making them both a hazard while standing and dangerous to remove. For this reason, you may see ash trees from central campus removed before they are dead.

Beyond the central campus, ash makes up about 17 percent of the Domain forest. Unfortunately, the ash is not evenly distributed and there are some areas on the side of the mountain where ash is one of the dominant canopy trees. We are currently working with the Landscape Analysis Lab <<https://new.sewanee.edu/offices/university-offices/lal/>> to identify what areas of the Domain may be most affected by this new pest.

Once areas of high concentrations of ash are identified, one of several things may happen. For most of the Domain, the ash will die without intervention and provide opportunities for students and faculty to observe and measure how the forest ecosystem adapts. We are also in conversation with the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) about being a possible site for biological control experimentation. The USDA has identified and approved for use four species of parasitic wasp that prey only on the EAB. They are interested in using some stands on the Domain to release these wasps and monitor for success. These biological controls will not save the older trees, but seem to offer some hope of saving some of the genetic heritage of ash trees, protecting young trees from infestation and saving the species from removal from the landscape. The University will also try to preemptively remove some ash in locations where it is easily accessible and financially viable.

For more information on the EAB, go to <<https://www.aphis.usda.gov/>>.

Liechty's motion called for temporarily requiring masking for elementary age students unless the parents opted out, to be reviewed the third week in October. Only Liechty and Marhevsky voted in favor of the motion.

Franklin County instructional supervisors wrote the Remote Instruction policy based on state guidelines. The state recently required school systems to have a Remote Instruction policy for quarantined students, Human Resources Supervisor Linda Foster said. The policy mandates six-and-a-half-hours per day of instruction.

Jones expressed concerns about proving the student received six-and-a-half-hours of instruction and the extra burden on teachers. Kim Tucker, Elementary Supervisor of Curriculum and Instruction, explained the requirement did not mean face-to-face instruction, only that the student receive the work typically given in a six-and-a-half-hour day and that the student complete the assignments. The board approved the new policy with plans to review it pending advice from the Tennessee School Board Association.

Zory Deering, who has worked at The Lemon Fair for nearly seven years, will remain on staff with the store.

Woodard-Evans added that the Sewanee Angels and other Sewanee souvenirs will always be available in the shop, but that she and husband Scott intend to add more apparel, jewelry, gift and entertainment pieces and plenty of holiday items.

"We love the charm and artistry that The Lemon Fair has always been known for, and that is something we would not dream of changing," Woodard-Evans said. "There is just something special about the Mountain that draws you in and takes root into your soul. It truly is a magical place, and we feel lucky to be able to grow with and contribute to the Sewanee community."

September is National Voter Registration Month.

The Round Up

If you are reading this, it means you have made it through another week alive and possibly even healthy. Congratulations! In these continually challenging days, that is worth a celebration.

During this non-ending year, my daughter and I have been keeping book journals, an activity which has a kind of cult following among a younger generation. Mine is simple: lists of books I have read and want to read, reviews, memorable quotes.

On my To-Be-Read page, I assigned myself the task of reading books by authors who do not look like me, whose names I have to think about twice to pronounce.

For example, Samira Ahmed's "Interned." In a futuristic America with eerie similarities to society under our ex-president, 17-year-old Layla and her parents are suddenly forced into an internment camp. In a disturbing echo of Holocaust history, all Muslim-Americans have already been registered, forced out of jobs, given a curfew, all with little objection from their fellow citizens.

Now the roundups, and if the train Layla's family is put on is not the boxcar of Holocaust horror, it is clear life as they knew it is nonetheless over.

Their fictional camp is beside Manzanar, the very real relocation site for Japanese-American citizens in that dark period of our American history.

Unlike her campmates, Layla is determined to fight back—a seemingly impossible task when modern day surveillance cameras and drones are added to the spotlights and guard towers of Holocaust history.

Resistance during the Holocaust was generally a death sentence, and those who stand out at Layla's camp are beaten and usually "disappeared."

Does she survive? You will have to read and find out, and I hope you do. It is a novel that gave me chills and should. It is a novel that reminds me what happens when we do not stand up to injustice., of how fragile democracy is.

We see that theme again in "Nisei Daughter" by Monica Sone (aka Kazuko Itoi) the memoir of a girl coming of age before World War Two. Her parents are Issei, Japanese immigrants, and the conflicts between the culture they surround themselves with and her Americanized life bring comic and touching moments to an account which is also about a larger culture clash—that of two nations at war.

I love her voice from the opening sentence: "The first five years of my life I lived in amoebic bliss....one day when I was a happy six-year-old, I made the shocking discovery...I was a Japanese."

Considered a classic in Asian-American literature, most of the memoir is set in Seattle, where the Itois run a hotel on Skid Row before their internment in one of the government camps. Sone's account of life there slants more positive in its descriptions of how the inmates work to adapt, despite deprivations and some tragedy. Above all, this is the story of a family loving one another through the challenges of being treated as less-than by the country of which many of them are citizens.

As reward for immersing yourself in the above, you might pick up David Yoon's "Frankly in Love." Korean-American Frank Li is in love for the first time with a girl as nerdy as he is. But she happens to be white, a fact he has to hide from his very traditional Korean parents. A childhood friend from the close-knit group of immigrants his parents have socialized with since their arrival in America is in a similar plight. The scheme they come up with to get around their parents' prejudices has unexpected consequences, but this page-turner of an often-comic novel is not just about young love. So much about the older generation's adaptation, or lack thereof, to their new country is in here, as well as unexpected plot twists, the power of friendships, and heartache that has nothing to do with romance.

Even my husband, not a big YA reader, enjoyed this book.

That is it for this month. If you want more book suggestions, I am on Instagram as @megstereads. Come on in!

University COVID-19 Policy Updates

On Aug. 2, 2021, the Office of the Provost sent out a communication announcing an update to the University's masking policy. Effective Aug. 3, 2021, and until further notice, all students, employees, and visitors must wear face coverings/masks over their nose and mouth when they are in public spaces inside all University buildings. While outdoors, masks are not required unless otherwise indicated by the University.

On Aug. 26, 2021, Vice-Chancellor Reuben Brigety sent out a letter to the campus community that COVID-19 vaccinations will be required for all students, faculty, and staff. The campus-wide COVID-19 vaccination requirement goes into full effect on Oct. 5, 2021. By that date, all students, faculty, and staff must have received either both shots of a two-dose regimen (for Pfizer and Moderna) or the single-shot Johnson & Johnson vaccine. Exceptions will be made for legitimate medical and religious reasons.

On Aug. 31, 2021, the Office of Public Health sent an email to all University students that they will be screen tested through Friday, Sept. 3.

'SOMOS' Exhibit at the UAG

The University Art Gallery (UAG) is delighted to present "SOMOS" by multimedia artist Edgar Reyes, on view in the UAG through Oct. 15.

In "Somos," the personal and specific become communal. Images of loved ones and remembered places, are filtered, layered and abstracted. Printed on chiffon or canvas, the images float in the air or drape the wall. Places and people from the past are honored, held on to, and shared. In other pieces, vividly colored abstractions repeat motifs drawn from traditional Mesoamerican artwork, or present new patterns representative of a common experience. Images of plants, native and non-native, cultivated in a family garden or at large agricultural scale, weave through the exhibition, emblematic of displacement and exploitation, but also of home and resilience.

Reyes will present his work in conversation with Assistant Professor of Spanish Lucia García-Santana at 5 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 30, in Guerry Auditorium.

Arts Amplified is coming! Our first Arts Amplified! event will take place in the arcade in front of the UAG and framed by "SOMOS" in the UAG on Oct. 2 at 7 p.m., as prelude to the Sewanee Symphony Orchestra concert in Guerry Auditorium.

The University Art Gallery regular hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Tuesday through Friday, and noon-4 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. The University Art Gallery is located on Georgia Avenue. Call (931) 598-1223 for more information, visit the website at <gallery.sewanee.edu>, or follow them on Facebook.

SAS Varsity Girls' Soccer Goes 0-1-1

On Aug. 24, St. Andrew's-Sewanee varsity girls' school soccer team kicked off its regular season at home against Chattanooga School of Arts and Science (CSAS) with a 1-1 tie.

The CSAS came out strong, dominated possession and scored a goal in the opening 10 minutes into the match. However, 10 minutes later, sophomore Sara Knight answered for the Mountain Lions with a breakaway goal off a through pass. Knight was neck and neck with the CSAS defense but broke through and made a clinical 1v1 finish against CSAS goalie.

In the second half, the Mountain Lions stamina held out dominating possession and the team started clicking with more completed passes. Sophomore Hadlee Hale and senior Sophia Carlos established themselves as a force in the midfield, winning the ball and making visionary through passes upfield. Junior Verena Pate was a physical presence up top winning challenges and creating scoring opportunities. The backline under the direction of sophomore goalkeeper Ellie Jenkins held strong. Despite strong play in all areas of the field SAS wasn't able to find that game winning goal.

On Aug. 26 the girls' varsity soccer team traveled to Huntland for their second match of the season. They fell short losing 3-1 to the Hornets. The Mountain Lions came out strong immediately putting the Huntland Hornets under pressure. Ten minutes into the match SAS was awarded a free kick just outside the box. Sophomore Sarah Grace Powell hammered home the shot putting SAS up 1-0. However, five minutes later Huntland tied the match. SAS fought through heavy legs in the second half with grit and determination: but to no avail as Huntland scored twice in the second half.

"We have much to learn," commented Coach Burns, "but I am proud of how we fought and proud of the progress we are making each day."

SAS Varsity Volleyball Update

St. Andrew's-Sewanee lost to Grundy County High School on Aug. 26, 25-12, 25-14 and 25-15. Ivy Moser and Alex King led the team in kills with three each; Ava Carlos three digs and one ace; Anja Dombrowski five assists, one ace; Reese Michaels five digs and Brooklyn Nichols four digs.

Head Coach Rob Zeitler said, "We have a very young team and we are learning so much about ourselves and the team each time we play. The players have great attitudes and continue to get better."

Praying Mantis

I came upon a praying mantis in the garden eating a caterpillar, so close was I that I could see its mouthparts chewing away. I have only recently learned that these large mantids, the ones we usually see, are not native here but are an introduced species, the Chinese Mantis. It was accidentally introduced in the U.S. in Pennsylvania in 1896. Another introduced species, the European Mantis, was introduced as pest control for the gypsy moth. Both of these produce the brown egg case of hardened foam where the eggs overwinter, again, the one we typically think of when we think of a praying mantis. These egg cases are still often sold for insect control, but since these are introduced species, that may be problematic. The Chinese Mantis preys on anything it can catch: besides insects (including other mantises) and spiders, it will also eat small reptiles, amphibians, mice, and even small birds, including hummingbirds. However, there is a native mantid, the Carolina Mantis. It is much smaller than the Chinese Mantis, only about 2 inches in length, and its wings extend only partway down its abdomen. It also has a distinctly different kind of egg case, more elongated and striped. Mantids are part of the order of insects that includes grasshoppers, katydids, crickets, walkingsticks, and cockroaches. Most species of mantid are tropical.

Ashlynn

Keith

Pets of the Week

Meet Ashlynn & Keith

One-year-old calico cat Ashlynn must have been a baker in her former life because she continuously makes biscuits on everything she can. She loves a good game of peek-a-boo and her stumpy little tail bounces like a bunny while she does it. She's a sucker for affection and loves to give kisses in return by gently pressing her front teeth to your hand. This kitty is a gorgeous patchwork of various colors and patterns with long legs and an adorable bobtail to top it off. This former stray is looking for a home with lots of soft things to knead and a human to love on forever. Ashlynn is up-to-date on vaccinations, FIV/FelV negative, spayed, and microchipped. If you are interested in adopting her, make sure to submit an adoption application at <www.animalharbor.org>.

One-year-old hound mix Keith is a total love bug that adores humans more than you could even imagine. Playful and sweet, with a cute funny grin—that's Keith. He came to us from Franklin County Animal Control after he'd been hit by a car. He couldn't put weight on his leg for a while from the pain. Veterinary X-rays showed no broken bones, but what he did need was a ton of staff patience and time to heal. Animal Harbor staff performed physical therapy on him to build strength back, and he's now romping and playing with the other dogs. With love, patience, and close care Keith is almost 100 percent back to normal. We couldn't be happier for his journey of healing. Now are you ready to completely heal his heart and bring him home to love forever? Keith is up-to-date on vaccinations, heartworm-negative, neutered, and microchipped. If you are interested in adopting Keith, make sure to submit an adoption application at <www.animalharbor.org>.

MARC Offering TNR

Marion Animal Resource Connection (MARC) is Trapping, Neutering/Spaying, and Returning (TNR) feral cats in Grundy County and areas of Monteagle and Sewanee on the Mountain. The South Cumberland Community Fund (SCCF) awarded MARC a grant for $4,635 to be spent in one year for this program.

If you have feral cats please call the MARC message line (423) 240-9074 and choose option No.

1 for spay/neuter appointments. Then say you have feral cats on the Mountain. Volunteers designated for this program will contact you.

We trap the feral cats and take them to the vet to be spayed or neutered, receive rabies vaccine, and to get an ear tipped to indicate to others that this cat has been altered/fixed. The cats are returned to the location from where they were trapped. They will keep other cats away and control the rodent population. Their numbers will begin to decline because they will not be reproducing. There is no other place to put them unless a person needs some barn cats. Rarely a kitten may not be too feral and can be tamed, but this takes lots of time and patience and doesn't usually work.

Let's help stop the cat population from expanding. In just one year, one unaltered female and several unaltered male cats can produce at least 12 more cats; in three years, 376 more cats; and by 8 years, 2,072,514 more cats from the original unaltered female and numerous unaltered males.

Call MARC to help with your feral cats, (423) 240-9074. Go to <<http://marc4change.org>> for more information.

BARDTOVERSE

by Phoebe Bates

Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 6

How do you tackle your work each day?

Are you scared of the job you find?

Do you grapple the task that comes your way
With a confident, easy mind?
Do you stand right up to the work ahead
Or fearfully pause to view it?
Do you start to toil with a sense of dread
Or feel that you're going to do it?

You can do as much as you think you can,
But you'll never accomplish more;
If you're afraid of yourself, young man,
There's little for you in store.
For failure comes from the inside first,
It's there if we only knew it,
And you can win, though you face the worst,
If you feel that you're going to do it.

Success! It's found in the soul of you,
And not in the realm of luck!
The world will furnish the work to do,
But you must provide the pluck.
You can do whatever you think you can,
It's all in the way you view it.
It's all in the start that you make, young man:
You must feel that you're going to do it.

How do you tackle your work each day?
With confidence clear, or dread?
What to yourself do you stop and say
When a new task lies ahead?
What is the thought that is in your mind?
Is fear ever running through it?
If so, just tackle the next you find
By thinking you're going to do it.

How do You Tackle Your Work?, by Edgar Guest
